Aaron (307 total matches, showing 5)

Berakhot 31b:17

The Talmud asks: What is the meaning of “an offspring of men”? Rav said: Hannah prayed for a man among men, a son who would be outstanding and exceptional. And Shmuel said: This expression means an offspring who will anoint two men to royalty. And who were they? Saul and David. And R' Yoḥanan said: Hannah prayed that she would bear an offspring who would be the equivalent of two of the world’s greatest men. And who were they? Moses and Aaron. As it is stated: “Moses and Aaron among His priests, and Samuel among those who call His name” (Psalms 99:6). In this verse, Hannah’s son, Samuel, is equated to Moses and Aaron. And the Rabbis say: “An offspring of men”: Hannah prayed for an offspring who would be inconspicuous among men, that he would not stand out in any way.

Berakhot 61a:10

The Talmud explains: In conferring honor, one begins with the greatest, as it is written: “And Moses said unto Aaron, and Elazar and Itamar, his remaining sons: Take the meal-offering that remains” (Leviticus 10:12). Aaron, who was the greatest among those involved, is mentioned first. And in cursing, one begins with the least significant, as first the snake was cursed, then Eve was cursed, and ultimately Adam himself was cursed. The punishment did not begin with Adam.

Berakhot 64a:7

And R' Avin HaLevi said: One who partakes of a meal at which a Torah scholar is present, it is as if he enjoyed the radiant splendor of the Divine Presence, as it is stated: “And Aaron came, and all the elders of Israel, to eat bread with Moses’ father-in-law before God” (Exodus 18:12). Did they actually eat before God? Didn’t they eat before Moses?

Shabbat 55b:1

The Talmud raises an objection from the following baraita: The ministering angels said before God: Master of the Universe, why did You penalize Adam, the first man, with the death penalty? He said to them: I gave him a simple mitzva, and he violated it. They said to Him: Didn’t Moses and Aaron, who observed the whole Torah in its entirety, nevertheless die? The Holy One, Blessed be He, said to them, citing the verse: “All things come alike to all; there is one event to the righteous and to the wicked; to the good and to the clean, and to the unclean; to him who sacrifices, and to him who does not sacrifice; as is the good, so is the sinner; and he who swears, as he who fears an oath” (Ecclesiastes 9:2). Apparently, death is not dependent upon one’s actions. Everyone dies.

Shabbat 55b:2

The Talmud answers: Rav Ami stated his position in accordance with this tanna, as it was taught in a baraita: R' Shimon ben Elazar said: Even Moses and Aaron died due to their sin, as it is stated: “And YHWH spoke to Moses and Aaron: Because you did not believe in Me, to sanctify Me in the eyes of the children of Israel, therefore you shall not bring this congregation in to the land which I have given them” (Numbers 20:12). Had you believed in Me and spoken to the rock as commanded, your time would not yet have come to leave the world. Apparently, even Moses and Aaron died due to their sins.

Aaron and his sons (37 total matches, showing 5)

Eruvin 54b:16

With regard to the manner in which the Oral Law was taught, the Talmud asks: They should all have studied from Moses himself four times. The Talmud answers: The teaching was divided in this manner in order to give honor to Aaron and his sons, and also to give honor to the elders.

Pesachim 59a:4

The baraita continues: Alternatively, the same verse can be interpreted as follows: There is no rite that is valid from evening until morning but this one alone, since all the other rites are performed only during the day. What is the reason that this verse is interpreted to mean that lighting the lamps is the only rite valid from evening until morning? It is because the verse said with regard to the candelabrum: "Aaron and his sons shall set [ya'arokh] it [oto] in order, to burn from evening to morning." The verse uses the separate word it [oto], rather than a pronominal suffix attached to the word ya'arokh to form the word ya'arkhenu, in order to emphasize that it, the lighting of the candelabrum, is from evening until morning, but no other rite is from evening until morning.

Pesachim 59b:3

Rav Ashi said to Rav Kahana, and some say it Rav Huna, son of Rav Natan, said to Rav Pappa: But, isn't it the case that as long as the sacrificial parts of the sin-offering have not been burned on the altar, the priests may not eat the meat? As it was taught in a baraita with regard to peace-offerings: I might have thought that the priests would be permitted to eat the breast and thigh, which are designated for them from the peace-offering, prior to burning the sacrificial parts of the offering on the altar. Therefore, the verse states: "And the priest shall burn the fat upon the altar, and the breast shall be for Aaron and his sons" (Leviticus 7:31). From here it is derived that the priest is first obligated to burn the fat, and only then: "The breast shall be for Aaron and his sons.

Pesachim 59b:5

He said to him: Since it is impossible to complete the offering any other way, due to the positive mitzva of completion, they rendered these sacrificial parts as ones that became ritually impure or were lost. In those cases, it is permitted for priests to eat their portions. As it was taught in a baraita: I might have thought that if the sacrificial parts became ritually impure or were lost, the priests would not be entitled to the breast and thigh, the eating of which ordinarily depends upon burning the sacrificial parts on the altar. Therefore, the verse states: "And the breast shall be for Aaron and his sons" (Leviticus 7:31), which indicates that in any event it is an absolute gift, even if some of the accompanying rites were not performed in the proper manner.

Yoma 5b:7

§ Apropos the inauguration of the priests, the Talmud asks: How, i.e., in what order, did Moses dress Aaron and his sons in the priestly vestments? The Talmud wonders: In what order did he dress them? That is an irrelevant question, as what was, was. The order in which Moses dressed the priests has no practical ramifications. Rather, the question must be: How will Moses dress the priests in the future, following the resurrection of the dead, when the Temple service will be restored? The Talmud rejects this question as well: In the future, too, when Aaron and his sons will come and Moses will be with them, he will know the proper sequence, and there is no point to raising the question.

Aaron the priest (16 total matches, showing 5)

Eruvin 63a:15

The Talmud asks: Is the disciple not liable to receive the death penalty if he issues his ruling not in the teacher's presence? But wasn't it taught otherwise in a baraita: R' Eliezer says: The sons of Aaron died only because they issued a halakhic ruling before Moses, their teacher? What did they expound in support of their conclusion that they must bring fire inside as opposed to waiting for fire to come down from the heavens? It is stated in the Torah: "And the sons of Aaron the priest shall put fire on the altar, and lay the wood in order on the fire" (Leviticus 1:7), which led them to say: Although fire descends from Heaven, it is nonetheless a mitzva to bring ordinary fire. Although they derived this from the verses, they were punished for ruling in the presence of their teacher.

Rosh Hashanah 2b:9

The Talmud answers: It should not enter your mind to say this, as it is written: "And Aaron the priest went up to Mount Hor at the commandment of YHWH, and died there, in the fortieth year after the children of Israel were come out of the land of Egypt, in the fifth month, on the first day of the month" (Numbers 33:38), and it is later written: "And it came to pass in the fortieth year, in the eleventh month, on the first of the month, that Moses spoke to the children of Israel" (Deuteronomy 1:3). From the fact that when the Bible speaks of the month of Av, which is the fifth month, it calls that year "the fortieth year," and when it speaks of the following Shevat, it also calls that year "the fortieth year," the implication is that the New Year does not begin in Tishrei. Were it the case that the New Year begins in Tishrei, Av and the following Shevat would not be in the same year because the year would have changed in Tishrei.

Rosh Hashanah 3a:11

It is taught in a baraita in accordance with the opinion of R' Yoḥanan: From where is it derived that one counts the years of kings' reigns only from the month of Nisan? As it is stated: "And it came to pass in the four hundred and eightieth year after the children of Israel were come out of the land of Egypt, in the fourth year of Solomon's reign over Israel, in the month Ziv, which is the second month, that he began to build the house of YHWH" (I Kings 6:1). And it is written: "And Aaron the priest went up to Mount Hor at the commandment of YHWH, and died there, in the fortieth year after the children of Israel were come out of the land of Egypt, in the fifth month, on the first day of the month" (Numbers 33:38). And it is later written: "And it came to pass in the fortieth year, in the eleventh month, on the first of the month, that Moses spoke to the children of Israel" (Deuteronomy 1:3).

Yoma 21b:5

The Talmud answers: When we said that the smoke was not displaced, indicating that the wood produced smoke, that was in reference to the fire brought by a person, as it was taught in a baraita: "And the sons of Aaron the priest shall put fire upon the altar" (Leviticus 1:7), indicating that even though fire descends from the heavens, still there is a special mitzva to bring fire by a person. The fire that the priests brought produced smoke, and the miracle related to that smoke.

Yoma 24b:9

The Talmud asks: And is kindling a fire really not considered a Temple service? But wasn't it taught in a baraita that it is written: "And the sons of Aaron the priest shall put fire upon the altar and lay out wood in order upon the fire" (Leviticus 1:7), which teaches that the kindling of chips [alita] added to keep the altar's fire going must be performed only by a proper priest and that he must be wearing the priestly garments? This shows that kindling is considered a service. The Talmud answers: Kindling the chips is a bona fide service, but lighting the candelabrum is not a bona fide service.

Abel (4 total matches)

Yevamot 62a:7

Rav Huna said: What is the reason of R' Natan, in accordance with the opinion of Beit Shammai? It is as it is written: "And again she bore his brother [et aḥiv] Abel [et Hevel]" (Genesis 4:2). The use of the superfluous word "et" indicates that she gave birth to Abel and his sister, in addition to Cain and his sister. And it states: "For God has appointed me another seed instead of Abel; for Cain slew him" (Genesis 4:25). This indicates that one must have at least four children. And the Rabbis, how do they understand this verse? In their opinion, Eve was thanking God for granting her another child, but one is not obligated to have four children.

Sanhedrin 37b:10

§ The mishna teaches that the court would say: You should know that cases of capital law are not like cases of monetary law, and would reference the murder of Abel by Cain. Rav Yehuda, son of R' Ḥiyya, says: By employing the plural term for blood, "The voice of your brother's blood [demei] cries out to Me from the ground" (Genesis 4:10), the verse teaches that Cain caused multiple wounds and multiple injuries to his brother Abel. As Cain did not know from where the soul departs, he struck him multiple times. This continued until he came to his neck and struck him there, whereupon Abel died.

Sanhedrin 37b:11

And Rav Yehuda, son of R' Ḥiyya, says: From the day the earth opened its mouth and received the blood of Abel, its mouth has not opened again, as it is stated: "From the corner of the earth have we heard songs: Glory to the righteous" (Isaiah 24:16): One can infer that the songs are heard "from the corner of the earth," but not from the mouth of the earth, as the earth never again opened its mouth. Ḥizkiyya, Rav Yehuda's brother, raised an objection to Rav Yehuda, son of R' Ḥiyya: The verse states concerning Korah and his assembly: "And the earth opened her mouth and swallowed them up, and their households, and all the men that appertained unto Korah, and all their goods" (Numbers 16:32). Rav Yehuda, son of R' Ḥiyya, said to him: It opened again for a deleterious purpose; it did not open again for a constructive purpose.

Zevachim 116a:14

The Talmud explains the two opinions: What is the reasoning of the one who says that the descendants of Noah sacrificed peace offerings? As it is written: "And Abel, he also brought of the firstborn of his flock and of the fat thereof" (Genesis 4:4). Abel, like all gentiles, is categorized as a descendant of Noah. The verse emphasizes that the fat was sacrificed. The Talmud analyzes: What is an item, i.e., an offering, the fat of which is sacrificed upon the altar, but that is not sacrificed in its entirety upon the altar? You must say: This is the peace offering, the meat of which is consumed.

Abiathar (2 total matches)

Sotah 48b:2

§ The mishna taught: From the time when the early prophets died, the Urim VeTummim was nullified. The Talmud poses a question: Who are the early prophets? Rav Huna says: This is referring to David, and Samuel, and Solomon, and after their death the Urim VeTummim was no longer used. Rav Naḥman said: In the days of David there were times an answer rose up for them from the Urim VeTummim and there were times an answer did not rise up, i.e., they did not receive an answer. The proof for this is that Tzadok, the High Priest in David's time, asked the Urim VeTummim and an answer rose up for him, whereas Abiathar asked and an answer did not rise up for him, as it is stated: "And Abiathar went up" (II Samuel 15:24), and he was removed from serving as the High Priest as a result.

Sanhedrin 95b:4

Apropos David's prayer that his descendants cease, the Talmud asks: And from where do we derive that David's descendants ceased to exist? It is derived from a verse, as it is stated: "And Athaliah the mother of Ahaziah saw that her son was dead, and she arose and destroyed all the royal descendants" (II Kings 11:1). The Talmud asks: But didn't Joash remain alive, and therefore, not all of David's descendants ceased to exist? The Talmud answers: There too, in the massacre in Nov, Abiathar, one of the priests, remained alive, as it is written: "And one of the sons of Ahimelech, son of Ahitub, named Abiathar, escaped" (I Samuel 22:20). Rav Yehuda says that Rav says: Were it not for the fact that Abiathar remained alive for Ahimelech, son of Ahitub, there would have been no remnant or refugee remaining from the descendants of David.

Abigail (12 total matches, showing 5)

The Talmud raises an objection from what was taught in the following baraita: Four people died due to Adam's sin with the serpent, in the wake of which death was decreed upon all of mankind, although they themselves were free of sin. And they are: Benjamin, son of Jacob; Amram, father of Moses; Yishai, father of David; and Kilab, son of David. And all of them were learned through tradition, except for Yishai, father of David, with regard to whom there is an explicit verse interpreted homiletically, as it is written: "And Absalom placed Amasa in charge of the army in place of Joab, and Amasa was the son of a man named Ithra the Israelite, who had taken to himself Abigail the daughter of Nahash, sister of Zeruiah, the mother of Joab" (II Samuel 17:25).

Shabbat 55b:4

The Talmud asks: And was Abigail the daughter of Nahash? Wasn't she the daughter of Yishai, as it is written: "And Yishai begot his firstborn Eliab, and Abinadab the second, and Shimea the third, Nethanel the fourth, Raddai the fifth, Ozem the sixth, David the seventh: and their sisters were Zeruiah and Abigail. And the sons of Zeruiah: Abishai, and Joab, and Asahel, three. And Abigail bore Amasa; and the father of Amasa was Jether the Ishmaelite" (I Chronicles 2:13–17)? Apparently, Abigail was the daughter of Yishai. Rather, the verse states that Abigail was the daughter of Nahash in order to teach us that she was the daughter of one who died on account of Adam's sin with the serpent [naḥash], though he himself was free of sin.

Megillah 14a:13

§ The Talmud asks with regard to the prophetesses recorded in the baraita: Who were the seven prophetesses? The Talmud answers: Sarah, Miriam, Deborah, Hannah, Abigail, Huldah, and Esther. The Talmud offers textual support: Sarah, as it is written: "Haran, the father of Milcah, and the father of Iscah" (Genesis 11:29). And R' Yitzḥak said: Iscah is in fact Sarah. And why was she called Iscah? For she saw [sakhta] by means of divine inspiration, as it is stated: "In all that Sarah has said to you, hearken to her voice" (Genesis 21:12). Alternatively, Sarah was also called Iscah, for all gazed [sokhin] upon her beauty.

Megillah 14a:21

Abigail was a prophetess, as it is written: "And it was so, as she rode on the donkey, and came down by the covert of the mountain" (I Samuel 25:20). The Talmud asks: Why does it say: "By the covert [beseter] of the mountain"? It should have said: From the mountain.

Megillah 14a:22

The Talmud answers that in fact this must be understood as an allusion to something else. Rabba bar Shmuel said: Abigail, in her attempt to prevent David from killing her husband Nabal, came to David and questioned him on account of menstrual blood that comes from the hidden parts [setarim] of a body. How so? She took a blood-stained cloth and showed it to him, asking him to rule on her status, whether or not she was ritually impure as a menstruating woman. He said to her: Is blood shown at night? One does not examine blood-stained cloths at night, as it is difficult to distinguish between the different shades by candlelight. She said to him: If so, you should also remember another halakha: Are cases of capital law tried at night? Since one does not try capital cases at night, you cannot condemn Nabal to death at night. David said to her:

Abimelech (8 total matches, showing 5)

Megillah 15a:18

And R' Elazar further said that R' Ḥanina said: One should not regard the curse of an ordinary person as light in your eyes, for Abimelech cursed Sarah, saying: "Behold, it is to you a covering of the eyes to all that are with you" (Genesis 20:16), and indeed this was fulfilled in her descendant, as it is stated: "And it came to pass, that when Isaac was old, and his eyes were dim, so that he could not see" (Genesis 27:1). Abimelech's curse of covered eyes was fulfilled through her son Isaac's blindness.

Megillah 28a:17

The Talmud asks: Did this cause Isaac's blindness? Didn't R' Yitzḥak say: A curse of an ordinary person should not be lightly regarded in your eyes, because Abimelech cursed Sarah, and although he was not a righteous man, his curse was nevertheless fulfilled, albeit in her descendant. As it is stated that Abimelech said to Sarah with regard to the gift that he gave to Abraham: "Behold, it is for you a covering of the eyes" (Genesis 20:16). Do not read it as "a covering [kesut] of the eyes," but rather read it as: A blindness [kesiat] of the eyes. Abimelech's words were a veiled curse for Sarah to suffer from blindness. While she herself did not suffer, the curse was apparently fulfilled in the blindness of her son, Isaac.

Samson's parents were being told that the oath of Abimelech, king of the Philistines, was negated, as it is written that Abimelech said to our forefather Abraham: "Now therefore swear unto me here by God that you will not deal falsely with me, nor with my son, nor with my son's son; but according to the kindness that I have done unto you, you shall do to me, and to the land wherein you have sojourned" (Genesis 21:23). The oath of the descendants of Abraham was no longer binding since the Philistines broke their oath by subjugating the Jewish people.

Bava Kamma 92a:4

MISHNA: Despite the fact that the assailant who caused damage gives to the victim all of the required payments for the injury, his transgression is not forgiven for him in the heavenly court until he requests forgiveness from the victim, as it is stated that God told Abimelech after he had taken Sarah from Abraham: "Now therefore restore the wife of the man; for he is a prophet, and he shall pray for you, and you shall live" (Genesis 20:7). And from where is it derived that if the victim does not forgive him that he is cruel? As it is stated: "And Abraham prayed to God; and God healed Abimelech, and his wife, and his maidservants; and they bore children" (Genesis 20:17).

Bava Kamma 92a:14

The verse states: "For YHWH had obstructed all the wombs of the house of Abimelech." The Sages of the school of R' Yannai say: Even a hen of the house of Abimelech did not lay her egg during that time.

Abiram (9 total matches, showing 5)

Megillah 11a:17

The Talmud continues: “This is [hu] Ahasuerus” (Esther 1:1); the term hu, this is, comes to teach that he remained as he was in his wickedness from beginning to end. Similarly, wherever the words “this is” appear in this manner, the verse indicates that the individual under discussion remained the same from beginning to end, for example: “This is [hu] Esau” (Genesis 36:43); he remained in his wickedness from beginning to end. “This is [hu] Dathan and Abiram” (Numbers 26:9); they remained in their wickedness from beginning to end. “This is [hu] the king Ahaz” (II Chronicles 28:22); he remained in his wickedness from beginning to end.

Moed Katan 16a:3

§ Having discussed some of the restrictions applying to a person who was ostracized, the Talmud explains some of the basic principles relating to ostracism: Rava said: From where do we derive that a court agent is sent to summon the defendant to appear before the court before he is ostracized? As it is written: “And Moses sent to call Dathan and Abiram, the sons of Eliab” (Numbers 16:12). And from where do we derive that we summon the defendant, that he himself must appear before the court? As it is written: “And Moses said to Korah: Be you and all your congregation before YHWH, you and they, and Aaron, tomorrow” (Numbers 16:16).

Nedarim 64b:5

The Talmud asks: And as for the Rabbis, what is their reason for not accepting this proof? The Talmud answers: They hold: These people who were seeking Moses’ life, had they indeed died? But R' Yoḥanan said in the name of R' Shimon ben Yoḥai: Wherever it is stated in the Torah the term striving (Exodus 2:13), in reference to the men who slandered Moses, or standing (Exodus 5:20), in reference to those who complained against Moses and Aaron, they are none other than Dathan and Abiram. Dathan and Abiram were alive during the rebellion of Korah, which occurred years later, so they could not have been dead when God instructed Moses to return to Egypt. Rather, Reish Lakish said: They did not literally die, but the verse means that they lost their property and their status in the community, which meant their opinions were no longer granted credibility, and consequently, Moses could safely return to Egypt. Such a turn of events is not considered to be a new circumstance.

Sanhedrin 109b:15

The Talmud proceeds to interpret the names of Korah’s cohorts: “Dathan and Abiram, the sons of Eliab, and On, the son of Peleth, sons of Reuben” (Numbers 16:1). “Dathan” is one who violated the precepts [dat] of God. “Abiram” is one who braced [iber] himself from repenting. “And On” indicates one who sat in acute mourning [aninut] over the sin that he committed, and he repented and was spared. “Peleth” is one for whom wonders [pelaot] were performed. Son of Reuben [Reuven], is a son who saw and understood [ra’a vehevin] the nature of what was transpiring and repented.

Sanhedrin 110a:6

§ With regard to the verse: “And Moses arose and went to Dathan and Abiram” (Numbers 16:25), Reish Lakish says: From here we derive that one may not perpetuate a dispute, as Rav says: Anyone who perpetuates a dispute violates a prohibition, as it is stated: “And he will not be like Korah and his assembly, as YHWH spoke by the hand of Moses to him” (Numbers 17:5). Even the aggrieved party must seek to end the dispute. Dathan and Abiram accused Moses and by right should have initiated the reconciliation. Nevertheless, Moses was not insistent on this; he went to them.

Abishag (2 total matches)

Sanhedrin 22a:12

GEMARA: Rav Ya'akov says that R' Yoḥanan says: Abishag the Shunammite was permitted to Solomon but forbidden to Adonijah, who in fact wanted to marry her. She was permitted to Solomon, as he was a king, and a king may use the scepter of a king. Abishag's status was similar to the king's scepter, as she had been designated to serve King David. She was forbidden to Adonijah, as he was an ordinary person, not a king.

Sanhedrin 22a:13

The Talmud clarifies: The story of Abishag, what is it? As it is written: "Now King David was old and stricken in years...and his servants said to him, let there be sought...a young virgin...and let her lie in your bosom, that my lord the king may get heat" (I Kings 1:1–2); and it is written: "So they sought for a beautiful maiden...and found Abishag" (I Kings 1:1–3); and it is written: "And the maiden was very beautiful and she became a companion to the king and ministered to him, but the king did not know her" (I Kings 1:1–4). Abishag said to King David: Marry me. King David said to her: You are forbidden to me, as I already have eighteen wives.

Abishai (4 total matches)

Sanhedrin 95a:9

The Talmud relates: That day at dusk on Shabbat eve, Abishai ben Zeruiah shampooed his hair with four jugs of water in preparation for Shabbat. He saw four bloodstains. There are those who say: A dove came and fluttered its wings before him. Abishai said: The congregation of Israel is likened to a dove, as it is stated: "You shall shine as the wings of a dove covered with silver and her pinions with yellow gold" (Psalms 68:14); conclude from it that David, king of Israel, is in a state of distress. He came to David's house and did not find him. Abishai said that we learned in a mishna (22a): One may not ride on the king's horse, and one may not sit on his throne, and one may not use his scepter. In a period of danger, what is the halakha? He came and asked in the study hall what the ruling is in that situation. They said to him: In a period of danger one may well do so.

Sanhedrin 95a:11

When Ishbibenob saw him, he said: Now they are two, David and Abishai, and they will kill me. He threw David up in the air, and stuck his spear into the ground. He said: Let David fall upon it and die. Abishai recited a sacred name of God and suspended David between heaven and earth so that he would not fall.

Sanhedrin 95a:14

David said to him: If so, help me. That is the meaning of that which is written: "And Abishai, son of Zeruiah, came to his aid, and smote the Philistine and killed him" (II Samuel 21:17). Rav Yehuda says that Rav says: This means that he came to his aid in prayer. Abishai recited another sacred name of God and caused David to land safely after being suspended between heaven and earth, and they fled.

Sanhedrin 95a:16

§ The Sages taught in a baraita with regard to land contracting to shorten a journey: For three individuals the land contracted, and each one miraculously reached his destination quickly: Eliezer, servant of Abraham, and Jacob our forefather, and Abishai, son of Zeruiah. The Talmud elaborates: The case of Abishai, son of Zeruiah, is that which we said. The case of Eliezer, servant of Abraham, is as it is written: "And I came that day to the well" (Genesis 24:42). His intention was to say to the members of Rebecca's family that on that day he left Canaan and on the same day he arrived, to underscore the miraculous nature of his undertaking on behalf of Abraham. The case of Jacob our forefather

Sanhedrin 95a:9

The Talmud relates: That day at dusk on Shabbat eve, Abishai ben Zeruiah shampooed his hair with four jugs of water in preparation for Shabbat. He saw four bloodstains. There are those who say: A dove came and fluttered its wings before him. Abishai said: The congregation of Israel is likened to a dove, as it is stated: "You shall shine as the wings of a dove covered with silver and her pinions with yellow gold" (Psalms 68:14); conclude from it that David, king of Israel, is in a state of distress. He came to David's house and did not find him. Abishai said that we learned in a mishna (22a): One may not ride on the king's horse, and one may not sit on his throne, and one may not use his scepter. In a period of danger, what is the halakha? He came and asked in the study hall what the ruling is in that situation. They said to him: In a period of danger one may well do so.

Abner (11 total matches, showing 5)

Yevamot 76b:11

GEMARA: The Talmud asks: From where are these matters derived that female Ammonites and Moabites are permitted immediately? R' Yoḥanan said: As the verse states: "And when Saul saw David go forth against the Philistine, he said to Abner, the captain of the host: Abner, whose son is this youth? And Abner said: As your soul lives, O king, I cannot tell" (I Samuel 17:55). This verse is puzzling: Did Saul really not recognize him? But isn't it previously written: "And David came to Saul, and stood before him; and he loved him greatly; and he became his armor-bearer" (I Samuel 16:21)? Rather, it must be that he was asking about David's father.

Yevamot 76b:15

Abner said to him: We already learned that there is no room for such concern. As the verse states: "An Ammonite or a Moabite shall not enter into the congregation of YHWH" (Deuteronomy 23:4), teaching that an Ammonite man is barred from entering into the congregation, but not an Ammonite woman; and similarly, a Moabite man is barred from entering into the congregation, but not a Moabite woman. Doeg said to him: However, if that is so, say that the verse that renders it prohibited for a mamzer to enter the congregation renders prohibited only a male mamzer*, but not a female mamzer. Abner replied: It is written: "A mamzer," which should be understood not as a noun but as an adjective, denoting a strange blemish [mum zar], one who is defective due to a forbidden relationship, and this applies to males and females alike.

Kiddushin 49b:3

If a man says to a woman: Be betrothed to me on the condition that I am strong, one does not say that he must be as strong as Abner ben Ner, King Saul's cousin and general, or as strong as Joab ben Zeruiah, King David's nephew and general. Rather, it means anyone of whom others are afraid due to his strength. If a man says to a woman: Be betrothed to me on the condition that I am wealthy, one does not say he must be as wealthy as R' Elazar ben Ḥarsom or as wealthy as R' Elazar ben Azarya, but rather it can refer to anyone who is honored by the members of his town due to his wealth.

Sanhedrin 20a:6

MISHNA: If a relative of the king dies, he does not emerge from the entrance of his palace [palterin], as it does not befit one of his stature to accompany the deceased. R' Yehuda says: If he wishes to follow the bier, he follows it, as that is what we found with regard to King David, who followed the bier of Abner. As it is stated: "And King David followed the bier" (II Samuel 3:31). The Sages said to R' Yehuda: The matter was only to appease the people, so that they should not suspect David of ordering Abner's death. And when the people comfort the king with the meal of comfort, all the people recline on the ground, and he reclines on the dargash.

Sanhedrin 20a:7

GEMARA: The Sages taught in a baraita: In a place where women were accustomed to follow the bier, they would follow it, and the men would walk in front of the bier, and if the women were accustomed to walk in front of the bier, they would go in front of it. R' Yehuda says: Women always go in front of the bier, as that is what we found with regard to King David, who followed the bier of Abner, as it is stated: "And King David followed the bier," and presumably David did not go among the women.

If a man says to a woman: Be betrothed to me on the condition that I am strong, one does not say that he must be as strong as Abner ben Ner, King Saul's cousin and general, or as strong as Joab ben Zeruiah, King David's nephew and general. Rather, it means anyone of whom others are afraid due to his strength. If a man says to a woman: Be betrothed to me on the condition that I am wealthy, one does not say he must be as wealthy as R' Elazar ben Ḥarsom or as wealthy as R' Elazar ben Azarya, but rather it can refer to anyone who is honored by the members of his town due to his wealth.

Abraham (239 total matches, showing 5)

Berakhot 6b:6

Concerning another aspect of the constancy of prayer, R' Ḥelbo said that Rav Huna said: One who sets a fixed place for his prayer, the God of Abraham assists him. Since prayer parallels the Temple service, it is a sign of respect to set a fixed place for this sacred rite (R' Yoshiyahu Pinto). The God of Abraham assists him because this pious custom evokes Abraham's conduct.

Berakhot 6b:7

When he dies, those who eulogize one who set a fixed place for his prayer say about him: "Where is the humble one, where is the pious one, of the disciples of our father Abraham?" Presumably, one who sets a fixed place for prayer is a disciple of Abraham in every respect, including humility and piety (R' Yoshiyahu Pinto).

Berakhot 6b:8

The Talmud asks: From where do we derive that Abraham our father set a fixed place for his prayer? The Talmud answers: As it is written: "And Abraham rose in the morning to the place where he had stood before God" (Genesis 19:27), and the verb "standing" means nothing other than prayer, as it is stated: "And Pinehas stood and prayed" (Psalms 106:30).

Berakhot 7b:1

Until now, the Talmud has cited statements made by R' Yoḥanan in the name of the tanna, R' Yosei. Now, the Talmud begins to cite what R' Yoḥanan said in the name of R' Shimon ben Yoḥai: From the day that God, created the world there was no person who called him "Lord" until Abraham came and called him Lord. As it is stated: "And he said, 'My Lord, God, by what shall I know that I will inherit it?'" (Genesis 15:8).

Berakhot 7b:2

The Talmud cites another statement extolling that virtue of Abraham is mentioned, as Rav said: Even Daniel's prayers were only answered on account of Abraham, as it is stated: "And now listen, God, to the prayer of Your servant and to his supplication; and cause Your face to shine upon Your desolate Temple, for the sake of YHWH" (Daniel 9:17). The verse should have said: And cause Your face to shine upon Your desolate Temple, for Your sake, as Daniel was addressing YHWH.

Absalom (32 total matches, showing 5)

Berakhot 7b:11

And R' Yoḥanan said other aggadic statements in the name of R' Shimon ben Yoḥai: The existence of wayward children in a person's home is more troublesome than the war of Gog and Magog, the ultimate war, the climax of the travails of Messianic times. As it is stated: "A Psalm of David, when he fled from his son, Absalom" (Psalms 3:1). And it is written thereafter: "Lord, how numerous are my enemies, many have risen against me" (Psalms 3:2). While concerning the war of Gog and Magog, which is alluded to in the second chapter of Psalms, it is written: "Why are the nations in an uproar? And why do the peoples speak for naught? The kings of the earth stand up and the rulers take counsel together, against YHWH, and against His anointed...He that sits in heaven laughs, YHWH mocks them" (Psalms 2:1–4). Yet in this chapter describing the war of Gog and Magog "how numerous are my enemies" is not written, as it is not as difficult as raising a wayward son like Absalom.

Berakhot 7b:12

Regarding the opening phrase of the psalm, which serves as its title, the Talmud wonders: It is said: "A Psalm of David, when fleeing his son, Absalom." A Psalm of David? It should have said: A lament of David.

Berakhot 7b:14

So too was the case with David. When God, told him, through Natan the prophet, after the incident with Bathsheba, "Behold, I will raise up evil against you from your house" (II Samuel 12:11), David was despondent. He said: Perhaps it will be a slave or a *mamzer who will rise up in my house, a person of such lowly status, who will have no pity on me. But once David saw that Absalom was the one through whom the prophecy was to be fulfilled, he rejoiced, as he was certain that Absalom would show him mercy. That is why David said a psalm, not a lament, thanking God for punishing him in the least severe manner possible.

Berakhot 10a:8

In explaining passages from Psalms, the Talmud relates another instance of a response to the question of a heretic: A certain heretic said to R' Abbahu, it is written: "A Psalm of David, when he fled from his son, Absalom" (Psalms 3:1), and similarly it is said: "To the chief musician, al tashḥet, a mikhtam of David when fleeing from Saul into the cave" (Psalms 57:1). Which event was first? Since the event with Saul was first, it would have been appropriate to write it first.

Berakhot 10a:11

Why was the chapter of Absalom juxtaposed with the chapter of Gog and Magog? They are juxtaposed so that if a person should say to you, expressing doubt with regard to the prophecy of the war of Gog and Magog "against YHWH and against His anointed": Is there a slave who rebels against his master? Is there someone capable of rebelling against God? You too say to him: Is there a son who rebels against his father and severs the relationship with the one who brought him into the world and raised him? Yet, nevertheless, there was such a son, Absalom, and so too there can be a situation where people will seek to rebel against God.

Achan (10 total matches, showing 5)

Moed Katan 15a:2

It was further taught there: If one who is ostracized dies, the court places stones on his coffin. R' Yehuda says: This does not mean that they pile up a heap of stones over him like the heap of stones that was placed over the grave of Achan (see Joshua 7:26). Rather, the court sends its agents, who place a large stone on his coffin as a symbolic gesture. This comes to teach you that anyone who is ostracized and dies while in his period of ostracism, without seeking to be released from it, the court places stones on his coffin.

Sanhedrin 43b:3

MISHNA: When the condemned man is at a distance of about ten cubits from the place of stoning, they say to him: Confess your transgressions, as the way of all who are being executed is to confess. As whoever confesses and regrets his transgressions has a portion in the World-to-Come. For so we find with regard to Achan, that Joshua said to him: "My son, please give glory to YHWH, God of Israel, and make confession to Him" (Joshua 7:19). And the next verse states: "And Achan answered Joshua, and said: Indeed I have sinned against YHWH, God of Israel, and like this and like that have I done." And from where is it derived that Achan's confession achieved atonement for him? It is derived from here, as it is stated: "And Joshua said: Why have you brought trouble on us? The Lord shall trouble you this day" (Joshua 7:25). Joshua said to Achan as follows: On this day of your judgment you are troubled, but you will not be troubled in the World-to-Come.

Sanhedrin 43b:6

The baraita explains: When God, said to Joshua: "Israel has sinned" (Joshua 7:11), Joshua said to Him: Master of the Universe, who is the one who has sinned? God said to him: Am I an informer [delator]? Go cast lots and find out for yourself. Joshua then went and cast lots, and the lot fell upon Achan. Achan said to him: Joshua, do you come to execute me merely based on a lot, without any corroborating evidence? You and Elazar the priest are the two most distinguished leaders of the generation, but if I cast a lot upon the two of you, it will perforce fall upon one of you. What then can you prove from a lottery? Joshua said to him: I ask of you, do not spread slander about the lots, as Eretz Yisrael will one day be divided by lots, as it is stated: "Nevertheless, the land shall be divided by lot" (Numbers 26:55). Due to you the results of that lottery may be challenged. Therefore, Joshua used the word "na," pleading with Achan to confess.

Sanhedrin 43b:7

Joshua said to Achan: "Please give glory to YHWH, God of Israel, and make confession to Him." Ravina says: Joshua won over Achan with his words, saying: Do we ask anything of you but a confession? Make confession to Him and be discharged. Thinking that if he confessed, he would be pardoned, Achan immediately responded: "And Achan answered Joshua, and said: Indeed I have sinned against YHWH, God of Israel, and like this and like that have I done" (Joshua 7:20).

Sanhedrin 43b:8

With regard to the words "And like this and like that have I done," Rav Asi says that R' Ḥanina says: This teaches that Achan misused consecrated property from three dedications, i.e., three groups of property that had been dedicated to YHWH. Two were during wars waged in the days of Moses, and one was in the days of Joshua, as it is stated: "And like this and like that have I done," indicating that he had already committed similar offenses twice before committing the offense in Jericho. R' Yoḥanan says in the name of R' Elazar, son of R' Shimon: Achan misused property from five dedications, four during wars waged in the days of Moses, and one in the days of Joshua, as it is stated: "I have sinned against YHWH, God of Israel, and like this and like that have I done," with each "and" alluding to an additional prior offense.

Temurah 16a:9

R' Abbahu says: Even so, Othniel, son of Kenaz, restored them through his sharp mind [pilpulo], as it is stated: "And Caleb said: To he who smites Kiriath Sefer, and takes it, to him will I give Achsah my daughter as a wife. And Othniel, son of Kenaz, the brother of Caleb, took it; and he gave him Achsah his daughter as a wife" (Joshua 15:16–17).The name "Kiriath Sefer," which literally means the village of the book, is homiletically interpreted as a reference to those parts of the Torah that were forgotten, while the phrase "took it" is referring to Othniel's acumen and learning. The baraita adds: And why is she called Achsah? The reason is that anyone who sees her became angry [ko'es] about his own wife, who was not as beautiful as Achsah.

Berakhot 31a:14

As in the incident related by the Talmud that Rav Kahana accompanied Rav Shimi bar Ashi from the town of Pum Nahara to the palm grove in Babylonia. When he arrived there, Rav Kahana said to Rav Shimi bar Ashi: Master, what is meant by that which people say: These palm trees of Babylonia have been in this place from the time of Adam the first man until now?

Berakhot 31a:15

Rav Shimi bar Ashi said to him: You reminded me of something that R' Yosei, son of R' Ḥanina, said, as R' Yosei, son of R' Ḥanina, said: What is the meaning of that which is written: "In a land through which no man has passed and where no person [adam] has settled" (Jeremiah 2:6)? This verse is difficult; since it is a land through which no person has passed, how could anyone have settled there permanently? The statement that "no person has settled there" is redundant. Rather, this verse comes to teach that every land through which Adam the first man passed and decreed that it would be settled was settled, and every land through which Adam passed and decreed that it would not be settled was not settled. Based on this, what people say is true, and the palm trees of Babylonia are from the time of Adam, meaning that from the time of Adam this land was decreed to be suitable for growing palm trees (Me'iri). The Talmud cited an example of how one who parts from another with Torah learns something new.

Berakhot 34b:25

Lest you will say: Where was Adam the first man? Wasn't he there and didn't he survey Eden? The Talmud responds: Adam was only in the Garden of Eden, not in Eden itself.

Berakhot 40a:14

We learned in the mishna: One who recited: Who creates fruit of the tree, over fruits of the earth, did not fulfill his obligation. The Talmud asks: That is obvious, as fruits of the earth do not fall under the rubric of trees. Rav Naḥman bar Yitzḥak said: This ruling in the mishna is only necessary according to the opinion of R' Yehuda, who said in another context that wheat is a type of tree, as we learned in a baraita: The tree from which Adam, the first man, ate, R' Meir says: It was a vine, as nothing brings wailing and trouble upon man even today other than wine, as it is stated with regard to Noah: "And he drank from the wine and became drunk" (Genesis 9:21). R' Neḥemya says: It was a fig tree, as with the object with which they were corrupted and sinned they were rehabilitated, as it is stated: "And they sewed together fig leaves and made for themselves loincloths" (Genesis 3:7). They must have taken the leaves from the tree closest at hand, the Tree of Knowledge. R' Yehuda says: It was wheat, as, even today, the child does not know how to call his father and mother until he tastes the taste of grain.

Berakhot 58a:4

Explaining his custom, he would say: How much effort did Adam the first man exert before he found bread to eat: He plowed, sowed, reaped, sheaved, threshed, winnowed in the wind, separated the grain from the chaff, ground the grain into flour, sifted, kneaded, and baked and only thereafter he ate. And I, on the other hand, wake up and find all of these prepared for me. Human society employs a division of labor, and each individual benefits from the service of the entire world. Similarly, how much effort did Adam the first man exert before he found a garment to wear? He sheared, laundered, combed, spun and wove, and only thereafter he found a garment to wear. And I, on the other hand, wake up and find all of these prepared for me. Members of all nations, merchants and craftsmen, diligently come to the entrance of my home, and I wake up and find all of these before me.

Eruvin 53a:6

Rather, it is called Machpelah in the sense that it is doubled with the Patriarchs and Matriarchs, who are buried there in pairs. This is similar to the homiletic interpretation of the alternative name for Hebron mentioned in the Torah: "Mamre of Kiryat Ha'Arba, which is Hebron" (Genesis 35:27). R' Yitzḥak said: The city is called Kiryat Ha'Arba, the city of four, because it is the city of the four couples buried there: Adam and Eve, Abraham and Sarah, Isaac and Rebecca, and Jacob and Leah.

Sotah 13a:7

Once they reached the Cave of Machpelah, Esau came and was preventing them from burying Jacob there. He said to them: It says: "And Jacob came unto Isaac his father to Mamre, to Kiryat Arba, the same is Hebron, where Abraham and Isaac sojourned" (Genesis 35:27). And R' Yitzḥak says: It is called Kiryat Arba because there were four couples buried there: Adam and Eve, Abraham and Sarah, Isaac and Rebecca, Jacob and Leah. Esau said: Jacob buried Leah in his spot, and the spot that is remaining is mine.

Sanhedrin 38a:15

The baraita explains: "Wisdom has built her house"; this is referring to the attribute of God, Who created the entire world with wisdom. "She has hewn out her seven pillars"; these pillars are referring to the seven days of Creation, in which the world was established. "She has killed her beasts; she has mingled her wine; she has also furnished her table"; these are referring to the seas and rivers and all the necessities of the world that were created. "She has sent forth her maidens; she calls"; this is referring to Adam and Eve, who were created at the end of Creation.

Shabbat 55b:1

The Talmud raises an objection from the following baraita: The ministering angels said before God: Master of the Universe, why did You penalize Adam, the first man, with the death penalty? He said to them: I gave him a simple mitzva, and he violated it. They said to Him: Didn't Moses and Aaron, who observed the whole Torah in its entirety, nevertheless die? The Holy One, Blessed be He, said to them, citing the verse: "All things come alike to all; there is one event to the righteous and to the wicked; to the good and to the clean, and to the unclean; to him who sacrifices, and to him who does not sacrifice; as is the good, so is the sinner; and he who swears, as he who fears an oath" (Ecclesiastes 9:2). Apparently, death is not dependent upon one's actions. Everyone dies.

Chagigah 12a:2

The Talmud answers that this phrase teaches us something else, according to R' Elazar. As R' Elazar said: The height of Adam the first man reached from the ground to the skies, as it is stated: "Since the day that God created man upon the earth, and from one end of the heavens" (Deuteronomy 4:32). When he sinned, God, placed His hand upon him and diminished him, as it is stated: "You fashioned me behind and before, and laid Your hand upon me" (Psalms 139:5).

Chagigah 12a:3

Rav Yehuda said that Rav said: The size of Adam the first man was from one end of the world to the other, as it is stated: "Since the day that God created man upon the earth, and from one end of the heavens to the other," which indicates that he spanned the entire length of the world. Once he sinned, God, placed His hand upon him and diminished him, as it states: "And laid Your hand upon me."

The mishna resumes its list. On the twentieth of Av, the descendants of Paḥat Moav ben Yehuda; on the twentieth of Elul, the descendants of Adin ben Yehuda; on the first of Tevet, the descendants of Parosh returned to bring wood for a second time; likewise on the first of Tevet, there was no non-priestly watch, as it is Hanukkah, on which hallel is recited, and it is the New Moon, on which an additional offering is sacrificed, and there was also a wood offering.

Taanit 28a:14

The mishna further taught: On the twentieth of Elul, the descendants of Adin ben Yehuda brought their wood offering. The Sages taught: The descendants of Adin ben Yehuda are the descendants of David ben Yehuda, who was called Adin. This is the statement of R' Yehuda. R' Yosei says: These are the descendants of Joab, son of Zeruiah.

The baraita continues: And so we found with regard to Cain, who desired to inherit the whole world alone (see Genesis 4); and Korah, who desired the priesthood (see Numbers 16); and Balaam, who desired Balak's money (see Numbers 22); and Doeg, who was jealous of David (see I Samuel 21–22); and Ahithophel, who was also jealous of David (see II Samuel 16); and Gehazi, who took Naaman's money (see II Kings 5); and Absalom, who wanted the kingdom (see II Samuel 15); and Adonijah, who also wanted the kingdom (see I Kings 1); and Uzziah, who wanted to be the High Priest (see II Chronicles 26); and Haman, who wanted to kill all the Jews (see Esther 3:13). All of these were people who placed their eyes on that which is unfit for them, and consequently what they desired was not given to them, and what they had was taken from them.

Bava Batra 109b:10

In connection with this, R' Yoḥanan says in the name of R' Shimon ben Yoḥai: From here it is learned that corruption is linked to one who is corrupt, as this man was linked to Manasseh and Judah despite having no familial connection to them. R' Yosei bar Ḥanina says: That concept can be seen from here, in the matter of Adonijah, the son of David: "And he was also a very handsome man; and she gave birth to him after Absalom," (I Kings 1:6) but Adonijah wasn't the son of Haggith and Absalom was the son of Maachah, so why does the verse state: "And she gave birth to him after Absalom," as if they were sons of the same mother? Rather, since Adonijah acted in a manner fit for Absalom, who also rebelled against the monarchy, the verse linked him to Absalom, referring to him as his full brother. Here too, with regard to Jonathan, since he acted as Manasseh acted, the verse linked him to Manasseh.

Sanhedrin 21a:9

§ As for those eighteen women that the king may marry, from where do we derive that number? The Talmud responds: As it is written: "And to David sons were born in Hebron; and his firstborn was Amnon, from Ahinoam the Jezreelitess; and his second, Chileab, from Abigail the wife of Nabal the Carmelite; and the third, Absalom, son of Maacah, the daughter of Talmai, king of Geshur; and the fourth, Adonijah, son of Haggith; and the fifth, Shephatiah, son of Abital; and the sixth, Ithream, of Eglah, David's wife. These were born to David in Hebron" (II Samuel 3:2–5). In these verses, a total of six wives are mentioned.

Sanhedrin 21b:4

Apropos Amnon, the Talmud cites traditions about another son of David: "Now Adonijah, son of Haggith, exalted himself, saying: I will be king" (I Kings 1:5). Rav Yehuda says that Rav says: The term "exalted himself" teaches that he sought for the monarchy to fit him, but it did not fit him.

Sanhedrin 22a:12

GEMARA: Rav Ya'akov says that R' Yoḥanan says: Abishag the Shunammite was permitted to Solomon but forbidden to Adonijah, who in fact wanted to marry her. She was permitted to Solomon, as he was a king, and a king may use the scepter of a king. Abishag's status was similar to the king's scepter, as she had been designated to serve King David. She was forbidden to Adonijah, as he was an ordinary person, not a king.

“And the Sepharvites burned their sons and their daughters in the fire to Adrammelech and Anammelech, the gods of Sepharvaim” (II Kings 17:31); and what are they? The mule and the horse. And why are they called that? A mule is called Adrammelech because it honors [addar] its master with its load, i.e., because it carries the master’s load, and a horse is called Anammelech because it responds [anei] to its master, assisting him in battle.

Sanhedrin 95b:14

R' Yehoshua ben Levi says: Fourteen remained, as it is stated: “Two or three…four or five,” which total fourteen. R' Yoḥanan says: Five remained: Sennacherib, and his two sons, and Nebuchadnezzar, and Nebuzaradan, the captain of the guard. The fact that Nebuzaradan was among them is learned through tradition. Nebuchadnezzar was among them, as it is written that Nebuchadnezzar said when he saw an angel with Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah: “And the appearance of the fourth is like that of an angel” (Daniel 3:25). And if he had not seen the angel that smote Sennacherib’s army, from where would he have known that the fourth person looked like an angel? Sennacherib and his two sons were among them, as it is written later in their regard: “And it came to pass as he was worshipping in the house of Nisroch his god that Adrammelech and Sarezer, his sons, smote him with the sword” (II Kings 19:37). Evidently, the three of them survived.

Sanhedrin 96a:3

Sennacherib went and found a beam from Noah’s ark, from which he fashioned a god. He said: This beam is the great god who delivered Noah from the flood. He said: If that man, referring to himself, goes and succeeds, he will sacrifice his two sons before you. His sons heard his commitment and killed him. This is the meaning of that which is written: “And it came to pass as he was worshipping in the house of Nisroch his god that Adrammelech and Sarezer, his sons, smote him with the sword, and they fled to Ararat” (II Kings 19:37), where Noah’s ark had come to rest. The Talmud explains that this interpretation is based upon the etymological similarity between neser, the Hebrew term for beam, and Nisroch, the god that Sennacherib fashioned from a beam.

Yevamot 79a:4

The Talmud continues with its understanding of the incident: "And the king took the two sons of Rizpah, daughter of Aiah, whom she bore unto Saul, Armoni and Mephibosheth, and the five sons of Michal, daughter of Saul, whom she bore to Adriel the son of Barzillai the Meholathite" (II Samuel 21:8). The Talmud asks: What is different about these sons that David chose them from among all the descendants of Saul? Rav Huna said: He passed all of Saul's descendants before the Ark of the Covenant. Whoever was held back by the Ark, so that he could not move on, was condemned to death; whoever was not held back by the Ark was set apart for life.

Sanhedrin 19b:7

Saul went and gave Merab to Adriel, as it is written: "But it came to pass at the time when Merab, Saul's daughter, should have been given to David, that she was given to Adriel the Meholathite as a wife" (I Samuel 18:19). Saul said to David: If you want me to give you Michal, go bring me one hundred foreskins of the Philistines (see I Samuel 18:25–27). David went and brought Saul two hundred foreskins. Saul said to him: Even though you brought the foreskins, the betrothal is not valid, as you, David, have a loan and one peruta in my possession, i.e., the wealth Saul owed him for slaying Goliath as well as the item of lesser monetary value, the foreskins of the Philistines.

Sanhedrin 19b:11

The Tosefta continues. It is written: "But the king took the two sons of Rizpah, daughter of Aiah, whom she bore unto Saul, Armoni and Mephibosheth, and the five sons of Michal, daughter of Saul, whom she bore to Adriel, son of Barzillai the Meholathite" (II Samuel 21:8). But did Saul give Michal to Adriel? But didn't he give her to Palti, son of Laish, as it is written: "Now Saul had given Michal his daughter, David's wife, to Palti, son of Laish" (I Samuel 25:44)?

Sanhedrin 19b:12

The Tosefta continues: The first verse does not mean, then, that Michal married Adriel. Rather, the verse compares Merab's betrothal to Adriel to Michal's betrothal to Palti: Just as Michal's betrothal to Palti was effected in transgression, according to all opinions, since she was already married to David, so, too, Merab's betrothal to Adriel was effected in transgression, since according to halakha she was betrothed to David.

Agag (3 total matches)

Yoma 22b:10

Apropos Saul's contravention of God's command to obliterate Amalek, the Talmud observes that Rav Huna said: How little does a person who has the support of his Lord have to worry or be concerned. The proof for this assertion is a comparison between Saul and David. Saul failed with one single sin and it was counted against him, costing him the throne. David, however, failed with two sins and they were not counted against him, as he retained his position. The Talmud asks: What was Saul's one sin? The incident with Agag, king of Amalek, whom Saul spared in defiance of God's command (see I Samuel 15:9). But was this his sole sin? There is also the incident of Nob, the city of priests, in which Saul later slew many innocent people, as cited above. The Talmud answers: It was after the incident with Agag, and even before the incident at Nob, that God said: "I regret that I have crowned Saul to be king" (I Samuel 15:11).

Megillah 13a:1

the responsibility of Judah, as David did not kill Shimei, although he was liable to the death penalty. The grave consequences of this failure included that Mordecai was born from him, and it was he against whom Haman was jealous, leading Haman to issue a decree against all of the Jewish people. And how a Benjamite has repaid me is referring to the fact that Saul, who was from the tribe of Benjamin, did not kill the Amalekite king Agag immediately, from whom Haman was later born, and he caused suffering to the Jewish people.

Sanhedrin 105b:18

He sought to say that they would not have kings of stature, and he said instead: "Like cedar trees beside the waters" (Numbers 24:6). He sought to say that they will not have a king the son of a king, and he said instead: "Water shall flow from his branches" (Numbers 24:7). He sought to say that their kingdom would not rule over the nations, and he said instead: "And his seed shall be in many waters" (Numbers 24:7). He sought to say that their kingdom would not be fierce, and he said instead: "And his king shall be higher than Agag." He sought to say that there will be no fear of their kingdom, and he said instead: "And his kingdom shall be exalted" (Numbers 24:7).

Berakhot 10a:26

With regard to redemption and prayer, the Talmud tells the story of Hezekiah's illness, his prayer to God, and subsequent recuperation. Rav Hamnuna said: What is the meaning of that which is written praising God: "Who is like the wise man, and who knows the interpretation [pesher] of the matter" (Ecclesiastes 8:1)? This verse means: Who is like God, Who knows how to effect compromise [peshara] between two righteous individuals, between Hezekiah, the king of Judea, and Isaiah the prophet. They disagreed over which of them should visit the other. Hezekiah said: Let Isaiah come to me, as that is what we find with regard to Elijah the prophet, who went to Ahab, the king of Israel, as it is stated: "And Elijah went to appear to Ahab" (I Kings 18:2). This proves that it is the prophet who must seek out the king. And Isaiah said: Let Hezekiah come to me, as that is what we find with regard to Yehoram ben Ahab, king of Israel, who went to Elisha the prophet, as it is stated: "So the king of Israel, Jehosaphat and the king of Edom went down to him" (II Kings 3:12).

Berakhot 57b:1

R' Yoḥanan said: One who awakened in the morning and a verse immediately falls into his mouth, it is a minor prophecy. The Sages taught: There are three kings whose appearance in a dream is significant. One who sees David in a dream should expect piety; one who sees Solomon should expect wisdom; and one who sees Ahab should be concerned about calamity.

Berakhot 61b:4

And Rava said: The world was created only for the sake of the full-fledged wicked or the full-fledged righteous; others do not live complete lives in either world. Rava said: One should know of himself whether or not he is completely righteous, as if he is not completely righteous, he knows that his life will be a life of suffering. Rav said: The world was created only for the wicked Ahab ben Omri and for R' Ḥanina ben Dosa. The Talmud explains: For Ahab ben Omri, this world was created, as he has no place in the World-to-Come, and for R' Ḥanina ben Dosa, the World-to-Come was created.

Shabbat 149b:6

Having quoted R' Ya'akov, son of the daughter of Ya'akov, the Talmud brings another teaching of this amora. And R' Ya'akov, son of the daughter of Ya'akov, said: Anyone who causes another to be punished on his account, they do not bring him within the partition of God, even if he is right. The Talmud asks: From where do we know this? If you say it is because of what is written in the prophecy of Micaiah, that proof can be disputed. It is written: "And YHWH said: Who will entice Ahab to go up and fall at Ramot Gilad? And one said: In this manner, and another said: In that manner. And the spirit came out and stood before YHWH and said: I will entice him. And YHWH said to it: With what? And it said: I will go out and will be a lying spirit in the mouth of all of his prophets. And He said: You shall entice him and will prevail. Go out and do this" (I Kings 22:20–22).

Yoma 87a:2

§ It was further taught: "It is not good to respect the person of the wicked" (Proverbs 18:5), meaning, it is not good for wicked people when they are respected in this world and are not punished for their sins. For example, it was not good for Ahab to be respected in this world, as it is stated: "Because he humbled himself before Me, I will not bring the evil in his days" (I Kings 21:29), and Ahab thereby lost his share in the World-to-Come.

Berakhot 61b:4

And Rava said: The world was created only for the sake of the full-fledged wicked or the full-fledged righteous; others do not live complete lives in either world. Rava said: One should know of himself whether or not he is completely righteous, as if he is not completely righteous, he knows that his life will be a life of suffering. Rav said: The world was created only for the wicked Ahab ben Omri and for R' Ḥanina ben Dosa. The Talmud explains: For Ahab ben Omri, this world was created, as he has no place in the World-to-Come, and for R' Ḥanina ben Dosa, the World-to-Come was created.

Sanhedrin 39b:3

§ The mishna teaches: Therefore, since all humanity descends from one person, each and every person is obligated to say: The world was created for me. The mishna then teaches that the court says to the witnesses: And perhaps you will say: Why would we want to be responsible for the blood of this person? But be aware, as is it not already stated: “When the wicked perish, there is song” (Proverbs 11:10)? The Talmud teaches: A separate verse relates that after the evil king Ahab was killed: “And the song went throughout the camp” (I Kings 22:36). R' Aḥa bar Ḥanina says: The fact that the verse states “the song,” and not a song, indicates that it is referring to a song mentioned elsewhere. Accordingly, the verse: “When the wicked perish, there is song,” alludes to this episode: When Ahab ben Omri perished, there was song.

Shabbat 88a:5

The Talmud cites additional homiletic interpretations on the topic of the revelation at Sinai. The Torah says, “And Moses brought forth the people out of the camp to meet God; and they stood at the lowermost part of the mount” (Exodus 19:17). R' Avdimi bar Ḥama bar Ḥasa said: the Jewish people actually stood beneath the mountain, and the verse teaches that God, overturned the mountain above the Jews like a tub, and said to them: If you accept the Torah, excellent, and if not, there will be your burial. Rav Aḥa bar Ya’akov said: From here there is a substantial caveat to the obligation to fulfill the Torah. The Jewish people can claim that they were coerced into accepting the Torah, and it is therefore not binding. Rava said: Even so, they again accepted it willingly in the time of Ahasuerus, as it is written: “The Jews ordained, and took upon them, and upon their seed, and upon all such as joined themselves unto them” (Esther 9:27), and he taught: The Jews ordained what they had already taken upon themselves through coercion at Sinai.

Rosh Hashanah 7a:8

Rather, Ravina said: This matter we did not learn from the Torah of Moses, our teacher; rather, we learned it from the texts of the tradition, i.e., the Prophets and Writings: “On the twenty-fourth day of the eleventh month, which is the month of Shevat” (Zechariah 1:7). If Shevat is the eleventh month, Nisan must be the first month. Rabba bar Ulla said: It is derived from here, as it is stated: “So Esther was taken to the king Ahasuerus into his royal house in the tenth month, which is the month of Tevet” (Esther 2:16).

Yoma 29a:4

In tractate Megilla, the Talmud states that Queen Esther prophetically recited this Psalm in reference to her situation as she was about to come before King Ahasuerus without being summoned. R' Zeira said: Why is Esther likened to a hind? It is to tell you: Just as in the case of a hind its womb is narrow and it is desirable to its mate at each and every hour like it is at the first hour, so too, Esther was desirable to Ahasuerus at each and every hour like she was at the first hour. R' Asi said: Why was Esther likened to the dawn? It is to tell you: Just as the dawn is the conclusion of the entire night, so too, Esther was the conclusion of all miracles performed for the entire Jewish people.

Megillah 2b:13

§ The Talmud notes that the mishna is not in accordance with the opinion of this tanna, as it is taught in the Tosefta (1:1) that R' Yehoshua ben Korḥa says: Cities that have been surrounded by a wall since the days of Ahasuerus read the Megilla on the fifteenth. According to the Tosefta, the status of walled cities is determined based upon whether they were walled in the time of Ahasuerus rather than the time of Joshua.

Megillah 2b:14

The Talmud asks: What is the reason for the opinion of R' Yehoshua ben Korḥa? The Talmud explains that the Megilla is read on the fifteenth in cities that are like Shushan: Just as Shushan is a city that was surrounded by a wall since the days of Ahasuerus, and one reads the Megilla there on the fifteenth, so too every city that was walled since the days of Ahasuerus reads the Megilla on the fifteenth.

Pesachim 87a:12

Apropos the verse from Hosea, the Talmud interprets additional verses there: “The word of YHWH that came unto Hosea, the son of Beeri, in the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judea, and in the days of Jeroboam the son of Joash, king of Israel” (Hosea 1:1). The Sages explained: Four prophets prophesied in one era and the oldest of them was Hosea, as it is stated: “When YHWH spoke at first with Hosea” (Hosea 1:2), indicating that Hosea was the first of these prophets. If not, the question arises: And was it with Hosea that YHWH spoke first of all the prophets? Weren’t there several prophets who lived and prophesied during the period from Moses until Hosea? Rather, R' Yoḥanan said: He was the first of the four prophets who prophesied during that period, and these are they: Hosea, Isaiah, Amos, and Micah.

Pesachim 87b:11

The Talmud asks: From where do we derive that he was counted together with the righteous kings of Judea? As it is written: “The word of YHWH that came to Hosea, son of Beeri, in the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judea, and in the days of Jeroboam, the son of Joash, king of Israel” (Hosea 1:1).

Pesachim 119a:9

Asa came and took it from Zerah, king of Kush, when he defeated him in battle (II Chronicles 14) and sent it to Hadrimmon ben Tabrimmon, king of Aram (see I Kings 15). The children of Ammon came and took it from Hadrimmon ben Tabrimmon, as learned by tradition. Jehosaphat came and took it from the children of Ammon (see II Chronicles 20), and it remained in Eretz Yisrael until the reign of Ahaz.

Pesachim 119a:10

Sennacherib came and took it from Ahaz. Hezekiah came and took it from Sennacherib, and it remained in Jerusalem until the reign of Zedekiah. The Chaldeans came and took it from Zedekiah. The Persians came and took it from the Chaldeans. The Greeks came and took it from the Persians. The Romans came and took it from the Greeks, and this treasure of silver and gold still remains in Rome.

Megillah 10b:12

The Talmud states that there are five instances of vayhi bimei in the Bible. “And it came to pass in the days of [vayhi bimei] Ahasuerus”; “And it came to pass in the days [vayhi bimei] when the judges ruled”; “And it came to pass in the days of [vayhi bimei] Amraphel”; “And it came to pass in the days of [vayhi bimei] Ahaz” (Isaiah 7:1); “And it came to pass in the days of [vayhi bimei] Jehoiakim” (Jeremiah 1:3). In all those incidents, grief ensued.

Ahaziah (3 total matches)

Sanhedrin 95b:4

Apropos David's prayer that his descendants cease, the Talmud asks: And from where do we derive that David's descendants ceased to exist? It is derived from a verse, as it is stated: "And Athaliah the mother of Ahaziah saw that her son was dead, and she arose and destroyed all the royal descendants" (II Kings 11:1). The Talmud asks: But didn't Joash remain alive, and therefore, not all of David's descendants ceased to exist? The Talmud answers: There too, in the massacre in Nov, Abiathar, one of the priests, remained alive, as it is written: "And one of the sons of Ahimelech, son of Ahitub, named Abiathar, escaped" (I Samuel 22:20). Rav Yehuda says that Rav says: Were it not for the fact that Abiathar remained alive for Ahimelech, son of Ahitub, there would have been no remnant or refugee remaining from the descendants of David.

Sanhedrin 102b:18

With regard to the verse: "And he sought Ahaziah, and they apprehended him, for he was hiding in Samaria" (II Chronicles 22:9), R' Levi says: What would he do in hiding? He would excise mentions of God's name in Torah scrolls and write the name of an object of idol worship in their stead.

Sanhedrin 103b:5

It is taught in a baraita that R' Meir would say: Absalom has no share in the World-to-Come, as it is stated: "And they smote Absalom and they killed him" (II Samuel 18:15). "And they smote Absalom" is referring to death in this world, while "and they killed him" is referring to death in the World-to-Come. It is taught in a baraita that R' Shimon ben Elazar says in the name of R' Meir: Ahaz and Ahaziah, kings of Judea, and all of the kings of the kingdom of Israel about whom it is written: "And he did evil in the eyes of YHWH" (see, e.g., I Kings 15:34), neither live in the World-to-Come nor are sentenced to Gehenna.

Ahijah the Shilonite (9 total matches, showing 5)

The prophet Ahijah the Shilonite cursed Israel in the following terms: “For YHWH will smite Israel as a reed is shaken in the water” (I Kings 14:15). Rav Yehuda said that Rav said: This too is for a blessing, as R' Shmuel bar Naḥmani said that R' Yonatan said: What is the meaning of that which is written: “Faithful are the wounds of a friend, but the kisses of an enemy are deceitful” (Proverbs 27:6)? The curse with which Ahijah the Shilonite cursed the Jewish people is more effective than the blessing with which Balaam the wicked blessed them.

Taanit 20a:14

R' Yoḥanan elaborates: Ahijah the Shilonite cursed the Jewish people by comparing them to a reed: “For YHWH will smite Israel as a reed is shaken in the water.” Although it seems to be a curse, this verse is actually a blessing. Just as this reed stands in a place of water, and its shoots replenish themselves when cut, and its roots are numerous for a plant of its size, and even if all the winds in the world come and blow against it, they cannot move it from its place, rather, it sways with them until the winds subside, and the reed still stands in its place, the same applies to the Jewish people. After all the difficulties that they endure, they will ultimately survive and return home.

Bava Batra 121b:6

§ After discussing the generation of those who died in the wilderness, the Talmud mentions a tradition that relates to that generation. The Sages taught: Seven people spanned in their lifetimes the whole world in its entirety, i.e., their lives have spanned all of human history. Methuselah saw Adam in his lifetime; Shem saw Methuselah; Jacob saw Shem; Amram saw Jacob; Ahijah the Shilonite saw Amram; Elijah saw Ahijah the Shilonite; and Elijah is still alive.

Bava Batra 121b:7

The Talmud asks: And is it true that Ahijah the Shilonite saw Amram? But it is written: “And no man among them remained, save Caleb, son of Jephunneh, and Joshua, son of Nun” (Numbers 26:65). Since Amram died well before the Jewish people left Egypt, in order to have lived at the time of Amram, Ahijah would have had to be an adult at the time of the Exodus. How, then, could he have lived through the generation of those who died in the wilderness?

Sanhedrin 102a:1

And even Ahijah the Shilonite erred in this matter and signed that he would accept all of Jeroboam’s pronouncements. And generations later this caused Jehu to sin. The Talmud explains: As Jehu was an extremely righteous person. As it is stated: “And YHWH said to Jehu: Because you have done well, to perform what is right in My eyes, and have done to the house of Ahab according to all that was in My heart, your children of the fourth generation shall sit on the throne of Israel” (II Kings 10:30). And it is written: “But Jehu took no care to walk in the Torah of YHWH, God of Israel, with all his heart; he departed not from the sins of Jeroboam, who made Israel sin” (II Kings 10:31).

Ahiman (3 total matches)

Yoma 10a:6

The Talmud continues to discuss the interpretation of names in the Bible. The Torah says: “And there were Ahiman, Sheshai, and Talmai, the children of Anak” (Numbers 13:22). It was taught: Ahiman was so called because he was the greatest and most skillful [meyuman] of his brothers. Ahiman is a contraction of brother [a?] and right [yamin], which is the skilled hand. Sheshai was so called because he renders the ground like pits [sheḥitot] with his strides. Talmai was so called because he renders the ground filled with furrows [telamim] with his strides. Alternatively: Ahiman built the city of Anat; Sheshai built the town Alush; Talmai built the city of Talbush. The children of Anak is referring to the fact that it appears that the sun is a necklace [shema’anikin] around their necks because of their height.

The verse continues to state about Hebron: “And Ahiman, Sheshai, and Talmai, the children of Anak, were there” (Numbers 13:22). Ahiman was called by this name because he was the most skilled [meyumman] among his brothers. Sheshai was called by his name because he would turn the land that he treaded upon into ditches [sheḥatot] due to his large dimensions. Talmai was called this because he would turn the land that he treaded upon into furrows upon furrows [telamim] due to his weight.

Sotah 34b:10

Alternatively, their names signify another matter: Ahiman is the one who built the city of Anat. Sheshai built the city of Alush. Talmai built the city of Talbush. The verse describes them as “the children of Anak” because they were so tall and large that it appeared as if they were wearing [ma’anikin] the sun as a necklace due to their height.

Ahithophel (25 total matches, showing 5)

on an earthenware shard? If it is permitted, we will write it and throw it into the depths, and they will subside. There was no one who said anything to him. David said: Anyone who knows what to say and does not say anything may he be strangled in his throat. Then Ahithophel raised an a fortiori argument on his own and said: And just as in order to make peace between a man and his wife in the case of sota, when the husband suspects his wife of having committed adultery, the Torah said: My Name that was written in sanctity will be erased on the water to establish peace for the whole world in its entirety, all the more so it is permitted. He said to David: It is permitted.

Chagigah 15b:13

And R' Ami said: Doeg asked Ahithophel three hundred questions with regard to a closet floating in the air, as they were both great Torah scholars. And we learned in a mishna (Sanhedrin 90a): Three kings and four commoners have no portion in the World-to-Come, a list that includes Doeg and Ahithophel. If such great Sages could sin and forfeit their share in the World-to-Come, we, who are less knowledgeable than they, what will be of us? He said to him: Long-toothed one, there was mud [tina] in their hearts, i.e., they had certain flaws that prevented their Torah learning from protecting them.

Sotah 9b:3

The baraita continues: And so we found with regard to Cain, who desired to inherit the whole world alone (see Genesis 4); and Korah, who desired the priesthood (see Numbers 16); and Balaam, who desired Balak's money (see Numbers 22); and Doeg, who was jealous of David (see I Samuel 21–22); and Ahithophel, who was also jealous of David (see II Samuel 16); and Gehazi, who took Naaman's money (see II Kings 5); and Absalom, who wanted the kingdom (see II Samuel 15); and Adonijah, who also wanted the kingdom (see I Kings 1); and Uzziah, who wanted to be the High Priest (see II Chronicles 26); and Haman, who wanted to kill all the Jews (see Esther 3:13). All of these were people who placed their eyes on that which is unfit for them, and consequently what they desired was not given to them, and what they had was taken from them.

Sotah 21a:11

Rabba objects to this explanation: If that is so, then with regard to Doeg (see I Samuel, chapters 21–22) and Ahithophel (see II Samuel, chapter 16), who were both wise scholars despite their wickedness, did they not engage in the study of Torah? Why did it not protect them from sinning? Rather, Rava said: With regard to Torah study, at the time when one is engaged in it, it protects and saves; at the time when one is not engaged in it, it protects one from misfortune but it does not save one from the evil inclination. With regard to a mitzva, both at the time when one is engaged in its performance and at the time when one is not engaged in its performance, it protects one from misfortune but it does not save one from the evil inclination.

Sotah 21a:14

The baraita states: Alternatively: A transgression extinguishes the merit of a mitzva, but a transgression does not extinguish the merit of the Torah. Rav Yosef says: R' Menaḥem bar Yosei interpreted this verse as it was given on Mount Sinai, and had Doeg and Ahithophel only interpreted it in this way they would not have pursued David, as it is written: "For my enemies speak concerning me...saying, God has forsaken him; pursue and take him, for there is none to deliver" (Psalms 71:10–11). Doeg and Ahithophel incorrectly thought that since David had sinned, his sins had extinguished his merits and God had forsaken him.

Ahitophel (5 total matches)

Berakhot 3b:30

The Sages immediately seek advice from Ahitophel to determine whether or not it was appropriate to go to war at that time and how they should conduct themselves, and they consult the Sanhedrin in order to receive the requisite license to wage a war under those circumstances (Tosefot HaRosh). And they ask the *Urim VeTummim whether or not they should go to war, and whether or not they would be successful.

Berakhot 3b:31

Rav Yosef said: Upon what verse is this aggada based? As it is written: "And after Ahitophel was Benayahu son of Yehoyada and Evyatar, and the general of the king's army, Yoav" (I Chronicles 27:34).

Berakhot 3b:32

The individuals named in this verse correspond with the roles in the aggada as follows: Ahitophel is the adviser whose advice they sought first with regard to going to war, and so it says: "Now the counsel of Ahitophel, which he counseled in those days, was as a man who inquires of the word of God; so was the counsel of Ahitophel both with David and with Absalom" (II Samuel 16:23).

Berakhot 17b:1

"There is no breach"; that our faction of Sages should not be like the faction of David, from which Ahitophel emerged, who caused a breach in the kingdom of David.
"And no going forth"; that our faction should not be like the faction of Saul, from which Doeg the Edomite emerged, who set forth on an evil path.
"And no outcry"; that our faction should not be like the faction of Elisha, from which Geihazi emerged.
"In our open places"; that we should not have a child or student who overcooks his food in public, i.e., who sins in public and causes others to sin, as in the well-known case of Jesus the Nazarene.

Berakhot 55b:4

That was also taught in a baraita: All of King David's life he never saw a good dream, and all of Ahitophel's life he never saw a bad dream.

Shabbat 55b:3

The Talmud raises an objection from what was taught in the following baraita: Four people died due to Adam's sin with the serpent, in the wake of which death was decreed upon all of mankind, although they themselves were free of sin. And they are: Benjamin, son of Jacob; Amram, father of Moses; Yishai, father of David; and Kilab, son of David. And all of them were learned through tradition, except for Yishai, father of David, with regard to whom there is an explicit verse interpreted homiletically, as it is written: "And Absalom placed Amasa in charge of the army in place of Joab, and Amasa was the son of a man named Ithra the Israelite, who had taken to himself Abigail the daughter of Nahash, sister of Zeruiah, the mother of Joab" (II Samuel 17:25).

Doeg raised before them all those objections from the others who are disqualified from entering into the congregation, and they were silent, not knowing how to respond. Doeg then wanted to proclaim that David was disqualified from entering into the congregation. He was immediately answered. Here it says: "Now Amasa was the son of a man, whose name was Jithra the Israelite, that went into Abigal the daughter of Nahash" (II Samuel 17:25), and yet elsewhere it is written that Amasa's father was named "Jether the Ishmaelite" (I Chronicles 2:17). Rava said: This teaches that he girded his sword like Ishmael, i.e., like an Arab, and said: Whoever does not accept this *halakha and act accordingly shall be stabbed with the sword. This is the tradition that I received from the court of Samuel from Rama: An Ammonite man is prohibited from entering into the congregation, but not an Ammonite woman; a Moabite man is prohibited from entering into the congregation, but not a Moabite woman.

Bava Batra 17a:6

The Sages taught in a baraita: There were four people who died only because of the counsel of the primordial snake, in the wake of which all of humanity became mortal, and not on account of any personal sin. And they are: Benjamin, son of Jacob; Amram, father of Moses; Yishai, father of David; and Chileab, son of David. And all of these are known through tradition except for Yishai, father of David, with regard to whom it is written explicitly: "And Absalom placed Amasa over the army instead of Joab, and Amasa was the son of a man whose name was Ithra the Israelite, who engaged in intercourse with Abigail, daughter of Nahash, the sister of Zeruiah, mother of Joab" (II Samuel 17:25). But was Abigail the daughter of Nahash? Was she not the daughter of Yishai, as it is written: "And their sisters were Zeruiah and Abigail" (I Chronicles 2:16)? Rather, she was called "daughter of Nahash" to indicate that she was the daughter of one who died only because of the counsel of the snake.

Sanhedrin 49a:4

Solomon said to Joab: Set aside Abner, as you have presented a convincing argument that you are not liable for his death. But what is the reason you killed Amasa? Joab said to him: I killed Amasa in punishment for his having rebelled against the king, as it is written: "And the king said to Amasa: Muster to me the men of Judah within three days, and be you here present. And Amasa went to call the men of Judah, but he was later than the set time that he had assigned to him" (II Samuel 20:4–5).

Sanhedrin 49a:5

Solomon said to him: Amasa was not guilty of rebelling against the king because he interpreted the words akh* and *rak in a restrictive manner, and in that way he limited the king's authority.

And Rav Ḥanan bar Rava says that Rav says: The mother of Abraham was called Amatlai bat Karnevo. The mother of Haman was called Amatlai bat Orevati. And your mnemonic, to ensure that the two are not confused for one another, is that a raven [orev] is impure, and in this manner one remembers that Orevati is the grandmother of the impure Haman, while a sheep [kar] is pure, which indicates that Karnevo is the grandmother of the pure Abraham.

Pesachim 87b:12

And from where do we derive that he did not accept slander? As it is written: "Then Amaziah the priest of Beth-El sent to Jeroboam king of Israel, saying: Amos has conspired against you in the midst of the house of Israel" (Amos 7:10). And it is written: "For thus said Amos: Jeroboam shall die by the sword and Israel shall surely be led away captive out of his land" (Amos 7:11). Jeroboam said: Heaven forfend that that righteous person, Amos, said this, that I will die by the sword; and if he indeed said it, what shall I do to him and why should I punish him? The Divine Presence said it to him, and he is required to transmit his prophecy.

Megillah 10b:13

§ Apropos the tradition cited by R' Levi above, the Talmud cites additional traditions that he transmitted. R' Levi said: This matter is a tradition that we received from our ancestors: Amoz, father of Isaiah, and Amaziah, king of Judea, were brothers. The Talmud questions: What novel element is this statement teaching us?

Megillah 10b:15

Rather, because she covered her face in the house of her father-in-law and he was not familiar with her appearance, Judah didn't recognize Tamar, thought she was a harlot, and sought to have sexual relations with her. Ultimately, she merited that kings and prophets emerged from her. Kings emerged from her through David, who was a descendant of Tamar's son, Peretz. However, there is no explicit mention that she was the forebear of prophets. This is derived from that which R' Levi said: This matter is a tradition that we received from our ancestors. Amoz, father of Isaiah, and Amaziah, king of Judea, were brothers, and it is written: "The vision of Isaiah the son of Amoz" (Isaiah 1:1). Amoz was a member of the Davidic dynasty, and his son, the prophet Isaiah, was also a descendant of Tamar.

Nedarim 38a:14

Amos was wealthy, as it is written: "Then answered Amos, and said to Amaziah: I am neither a prophet, nor son of a prophet, but I am a herdsman, and a dresser of sycamore-trees" (Amos 7:14). Amos is saying, as Rav Yosef translates: Because I am the owner of flocks and I have sycamores in the lowland, and I do not come to prophesy for financial gain. Apparently, Amos was wealthy.

Sotah 10b:3

R' Elazar says: The verse means that Tamar covered her face in the home of her father-in-law, Judah. Therefore, he did not recognize her when her face was uncovered. As R' Shmuel bar Naḥmani says that R' Yonatan says: Any daughter-in-law who is modest in the house of her father-in-law merits that kings and prophets emerge from her. From where do we derive this? From Tamar. Prophets emerged from her, as it is written: "The vision of Isaiah, the son of Amoz" (Isaiah 1:1). Kings emerged from her, as seen from David. And R' Levi says: This matter is a tradition that we received from our ancestors: Amoz, father of Isaiah, and Amaziah, king of Judea, were brothers. This indicates that Isaiah was also from the house of David and therefore a descendant of Tamar.

Berakhot 28a:6

Rabban Gamliel said to him: You are forbidden to enter into the congregation. R' Yehoshua said to him: You are permitted to enter into the congregation. Rabban Gamliel said to R' Yehoshua: Wasn't it already stated: "An Ammonite and a Moabite shall not enter into the congregation of YHWH; even to the tenth generation shall none of them enter into the congregation of YHWH forever" (Deuteronomy 23:4)? How can you permit him to enter the congregation? R' Yehoshua said to Rabban Gamliel: Do Ammon and Moab reside in their place? Sennacherib already came and, through his policy of population transfer, scrambled all the nations and settled other nations in place of Ammon. Consequently, the current residents of Ammon and Moab are not ethnic Ammonites and Moabites, as it is stated in reference to Sennacherib: "I have removed the bounds of the peoples, and have robbed their treasures, and have brought down as one mighty the inhabitants" (Isaiah 10:13). And although it is conceivable that this particular convert is an ethnic Ammonite, nevertheless, there is no need for concern due to the halakhic principle: Anything that parts from a group parts from the majority, and the assumption is that he is from the majority of nations whose members are permitted to enter the congregation.

Taanit 25a:19

The Talmud relates: R' Ḥiyya bar Lulyani heard these clouds saying to one another, let us go and bring water for Ammon and Moab in Transjordan. He said before God: Master of the Universe, when You gave Your Torah to Your nation Israel, You approached all the nations of the world to see if they would accept the Torah, and they did not accept it. And yet now You are giving them rain. Throw the water here. The clouds threw the rain in their place in Eretz Yisrael.

Megillah 12b:7

The following verse states: "Then the king said to the wise men, who knew the times" (Esther 1:13). The Talmud asks: Who are these wise men? These wise men are the Sages of the Jewish people, who are referred to as those "who knew the times," for they know how to intercalate years and fix the months of the Jewish calendar. Ahasuerus said to them: Judge her for me. The Sages said in their hearts: What should we do? If we say to him: Kill her, tomorrow he will become sober and then come and demand her from us. If we say to him: Let her be, she has scorned royalty, and that cannot be tolerated. Consequently, they decided not to judge the matter, and they said to him as follows: From the day that the Temple was destroyed and we have been exiled from our land, counsel and insight have been removed from us, and we do not know how to judge capital cases, as they are exceptionally difficult. Go to the people of Ammon and Moab, who have remained permanently settled in their places like wine that is settled on its lees, and so their minds are settled as well.

Chagigah 3b:7

R' Yosei ben Durmaskit said to him: The Sages assembled, counted the votes, and concluded that although the lands of Ammon and Moab on the eastern side of the Jordan River are not part of Eretz Yisrael, and therefore the halakhot of the Sabbatical Year and tithes should not apply to them, as these lands are adjacent to Eretz Yisrael, one separates the poor man's tithe there in the Sabbatical Year. Since the Sages debated which tithes should be separated, they had to take a vote to determine the halakha in this regard.

Chagigah 3b:9

R' Elazar said to R' Yosei to go and say to the Sages in the study hall: Do not be concerned with regard to your counting, that you might not have ruled properly, as you have not in fact instituted a new ordinance at all. This is the tradition that I received from Rabban Yoḥanan ben Zakkai, who heard from his teacher, and his teacher from his teacher: It is a *halakha transmitted to Moses from Sinai that in Ammon and Moab one separates the poor man's tithe in the Sabbatical Year. What is the reason? Those who ascended from Egypt conquered many cities, and those who ascended from Babylonia did not conquer them after the destruction of the First Temple.

Yoma 22b:12

The Talmud asks: But were these his only two sins? There is also the incident of Bathsheba, in which he took another man's wife as his own. The Talmud answers: There, in that case, punishment was exacted from him separately, so the matter is no longer listed among his sins, as it is written with regard to this incident: "And he shall restore the lamb fourfold" (II Samuel 12:6). The lamb was a metaphor for Bathsheba, and ultimately David was indeed given a fourfold punishment for taking Bathsheba: The first child born to Bathsheba and David died (see II Samuel 12:13–23); David's son Amnon was killed; Tamar, his daughter, was raped by Amnon (see II Samuel 13); and his son Avshalom rebelled against him and was ultimately killed (see II Samuel 15–18).

Megillah 25a:16

MISHNA: The incident of Reuben, about which it says: "And Reuben went and lay with Bilhah, his father's concubine" (Genesis 35:22), is read from the Torah in public but not translated, so that the uneducated not come to denigrate Reuben. The incident of Tamar (Genesis, chapter 38) is read in public and also translated. The first report of the incident of the Golden Calf, i.e., the Torah's account of the incident itself (Exodus 32:1–20), is read and translated, but the second narrative, i.e., Aaron's report to Moses of what had taken place (Exodus 32:21–24) is read but not translated. The verses constituting the Priestly Benediction (Numbers 6:24–26) and the incident of David and Amnon (II Samuel, chapter 13) are read, but not translated.

Megillah 25b:7

It is further taught: The incident of Amnon and Tamar, alluded to in the second nun in the mnemonic mentioned above, is read and translated. Additionally, the incident of Absalom is read and translated, alluded to in the shin of the mnemonic, the third letter of his name. The Talmud comments: This is obvious. The Talmud explains: Lest you say that one should be concerned for the honor of David, therefore the Tosefta teaches us that this section is read and translated.

Megillah 25b:14

We also learned in the mishna: The incident of David and Amnon is neither read nor translated. David's name begins with a dalet, the next letter in the mnemonic; nun, the last letter of the mnemonic, is the third letter in Amnon's name. The Talmud asks: Didn't you say in the Tosefta that the incident of Amnon and Tamar is both read and translated? The Talmud explains that this is not difficult. This statement of the mishna applies where Amnon's name is written: Amnon, son of David. That statement of the Tosefta applies where it is written simply as Amnon.

Gittin 8a:4

As it is taught in the Tosefta (Terumot 2:12): What is Eretz Yisrael and what is outside of Eretz Yisrael? Any slope that descends at an angle from Turei Amnon in Syria and inward toward Eretz Yisrael is part of Eretz Yisrael. From Turei Amnon and outward, northward, is considered outside of Eretz Yisrael. With regard to the islands [nissin] that are in the sea, one views them as though a string were pulled taut over them from Turei Amnon in the north to the River of Egypt, Wadi el-Arish, in the south. From the string and inward, i.e., east, is Eretz Yisrael; from the string and outward, west, is considered outside of Eretz Yisrael. This is the opinion of the Rabbis.

It is further taught: The incident of Amnon and Tamar, alluded to in the second nun in the mnemonic mentioned above, is read and translated. Additionally, the incident of Absalom is read and translated, alluded to in the shin of the mnemonic, the third letter of his name. The Talmud comments: This is obvious. The Talmud explains: Lest you say that one should be concerned for the honor of David, therefore the Tosefta teaches us that this section is read and translated.

We also learned in the mishna: The incident of David and Amnon is neither read nor translated. David's name begins with a dalet, the next letter in the mnemonic; nun, the last letter of the mnemonic, is the third letter in Amnon's name. The Talmud asks: Didn't you say in the Tosefta that the incident of Amnon and Tamar is both read and translated? The Talmud explains that this is not difficult. Megillah 3a:10

And with regard to that verse, Rav Yosef said: Were it not for the Aramaic translation of this verse, we would not have known what it is saying, as the Bible does not mention any incident involving Hadadrimmon in the valley of Megiddon. The Aramaic translation reads as follows: On that day, the mourning in Jerusalem will be as great as the mourning for Ahab, son of Omri, who was slain by Hadadrimmon, son of Tavrimon, in Ramoth-Gilead, and like the mourning for Josiah, son of Amon, who was slain by Pharaoh the lame in the valley of Megiddon. The translation clarifies that the verse is referring to two separate incidents of mourning, and thereby clarifies the meaning of this verse.

And Josiah the son of Amon ruled over the ten tribes, as it is written: "Then he said: What monument is that which I see? And the men of the city told him, It is the tomb of the man of God who came from Judah and proclaimed these things that you have done against the altar of Bethel" (II Kings 23:17). Now what connection did Josiah, king of Judea, have with the altar at Bethel, a city in the kingdom of Israel? Rather, this teaches that Josiah ruled over the ten tribes of Israel. Rav Naḥman said: Proof that the tribes returned may be adduced from the verse here: "Also, O Judah, there is a harvest appointed for you, when I would return the captivity of My people" (Hosea 6:11), which indicates that they returned to their places.

Moed Katan 28b:18

The Aramaic translation reads as follows: At that time the mourning in Jerusalem will be as great as the mourning over Ahab, son of Omri, who was slain by Hadadrimmon, son of Tabrimmon, and like the mourning over Josiah, son of Amon, who was slain by Pharaoh the lame in the valley of Megiddon.

Sotah 9b:22

The verse continues: "To move him [lefa'amo] in Mahaneh Dan." R' Yitzḥak of the school of R' Ami says: This teaches that the Divine Presence jangled before him, inspiring him, like a bell [zog], as it is written here: "To move him [lefa'amo] in Mahaneh Dan," and it is written there with regard to the clothing of the High Priest: "A bell [pa'amon] and a pomegranate" (Exodus 39:26).

Sanhedrin 103a:11

Rav Ḥisda says that R' Yirmeya bar Abba says: What is the meaning of that which is written: "I passed by the field of an indolent man, and by the vineyard of a man void of understanding; and behold, it was overgrown with thistles, and its surface was covered with nettles, and its stone wall was broken" (Proverbs 24:30–31)? The verse describes the spiritual and political decline of the kings of Judea. "I passed by the field of an indolent man"; this is a reference to Ahaz. "And by the vineyard of a man void of understanding"; this is a reference to Manasseh. "And behold, it was overgrown with thistles"; this is a reference to Amon. "And its surface was covered with nettles"; this is a reference to Jehoiakim. "And its stone wall was broken"; this is a reference to Zedekiah, in whose days the Temple was destroyed.

Pesachim 87a:12

Apropos the verse from Hosea, the Talmud interprets additional verses there: “The word of YHWH that came unto Hosea, the son of Beeri, in the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judea, and in the days of Jeroboam the son of Joash, king of Israel” (Hosea 1:1). The Sages explained: Four prophets prophesied in one era and the oldest of them was Hosea, as it is stated: “When YHWH spoke at first with Hosea” (Hosea 1:2), indicating that Hosea was the first of these prophets. If not, the question arises: And was it with Hosea that YHWH spoke first of all the prophets? Weren’t there several prophets who lived and prophesied during the period from Moses until Hosea? Rather, R' Yoḥanan said: He was the first of the four prophets who prophesied during that period, and these are they: Hosea, Isaiah, Amos, and Micah.

Pesachim 87b:10

R' Yoḥanan said: Due to what reason was the less than righteous Jeroboam, son of Joash, king of Israel, privileged to be counted in the verse together with the righteous kings of Judea? It is due to the fact that he did not accept slander about Amos.

Pesachim 87b:12

And from where do we derive that he did not accept slander? As it is written: “Then Amaziah the priest of Beth-El sent to Jeroboam king of Israel, saying: Amos has conspired against you in the midst of the house of Israel” (Amos 7:10). And it is written: “For thus said Amos: Jeroboam shall die by the sword and Israel shall surely be led away captive out of his land” (Amos 7:11). Jeroboam said: Heaven forfend that that righteous person, Amos, said this, that I will die by the sword; and if he indeed said it, what shall I do to him and why should I punish him? The Divine Presence said it to him, and he is required to transmit his prophecy.

Sukkah 52b:13

The Talmud continues homiletically interpreting verses that relate to the end of days. It is stated: “And this shall be peace: When the Assyrian shall come into our land, and when he shall tread in our palaces, then shall we raise against him seven shepherds, and eight princes among men” (Micah 5:4). The Talmud asks: Who are these seven shepherds? The Talmud explains: David is in the middle; Adam, Seth, and Methuselah are to his right; Abraham, Jacob, and Moses are to his left. And who are the eight princes among men? They are Yishai, Saul, Samuel, Amos, Zephania, Zedekiah, Messiah, and Elijah.

Nedarim 38a:10

§ R' Yoḥanan said: All the prophets were wealthy. From where do we derive this? It is derived from Moses, and from Samuel, and from Amos, and from Jonah, who were all wealthy.

Berakhot 10a:27

What did God, do to effect compromise between Hezekiah and Isaiah? He brought the suffering of illness upon Hezekiah and told Isaiah: Go and visit the sick. Isaiah did as God instructed, as it is stated: "In those days Hezekiah became deathly ill, and Isaiah ben Amoz the prophet came and said to him: Thus says YHWH of Hosts: Set your house in order, for you will die and you will not live" (Isaiah 38:1). This seems redundant; what is the meaning of you will die and you will not live? This repetition means: You will die in this world, and you will not live, you will have no share, in the World-to-Come.

Berakhot 10a:30

Hezekiah said to Isaiah: Now give me your daughter as my wife; perhaps my merit and your merit will cause virtuous children to emerge from me.
Isaiah said to him: The decree has already been decreed against you and this judgment cannot be changed.
Hezekiah said to him: Son of Amoz, cease your prophecy and leave. As long as the prophet spoke as God's emissary, Hezekiah was obligated to listen to him. He was not, however, obligated to accept Isaiah's personal opinion that there was no possibility for mercy and healing.

Pesachim 87b:9

R' Yoḥanan said: Woe to authority, which shortens the life and buries its holders. This is evident from the fact that you don't have any prophet who did not outlast four kings in his lifetime, as the kings' positions of authority caused them to die young. A prophet outliving four kings is demonstrated in the opening verses of Hosea, and similarly, as it is stated with regard to Isaiah: "The vision of Isaiah, the son of Amoz, which he saw concerning Judea and Jerusalem in the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judea" (Isaiah 1:1).

Megillah 10b:13

§ Apropos the tradition cited by R' Levi above, the Talmud cites additional traditions that he transmitted. R' Levi said: This matter is a tradition that we received from our ancestors: Amoz, father of Isaiah, and Amaziah, king of Judea, were brothers. The Talmud questions: What novel element is this statement teaching us?

Megillah 10b:15

Rather, because she covered her face in the house of her father-in-law and he was not familiar with her appearance, Judah didn't recognize Tamar, thought she was a harlot, and sought to have sexual relations with her. Ultimately, she merited that kings and prophets emerged from her. Kings emerged from her through David, who was a descendant of Tamar's son, Peretz. However, there is no explicit mention that she was the forebear of prophets. This is derived from that which R' Levi said: This matter is a tradition that we received from our ancestors. Amoz, father of Isaiah, and Amaziah, king of Judea, were brothers, and it is written: "The vision of Isaiah the son of Amoz" (Isaiah 1:1). Amoz was a member of the Davidic dynasty, and his son, the prophet Isaiah, was also a descendant of Tamar.

Eruvin 53a:7

They disagreed about this verse as well: “And it came to pass in the days of Amraphel” (Genesis 14:1). Rav and Shmuel both identified Amraphel with Nimrod. However, one said: Nimrod was his name. And why was his name called Amraphel? It is a contraction of two Hebrew words: As he said [amar] the command and cast [hippil] our father Abraham into the fiery furnace, when Abraham rebelled against and challenged his proclaimed divinity. And one said: Amraphel was his name. And why was his name called Nimrod? Because he caused the entire world to rebel [himrid] against God during his reign.

Megillah 10b:6

“And it came to pass [vayhi] as they journeyed from the east” (Genesis 11:2) is followed by: “Come, let us build us a city” (Genesis 11:4), which led to the sin of the Tower of Babel. The Talmud cites further examples: “And it came to pass in the days of Amraphel” (Genesis 14:1), about whom it is stated: “These made war” (Genesis 14:2). Another verse states: “And it came to pass, when Joshua was by Jericho” (Joshua 5:13), it was there that he saw an angel “with his sword drawn in his hand” as a warning. It is written: “And YHWH was [vayhi] with Joshua” (Joshua 6:27), and immediately afterward: “But the children of Israel committed a trespass” (Joshua 7:1). It states: “And it came to pass that there was a certain man of Ramathaim” (I Samuel 1:1), and it mentions shortly afterward Hannah’s inability to conceive: “For he loved Hannah, but YHWH had closed up her womb” (I Samuel 1:5).

Megillah 10b:12

The Talmud states that there are five instances of vayhi bimei in the Bible. “And it came to pass in the days of [vayhi bimei] Ahasuerus”; “And it came to pass in the days [vayhi bimei] when the judges ruled”; “And it came to pass in the days of [vayhi bimei] Amraphel”; “And it came to pass in the days of [vayhi bimei] Ahaz” (Isaiah 7:1); “And it came to pass in the days of [vayhi bimei] Jehoiakim” (Jeremiah 1:3). In all those incidents, grief ensued.

Pesachim 54a:14

Rather, the void of Gehenna was created before the world was created, and its fire was created only on the second day of the week. And the thought arose in God's mind to create our fire on Shabbat eve; however, it was not actually created until the conclusion of Shabbat, as it was taught in a baraita that R' Yosei says: The thoughts of two phenomena arose in God's mind on Shabbat eve, but were not actually created until the conclusion of Shabbat. At the conclusion of Shabbat, God, granted Adam, the first man, creative knowledge similar to divine knowledge, and he brought two rocks and rubbed them against each other, and the first fire emerged from them. Adam also brought two animals, a female horse and a male donkey, and mated them with each other, and the resultant offspring that emerged from them was a mule. Rabban Shimon ben Gamliel disagrees and says that the first mule was in the days of Anah, as it is stated: "And these are the children of Zibeon: Aiah and Anah; this is Anah who found the mules in the wilderness, as he fed the donkeys of Zibeon his father" (Genesis 36:24).

Pesachim 54a:15

The interpreters of Torah symbolism [Ḥamurot] would say: Anah was the product of an incestuous relationship, and as a result he was spiritually unfit to produce offspring. Therefore, he brought an example of unfitness, i.e., an animal physically unfit to produce offspring, into the world, as it is stated: "These are the sons of Seir the Horite, the inhabitants of the land: Lotan, and Shoval, and Zibeon, and Anah" (Genesis 36:20). And it is also stated: "And these are the sons of Zibeon: Aiah and Anah" (Genesis 36:24). One verse describes both Anah and Zibeon as sons of Seir, meaning that they are brothers, while the other verse describes Anah as Zibeon's son. Rather, this teaches that Zibeon cohabited with his mother, the wife of Seir, and fathered Anah from her. He is called Seir's son although in fact he was the offspring of Seir's son and Seir's wife.

Pesachim 54a:16

The Talmud asks: And perhaps there were two people named Anah, one the son of Zibeon and the other the son of Seir? Rava said: I will state a matter that even King Shapur did not state. And who is this King Shapur? This cannot be a reference to Shapur, king of Persia; rather, it must be an epithet for someone else. He is Shmuel, whose legal rulings were accepted by the public like the edicts of a king by his subjects. Some say a different version, that it was Rav Pappa who said: I will state a matter that even King Shapur did not state. And who is he that Rav Pappa is referring to by the epithet King Shapur? He is Rava. The verse said: "This is Anah who found the mules," indicating that he is the same Anah mentioned initially in the earlier verse.

Bava Batra 115b:4

Rabban Yoḥanan ben Zakkai recited this verse about him: "These are the sons of Seir the Horite, the inhabitants of the land: Lotan and Shobal and Zibeon and Anah" (Genesis 36:20), and it is written: "And these are the children of Zibeon: Aiah and Anah" (Genesis 36:24). The first verse portrays Zibeon and Anah as brothers, while the second states that they are father and son. Rather, this teaches that Zibeon engaged in sexual intercourse with his mother and begot Anah, so that he was both Anah's father and his brother. From the fact that the first verse equates Zibeon and Anah by referring to both of them as Seir's sons despite Anah being a grandson of Seir, it is clear that grandchildren are equal to children, contrary to the Sadducees' assertion.

Bava Batra 115b:5

The Talmud interrupts the recounting of the baraita and questions Rabban Yoḥanan ben Zakkai's inference: But perhaps there were two people named Anah, so that one Anah was Zibeon's son, and the other his brother? Rabba said: I will state a matter that even King Shapur did not state. And who is this King Shapur? This cannot be a reference to Shapur, king of Persia; rather, it must be a moniker for someone else. He is Shmuel, whose legal rulings were accepted by the public like the edicts of a king by his subjects. Some state a different version, that it was Rav Pappa who said: I will state a matter that even King Shapur did not state. And who is this King Shapur? He is Rabba. The verse goes on to state: "This is Anah" (Genesis 36:24), indicating that he is the same Anah mentioned initially, earlier in the verse. Accordingly, there was only one Anah, who was both Zibeon's brother and Zibeon's son.

“And the Sepharvites burned their sons and their daughters in the fire to Adrammelech and Anammelech, the gods of Sepharvaim” (II Kings 17:31); and what are they? The mule and the horse. And why are they called that? A mule is called Adrammelech because it honors [addar] its master with its load, i.e., because it carries the master’s load, and a horse is called Anammelech because it responds [anei] to its master, assisting him in battle.

Rosh Hashanah 3a:1

“And when the Canaanite, the king of Arad, who dwelt in the South, heard tell that Israel came by the way of Atharim; and he fought against Israel” (Numbers 21:1). What report did he hear? He heard that Aaron had died, and that the clouds of glory had withdrawn from the Jewish people, and he thought that he had been granted permission to wage war against the Jewish people. And this is as it is written: “And all the congregation saw that [ki] Aaron was dead, and they wept for Aaron thirty days, all the house of Israel” (Numbers 20:29).

Rosh Hashanah 3a:3

The Talmud raises an objection against this proof: Is it comparable? There, the verse is speaking of Canaan, king of Arad, whereas here, the verse is speaking of Sihon. What proof, then, can be brought from the one with regard to the other? The Talmud explains: A Sage taught in a baraita: All three names are referring to the same person: He is Sihon, and he is Arad, and he is also Canaan. He was called Sihon because he was similar in his wildness to a foal [seyya?] in the desert; and he was called Canaan after his kingdom, as he ruled over the Canaanite people; and what was his real name? Arad was his name. Some say an alternative explanation: He was called Arad because he was similar to a wild ass [arod] in the desert; and he was called Canaan after his kingdom; and what was his real name? Sihon was his name.

Taanit 9a:10

When Aaron died the clouds of glory disappeared, as it is stated: “And the Canaanite, the king of Arad heard” (Numbers 33:40). What report did he hear? He heard that Aaron had died and the clouds of glory had disappeared, and he thought that the Jewish people were no longer protected by Heaven and therefore he had been given permission to go to war against the Jewish people. And this disappearance of the clouds is the meaning of that which is written: “And all the congregation saw that [ki] Aaron was dead” (Numbers 20:29).

And the fact that it draws near the distant is derived from Yitro, as R' Yoḥanan says: In reward for Yitro telling his daughters: “Call him, that he may eat bread” (Exodus 2:20), inviting Moses to join them for a meal, Yitro’s descendants were privileged and sat as scribes in session with the Sanhedrin in the Chamber of Hewn Stone. As it is stated: “And the families of the scribes who dwelt in Jabez; the Tirathites, the Shimeathites, the Sucathites. These were the Kenites who came of Hammath, father of the house of Rechab” (I Chronicles 2:55). And it is written there with regard to the identity of the Kenites: “And the children of the Kenite, Moses’ father-in-law, went up from the city of the palm trees with the children of Judah into the wilderness of Judah, which is in the south of Arad; and they went and dwelt with the people” (Judges 1:16).

Araunah (4 total matches)

Megillah 15a:17

Apropos a statement that R' Elazar said that R' Ḥanina said, the Talmud records other such statements: And R' Elazar further said that R' Ḥanina said: One should never regard the blessing of an ordinary person [hedyot] as light in your eyes, as two of the great men of their generations received blessings from ordinary people and those blessings were fulfilled in them. And they were David and Daniel. David, for Araunah blessed him, as it is written: "And Araunah said to the king, May YHWH your God accept you" (II Samuel 24:23), and it was fulfilled. Daniel, for Darius blessed him, as it is written: "Your God Whom you serve continually, He will rescue you" (Daniel 6:17), and this too was fulfilled when Daniel was saved from the lions' den.

Avodah Zarah 24b:4

Come and hear another objection from a verse: "And Araunah said unto David: Let my lord the king take and offer up what seems good unto him; behold the cattle for the burnt-offering, and the threshing instruments [morigim] and the accoutrements of the cattle for the wood" (II Samuel 24:22). Apparently, David was willing to accept oxen as offerings from a gentile. Rav Naḥman says: Araunah was a gentile who resided in Eretz Yisrael and observed the seven Noahide mitzvot [ger toshav]. The seven Noahide mitzvot include the prohibition against engaging in bestiality, and therefore Araunah was not suspected of this practice.

Zevachim 116b:9

R' Elazar ben Shammua says likewise: David purchased the cattle and the wood and the site of the altar for fifty shekels, and the site of the entire Temple for six hundred shekels, as it is written: "And Araunah said to David: Let my lord the king take and offer that which is good in his eyes; see the cattle for the burnt offering, and the threshing tools, and the implements of the cattle for the wood" (II Samuel 24:22), to which David replied: "No, but I will buy it from you at a price" (II Samuel 24:24). Consequently, according to the opinion of R' Elazar ben Shammua, David purchased the threshing instruments and the furniture of the oxen for use as wood. And Rava could have said to you in response: There too, in the case of David, the verse is dealing with new vessels that had not yet been used.

Menachot 22a:4

The Talmud asks: And is it in fact the halakha that old, i.e., previously used, wood is not fit to be burned on the altar? But isn't it written: "And Araunah said to David: Let my lord the king take and offer up what seems good to him; behold the oxen for the burnt offering, and the threshing instruments [morigim] and the equipment of the oxen for the wood" (II Samuel 24:22)? Despite the fact that the threshing instruments and equipment of the oxen have been used previously, apparently they are fit to be used when offering a burnt offering. The Talmud answers: Here too, the verse is speaking of new instruments and equipment that had not been previously used.

Artaxerxes (5 total matches)

Rosh Hashanah 3a:14

§ Rav Ḥisda said: They taught that the years of a king's rule are counted from the first of Nisan only with regard to the Jewish kings of Israel, but the years of the kings of the gentile nations of the world are counted from Tishrei, as it is stated: "The words of Nehemiah, son of Hachaliah. And it came to pass in the month Kislev, in the twentieth year, as I was in Shushan the capital" (Nehemiah 1:1). And it is written: "And it came to pass in the month Nisan, in the twentieth year of Artaxerxes the king, that wine was before him, and I took up the wine, and gave it to the king" (Nehemiah 2:1).

Rosh Hashanah 3a:16

The Talmud raises an objection: Granted, in this second verse it is explicitly stated that the count relates to the years of Artaxerxes. But as for that first verse, from where is it known that the count relates to the years of Artaxerxes? Perhaps it follows some other count. Rav Pappa said: The meaning of the first instance of the expression "the twentieth year" may be inferred from the second instance of the expression "the twentieth year" by way of a verbal analogy: Just as there the reference is to the twentieth year of Artaxerxes, so too, here the reference is to the twentieth year of Artaxerxes.

Rosh Hashanah 3b:5

Nehemiah told these words to the king in Nisan, as it is stated: "And it came to pass in the month Nisan, in the twentieth year of Artaxerxes the king, that wine was before him, and I took up the wine and gave it to the king. Now I had not been sad before in his presence. And the king said to me: Why is your face sad, seeing that you are not sick? This is nothing else but sorrow of the heart. Then I was very much afraid, and I said to the king: Let the king live forever: Why should not my face be sad, when the city, the place of the tombs of my ancestors, lies waste, and its gates are consumed with fire?" (Nehemiah 2:1–3).

Rosh Hashanah 3b:10

And further, a second objection: Are Rav Yosef's objection and R' Abbahu's resolution comparable? There, R' Abbahu speaks of Cyrus, whereas here, the verses speak of Darius, and it was never said about Darius that he was a virtuous king. The Talmud explains: This is not difficult, as the Sages taught in a baraita: All three names are referring to the same person: He is Cyrus; he is Darius; and he is also Artaxerxes. He was called Cyrus [Koresh] because he was a virtuous [kasher] king; he was called Artaxerxes after his kingdom, i.e., this was his royal title; and what was his real name? Darius was his name.

Shabbat 56b:10

The Talmud asks: Is it possible that the righteous king Asa came and did not destroy them, and the righteous king Jehosaphat came and did not destroy them until Josiah came and destroyed them? Didn't Asa and Jehosaphat destroy all the idolatry in Eretz Yisrael? Rather, the verse juxtaposes the earlier ones, i.e., Solomon, to the later ones, i.e., Josiah. Just as the later ones, Josiah, did not effect the destruction of the altars, as it was done by his predecessors, and nevertheless the verse attributes it to him to praise him as if he had destroyed all those altars, so too, the earlier ones, Solomon, did not effect the construction, and nevertheless the verse attributes it to him to disgrace him as he did not prevent their construction.

Pesachim 119a:9

Asa came and took it from Zerah, king of Kush, when he defeated him in battle (II Chronicles 14) and sent it to Hadrimmon ben Tabrimmon, king of Aram (see I Kings 15). The children of Ammon came and took it from Hadrimmon ben Tabrimmon, as learned by tradition. Jehosaphat came and took it from the children of Ammon (see II Chronicles 20), and it remained in Eretz Yisrael until the reign of Ahaz.

Rosh Hashanah 23a:6

The Talmud comments: And this opinion of Rav Yehuda disagrees with that of Rabba bar Rav Huna. As Rabba bar Rav Huna said that they say in the school of Rav: There are ten species of cedar, as it is stated: "I will plant in the wilderness the cedar, the acacia tree and myrtle and the pine tree; I will set in the desert cypress, the plane tree, and the larch together" (Isaiah 41:19). The seven species mentioned in this verse are all types of cedars. The Talmud proceeds to identify these trees by their Aramaic names: Cedar is arza, acacia is tornita, myrtle is asa, pine tree is afarsema, cypress is berata, maple is shaga, and box tree is shorivna.

Megillah 4a:2

The Talmud asks: Did Joshua, son of Nun, really build these cities? Didn't Elpaal build them at a later date, as it is written: "And the sons of Elpaal: Eber, and Misham, and Shemed, who built Ono and Lod, with its hamlets" (I Chronicles 8:12)? The Talmud counters: According to your reasoning, that this verse proves that these cities were built later, you can also say that Asa, king of Judah, built them, as it is written: "And he, Asa, built fortified cities in Judah" (see II Chronicles 14:5). Therefore, it is apparent that these cities were built more than once.

Megillah 4a:3

R' Elazar said: These cities were surrounded by a wall since the days of Joshua, son of Nun, and they were destroyed in the days of the concubine in Gibea, as they stood in the tribal territory of Benjamin, and in that war all of the cities of Benjamin were destroyed (see Judges, chapters 19–21). Elpaal then came and built them again. They then fell in the wars between Judah and Israel, and Asa came and restored them.

Sanhedrin 49a:2

The Talmud returns to discuss the incident of Joab: They brought Joab before Solomon, who judged him. Solomon said to Joab: What is the reason that you killed Abner? Joab said to him: I was the blood redeemer of the blood of Asahel; when Abner murdered my brother Asahel I killed him, in fulfillment of my duty as his blood redeemer. Solomon said to him: But Asahel was pursuing Abner with the intention of killing him, and therefore he had the status of a pursuer. Since Abner killed Asahel in an act of self-defense, you had no right to kill him as a redeemer of Asahel's blood. Joab said to Solomon: Abner could have saved himself by wounding Asahel in one of his limbs. Having failed to do so, he was guilty of murder, and I was therefore entitled to kill him.

Sanhedrin 49a:12

The verse states: "And Joab took him aside in the gate to speak with him quietly" (II Samuel 3:27). R' Yoḥanan says: Joab judged Abner according to the halakha of the Sanhedrin, which would sit in judgment by the gate of the city. How so? Joab said to Abner: What is the reason that you killed Asahel? Abner said to him: Asahel was pursuing me with the intention to kill me, and therefore he had the status of a pursuer, whom I had the right to kill in self-defense. Joab said to Abner: Even so, you could have saved yourself by wounding one of his limbs. Abner replied: I was not able to do so as I was running and could not aim with precision. Joab said to him: Now seeing that you were able to aim and hit him precisely in the fifth rib, could you not have successfully aimed at one of his limbs?

The mishna is taught in accordance with this last opinion.

Yoma 54b:6

And the Rabbis say: Both these and those were created from Zion, as it is stated: "A Psalm of Asaph. God, YHWH God has spoken and called the earth, from the rising of the sun to its place of setting," and it says: "Out of Zion, the perfection of beauty, God has shined forth," i.e., from Zion the beauty of the world was perfected, which includes both the generations of the heavens and the generations of the earth.

Moed Katan 26a:11

§ The Talmud continues its analysis of the baraita: From where do we derive that one must rend his garments upon hearing God's name being blessed, i.e., cursed? As it is written with regard to the blasphemous words said by Rabshakeh: "Then came Eliakim, son of Hilkiya, who was over the household, and Shebna the scribe, and Joah, son of Asaph, the recorder, to Hezekiah with their clothes rent" (II Kings 18:37).

Kiddushin 31b:3

One day R' Abbahu said to Avimi his son: Give me water to drink. Before he brought him the water, R' Abbahu dozed off. Avimi bent over and stood over him until his father awoke. The performance of this mitzva aided him, i.e., as a reward God helped him in his studies, and Avimi succeeded in homiletically interpreting the psalm: "A song to Asaph" (Psalms 79).

Shabbat 87a:5

And he broke the tablets following the sin of the Golden Calf. What source did he interpret that led him to do so? Moses said: With regard to the Paschal lamb, which is only one of six hundred and thirteen mitzvot, the Torah stated: "And YHWH said unto Moses and Aaron: This is the ordinance of the Paschal offering; no alien shall eat of it" (Exodus 12:43), referring not only to gentiles, but to apostate Jews as well. Regarding the tablets, which represented the entire Torah, and Israel at that moment were apostates, as they were worshipping the calf, all the more so are they not worthy of receiving the Torah. And from where do we derive that God, agreed with his reasoning? As it is stated: "The first tablets which you broke [asher shibarta]" (Exodus 34:1), and Reish Lakish said: The word asher is an allusion to the phrase: May your strength be true [yishar koḥakha] due to the fact that you broke the tablets.

Pesachim 3a:10

The Talmud asks: And the *tanna of our mishna, what is the reason that he didn't explicitly teach: The night of the fourteenth, as it was taught in the school of Shmuel? The Talmud answers: He employed a euphemism. Since the tanna of our mishna did not want to mention darkness, he preferred the term or to refer to the night of the fourteenth. And this is in accordance with a statement of R' Yehoshua ben Levi. As R' Yehoshua ben Levi said: A person should never express a crude matter, as the formulation of a verse was distorted by the addition of eight letters rather than have it express a crude matter, as it is stated: "From the pure animals and from the animals that are not pure [asher einena tehora]" (Genesis 7:8). To avoid using the Hebrew term for impure [teme'a], which is four letters: Tet, mem, alef, heh, the verse replaced the term with the euphemism meaning "that are not pure," which is spelled with twelve letters: Alef, shin, reish; alef, yod, nun, nun, heh; tet, heh, reish, heh.

Pesachim 3a:11

Rav Pappa said: A different verse added nine letters, as it is stated: "If there be among you any man who is not ritually pure [asher lo yihye tahor] by reason of that which happened to him by night" (Deuteronomy 23:11). To avoid using the three-letter Hebrew word for impure, tameh, spelled tet, mem, alef, the verse employs the twelve-letter phrase "who is not ritually pure," spelled: Alef, shin, reish; lamed, alef; yod, heh, yod, heh; tet, heh, reish. Ravina said: The verse actually adds ten letters because of the letter vav* of the word tahor*, as the word is spelled in its plene form. Rav Aḥa bar Ya'akov said: Yet another verse adds sixteen letters, as it is stated: "For he said, something has happened to him, he is not ritually pure; surely he is not ritually pure [bilti tahor hu ki lo tahor]" (I Samuel 20:26). To avoid using the three-letter word tameh, the verse employs the nineteen-letter phrase "he is not ritually pure; surely he is not ritually pure," spelled: Beit, lamed, tav, yod; tet, heh, vav, reish; heh, vav, alef; kaf, yod; lamed, alef; tet, heh, vav, reish.

Yevamot 28b:20

The Talmud answers: Therefore, one must include a case where Gad and Asher subsequently consummated the levirate marriage with these women as well. That is, initially there were two other brothers, Gad and Asher, who consummated the levirate marriage with the previous wives of Levi and Yehuda, each of whom had taken one of the wives of Reuven and Shimon. Later, when Gad and Asher died, their previous wives, who are the rival wives of the rival wives of Reuven and Shimon's wives, happen before Yissakhar and Zevulun for levirate marriage.

Yevamot 62a:4

And his perception agreed with the perception of the Omnipresent, as it is written: "The first tablets that you broke [asher shibbarta]" (Exodus 34:1), and Reish Lakish said: The word asher is an allusion to the fact that God, said to Moses: May your strength be true [yishar koḥakha] that you broke the tablets.

The Talmud interprets an additional verse as referring to Caleb. It is stated: “And Ashhur the father of Tekoa had two wives, Helah and Naarah” (I Chronicles 4:5). Ashhur is Caleb. And why was he called Ashhur? Because his face became blackened [husheḥaru] from the extensive fasts that he accepted upon himself so that he would not be entrapped by the counsel of the spies. “The father of” is also referring to Caleb, as he became like a father to his wife. It is also stated there: “The Lord repented Him of the evil and said to the angel that destroyed the many [rav] people: It is enough; now stay your hand” (II Samuel 24:16). Explaining the meaning of the word rav, R' Elazar said that God, said to the angel: Take for me a great one [rav] from among them, who is worthy of defraying several of Israel’s debts. As a result, at that moment Avishai ben Tzeruya, who was equivalent to the majority of the Sanhedrin, died. His death atoned for the entire nation.

The Talmud asks: But were these his only two sins? There is also the incident of Bathsheba, in which he took another man's wife as his own. The Talmud answers: There, in that case, punishment was exacted from him separately, so the matter is no longer listed among his sins, as it is written with regard to this incident: "And he shall restore the lamb fourfold" (II Samuel 12:6). The lamb was a metaphor for Bathsheba, and ultimately David was indeed given a fourfold punishment for taking Bathsheba: The first child born to Bathsheba and David died (see II Samuel 12:13–23); David's son Amnon was killed; Tamar, his daughter, was raped by Amnon (see II Samuel 13); and his son Avshalom rebelled against him and was ultimately killed (see II Samuel 15–18).

With regard to Deborah, it says: "And she sat under a palm tree" (Judges 4:5). The Talmud asks: What is different and unique with regard to her sitting "under a palm tree" that there is a need for it to be written? R' Shimon ben Avshalom said: It is due to the prohibition against being alone together with a man. Since men would come before her for judgment, she established for herself a place out in the open and visible to all, in order to avoid a situation in which she would be secluded with a man behind closed doors. Alternatively, the verse means: Just as a palm tree has only one heart, as a palm tree does not send out separate branches, but rather has only one main trunk, so too, the Jewish people in that generation had only one heart, directed to their Father in Heaven.

The verse relates the midwives' reward: "And it came to pass, because the midwives feared God, that He made them houses" (Exodus 1:21). Rav and Shmuel disagree as to the precise interpretation of these houses: One says that God made the houses of the priesthood and the Levites descend from the midwives, and one says that God made the houses of royalty descend from them. The one who says that it is referring to the houses of the priesthood and the Levites is referring to Aaron and Moses, who were sons of Jochebed. And the one who says that it is referring to houses of royalty is referring to David, who also comes from Miriam, as it is written: "And Azubah," the wife of Caleb, "died, and Caleb took to him Ephrath, who bore him Hur" (I Chronicles 2:19) and, as will be explained further, Ephrath is Miriam. And it is written: "David was the son of that Ephrathite of Bethlehem in Judah" (I Samuel 17:12). Therefore, he was a descendant of Miriam.

The Talmud discusses the family of Caleb: In Chronicles it says: "And Caleb, the son of Hezron, begot children of Azubah his wife, and of Jerioth, and these were her sons: Jesher, and Shobab, and Ardon" (I Chronicles 2:18). The Talmud asks: Was Caleb actually the son of Hezron? Wasn't he the son of Jephunneh, as the verse states in Numbers 13:6? The Talmud answers: He was the son of Hezron, but he is called "son of Jephunneh" as an appellation indicating that he was a son who turned away [sheppana] from the counsel of the spies.

Sotah 12a:2

The verse states: "And Caleb, the son of Hezron, begot children of Azubah his wife, and of Jerioth, and these were her sons: Jesher, and Shobab, and Ardon" (I Chronicles 2:18). The Talmud analyzes the verse: The verse refers to the wife of Caleb by the name Azubah. The Sages teach that this is Miriam. And why is she called Azubah? As everyone initially abandoned her [azavuha] and did not want to marry her because she was sickly and unattractive. The verse additionally states: "And Caleb, the son of Hezron, begot children [holid] of Azubah his wife" (I Chronicles 2:18). The Talmud asks: Why use the term "holid," begot children? But doesn't this verse state that he married her? R' Yoḥanan says: This teaches us that with regard to anyone who marries a woman for the sake of Heaven, as he married her due to her righteousness without concern for her appearance, the verse ascribes him credit as if he gave birth to her.

Sanhedrin 69b:18

The Talmud asks: Rather, from where do we derive that in earlier generations men fathered children at the age of eight? From here, as it is written: "And Bezalel, son of Uri, son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah, made all that YHWH commanded Moses" (Exodus 38:22). And it is written: "And Azubah died, and Caleb took for himself Ephrat, who bore him Hur. And Hur begot Uri, and Uri begot Bezalel" (I Chronicles 2:19–20). And when Bezalel made the Tabernacle how old was he? He must have been at least thirteen years old, as it is written: "And all the wise men that carried out all the work of the sanctuary, came every man from his work that they did" (Exodus 36:4), and one who is less than thirteen is not called a man. And it is taught in a baraita: In the first year following the exodus from Egypt Moses made the Tabernacle; in the second year he erected the Tabernacle and sent out the spies.

Temurah 16a:13

The Talmud further asks: But still, was he the son of Kenaz? He was the son of Hezron, as it is written: "And Caleb, son of Hezron, begot children of Azubah his wife, and of Jerioth, and these were her sons: Jesher, and Shobab, and Ardon" (I Chronicles 2:18). Rava said: Caleb was actually the son of Hezron, but after his father passed away his mother remarried Kenaz, and consequently he was the stepson of Kenaz. Othniel, son of Kenaz, was therefore his maternal half brother.

Shabbat 83b:3

Rav Aḥadvoi bar Ami raised a dilemma: What is the halakha with regard to idolatry that is less than an olive-bulk? Rav Yosef strongly objected to this: With regard to what use was this dilemma raised? If you say it was raised with regard to the matter of the prohibition of idolatry, let it only be like Zevuv, the Baal of Ekron, which was the size and form of a fly, as it was taught in a baraita with regard to the verse: "And they made Baal Berit into their god" (Judges 8:33). The Sages said that this is referring to Zevuv, the Baal of Ekron. It teaches that each and every person made an image of his god and placed it in his pocket. When he remembered it, he removed it from his pocket and embraced and kissed it. Apparently, even idolatry the size of a fly falls under the rubric of the prohibition of idolatry. Rather, the dilemma is: What is the halakha with regard to the matter of impurity? The two sides of the dilemma are as follows: Since an idol is juxtaposed to a creeping animal, just as a creeping animal transmits impurity when it is a lentil-bulk, so too, idolatry transmits impurity when it is a lentil-bulk. Or perhaps idolatry is juxtaposed to a corpse, and just as a corpse transmits impurity only when it is at least an olive-bulk, so too, idolatry transmits impurity only when it is at least an olive-bulk.

Rosh Hashanah 25a:16

And similarly it says: "And Samuel said to the people: It is YHWH Who made Moses and Aaron" (I Samuel 12:6). And it says further: "And YHWH sent Jeru baal and Bedan and Jephthah and Samuel" (I Samuel 12:11). The Talmud explains: Jeru baal, this is Gideon. And why is he called Jeru baal? The reason is that he waged a quarrel against Baal. Bedan, this is Samson. And why is he called Bedan? As he came from the tribe of Dan. Jephthah, in accordance with its regular meaning, i.e., this is referring to Jephthah himself and is not a nickname.

Sanhedrin 89a:22

The mishna lists among those liable to be executed as false prophets one who prophesies in the name of idol worship. The Talmud comments: For example, the prophets of the Baal (see I Kings, chapter 18).

Sanhedrin 102a:2

What caused Jehu to do so? Abaye says: A covenant is made with the lips, as it is stated that Jehu said cunningly in an attempt to entrap the priests of the Baal: "Ahab worshipped Baal a little, but Jehu shall serve him much" (II Kings 10:18). Although it was not his intention, once the statement escaped his lips he began following the path to its fulfillment. Rava says: He saw the seal of Ahijah the Shilonite on the coronation document of Jeroboam and he erred and believed that it was permitted to act as Jeroboam did.

Sanhedrin 102b:13

The Talmud rejects this: There, with regard to Absalom it is not written: "And all the people," whereas here, with regard to Ahab, it is written: "And all the people." As it is impossible that there were not among them righteous people, if the righteous people agreed, apparently, "the delight of your eyes" was sacred. And it is written: "And I will leave seven thousand in Israel; all the knees that have not bent to the Baal, and every mouth that has not kissed it" (I Kings 19:18), indicating that there were righteous people among them.

Berakhot 7a:8

How much time does His anger last? God's anger lasts a moment. And how long is a moment? One fifty-eight thousand, eight hundred and eighty-eighth of an hour, that is a moment. The Talmud adds: And no creature can precisely determine that moment when God becomes angry, except for Balaam the wicked, about whom it is written: "He who knows the knowledge of the Most High" (Numbers 24:16).

Berakhot 7a:12

R' Elazar said that God, said to Israel: Know how many acts of kindness I performed on your behalf, that I did not become angry during the days of Balaam the wicked, for had I become angry, there would have been no remnant or survivor remaining among the enemies of Israel, a euphemism for Israel itself. Instead, God restrained His anger and Balaam's curse went unfulfilled.

Berakhot 7a:13

And that is what Balaam said to Balak: "How can I curse whom God has not cursed? And how can I condemn whom God has not condemned?" (Numbers 23:8). This verse teaches that all those days, God was not angry.

Berakhot 55b:8

The Talmud elaborates: Three transformations:
"You transformed my mourning into dancing;
You loosed my sackcloth, and girded me with gladness" (Psalms 30:12);
"Then shall the virgin rejoice in the dance, and the young men and the old together; for I will transform their mourning into joy, and will comfort them, and make them rejoice from their sorrow" (Jeremiah 31:12);
and: "Nevertheless YHWH your God would not hearken unto Balaam;
but YHWH your God transformed the curse into a blessing unto you" (Deuteronomy 23:6).

Berakhot 55b:11

The Talmud relates: Ameimar and Mar Zutra and Rav Ashi were sitting together. They said: Let each and every one of us say something that the other has not heard. One of them began and said: One who saw a dream and does not know what he saw should stand before the priests when they lift their hands during the Priestly Blessing and say the following:
Master of the Universe, I am Yours and my dreams are Yours,
I dreamed a dream and I do not know what it is.
Whether I have dreamed of myself, whether my friends have dreamed of me or whether I have dreamed of others, if the dreams are good, strengthen them and reinforce them like the dreams of Joseph.
And if the dreams require healing,
heal them like the bitter waters of Mara by Moses our teacher, and like Miriam from her leprosy,
and like Hezekiah from his illness, and like the bitter waters of Jericho by Elisha.
And just as You transformed the curse of Balaam the wicked into a blessing, so transform all of my dreams for me for the best.
And he should complete his prayer together with the priests so the congregation responds amen both to the blessing of the priests and to his individual request. And if he is not able to recite this entire formula, he should say:
Majestic One on high, Who dwells in power,
You are peace and Your name is peace.
May it be Your will that You bestow upon us peace.

Taanit 20a:13

The prophet Ahijah the Shilonite cursed Israel in the following terms: "For YHWH will smite Israel as a reed is shaken in the water" (I Kings 14:15). Rav Yehuda said that Rav said: This too is for a blessing, as R' Shmuel bar Naḥmani said that R' Yonatan said: What is the meaning of that which is written: "Faithful are the wounds of a friend, but the kisses of an enemy are deceitful" (Proverbs 27:6)? The curse with which Ahijah the Shilonite cursed the Jewish people is more effective than the blessing with which Balaam the wicked blessed them.

Taanit 20a:15

However, Balaam the wicked blessed the Jews by comparing them to a cedar, as it is stated: "As cedars beside the waters" (Numbers 24:6). Just as this cedar does not stand in a place of water, and its shoots do not replenish themselves, and its roots are not numerous, Balaam wished that the same should apply to the Jewish people. Furthermore, while it is true that even if all the winds in the world blow against it they will not move it from its place, once the southern wind blows against it, it uproots the cedar and turns it on its face. And not only that, but the reed merited that a quill [kulmos] is taken from it to write with it a Torah scroll, the Prophets, and the Writings. Evidently, the curse comparing Israel to a reed is better than the blessing likening them to a cedar.

Yevamot 62a:13

R' Yoḥanan raises an objection to Reish Lakish based upon the verse: "At that time Berodach-baladan, son of Baladan, king of Babylon, sent a letter" (II Kings 20:12), which indicates that gentiles are considered to be the children of their parents. Therefore, when they convert, they should already have fulfilled the mitzva to be fruitful and multiply. Reish Lakish said to R' Yoḥanan: When they are gentiles they do have family lineage, but when they convert they do not have lineage, as they now belong to the family of the Jewish people and their previous lineage is disregarded.

Sanhedrin 96a:10

The Talmud asks: With regard to these four paces of Nebuchadnezzar, what is the incident to which the Talmud alludes? The Talmud answers that the incident is as it is written: "At that time Merodach-Baladan, son of Baladan, king of Babylonia, sent a letter and a gift to Hezekiah, as he had heard that he had been ill and was recovered" (Isaiah 39:1). The Talmud asks: Due to the fact that Hezekiah had been ill and was recovered, he sent him a letter and a gift? The Talmud answers: Yes, and he did so in order "to inquire of the wonder that was in the land" (II Chronicles 32:31). As R' Yoḥanan says: On that day that Hezekiah's father, Ahaz, died, daylight lasted two hours, ten hours shorter than the standard day, so that the wicked Ahaz would be buried hurriedly, without the pomp typically accorded kings.

Sanhedrin 96a:12

Nebuchadnezzar was the scribe of Baladan, and at that time he was not there. When he came there he said to the other scribes: How did you write the king's message? They said to him: We wrote this: Greetings to King Hezekiah, greetings to the city of Jerusalem, and greetings to the great God, as we were commanded. Nebuchadnezzar said to the scribes: You called him: The great God, and you wrote Him at the end of the list of greetings? He said: Rather, write this: Greetings to the great God, greetings to the city of Jerusalem, and greetings to King Hezekiah. The scribes said to Nebuchadnezzar: The one who reads the letter, let him be the messenger. You gave the advice; you correct the text.

Sanhedrin 96a:14

The Talmud asks: What is the meaning of: Merodach-Baladan, son of Baladan? If his name was Merodach it was not Baladan. The Sages say: Baladan was a king, and his visage was transformed and became like that of a dog. His son was sitting on the throne in his stead and when he would write a letter he would write his name and the name of his father, King Baladan. That is the meaning of that which is written with regard to the honor accorded by gentiles to their fathers: "A son honors his father and a servant his master" (Malachi 1:6).

And that is what the prophet said to Israel: "My nation, remember what Balak king of Moab advised, and how Balaam, son of Beor, responded; from Shittim to Gilgal, so that you may know the righteous acts of YHWH" (Micah 6:5). What is meant by the statement: "So that you may know the righteous acts of YHWH"?

Berakhot 7a:13

And that is what Balaam said to Balak: "How can I curse whom God has not cursed? And how can I condemn whom God has not condemned?" (Numbers 23:8). This verse teaches that all those days, God was not angry.

Berakhot 12b:14

R' Abbahu ben Zutarti said that R' Yehuda bar Zevida said: The Sages sought to establish the blessings of Balaam that appear in the Torah portion of Balak, as part of the twice-daily recitation of Shema. And why did they not establish it there? Because extending Shema would place an encumbrance on the congregation, from which the Sages sought to refrain.

Nazir 23b:10

§ The Talmud returns to analyze in greater detail the above matter itself. Rav Yehuda said that Rav said: A person should always occupy himself with Torah and mitzvot even not for their own sake, as through these acts performed not for their own sake, good deeds for their own sake come about. The proof for this is that in reward for the forty-two offerings that the wicked Balak sacrificed (see Numbers, chapter 23), although he did not do so for the sake of Heaven but to facilitate the cursing of the Jewish people, nevertheless he merited that Ruth descended from him. Not only was he the forebear of a righteous convert, but also of King David. And this is as R' Yosei, son of R' Ḥanina, said: Ruth was the daughter of the son of Eglon, king of Moab, who descended from Balak, king of Moab.

R' Ḥanina says: Due to forty-two offerings that Balak, king of Moab, brought when he tried to have Balaam curse the Jewish people, forty-two children were broken off from Israel, in that incident involving Elisha. The Talmud asks: Is that so? Was that the reward for his offerings?

Pesachim 117a:19

R' Elazar HaModa'i says: Deborah and Barak recited it when Sisera stood against them (see Judges 4–5). They said: Not to us, and the Divine Spirit responded and said to them: For My own sake, for My own sake, will I do it. R' Elazar ben Azarya says: Hezekiah and his company recited it when Sennacherib stood against them (see II Kings 18–19). They said: Not to us and the Divine Spirit responded: For My own sake. R' Akiva says: Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah recited it when the wicked Nebuchadnezzar stood against them (see Daniel 3). They said: Not to us, and the Divine Spirit responded: For My own sake. R' Yosei HaGelili says: Mordecai and Esther recited it when the wicked Haman stood against them. They said: Not to us, and the Divine Spirit responded: For My own sake (see the book of Esther).

Megillah 14b:10

An additional point is mentioned with regard to the prophetesses. Rav Naḥman said: Haughtiness is not befitting a woman. And a proof to this is that there were two haughty women, whose names were identical to the names of loathsome creatures. One, Deborah, was called a hornet, as her Hebrew name, Devorah, means hornet; and one, Huldah, was called a marten, as her name is the Hebrew term for that creature. From where is it known that they were haughty? With regard to Deborah, the hornet, it is written: "And she sent and called Barak" (Judges 4:6), but she herself did not go to him. And with regard to Huldah, the marten, it is written: "Say to the man that sent you to me" (II Kings 22:15), but she did not say: Say to the king.

Moed Katan 16a:8

And Ulla said: Barak ostracized Meroz with the blowing of four hundred *shofarot due to his failure to come. As for the identification of Meroz, some say that he was a great man and that he was ostracized because he did not join in the war effort. And others say that the reference is to a star and not a human being, and that it did not aid the Jewish people in their battle, as it is stated: "The stars fought from heaven; in their courses they fought against Sisera," (Judges 5:20). This star, which did not help the Jewish people, was cursed.

Bava Kamma 92b:16

Rava said to Rabba bar Mari: From where is this matter derived whereby people say: If you lift the load with me I will lift it, and if you will not lift it with me I won't lift it? Rabba bar Mari said to him that the source is as it is written with regard to Barak and Deborah concerning the war of Sisera: "And Barak said to her: If you will go with me, then I will go; but if you will not go with me, I will not go" (Judges 4:8).

Shevuot 36a:4

The Talmud elaborates: There is an element of ostracism within it, as it is written in the song of Deborah: "Curse [oru] Meroz, said the angel of God; cursed with a curse [oru aror] are its inhabitants" (Judges 5:23). And Ulla says: With blasts from four hundred shofarot, Barak ostracized the city of Meroz, indicating that the term arur has the connotation of ostracism.

Rav said, and some say that Rav Shmuel bar Marta said: Studying Torah is greater and more important than building the Temple. A proof of this is that for as long as Baruch ben Neriah was alive in Babylonia, Ezra, who was his disciple, did not leave him and go up to Eretz Yisrael to build the Temple.

Ketubot 24b:14

Rav Naḥman bar Yitzḥak asked Rava: What is the halakha? Rava said to him: I know and base the halakhic ruling on a baraita, as it is taught in a baraita that R' Yosei says: Great is the legal authority of presumptive status, as one may rely upon it in determining halakhic practice, as it is stated: "And of the children of the priests: The children of Habaiah, the children of Hakkoz, the children of Barzillai, who took a wife of the daughters of Barzillai the Gileadite, and was called after their name. These sought their register of the genealogy, but it was not found; therefore were they deemed tainted and put from the priesthood. And the Tirshatha said unto them that they should not partake of the most sacred items, until there stood up a priest with Urim VeTummim" (Ezra 2:61–63).

Kiddushin 69b:9

The mishna further states that Ḥalalim*, converts, and emancipated slaves ascended from Babylonia. The Talmud clarifies: From where do we derive that Ḥalalim ascended? The Talmud answers: As it is taught in a baraita that R' Yosei says: Great is the importance of a presumptive status, as it is stated: "And of the children of the priests: The children of Habaiah, the children of Hakkoz, the children of Barzillai, who took a wife of the daughters of Barzillai the Gileadite, and was called after their name. These sought the registry of their genealogy, but it was not found. Therefore, they were deemed polluted and put out from the priesthood. And the Tirshatha said to them that they should not eat of the offerings of the most sacred order until there arose a priest with the Urim VeTummim" (Ezra 2:61–63).

Avodah Zarah 38b:17

Apropos the mention of shetita'a, the Talmud relates that Rav said: Barzillai the Gileadite sent two kinds of shetita'a to David, as it is written: "And Barzillai the Gileadite of Rogelim brought beds, and basins, and earthen vessels, and wheat, and barley, and meal, and parched grain, and beans, and lentils, and parched pulse" (II Samuel 17:28). Barzillai brought two kinds of parched foods: Grain and pulse. The Talmud concludes: And now shetita'a is taken out in baskets upon baskets to the markets of Neharde'a, and there is no one who is concerned about that stringent ruling of Shmuel's father and Levi.

Bathsheba (13 total matches, showing 5)

Berakhot 34b:3

Having mentioned Solomon bowing, the Talmud distinguishes between various types of bowing. The Sages taught in a baraita: The term kidda means bowing upon one's face, with his face toward the ground, as it is stated: "Then Bathsheba bowed [vatikod] with her face to the ground" (I Kings 1:31). Keria means bowing upon one's knees, as regarding Solomon it is stated: He finished praying and "he rose from before the altar of YHWH, from kneeling [mikkeroa] upon his knees." Finally, hishtaḥava'a*, that is bowing with one's hands and legs spread in total submission, as it is stated in Jacob's question to Joseph in response to his dream: "Shall we, I and your mother and your brothers, come and bow down [lehishtaḥavot] to you to the ground?" (Genesis 37:10).

Yoma 22b:12

The Talmud asks: But were these his only two sins? There is also the incident of Bathsheba, in which he took another man's wife as his own. The Talmud answers: There, in that case, punishment was exacted from him separately, so the matter is no longer listed among his sins, as it is written with regard to this incident: "And he shall restore the lamb fourfold" (II Samuel 12:6). The lamb was a metaphor for Bathsheba, and ultimately David was indeed given a fourfold punishment for taking Bathsheba: The first child born to Bathsheba and David died (see II Samuel 12:13–23); David's son Amnon was killed; Tamar, his daughter, was raped by Amnon (see II Samuel 13); and his son Avshalom rebelled against him and was ultimately killed (see II Samuel 15–18).

Megillah 14b:2

The Talmud asks: The plural term damim*, literally, bloods, indicates two. Why did David not use the singular term dam? Rather, this teaches that Abigail revealed her thigh, and he lusted after her, and he went three parasangs by the fire of his desire for her, and said to her: Listen to me, i.e., listen to me and allow me to be intimate with you. Abigail then said to him: "Let this not be a stumbling block for you" (I Samuel 25:31). By inference, from the word "this," it can be understood that there is someone else who will in fact be a stumbling block for him, and what is this referring to? The incident involving Bathsheba. And in the end this is what was, as indeed he stumbled with Bathsheba. This demonstrates that Abigail was a prophetess, as she knew that this would occur. This also explains why David blessed Abigail for keeping him from being responsible for two incidents involving blood that day: Abigail's menstrual blood and the shedding of Nabal's blood.

Megillah 22b:16

Apropos Rav's practice of prostrating himself, the Talmud continues with a discussion of different forms of bowing. The Sages taught in a baraita: The term kidda indicates falling upon one's face, with one's face toward the ground, as it is stated: "Then Bathsheba bowed [vatikod] with her face to the ground" (I Kings 1:31). Keria means bowing upon one's knees, as it is stated with regard to Solomon: He finished praying and "he rose from before the altar of YHWH, from kneeling [mikkeroa] upon his knees" (I Kings 8:54). Finally, hishtaḥava'a*, that is bowing with one's arms and legs spread in total submission, as it is stated that Jacob asked, in response to Joseph's dream: "Shall I and your mother and your brothers indeed come to bow down [lehishtaḥavot] to you to the ground?" (Genesis 37:10).

Gittin 68b:18

The queens continued discussing the king's behavior: And he demands of them, i.e., the queens, to engage in sexual intercourse when they are menstruating. And he also demands that Bathsheba his mother engage in sexual intercourse with him. Once the Sanhedrin heard this they understood that this was an imposter and not actually Solomon. They brought Solomon, gave him a ring and the chain on which the name of God was carved. When Solomon entered, Ashmedai saw him and fled.

And similarly it says: "And Samuel said to the people: It is YHWH Who made Moses and Aaron" (I Samuel 12:6). And it says further: "And YHWH sent Jerubaal and Bedan and Jephthah and Samuel" (I Samuel 12:11). The Talmud explains: Jerubaal, this is Gideon. And why is he called Jerubaal? The reason is that he waged a quarrel against Baal. Bedan, this is Samson. And why is he called Bedan? As he came from the tribe of Dan. Jephthah, in accordance with its regular meaning, i.e., this is referring to Jephthah himself and is not a nickname.

This comes to tell you that Jerubaal in his generation is worthy of being treated like Moses in his generation; Bedan in his generation is like Aaron in his generation; and Jephthah in his generation is like Samuel in his generation. This serves to teach you that even the lightest of the light, i.e., the least distinguished individual, once he has been appointed as a leader over the community, he must be treated like the greatest of the great, and all are required to heed him and obey his rulings.

Sotah 36b:16

It is taught in a baraita: Joseph was deserving of having twelve tribes descend from him, the same as twelve tribes descended from his father Jacob, as it is stated: "These are the generations of Jacob, Joseph" (Genesis 37:2). This implies that everything that happened to Jacob was destined to happen to Joseph. However, he did not merit this because his semen was emitted from between his fingernails. And even so, the offspring that were meant to descend from him descended from his brother Benjamin, who had ten sons. And they were all named after Joseph, as it is stated: "And the sons of Benjamin: Bela, and Becher, and Ashbel, Gera, and Naaman, Ehi, and Rosh, Muppim, and Huppim, and Ard" (Genesis 46:21).

Sotah 36b:17

The Talmud explains how each name relates to Joseph: Bela was named after Joseph, who was swallowed [nivla] among the nations. And Becher received that name because Joseph was the firstborn [bekhor] of his mother, Rachel. And Ashbel received his name because God sent Joseph into captivity [shevao El] in Egypt. Gera was named after Joseph, who dwelled [gar] in a foreign land [akhsaneyut].

Megillah 11b:6

§ The second verse in Esther states: “In those days when the king Ahasuerus sat on the throne of his kingdom” (Esther 1:2), implying that the events to follow took place during the first year of his reign; and one verse afterward it is written: “In the third year of his reign” (Esther 1:3), indicating that it was the third year, not the first. Rava said: There is no contradiction. What is the meaning of “when he sat” [keshevet]? It is intended to indicate that he acted not immediately upon his rise to the throne, but rather after his mind was settled [shenityasheva], and he overcame his anxiety and worry with regard to the redemption of the Jewish people. He said to himself as follows: Belshazzar, the king of Babylonia, calculated and erred with regard to the Jewish people’s redemption. I too will calculate, but I will not err.

Megillah 11b:11

This is that which Daniel said to him with regard to his impending punishment for using the Temple’s vessels: “But you have lifted yourself up against YHWH of heaven; and they have brought the vessels of His House before you” (Daniel 5:23). And it is written further in the chapter: “In that night Belshazzar, the king of the Chaldeans, was slain” (Daniel 5:30). This was the description of Belshazzar’s mistaken calculation. And it states after the fall of Belshazzar: “And Darius the Mede received the kingdom, being about sixty-two years old” (Daniel 6:1).

Megillah 11b:12

Ahasuerus said: He, Belshazzar, erred. I too will calculate, but I will not err, thinking he understood the source of Belshazzar’s mistake. Is it written: “Seventy years for the kingdom of Babylonia”? It is written: “Seventy years for Babylonia.” What is meant by “for Babylonia”? These words are referring to the seventy years for the exile of Babylonia. How many years are still lacking from the seventy years? Eight years. He calculated, and inserted in their stead one year of Belshazzar, and five years of Darius and Cyrus, and two years of his own, bringing the total to seventy. Once he saw that seventy years had been completed, and the Jewish people were still not redeemed, he said: Now for sure they will not be redeemed. Therefore, I will take out the vessels of the Temple and use them. What happened to him? As a punishment for what he did, the Satan came and danced among them, and brought confusion to his celebration until he killed Vashti.

Nedarim 62a:5

And with regard to this statement, Rabba bar bar Ḥana said that R' Yoḥanan said: Whoever makes use of the crown of Torah is uprooted from the world. This can be derived by means of an *a fortiori inference: If Belshazzar, who made use of the sacred Temple vessels, which had already become non-sacred vessels by that time, as after their forcible removal from the Temple the vessels lost their sanctity, as it is stated in the verse: “And robbers shall enter into it, and profane it” (Ezekiel 7:22), showing that once the Temple vessels have been robbed they become non-sacred, was uprooted from the world for his actions, as it is written: “On that night Belshazzar the Chaldean king was killed” (Daniel 5:30); one who makes use of the crown of Torah, which lives and endures forever and whose sanctity cannot be removed, all the more so shall he be uprooted.

Nedarim 62a:9

R' Eliezer bar R' Tzadok says: Do things for the sake of their performance, not for any ulterior motive, and speak words of Torah for their own sake. Do not make them a crown with which to become glorified, nor make them a dolabra [kordom] with which to hoe, i.e., do not use Torah study as a means of earning a livelihood. And this is an *a fortiori inference: If Belshazzar, who made use only of sacred vessels that had become non-sacred vessels, was uprooted from the world, one who makes use of the crown of Torah, whose sanctity is permanent, all the more so shall he be uprooted from the world.

Kiddushin 72b:4

The verse states: "And it came to pass, when I prophesied, that Pelatiah the son of Benaiah died. Then fell I down upon my face, and cried with a loud voice, and said: Ah Lord God!" (Ezekiel 11:13). Rav and Shmuel disagreed with regard to the meaning of this verse. One said it should be interpreted for good, and one said it should be interpreted for evil. How so? The one who says that it should be interpreted for good claims it is like that story involving the governor [de'istandera] of the province of Meishan, who was the son-in-law of Nebuchadnezzar. He sent a message to his father-in-law: From all those captives you have brought for yourself from your wars you have not sent us anyone to stand before us.

Kiddushin 72b:5

Nebuchadnezzar wanted to send him captives from the Jews to serve his son-in-law. Pelatiah, son of Benaiah, said to Nebuchadnezzar: We, who are important, shall stand and serve before you here, and our slaves will go there, to your son-in-law. Nebuchadnezzar took his advice. And about him the prophet Ezekiel said: One who did this good for the Jewish people, i.e., Pelatiah ben Benaiah, who spared them this exile, should he die at half of his days?

Kiddushin 72b:6

The one who says that the verse should be interpreted for evil cites the following verse, as it is written: "Then a spirit lifted me up, and brought me unto the east gate of YHWH's House, which looked eastward; and behold, at the door of the gate five and twenty men; and I saw in the midst of them Jaazaniah the son of Azzur, and Pelatiah the son of Benaiah, princes of the people" (Ezekiel 11:1), and it is written: "And He brought me into the inner court of YHWH's House, and, behold, at the door of the Temple of YHWH, between the porch and the altar, were about five and twenty men, with their backs toward the Temple of YHWH, and their faces toward the east" (Ezekiel 8:16).

Bava Kamma 79b:4

The Talmud asks: But if so, what are the circumstances of a robber? R' Abbahu said: Robbers are like the case of Benaiah ben Jehoiada, as it is stated concerning him: "He slew an Egyptian, a goodly man; and the Egyptian had a spear in his hand; but he went down to him with a staff, and he robbed the spear out of the Egyptian's hand, and slew him with his own spear" (II Samuel 23:21).

Bava Kamma 92b:8

Rava said to Rabba bar Mari: From where is this matter derived whereby people say: Sixty discomforts come to the teeth [lekhakha] of one who hears the sound of another eating and does not eat? Rabba bar Mari said to him that the source is as it is written with regard to what Nathan the prophet said concerning the coronation banquet of Adonijah, to which he was not invited: "For he is gone down this day, and has slain oxen and fatlings and sheep in abundance, and has called all the king's sons…But me, even me your servant, and Zadok the priest, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, and your servant Solomon he has not called" (I Kings 1:25–26).

The Talmud raises an objection from what was taught in the following baraita: Four people died due to Adam's sin with the serpent, in the wake of which death was decreed upon all of mankind, although they themselves were free of sin. And they are: Benjamin, son of Jacob; Amram, father of Moses; Yishai, father of David; and Kilab, son of David. And all of them were learned through tradition, except for Yishai, father of David, with regard to whom there is an explicit verse interpreted homiletically, as it is written: "And Absalom placed Amasa in charge of the army in place of Joab, and Amasa was the son of a man named Ithra the Israelite, who had taken to himself Abigail the daughter of Nahash, sister of Zeruiah, the mother of Joab" (II Samuel 17:25).

Yoma 12a:4

The Talmud states: And that dispute corresponds to the dispute between these tanna'im, as it was taught in a baraita: What part of the Temple was located in the portion of the tribe of Judah? It was the part including the entire Temple Mount, excluding those areas in the portion of Benjamin, the chambers, and the courtyards. And what part of the Temple was in the portion of the tribe of Benjamin? It was the part including the Entrance Hall of the Sanctuary, and the Sanctuary, and the Holy of Holies. And a strip of land emerges from the portion of Judah and enters the portion of Benjamin on which the altar is built. And Benjamin the righteous would suffer longing to engulf it every day. The tribe of Benjamin was disappointed that the strip belonging to the tribe of Judah intersected its tribal land and wanted Judah to transfer ownership so that the land with the altar would belong to Benjamin.

Yoma 12a:5

An allusion to this is that which is stated in Moses' blessing to Benjamin: "Ever does he protect him and he rests between his shoulders" (Deuteronomy 33:12), like one who is unable to abide something stuck between his shoulders and constantly rubs it to remove it. Therefore, Benjamin the righteous was privileged to serve as host [ushpizekhan] to the Almighty, as it is stated: "And he rests between his shoulders," alluding to the fact that the Holy of Holies was located in the territory of Benjamin. According to this baraita, Jerusalem was divided among the tribes.

Yoma 54a:2

Rabba said to Ulla: From where in this verse may it be inferred that the Ark was buried in its place? Ulla replied that the source is as it is written: "And they are there to this day," which is referring to any day when one might read this sentence, i.e., forever. Rabba objected to this explanation: And is it the case that anywhere that it is written "to this day" it means forever, as opposed to the time when the verse was written? But isn't it written: "And the children of Benjamin did not drive out the Jebusites who inhabited Jerusalem; but the Jebusites dwelt with the children of Benjamin in Jerusalem, to this day" (Judges 1:21)? So too here, let us say that the Jebusites were not exiled from Jerusalem.

And if you say: In the battles following the incidents in Gibeah of Benjamin (Judges 19–20), why did the Urim VeTummim not fulfill its words? The Jewish People consulted the Urim VeTummim three times with regard to their decision to attack the tribe of Benjamin, and each time they were instructed to go to battle. However, the first two times they were defeated and only on the third attempt were they successful. Is this not proof that the UrimVeTummim does not always fulfill its words?

Megillah 26a:14

And a strip of land issued forth from the portion of Judah and entered into the portion of Benjamin, and upon that strip the altar was built, and the tribe of Benjamin, the righteous, would agonize over it every day desiring to absorb it into its portion, due to its unique sanctity, as it is stated in Moses' blessing to Benjamin: "He covers it throughout the day, and he dwells between his shoulders" (Deuteronomy 33:12). The phrase "covers it" is understood to mean that Benjamin is continually focused upon that site. Therefore, Benjamin was privileged by becoming the host [ushpizekhan] of the Divine Presence, as the Holy of Holies was built in his portion.

Sotah 37a:2

Therefore, Benjamin the righteous was privileged to serve as host to the Divine Presence of the Almighty, as the Temple was built in the territory of Benjamin, as it is stated in Moses' blessing for the tribe of Benjamin: "The beloved of YHWH shall dwell in safety by Him; He covers him all the day, and He rests between his shoulders" (Deuteronomy 33:12).

Sanhedrin 105a:7

§ The mishna teaches that four prominent commoners, Balaam, Doeg, Ahithophel, and Gehazi, have no share in the World-to-Come. The Talmud elaborates: The name Balaam is interpreted as a contraction of: Without a nation [belo am], or one who has no share in the World-to-Come with the Jewish nation. Alternatively, the name Balaam is interpreted as one who wore down the Jewish people [bila am]. He is the son of Beor, one who engaged in bestiality [be'ir].

Sanhedrin 105a:8

It was taught in a baraita: He is Beor, father of Balaam, he is Cushan-Rishathaim, he is Laban the Aramean. He was called Beor because he engaged in bestiality. He was called Cushan-Rishathaim because he performed two evil deeds [rishiyyot] to the Jewish people, one during the time of Jacob, when he pursued him intending to kill him, and one during the time when the judges judged. And what was his actual name? His name was Laban the Aramean.

Sanhedrin 105a:9

It is written: "Son of Beor" (Numbers 22:5), and it is written elsewhere: "His son Beor" (Numbers 24:3). R' Yoḥanan says in resolving the apparent contradiction: Balaam's father was his son in terms of prophecy, as Balaam was a much greater prophet.

Sanhedrin 105b:6

And that is what the prophet said to Israel: "My nation, remember what Balak, king of Moab, advised, and how Balaam, son of Beor, responded; from Shittim to Gilgal, so that you may know the righteous acts of YHWH" (Micah 6:5). What is the meaning of the phrase "So that you may know the righteous acts of YHWH"? The Holy One, Blessed be He, said to Israel: Know how many acts of kindness I performed on your behalf, that I did not become angry during all the days of Balaam the wicked, as had I become angry during all those days, no remnant or refugee would have remained among the enemies of Israel, a euphemism for Israel itself. Instead, God restrained His anger and Balaam's curse went unfulfilled.

Sanhedrin 106a:16

§ With regard to Balaam, it is stated: "And they slew the kings of Midian, with the rest of their slain...And Balaam, son of Beor, they slew with the sword" (Numbers 31:8). The Talmud asks: Balaam, what did he seek there; what was his role in that war? He lived in Aram. R' Yoḥanan says: He went to collect payment for twenty-four thousand members of the Jewish people, whom he felled with his advice. Mar Zutra bar Toviya says that Rav says that this is in accordance with the adage that people say: A camel goes to seek horns and the ears that it had are severed from it. Not only was Balaam unsuccessful in collecting his fee, he also lost his life.

Berakhot 55a:10

Similarly, R' Yoḥanan said: Three matters are proclaimed by God, Himself: Famine, plenty, and a good leader. The Talmud enumerates the sources for these cases: Famine, as it is written: "For YHWH has called for a famine; and it shall also come upon the land seven years" (II Kings 8:1). Plenty, as it is written: "And I will call for the grain, and will increase it, and lay no famine upon you" (Ezekiel 36:29). And a good leader, as it is written: "And YHWH spoke unto Moses, saying: See, I have called by name Bezalel, son of Uri, son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah" (Exodus 31:1–2).

Berakhot 55a:11

With regard to Bezalel's appointment, R' Yitzḥak said: One may only appoint a leader over a community if he consults with the community and they agree to the appointment, as it is stated: "And Moses said unto the children of Israel: See, YHWH has called by name Bezalel, son of Uri, son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah" (Exodus 35:30). The Lord said to Moses: Moses, is Bezalel a suitable appointment in your eyes? Moses said to Him: Master of the universe, if he is a suitable appointment in Your eyes, then all the more so in my eyes. The Holy One, Blessed be He, said to him: Nevertheless, go and tell Israel and ask their opinion. Moses went and said to Israel: Is Bezalel suitable in your eyes? They said to him: If he is suitable in the eyes of God, and in your eyes, all the more so he is suitable in our eyes.

Berakhot 55a:12

R' Shmuel bar Naḥmani said that R' Yonatan said: Bezalel was called by that name on account of his wisdom. When God, said to Moses: Go say to Bezalel, "Make a tabernacle, an ark, and vessels" (see Exodus 31:7–11), Moses went and reversed the order and told Bezalel: "Make an ark, and vessels, and a tabernacle" (see Exodus 25–26). He said to Moses: Moses, our teacher, the standard practice throughout the world is that a person builds a house and only afterward places the vessels in the house, and you say to me: Make an ark, and vessels, and a tabernacle. If I do so in the order you have commanded, the vessels that I make, where shall I put them? Perhaps God told you the following: "Make a tabernacle, ark, and vessels" (see Exodus 36). Moses said to Bezalel: Perhaps you were in God's shadow [betzel El], and you knew precisely what He said. You intuited God's commands just as He stated them, as if you were there.

Berakhot 55a:13

Rav Yehuda said that Rav said: Bezalel knew how to join the letters with which heaven and earth were created. From where do we derive this? It is written here in praise of Bezalel: "And I have filled him with the spirit of God, in wisdom, and in understanding, and in knowledge, and in all manner of workmanship" (Exodus 31:3); and it is written there with regard to creation of heaven and earth: "The Lord, by wisdom, founded the earth; by understanding He established the heavens" (Proverbs 3:19), and it is written: "By His knowledge the depths were broken up and the skies drop down the dew" (Proverbs 3:20). We see that wisdom, understanding, and knowledge, the qualities with which the heavens and earth were created, are all found in Bezalel.

Yoma 72b:4

§ The Talmud cites statements concerning other Temple vessels: Raḥava said that Rav Yehuda said: The Torah states that the Ark should be made of wood with gold plating inside and out (Exodus 25:10–11). In order to achieve this Bezalel made three arks: A middle one made of wood, whose height was nine handbreadths; an inner one made of gold, whose height was eight handbreadths; and an outer one of gold, whose height was ten handbreadths and a bit. These arks were nested.

And who is this? It is Joseph, as it is stated in the chief butler’s account of how Pharaoh had become angry with him and with the chief baker and sent them to jail: “And there was with us there a young man, a Hebrew” (Genesis 41:12).

Megillah 13b:10

The Talmud explains how the matter became known to him. R' Yoḥanan said: Bigthan and Teresh were two Tarsians, and they would talk with one another in the Tarsian language. They said: From the day that Esther arrived we have not slept, as Ahasuerus has been with Esther all night, and he has been busying us with his demands. Come, let us cast poison in the goblet from which he drinks so that he will die. Bava Batra 15b:2

The Talmud raises an objection from another baraita against the notion that Job was a Jew: Seven prophets prophesied to the nations of the world, and they are: Balaam and his father Beor, and Job, Eliphaz the Temanite, and Bildad the Shuhite, and Zophar the Naamathite, and Elihu ben Barachel the Buzite, which indicates that Job was not Jewish. He said to him: And according to your reasoning that Job could not have been Jewish because he prophesied to the nations of the world, was Elihu ben Barachel not a Jew? Is it not written: "Of the family of Ram" (Job 32:2), meaning Abraham?

Bava Batra 16b:4

The verse states: "And Job's three friends heard of all this evil that was come upon him, they came every one from his own place, Eliphaz the Temanite, and Bildad the Shuhite, and Zophar the Naamathite; for they had made an appointment together to come to mourn with him and to comfort him" (Job 2:11). What does "they had made an appointment together" mean? Rav Yehuda says that Rav says: This phrase teaches that they all entered through one gate at the same time. And a Sage taught in a baraita: There were three hundred parasangs between each and every one of them, i.e., each one lived three hundred parasangs away from the other.

Let Nebuchadnezzar come and testify about Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah that they did not prostrate themselves before a graven image. Let Darius come and testify about Daniel that he did not neglect his prayer (see Daniel 6). Let Bildad the Shuhite, and Zophar the Naamathite, and Eliphaz the Temanite, and Elihu, son of Barachel, the Buzite, friends of Job (see Job 2:11 and 32:2) come and testify about the Jewish people that they fulfilled the Torah in its entirety. As it is stated: "All the nations are gathered together…let them bring their witnesses, that they may be justified" (Isaiah 43:9), i.e., the gathered gentiles will submit testimony on behalf of the Jewish people and demonstrate the Jews' righteousness.

§ Incidental to the exposition of the word Yehudi as one who repudiates idolatry, the Talmud relates that when R' Shimon ben Pazi introduced his exposition of the book of Chronicles, he addressed the book of Chronicles and said as follows: All of your words are one, and we know how to expound them. This introduction made reference to the fact that the book of Chronicles cannot always be interpreted literally but requires exposition, as the same individual might be called by various different names, as in the following verse: "And his wife HaYehudiyya bore Jered the father of Gedor, and Heber the father of Soco, and Jekuthiel the father of Zanoah. And these are the sons of Bithiah the daughter of Pharaoh, whom Mered took" (I Chronicles 4:18).

Megillah 13a:8

The aforementioned verse stated: "And these are the sons of Bithiah the daughter of Pharaoh, whom Mered took." The Talmud asks: Was Bithiah's husband's name Mered? Wasn't his name Caleb? Rather, the verse alludes to the reason that Caleb married Bithiah. The Holy One, Blessed be He, said: Let Caleb, who rebelled [marad] against the advice of the spies, come and marry the daughter of Pharaoh, who rebelled against the idols of her father's home.

Sanhedrin 19b:15

R' Yoḥanan says: Proof for the aforementioned statement can be derived from here: "And his wife Hajehudijah gave birth to Jered the father of Gedor, and Heber the father of Soco, and Jekuthiel the father of Zanoah, and these are the sons of Bithiah, daughter of Pharaoh, whom Mered took" (I Chronicles 4:18). Mered is Caleb, and why was his name called Mered? Because he rebelled [marad] against the counsel of the spies. And according to the midrash, Jered, Heber, and Jekuthiel all refer to Moses our teacher. And did Bithiah give birth to Moses? But didn't Jochebed give birth to him? Rather, Jochebed gave birth to him and Bithiah raised him. Therefore, he was called by her name as though she had given birth to him.

Sanhedrin 31b:17

The Sages sent a letter to Mar Ukva, the Exilarch in Babylonia, which stated: To he who has light upon him, like Moses, who is called the son of Bithiah, Shalom. The letter continued: Ukvan the Babylonian complained before us as follows: Yirmeya, my brother, came past me, i.e., did me a great evil. And therefore tell Yirmeya; induce him [hassiuhu] to see our face in Tiberias, where we will judge his case.

Boaz (15 total matches, showing 5)

Berakhot 54a:9

The Sages also instituted that one should greet another in the name of God, i.e., one should mention God's name in his greeting, as it is stated: "And presently Boaz came from Bethlehem and said to the harvesters, The Lord is with you, and they said to him, May YHWH bless you" (Ruth 2:4). And it says: "And the angel of God appeared to him and said to him, God is with you, mighty man of valor" (Judges 6:12). And it says: "And despise not your mother when she is old" (Proverbs 23:22), i.e., one must not neglect customs which he inherits. And lest you say that mentioning God's name is prohibited, it says: "It is time to work for YHWH; they have made void Your Torah" (Psalms 119:126), i.e., it is occasionally necessary to negate biblical precepts in order to perform God's will, and greeting another is certainly God's will. R' Natan says another interpretation of the verse: "Make void Your Torah" because "it is the time to work for YHWH," i.e., occasionally it is necessary to negate biblical precepts in order to bolster the Torah.

Berakhot 63a:7

The Talmud explains: And if you say: Boaz said this on his own, and it proves nothing with regard to normative practice, come and hear a proof from the verse: "The Lord is with you, mighty man of valor" (Judges 6:12). And if you say that it was an angel who said this to Gideon, that perhaps this verse was the angel informing Gideon that YHWH is with him, but it is not the standard formula of a greeting, come and hear proof from the verse: "And despise not your mother when she is old" (Proverbs 23:22); the customs of the nation's elders are an adequate source from which to derive halakha.

Shabbat 113b:7

And the verse in Ruth states: "And she went, and she came, and she collected in the field after the harvesters" (Ruth 2:3). R' Elazar said: This verse teaches that she went and came, went and came, until she found suitable people with whom to walk. It also says: "And Boaz said to his youth who was standing over the harvesters: To whom does this young woman belong?" (Ruth 2:5). This is surprising: And was it Boaz's habit to inquire about a young woman? R' Elazar said: He saw in her a matter of wisdom and Torah, and that is why he asked about her. What he saw was that she collected two stalks, but she did not collect three stalks. She thereby acted in accordance with the halakha that three stalks lying together are not considered to be gleanings left for the poor; rather, they remain in the possession of the owner of the field.

Shabbat 113b:8

It was taught in a baraita: He saw a matter of modesty in her when she was collecting stalks. She picked stalks that were upright while she was standing, and stalks that had fallen she picked while sitting; due to her modesty she did not bend over to take them. It also says: "And Boaz said to Ruth: Do you hear, my daughter? Do not go to glean in another field and do not leave from here, but cling to my maidens" (Ruth 2:8). This is also surprising. And was it Boaz's habit to cling to women? R' Elazar said: Since he saw "And Orpah kissed her mother-in-law and Ruth clung to her" (Ruth 1:14), he said: It is permitted to cling to a woman like this.

It also says: "And Boaz said to her at mealtime: Come here [halom] and eat from the bread and dip your bread in vinegar. And she sat beside the harvesters and he gave her roasted grain and she ate, and she was satiated, and she left some over" (Ruth 2:14). R' Elazar interpreted this and said that he hinted to her prophetically: In the future the kingdom of David will come from you, as it is written with regard to it, i.e., the kingdom of David: "Here," as it is stated: "And King David came and sat before God and said: Who am I, Lord, God, and who is my family that You have brought me to here [halom]?" (II Samuel 7:18). With regard to his saying: "And dip your bread in vinegar" (Ruth 2:14), R' Elazar said: From here we see that vinegar is good to have in hot weather.

C

Cain (8 total matches, showing 5)

Yevamot 62a:7

Rav Huna said: What is the reason of R' Natan, in accordance with the opinion of Beit Shammai? It is as it is written: "And again she bore his brother [et aḥiv] Abel [et Hevel]" (Genesis 4:2). The use of the superfluous word "et" indicates that she gave birth to Abel and his sister, in addition to Cain and his sister. And it states: "For God has appointed me another seed instead of Abel; for Cain slew him" (Genesis 4:25). This indicates that one must have at least four children. And the Rabbis, how do they understand this verse? In their opinion, Eve was thanking God for granting her another child, but one is not obligated to have four children.

The baraita continues: And so we found with regard to Cain, who desired to inherit the whole world alone (see Genesis 4); and Korah, who desired the priesthood (see Numbers 16); and Balaam, who desired Balak's money (see Numbers 22); and Doeg, who was jealous of David (see I Samuel 21–22); and Ahithophel, who was also jealous of David (see II Samuel 16); and Gehazi, who took Naaman's money (see II Kings 5); and Absalom, who wanted the kingdom (see II Samuel 15); and Adonijah, who also wanted the kingdom (see I Kings 1); and Uzziah, who wanted to be the High Priest (see II Chronicles 26); and Haman, who wanted to kill all the Jews (see Esther 3:13). All of these were people who placed their eyes on that which is unfit for them, and consequently what they desired was not given to them, and what they had was taken from them.

Sanhedrin 37a:12

The proof for this is as we found with Cain, who killed his brother, as it is stated concerning him: "The voice of your brother's blood [demei] cries out to Me from the ground" (Genesis 4:10). The verse does not state: Your brother's blood [dam], in the singular, but rather: "Your brother's blood [demei]," in the plural. This serves to teach that the loss of both his brother's blood and the blood of his brother's offspring are ascribed to Cain. The mishna notes: Alternatively, the phrase "your brother's blood [demei]," written in the plural, teaches that his blood was not gathered in one place but was splattered on the trees and on the stones.

Sanhedrin 37b:10

§ The mishna teaches that the court would say: You should know that cases of capital law are not like cases of monetary law, and would reference the murder of Abel by Cain. Rav Yehuda, son of R' Ḥiyya, says: By employing the plural term for blood, "The voice of your brother's blood [demei] cries out to Me from the ground" (Genesis 4:10), the verse teaches that Cain caused multiple wounds and multiple injuries to his brother Abel. As Cain did not know from where the soul departs, he struck him multiple times. This continued until he came to his neck and struck him there, whereupon Abel died.

Sanhedrin 58b:7

Come and hear a proof from a baraita: For what reason did Adam not marry his daughter? So that Cain would marry his sister and they would procreate immediately, as it is stated: "For I have said: The world shall be built on kindness [Ḥesed]" (Psalms 89:3). This verse alludes to the fact that at the beginning of the world's existence it was permitted for men to marry their sisters, which was later forbidden in the verse: "And if a man shall take his sister...it is a shameful thing [Ḥesed]" (Leviticus 20:17). The Talmud infers: If it had not been so, if God had not specially permitted Cain to marry his sister, she would have been forbidden to him. This is difficult according to the opinion of R' Akiva, who deems it permitted for a gentile to marry his sister.

Caleb (28 total matches, showing 5)

And R' Elazar further said: Not all are worthy to petition God by rending their garments, and not all are worthy of falling on their faces in times of trouble. Moses and Aaron were worthy of petitioning God by falling on their faces, whereas their students Joshua and Caleb prayed by only rending their garments. The Talmud elaborates: Moses and Aaron petitioned God by falling on their faces, as it is written: "Then Moses and Aaron fell on their faces" (Numbers 14:5). Joshua and Caleb prayed by rending their garments, as it is written in the next verse: "And Joshua, son of Nun, and Caleb, son of Jephunneh, who were of those who spied out the land, rent their garments" (Numbers 14:6).

Megillah 13a:8

The aforementioned verse stated: "And these are the sons of Bithiah the daughter of Pharaoh, whom Mered took." The Talmud asks: Was Bithiah's husband's name Mered? Wasn't his name Caleb? Rather, the verse alludes to the reason that Caleb married Bithiah. The Holy One, Blessed be He, said: Let Caleb, who rebelled [marad] against the advice of the spies, come and marry the daughter of Pharaoh, who rebelled against the idols of her father's home.

Nazir 56b:13

The Talmud explains the proof from this source: And yet Naḥum the Scribe does not mention the names of Joshua and Caleb, despite the fact that they were the Elders who passed down this halakha from Moses to the Prophets. Learn from this that the middle links in a tradition are not necessarily listed.

Sotah 11b:22

The verse relates the midwives' reward: "And it came to pass, because the midwives feared God, that He made them houses" (Exodus 1:21). Rav and Shmuel disagree as to the precise interpretation of these houses: One says that God made the houses of the priesthood and the Levites descend from the midwives, and one says that God made the houses of royalty descend from them. The one who says that it is referring to the houses of the priesthood and the Levites is referring to Aaron and Moses, who were sons of Jochebed. And the one who says that it is referring to houses of royalty is referring to David, who also comes from Miriam, as it is written: "And Azubah," the wife of Caleb, "died, and Caleb took to him Ephrath, who bore him Hur" (I Chronicles 2:19) and, as will be explained further, Ephrath is Miriam. And it is written: "David was the son of that Ephrathite of Bethlehem in Judah" (I Samuel 17:12). Therefore, he was a descendant of Miriam.

Sotah 11b:23

The Talmud discusses the family of Caleb: In Chronicles it says: "And Caleb, the son of Hezron, begot children of Azubah his wife, and of Jerioth, and these were her sons: Jesher, and Shobab, and Ardon" (I Chronicles 2:18). The Talmud asks: Was Caleb actually the son of Hezron? Wasn't he the son of Jephunneh, as the verse states in Numbers 13:6? The Talmud answers: He was the son of Hezron, but he is called "son of Jephunneh" as an appellation indicating that he was a son who turned away [sheppana] from the counsel of the spies.

Chilion (4 total matches)

Bava Batra 91a:8

And R' Shimon ben Yoḥai would likewise say: Elimelech and his sons Mahlon and Chilion were prominent members of their generation and were leaders of their generation. And for what reason were they punished? They were punished because they left Eretz Yisrael to go outside of Eretz Yisrael, as it is stated concerning Naomi and Ruth: "And all the city was astir concerning them, and the women said: Is this Naomi?" (Ruth 1:19). The Talmud asks: What is the meaning of the phrase: "Is this Naomi"? How does this indicate that her husband and sons were punished for leaving Eretz Yisrael? R' Yitzḥak says that the women said: Have you seen what befell Naomi, who left Eretz Yisrael for outside of Eretz Yisrael? Not only did she not escape tribulations there, but she lost her status entirely.

Bava Batra 91b:7

The Talmud returns to its discussion of the story of Ruth. It is written: "Mahlon and Chilion" (Ruth 1:2), and it is written elsewhere: "Joash and Saraph, who had dominion in Moab" (I Chronicles 4:22). Apparently, both names refer to the same individuals who married Moabite wives. Rav and Shmuel disagreed with regard to their true names. One says: Their given names were Mahlon and Chilion, and why were they called by the names Saraph and Joash? One was called Joash [yoash] because they despaired [nitya'ashu] of the redemption of Eretz Yisrael, as they established themselves in Moab and lived there for many years. The other was called Saraph, because they were liable to receive the punishment of burning [sereifa] for their sins against God, because they left their community.

Bava Batra 91b:8

And one of them says: Their given names were Joash and Saraph, and why were they called by the names Mahlon and Chilion? One was called Mahlon [maḥlon] because they made their bodies profane [ḥullin], and the other was called Chilion [khilyon] because they were liable to receive the punishment of destruction [kelaya] for their sins against God.

Bava Batra 91b:9

The Talmud notes: It is taught in a baraita in accordance with the one who says that their given names were Mahlon and Chilion. As it is taught in a baraita: What is the meaning of that which is written: "And Jokim, and the men of Cozeba, and Joash, and Saraph, who had dominion in Moab, and Jashubi Lehem. And the matters are ancient" (I Chronicles 4:22)? "And Jokim," this refers to Joshua, who established [shehekim] and kept the oath with people of Gibeon (see Joshua, chapter 9). "And the men of Cozeba," these are the men of Gibeon, who lied [shekizevu] to Joshua by saying that they came from a distant land. "And Joash, and Saraph," these are Mahlon and Chilion. And why were they called by the names Joash and Saraph? One was called Joash because they despaired [shenitya'ashu] of the redemption; the other was called Saraph because they were liable to receive the punishment of burning [sereifa] for their sins against God.

Cozbi (2 total matches)

Sanhedrin 82a:11

It is stated: “And Moses said to the judges of Israel: Each of you shall slay his men who have adhered unto Ba’al-Peor” (Numbers 25:5). The tribe of Simeon went to Zimri, son of Salu, their leader, and said to him: They are judging cases of capital law and executing us and you are sitting and are silent? What did Zimri do? He arose and gathered twenty-four thousand people from the children of Israel, and went to Cozbi, daughter of Zur, princess of Midian, and said to her: Submit to me and engage in intercourse with me. She said to him: I am the daughter of a king, and this is what my father commanded me: Submit only to the greatest of them. Zimri said to her: He, too, referring to himself, is the head of a tribe; moreover, he is greater than Moses, as he is the second of the womb, as he descends from Simeon, the second son of Jacob, and Moses is the third of the womb, as he descends from Levi, the third son of Jacob.

Sanhedrin 82b:9

Rav Sheshet says: Cozbi was not her given name; rather, Shevilnai, daughter of Zur, was her real name. And why was she called Cozbi? Because through her actions, she distorted [shekizzeva] the instructions of her father. He told her to submit only to the greatest of the children of Israel, and she submitted to the leader of a tribe. Alternatively: She was called Cozbi because she said to her father: Slaughter [kos] this people through me [bi], as I will seduce them to engage in licentiousness.

Cushan-Rishathaim (1 total match)

Sanhedrin 105a:8

It was taught in a baraita: He is Beor, father of Balaam, he is Cushan-Rishathaim, he is Laban the Aramean. He was called Beor because he engaged in bestiality. He was called Cushan-Rishathaim because he performed two evil deeds [rishiyyot] to the Jewish people, one during the time of Jacob, when he pursued him intending to kill him, and one during the time when the judges judged. And what was his actual name? His name was Laban the Aramean.

Cyrus (6 total matches, showing 5)

Rosh Hashanah 3b:8

R' Abbahu said in answer to this objection: Cyrus was a virtuous king, and consequently Haggai counted the years of his reign like those of the kings of Israel, i.e., from Nisan.

Rosh Hashanah 3b:10

And further, a second objection: Are Rav Yosef's objection and R' Abbahu's resolution comparable? There, R' Abbahu speaks of Cyrus, whereas here, the verses speak of Darius, and it was never said about Darius that he was a virtuous king. The Talmud explains: This is not difficult, as the Sages taught in a baraita: All three names are referring to the same person: He is Cyrus; he is Darius; and he is also Artaxerxes. He was called Cyrus [Koresh] because he was a virtuous [kasher] king; he was called Artaxerxes after his kingdom, i.e., this was his royal title; and what was his real name? Darius was his name.

Megillah 11b:5

The Talmud raises another question: But there is Cyrus, as it is written: "Thus says Cyrus, king of Persia: The Lord, God of heaven, has given me all the kingdoms of the earth" (Ezra 1:2). The Talmud answers: This is not proof that he ruled the world, for there he was merely boasting about himself, although in fact there was no truth to his words.

Megillah 11b:12

Ahasuerus said: He, Belshazzar, erred. I too will calculate, but I will not err, thinking he understood the source of Belshazzar's mistake. Is it written: "Seventy years for the kingdom of Babylonia"? It is written: "Seventy years for Babylonia." What is meant by "for Babylonia"? These words are referring to the seventy years for the exile of Babylonia. How many years are still lacking from the seventy years? Eight years. He calculated, and inserted in their stead one year of Belshazzar, and five years of Darius and Cyrus, and two years of his own, bringing the total to seventy. Once he saw that seventy years had been completed, and the Jewish people were still not redeemed, he said: Now for sure they will not be redeemed. Therefore, I will take out the vessels of the Temple and use them. What happened to him? As a punishment for what he did, the Satan came and danced among them, and brought confusion to his celebration until he killed Vashti.

Megillah 12a:4

Rava said in response: The seventy years that "are accomplished for Babylonia" were only for being remembered [lifekida], as mentioned in the verse, allowing the Jews to return to Eretz Yisrael but not to build the Temple. And this is as it is written with regard to Cyrus's proclamation permitting the Jewish people's return to Eretz Yisrael, in the seventieth year of the Babylonian exile: "Thus says Cyrus king of Persia: The Lord, God of heaven, has given me all the kingdoms of the earth; and He has charged [pakad] me to build Him a house in Jerusalem" (Ezra 1:2). The verse makes use of the same root, peh-kuf-dalet, heralding the return to Jerusalem to build the Temple, but not its actual completion.

D

Daniel (55 total matches, showing 5)

Berakhot 4a:12

R' Yoḥanan said: His name was not Kilav; rather, his name was Daniel, as it appears in a different list of David's descendants. Why was he called Kilav? Because he would embarrass [makhlim] Mefivoshet, the teacher or authority figure [av] in matters of halakha.

Berakhot 7b:2

The Talmud cites another statement extolling that virtue of Abraham is mentioned, as Rav said: Even Daniel's prayers were only answered on account of Abraham, as it is stated: "And now listen, God, to the prayer of Your servant and to his supplication; and cause Your face to shine upon Your desolate Temple, for the sake of YHWH" (Daniel 9:17). The verse should have said: And cause Your face to shine upon Your desolate Temple, for Your sake, as Daniel was addressing YHWH.

Berakhot 31a:20

In the Tosefta, additional halakhot were derived from Daniel's prayer. I might have thought that one could pray as many times as he wishes throughout the entire day; it has already been articulated by Daniel, with regard to whom it is stated: "And three times a day he knelt upon his knees and prayed." This teaches that there are fixed prayers.

Berakhot 63a:24

Eventually, the Sages of Eretz Yisrael sent two Torah scholars after him, R' Yosei ben Keifar and the grandson of Zekharya ben Kevutal. When Ḥanina saw them, he asked them: Why did you come? They responded: We came to study Torah. Since he saw his standing enhanced by the Sages of Eretz Yisrael coming to study Torah from him, he proclaimed about them: These people are eminent scholars of our generation, and their fathers served in the Temple. As we learned in tractate Yoma: Zekharya ben Kevutal says: Many times I read before the High Priest from the book of Daniel on the eve of Yom Kippur.

Shabbat 103a:8

MISHNA: One who writes two letters on Shabbat, whether he did so with his right hand or his left, whether they were the same letter or two different letters, whether he did so using two different types of ink, in any language, he is liable. R' Yosei said: One is deemed liable for writing two letters only due to marking, as they would write symbols on adjacent beams of the Tabernacle to know which beam was another beam's counterpart. R' Yehuda said: We found that one is liable for writing even if he did not complete what he was writing, so that he wrote a small name that constituted part of a longer name, e.g., Shem [shin mem] from the name Shimon or from Shmuel; Noa? [nun Ḥet] from Naḥor; Dan [dalet nun] from Daniel; Gad [gimmel dalet] from Gaddiel. In all of these cases, the first two letters of the longer name constitute the shorter name.

Darius (11 total matches, showing 5)

Rosh Hashanah 3b:7

Rav Yosef raised an objection against the rule established by Rav Ḥisda that the years of gentile kings are counted from Tishrei from the verse that states: “On the twenty-fourth day of the sixth month, in the second year of Darius the king” (Haggai 1:15), and it is written immediately afterward: “In the seventh month, in the second year, on the twenty-first day of the month, the word of YHWH came by the prophet Haggai, saying” (Haggai 2:1). And if it were so that the years of gentile kings are counted from Tishrei, what the verse needed to state is: In the seventh month in the third year, as a new year had already started for him.

Rosh Hashanah 3b:9

Rav Yosef strongly objects to this explanation for two reasons: One objection is that if this is so, the verses contradict each other, as it is written: “And this house was finished on the third of the month Adar, which was in the sixth year of the reign of Darius the king” (Ezra 6:15), and it is taught in a baraita: At that same time in the following year Ezra went up from Babylonia together with his company of exiles. And it is written in the Bible: “And he came to Jerusalem in the fifth month, which was in the seventh year of the king” (Ezra 7:8). And if it were so that this king’s years were counted like those of the kings of Israel, what the verse needed to state is: Which was in the eighth year of the king.

Rosh Hashanah 3b:10

And further, a second objection: Are Rav Yosef’s objection and R' Abbahu’s resolution comparable? There, R' Abbahu speaks of Cyrus, whereas here, the verses speak of Darius, and it was never said about Darius that he was a virtuous king. The Talmud explains: This is not difficult, as the Sages taught in a baraita: All three names are referring to the same person: He is Cyrus; he is Darius; and he is also Artaxerxes. He was called Cyrus [Koresh] because he was a virtuous [kasher] king; he was called Artaxerxes after his kingdom, i.e., this was his royal title; and what was his real name? Darius was his name.

Megillah 11b:4

The Talmud continues to ask: But there is Darius, as it is stated: “Then King Darius wrote to all the peoples, nations, and languages that dwell in all the earth: Peace be multiplied to you” (Daniel 6:26). The Talmud answers: There are the seven provinces over which he did not rule, as it is written: “It pleased Darius to set over the kingdom a hundred and twenty satraps” (Daniel 6:2). It is apparent from here that Darius did not rule over the entire world, for his son Ahasuerus ruled over a hundred and twenty-seven provinces, an additional seven.

Megillah 11b:11

This is that which Daniel said to him with regard to his impending punishment for using the Temple’s vessels: “But you have lifted yourself up against YHWH of heaven; and they have brought the vessels of His House before you” (Daniel 5:23). And it is written further in the chapter: “In that night Belshazzar, the king of the Chaldeans, was slain” (Daniel 5:30). This was the description of Belshazzar’s mistaken calculation. And it states after the fall of Belshazzar: “And Darius the Mede received the kingdom, being about sixty-two years old” (Daniel 6:1).

Dathan (6 total matches, showing 5)

Megillah 11a:17

The Talmud continues: “This is [hu] Ahasuerus” (Esther 1:1); the term hu, this is, comes to teach that he remained as he was in his wickedness from beginning to end. Similarly, wherever the words “this is” appear in this manner, the verse indicates that the individual under discussion remained the same from beginning to end, for example: “This is [hu] Esau” (Genesis 36:43); he remained in his wickedness from beginning to end. “This is [hu] Dathan and Abiram” (Numbers 26:9); they remained in their wickedness from beginning to end. “This is [hu] the king Ahaz” (II Chronicles 28:22); he remained in his wickedness from beginning to end.

Moed Katan 16a:3

§ Having discussed some of the restrictions applying to a person who was ostracized, the Talmud explains some of the basic principles relating to ostracism: Rava said: From where do we derive that a court agent is sent to summon the defendant to appear before the court before he is ostracized? As it is written: “And Moses sent to call Dathan and Abiram, the sons of Eliab” (Numbers 16:12). And from where do we derive that we summon the defendant, that he himself must appear before the court? As it is written: “And Moses said to Korah: Be you and all your congregation before YHWH, you and they, and Aaron, tomorrow” (Numbers 16:16).

Nedarim 64b:5

The Talmud asks: And as for the Rabbis, what is their reason for not accepting this proof? The Talmud answers: They hold: These people who were seeking Moses’ life, had they indeed died? But R' Yoḥanan said in the name of R' Shimon ben Yoḥai: Wherever it is stated in the Torah the term striving (Exodus 2:13), in reference to the men who slandered Moses, or standing (Exodus 5:20), in reference to those who complained against Moses and Aaron, they are none other than Dathan and Abiram. Dathan and Abiram were alive during the rebellion of Korah, which occurred years later, so they could not have been dead when God instructed Moses to return to Egypt. Rather, Reish Lakish said: They did not literally die, but the verse means that they lost their property and their status in the community, which meant their opinions were no longer granted credibility, and consequently, Moses could safely return to Egypt. Such a turn of events is not considered to be a new circumstance.

Sanhedrin 109b:15

The Talmud proceeds to interpret the names of Korah’s cohorts: “Dathan and Abiram, the sons of Eliab, and On, the son of Peleth, sons of Reuben” (Numbers 16:1). “Dathan” is one who violated the precepts [dat] of God. “Abiram” is one who braced [iber] himself from repenting. “And On” indicates one who sat in acute mourning [aninut] over the sin that he committed, and he repented and was spared. “Peleth” is one for whom wonders [pelaot] were performed. Son of Reuben [Reuven], is a son who saw and understood [ra’a vehevin] the nature of what was transpiring and repented.

Sanhedrin 110a:6

§ With regard to the verse: “And Moses arose and went to Dathan and Abiram” (Numbers 16:25), Reish Lakish says: From here we derive that one may not perpetuate a dispute, as Rav says: Anyone who perpetuates a dispute violates a prohibition, as it is stated: “And he will not be like Korah and his assembly, as YHWH spoke by the hand of Moses to him” (Numbers 17:5). Even the aggrieved party must seek to end the dispute. Dathan and Abiram accused Moses and by right should have initiated the reconciliation. Nevertheless, Moses was not insistent on this; he went to them.

Daughters of Zelophehad (12 total matches, showing 5)

Taanit 30b:10

What did they expound, in support of their conclusion that this halakha was no longer in effect? The verse states: "This is the matter that YHWH has commanded concerning the daughters of Zelophehad, saying: Let them marry whom they think best; only into the family of the tribe of their father shall they marry" (Numbers 36:5). They derived from the verse that this matter shall be practiced only in this generation, when Eretz Yisrael was divided among the tribes, but afterward members of different tribes were permitted to marry. On the day this barrier separating the tribes was removed, the Sages established a permanent day of rejoicing.

Bava Batra 110b:4

The Talmud raises a difficulty: But perhaps it was the daughters of Zelophehad who said this, i.e., that they were entitled to an inheritance only because their father had no son. They thought that this was the halakha based on the custom at that time, but after God spoke to Moses, the Torah was given and a halakha was initiated that a daughter's right to inherit is equal to that of the son. The Talmud accepts this difficulty and states: Rather, it is clear that the source for this halakha is as we answered initially, i.e., as Abaya derived from the verse of: "If a man dies, and has no son, then you shall pass his inheritance to his daughter" (Numbers 27:8).

Bava Batra 118a:2

The Talmud presents the second question. And Rav Pappa said to Abaye: Granted, according to the one who says that Eretz Yisrael was divided among those who left Egypt, this is why the daughters of Zelophehad cried out in protest of the fact that they would be denied their father's portion, to which he was entitled as one who left Egypt. But according to the one who says that Eretz Yisrael was divided among those who entered Eretz Yisrael, why did they cry out in protest; after all, Zelophehad was not there to take his portion, so his daughters should have no claim to the land?

Bava Batra 119a:1

The Talmud answers: Actually, the verse is counting fathers' houses. And by also counting the inheritance of Zelophehad's daughters, the verse teaches us this: That the daughters of Zelophehad took the portion of the firstborn due their father. Evidently, Eretz Yisrael is considered already in possession of one who was entitled to his portion of the land, even before the land was assigned. Although a firstborn son does not take a double portion of the property due to his deceased father as he does the property his father possessed, it is considered that Hepher possessed the portion that would eventually be assigned to him, and that Zelophehad was entitled to a double portion.

Bava Batra 119a:5

Rabba raises an objection from a baraita: R' Yehuda says: The daughters of Zelophehad took four parts, as it is stated: "And ten parts fell to Manasseh" (Joshua 17:5). Clearly, this is referring to portions of land, and not simply movable property. Rather, Rabba says: Eretz Yisrael is considered already in possession of one who was entitled to his portion of inheritance land, even before the land was assigned.

David (410 total matches, showing 5)

Berakhot 3b:20

Incidental to the Gemara's mention of King David, other sources are cited that describe his actions. Regarding that which was cited above, that he would rise in the middle of the night in order to serve his Creator, the Talmud asks: Did David rise at midnight? He rose in the evening. As it is written: "I rose with the neshef and cried, I hoped for Your word" (Psalms 119:147). And how do we know that this neshef is the evening? As it is written: "In the neshef, in the evening of the day, in the blackness of night and the darkness" (Proverbs 7:9). Apparently, King David did indeed rise when it was still evening.

Berakhot 3b:21

The Talmud suggests several ways to resolve this contradiction. R' Oshaya said that R' Aḥa said: David said as follows: Midnight never passed me by in my sleep. Sometimes I fulfilled the verse, "I rose with the neshef and cried," but I always, at least, fulfilled the verse, "At midnight I rise to give thanks for Your righteous laws."

Berakhot 3b:23

To this point, the discussion has been based on the assumption that neshef means evening. The Talmud asks: Does *neshef really mean evening? Doesn't neshef mean morning? As it is written: "And David slew them from the neshef until the evening of the next day" (I Samuel 30:17). Doesn't this verse mean from the morning until the night, in which case neshef must mean morning?

Berakhot 3b:27

When King David said: At midnight I rise, the assumption is that he rose precisely at midnight. The Talmud asks: Did David know exactly when it was midnight? Even Moses our teacher did not know exactly when it was midnight. How do we know this about Moses? As it is written that he said to Pharaoh: "Thus said YHWH: About midnight, I will go out into the midst of Egypt" (Exodus 11:4). The word about indicates that it was only an approximation.

Berakhot 3b:28

The Talmud clarifies: What is the meaning of the expression: About midnight? Did Moses say it or did God say it? If we say that God, Himself, said: About midnight, to Moses, is there doubt before God in heaven? Rather, this must be understood as follows: God told Moses: At midnight, but from the fact that when Moses came to Pharaoh he said: About midnight; apparently, Moses was uncertain about the exact moment of midnight. Moses, the greatest of all the prophets, was uncertain, and David knew?

Pesachim 66b:6

With regard to the incident with Hillel, Rav Yehuda said that Rav said: Anyone who acts haughtily, if he is a Torah scholar, his wisdom departs from him; and if he is a prophet, his prophecy departs from him. The Talmud explains: That if he is a Torah scholar, his wisdom departs from him is learned from Hillel, for the Master said in this baraita: Hillel began to rebuke them with words. Because he acted haughtily, he ended up saying to them: I once heard this halakha, but I have forgotten it, as he was punished for his haughtiness by forgetting the law. That if he is a prophet his prophecy departs from him is learned from Deborah, as it is written: "The villagers ceased, they ceased in Israel, until I, Deborah, arose, I arose a mother in Israel" (Judges 5:7). For these words of self-glorification, Deborah was punished with a loss of her prophetic spirit, as it is written later that it was necessary to say to her: "Awake, awake, Deborah; awake, awake, utter a song" (Judges 5:12), because her prophecy had left her.

Pesachim 117a:19

R' Elazar HaModa'i says: Deborah and Barak recited it when Sisera stood against them (see Judges 4–5). They said: Not to us, and the Divine Spirit responded and said to them: For My own sake, for My own sake, will I do it. R' Elazar ben Azarya says: Hezekiah and his company recited it when Sennacherib stood against them (see II Kings 18–19). They said: Not to us and the Divine Spirit responded: For My own sake. R' Akiva says: Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah recited it when the wicked Nebuchadnezzar stood against them (see Daniel 3). They said: Not to us, and the Divine Spirit responded: For My own sake. R' Yosei HaGelili says: Mordecai and Esther recited it when the wicked Haman stood against them. They said: Not to us, and the Divine Spirit responded: For My own sake (see the book of Esther).

Megillah 14a:13

§ The Talmud asks with regard to the prophetesses recorded in the baraita: Who were the seven prophetesses? The Talmud answers: Sarah, Miriam, Deborah, Hannah, Abigail, Huldah, and Esther. The Talmud offers textual support: Sarah, as it is written: "Haran, the father of Milcah, and the father of Iscah" (Genesis 11:29). And R' Yitzḥak said: Iscah is in fact Sarah. And why was she called Iscah? For she saw [sakhta] by means of divine inspiration, as it is stated: "In all that Sarah has said to you, hearken to her voice" (Genesis 21:12). Alternatively, Sarah was also called Iscah, for all gazed [sokhin] upon her beauty.

Megillah 14a:16

Deborah was a prophetess, as it is written explicitly: "And Deborah, a prophetess, the wife of Lappidoth" (Judges 4:4). The Talmud asks: What is the meaning of "the wife of Lappidoth"? The Talmud answers: For she used to make wicks for the Sanctuary, and due to the flames [lappidot] on these wicks she was called the wife of Lappidoth, literally, a woman of flames.

Nazir 4a:10

MISHNA: If one said: I am hereby like Samson, like the son of Manoah, like the husband of Delilah, like the one who tore off the doors of Gaza, like the one whose eyes were gouged out by the Philistines, he is a nazirite like Samson, whose halakhot are explained in the next mishna (see Judges, chapters 13–16).

Nazir 4a:12

And if the tanna had taught that he said he would be: Like the son of Manoah, I would say there is some person who is called that name, Samson, son of Manoah, and this is not a reference to the biblical Samson and is not an acceptance of naziriteship. The tanna therefore teaches us that he adds: Like the husband of Delilah, or: Like the one who tore off the doors of Gaza, or: Like the one whose eyes were gouged out by the Philistines. It is therefore clear that he is referring to the biblical figure and that his statement is a vow of naziriteship.

Sotah 9b:15

The Talmud continues its discussion of Samson. The verse states: "And it came to pass afterward, that he loved a woman in the valley of Sorek, whose name was Delilah" (Judges 16:4). It is taught in a baraita that Rabbi Yehuda HaNasi says: Even if she had not been called by the name Delilah, it would have been fitting that she be called Delilah, for she weakened [dildela] his strength, she weakened his heart, and she weakened his deeds, thereby decreasing his merits.

Sotah 9b:16

The Talmud explains: She weakened his strength, as it is written: "And she made him sleep upon her knees; and she called for a man and had the seven locks of his head shaved off; and she began to afflict him, and his strength went from him" (Judges 16:19). She weakened his heart, as it is written: "And when Delilah saw that he had told her all his heart, she sent and called for the lords of the Philistines, saying: Come up this once, for he has told me all his heart" (Judges 16:18). She weakened his deeds, thereby decreasing his merits, as the Divine Presence left him, as it is written: "And she said: The Philistines are upon you, Samson. And he awoke out of his sleep, and said: I will go out as at other times, and shake myself. But he knew not that YHWH was departed from him" (Judges 16:20).

Sotah 9b:17

The verse states: "And when Delilah saw that he had told her all his heart" (Judges 16:18). The Talmud asks: From where did she know that this time he had told her the truth about the source of his strength, as he had lied about it previously? R' Ḥanin says that Rav says: Words of truth are recognizable, and she felt that this time he was telling the truth. Abaye says differently: She knew about Samson being a righteous individual, that he would not express the name of Heaven in vain. Once he said: "And he told her all his heart, and said to her: There has not come a razor upon my head; for I have been a nazirite unto God from my mother's womb" (Judges 16:17), she said: Now he is certainly saying the truth.

descendant of Noah (25 total matches, showing 5)

The Talmud further challenges R' Abbahu's opinion: And yet there is the prohibition against eating a limb cut from a living animal, as it is written: "Only be steadfast in not eating the blood; for the blood is the life; and you shall not eat the life with the flesh" (Deuteronomy 12:23). And it was taught in a baraita that R' Natan says: From where is it derived that a person may not offer a cup of wine to a nazirite, who is prohibited from drinking wine, and that he may not offer a limb cut from a living animal to a descendant of Noah, who is prohibited by Noahide law from eating a limb from a living animal? The verse states: "You shall not put a stumbling block before the blind" (Leviticus 19:14). Causing another person to sin is like placing a stumbling block before a blind person; one who does so violates this prohibition. The prohibition of giving a limb from a living animal to a gentile is apparently due only to the prohibition of placing a stumbling block. However, it is permitted for one to throw it to dogs. Therefore, despite the fact that the verse says: "You shall not eat it," apparently there is no prohibition against benefiting from this prohibited item. This challenges R' Abbahu's principle.

Sanhedrin 56a:19

The Talmud comments: And Rav Yitzḥak Nappaḥa, who holds that according to the Rabbis, gentiles are not liable for cursing appellations for the name of God, disagrees with the opinion of Rav Meyasha. As Rav Meyasha says: A descendant of Noah who blessed God by one of the appellations is liable to be executed even according to the opinion of the Rabbis.

Sanhedrin 56b:2

R' Yosei says: With regard to every type of sorcery that is stated in the passage about sorcery, it is prohibited for a descendant of Noah to engage in it. This is derived from the verses: "When you come into the land that YHWH your God gives you, you shall not learn to do like the abominations of those nations. There shall not be found among you one who makes his son or his daughter pass through the fire, a diviner, a soothsayer, or an enchanter, or a warlock, or a charmer, or one who consults a necromancer and a sorcerer, or directs inquiries to the dead. For whoever does these things is an abomination to YHWH; and because of these abominations, YHWH your God is driving them out from before you" (Deuteronomy 18:9–12). Evidently, the Canaanites were punished for these practices; and since God would not have punished them for an action unless He first prohibited it, these practices are clearly prohibited to gentiles.

Sanhedrin 56b:12

Rava says: And is there anyone who says that a gentile who fashioned an idol but did not bow to it is liable? But isn't it taught in a baraita: With regard to idol worship, matters, i.e., transgressions, for which a Jewish court executes a Jew who commits one of them, are prohibited to a descendant of Noah. But with regard to transgressions for which a Jewish court does not execute a Jew who commits one of them, a descendant of Noah is not prohibited from doing them. To exclude what transgressions, i.e., to determine that they do not apply to gentiles, is this stated? Is it not to exclude the case of a gentile who fashioned an idol but did not bow to it? Since Jews are not executed for this transgression, gentiles should not be liable for this act either.

Sanhedrin 57a:8

Rav Yosef says: They say in the study hall that a descendant of Noah is executed for transgressing three mitzvot, which are represented by the letters gimmel*, shin, *reish in a mnemonic device: For forbidden sexual relations, for bloodshed, and for blessing, i.e., cursing, the name of God.

Nedarim 31a:5

MISHNA: If one says: The property of the descendants of Noah is *konam for me, and for that reason I will not benefit from it, he is permitted to derive benefit from a Jew but prohibited from deriving benefit from the nations of the world.

Nedarim 31a:6

GEMARA: The Talmud asks: And is a Jew excluded from the category of the descendants of Noah? They are also descendants of Noah. The Talmud answers: Since Abraham was sanctified and designated to possess a unique role in the world, all his descendants are called by his name and are no longer termed the descendants of Noah.

Bava Kamma 38a:3

R' Abbahu said that the reason for this ruling is that the verse states: "He stood and shook the earth; He beheld, and made the nations tremble [vayyatter]" (Habakkuk 3:6). This is homiletically interpreted to mean that God saw the seven mitzvot that the descendants of Noah accepted upon themselves to fulfill, and since they did not fulfill them, He arose and permitted [vehittir] their money to the Jewish people, so that in certain cases Jews are not liable for damage caused to gentiles.

Bava Kamma 38a:7

The Talmud explains that this is how the baraita is to be understood: And if you would say that this verse: "He stood and shook the earth" is necessary to express that which Rav Mattana and Rav Yosef derived from the verse, come and hear another source: "He appeared from Mount Paran," meaning: From Paran their money appeared to the Jewish people. What is Rav Mattana's exposition? It is as Rav Mattana says: "He stood and shook the earth." What did He see? He saw the seven mitzvot that the descendants of Noah were commanded but did not fulfill, and He arose and exiled them from their land on account of their transgressions.

Bava Kamma 38a:9

What is Rav Yosef's exposition? It is as Rav Yosef says: "He stood and shook the earth; He beheld." What did He see? He saw the seven mitzvot that the descendants of Noah accepted upon themselves and did not fulfill, so He arose and permitted their prohibitions to them.

Berakhot 17b:1

“There is no breach”; that our faction of Sages should not be like the faction of David, from which Ahitophel emerged, who caused a breach in the kingdom of David.
“And no going forth”; that our faction should not be like the faction of Saul, from which Doeg the Edomite emerged, who set forth on an evil path.
“And no outcry”; that our faction should not be like the faction of Elisha, from which Geihazi emerged.
“In our open places”; that we should not have a child or student who overcooks his food in public, i.e., who sins in public and causes others to sin, as in the well-known case of Jesus the Nazarene.

Yoma 22b:9

And he further reasoned: If the men have sinned, in what way have the animals sinned? Why, then, should the Amalekites’ livestock be destroyed? And if the adults have sinned, in what way have the children sinned? A Divine Voice then came forth and said to him: “Do not be overly righteous” (Ecclesiastes 7:16). That is to say: Do not be more merciful than the Creator Himself, Who has commanded you to do this, for to do so would not be an indication of righteousness but of weakness. At a later time, when Saul said to Doeg: “Turn around and strike down the priests, and Doeg the Edomite turned around and struck down the priests, and he killed on that day eighty-five men who wore the linen ephod, and he struck Nob the city of priests by the sword, man and woman alike, infants and sucklings alike, oxen and donkeys and sheep, by the sword” (I Samuel 22:18–19), a Divine Voice came forth and said to him: “Do not be overly wicked” (Ecclesiastes 7:17).

Yoma 38b:4

§ Apropos the verse cited, the Talmud asks: What is the meaning of: But the name of the wicked shall rot? How does a name rot? R' Elazar said: It means that decay will spread on their names, meaning that we do not call others by their names, and the name will sink into oblivion. Ravina raised an objection from an incident that transpired during the Second Temple era. There was an incident involving Doeg ben Yosef, whose father died and left him as a young child to his mother, who loved him. Each day his mother measured his height in handbreadths and donated a measure of gold equivalent to the weight that he gained to the Temple. Later, when the enemy prevailed and there was a terrible famine in the city, she slaughtered and ate him.

Chagigah 15b:13

And R' Ami said: Doeg asked Ahithophel three hundred questions with regard to a closet floating in the air, as they were both great Torah scholars. And we learned in a mishna (Sanhedrin 90a): Three kings and four commoners have no portion in the World-to-Come, a list that includes Doeg and Ahithophel. If such great Sages could sin and forfeit their share in the World-to-Come, we, who are less knowledgeable than they, what will be of us? He said to him: Long-toothed one, there was mud [tina] in their hearts, i.e., they had certain flaws that prevented their Torah learning from protecting them.

Yevamot 76b:14

The Talmud continues with its explanation: For what reason did Saul say to Abner that he should inquire about David? As it is written: “And Saul clad David with his apparel [maddav]” (I Samuel 17:38), which indicates that the clothes were of David’s size [kemiddato]. And it is written with regard to Saul: “From his shoulders and upward he was higher than any of the people” (I Samuel 9:2). Upon seeing that his clothes fit David, Saul began to fear that it might be David who was destined for the throne, and he therefore inquired into his background. At that point, Doeg the Edomite said to Saul: Before you inquire as to whether or not he is fit for kingship, inquire as to whether or not he is even fit to enter into the congregation. What is the reason for such doubts? It is that he descends from Ruth the Moabite, and Moabites are permanently barred from entering the congregation.

Sanhedrin 93b:5

The Talmud asks: From where do we derive that it was Doeg who listed the virtues in this verse? The Talmud answers that it is written here: “And one [eḥad] of the servants answered,” meaning the most notable [meyuḥad] of the servants. And it is written there: “And a certain man of the servants of Saul was there that day, detained before YHWH, and his name was Doeg the Edomite, the chief of the herdsmen that belonged to Saul” (I Samuel 21:8).

Sanhedrin 95a:6

§ Apropos the massacre of Nov, the Talmud relates: “And Ishbibenob, who was of the sons of the giant, the weight of whose spear was three hundred shekels of brass; and he was girded with new armor and planned to slay David” (II Samuel 21:16). The Talmud asks: What is the meaning of Ishbibenob? Rav Yehuda says that Rav says: This is a man [ish] who came to punish David over matters of Nov. The Holy One, Blessed be He, said to David: Until when will this sin be concealed in your hand without punishment? Through your actions the inhabitants of Nov, the city of priests, were massacred, and through your actions, Doeg the Edomite was banished from the World-to-Come, and through your actions Saul and his three sons were killed.

Sanhedrin 104a:5

And the fact that an unwitting transgression with regard to it is at times considered an intentional transgression is derived as Rav Yehuda says that Rav says: Had Jonathan lent David two loaves of bread when he was fleeing Saul, David would not have sought sustenance from the priests in Nov. The residents of Nov, city of the priests, would not have been killed, and Doeg the Edomite would not have been banished from the World-to-Come, and Saul and his three sons would not have been killed as punishment for that massacre.

Megillah 4a:2

The Talmud asks: Did Joshua, son of Nun, really build these cities? Didn't Elpaal build them at a later date, as it is written: "And the sons of Elpaal: Eber, and Misham, and Shemed, who built Ono and Lod, with its hamlets" (I Chronicles 8:12)? The Talmud counters: According to your reasoning, that this verse proves that these cities were built later, you can also say that Asa, king of Judah, built them, as it is written: "And he, Asa, built fortified cities in Judah" (see II Chronicles 14:5). Therefore, it is apparent that these cities were built more than once.

Megillah 16b:20

Rabba said that Rav Yitzḥak bar Shmuel bar Marta said: Studying Torah is greater and more important than honoring one's father and mother, and a proof of this is that for all those years that our father Jacob spent in the house of Eber and studied Torah there he was not punished for having neglected to fulfill the mitzva of honoring one's parents. As the Master said:

Megillah 17a:5

Rather, learn from here that the fourteen years that Jacob spent in the house of Eber are not counted here. As it is taught in a baraita: Jacob was studying in the house of Eber for fourteen years while in hiding from his brother Esau. If we were to calculate the life spans recorded in the Torah, we would find that Eber died when Jacob was seventy-nine years old, two years after Jacob our father went down to Aram-naharaim, to the house of Laban. When Jacob left after completing his studying there, he then went immediately to Aram-naharaim. Therefore, when Jacob stood at the well upon his arrival in Aram-naharaim, he was seventy-seven years old.

Megillah 17a:6

And from where do we derive that Jacob was not punished for the fourteen years that he was in the house of Eber, during which time he failed to fulfill the mitzva of honoring one's parents? As it is taught in a baraita: It turns out that Joseph was away from his father for twenty-two years, just as Jacob our father was away from his own father for that same period of time. According to the previous calculation, however, the baraita is difficult, as Jacob was absent for thirty-six years. Rather, conclude from here that the fourteen years that he was in the house of Eber are not counted, as he was not punished for them.

Sanhedrin 69b:17

Rav Kahana says: I stated this discussion before Rav Zevid of Neharde'a. When he heard it, he said to me: You learn that Shem was not Noah's oldest son from there, and we learn it from here: "And to Shem, the father of all the children of Eber, the brother of Japheth the elder, to him also were children born" (Genesis 10:21). This verse indicates that Japheth, rather than Shem, was the oldest of the brothers.

Yoma 73b:9

The Talmud raises an objection from a baraita: Any priest who does not speak with Divine Spirit and upon whom the Divine Presence does not rest is not consulted to inquire of the Urim VeTummim. As Zadok inquired of the Urim VeTummim and it was effective for him, and he received an answer; but Ebiathar inquired and it was not effective for him, and he did not receive an answer. As it is stated: "But Ebiathar went up until all the people had finished" (II Samuel 15:24), which is taken to mean that he was removed from the High Priesthood since the Divine Spirit had departed from him.

Yoma 77a:9

§ The Talmud returns to the issue of whether refraining from bathing is considered affliction. If you wish, say instead: The fact that bathing is considered affliction, from where do we derive this? As it is written: "And to Ebiathar the priest the king said: Get to Anatoth to your fields, for you are deserving of death. But I will not put you to death today, because you carried the Ark of YHWH God before David my father, and because you have been afflicted in all that my father was afflicted" (I Kings 2:26). And it is written with regard to David: "For they said the people is hungry, and weary, and thirsty in the wilderness" (II Samuel 17:29). Hunger means from lack of bread to eat, and thirst means from lack of water to drink. The word weary means lack from what? Is it not from bathing? The comparison of the verses suggests that that too is affliction. The Talmud challenges: And perhaps "weary" means from lack of wearing shoes? Therefore, this does not teach us that refraining from bathing is considered an affliction.

Sanhedrin 16b:1

It is: And after Ahithophel was Benaiah, son of Jehoiada; and Ebiathar; and the general of the king's army, Yoav (see I Chronicles 27:34). The individuals named in this verse correspond to the roles in the aggada as follows: Ahithophel is the advisor whose counsel they sought first with regard to going to war, and so it says: "Now the advice of Ahithophel, which he counseled in those days, was like that of a man who inquires of the word of God; so was the counsel of Ahithophel both with David and with Absalom" (II Samuel 16:23). And Benaiah, son of Jehoiada corresponds to the Sanhedrin, since he was the head of the Sanhedrin, and Ebiathar corresponds to the Urim VeTummim, as Ebiathar, son of Ahimelech the priest would oversee inquiries directed to the Urim VeTummim (see I Samuel 23:9).

Sanhedrin 21a:9

§ As for those eighteen women that the king may marry, from where do we derive that number? The Talmud responds: As it is written: “And to David sons were born in Hebron; and his firstborn was Amnon, from Ahinoam the Jezreelitess; and his second, Chileab, from Abigail the wife of Nabal the Carmelite; and the third, Absalom, son of Maacah, the daughter of Talmai, king of Geshur; and the fourth, Adonijah, son of Haggith; and the fifth, Shephatiah, son of Abital; and the sixth, Ithream, of Eglah, David’s wife. These were born to David in Hebron” (II Samuel 3:2–5). In these verses, a total of six wives are mentioned.

Sanhedrin 21a:14

The Talmud challenges the notion that David had only six wives. But there was also Michal, and so he had at least seven wives. Rav said: One of those six wives, Eglah, is Michal, and why was she called Eglah in the verse? It was because she was dear to him like a calf [egla], and so the verse states that Samson referred to his wife with the same term: “If you had not plowed with my calf you would not have found my secret” (Judges 14:18).

Eglon (5 total matches)

Nazir 23b:10

§ The Talmud returns to analyze in greater detail the above matter itself. Rav Yehuda said that Rav said: A person should always occupy himself with Torah and mitzvot even not for their own sake, as through these acts performed not for their own sake, good deeds for their own sake come about. The proof for this is that in reward for the forty-two offerings that the wicked Balak sacrificed (see Numbers, chapter 23), although he did not do so for the sake of Heaven but to facilitate the cursing of the Jewish people, nevertheless he merited that Ruth descended from him. Not only was he the forebear of a righteous convert, but also of King David. And this is as R' Yosei, son of R' Ḥanina, said: Ruth was the daughter of the son of Eglon, king of Moab, who descended from Balak, king of Moab.

But didn't Rav Yehuda say that Rav says: A person should always engage in Torah study and in performance of mitzvot, even if he does so not for their own sake, as through such acts performed not for their own sake, one will come to perform them for their own sake. He proves the value of a mitzva done not for its own sake: As in reward for the forty-two offerings that Balak, king of Moab, brought, he merited that Ruth descended from him, from whom King Solomon descended, about whom it is written that he brought many offerings: "A thousand burnt-offerings did Solomon offer up" (I Kings 3:4). And R' Yosei ben Ḥoni similarly says: Ruth was the daughter of Eglon, son of Balak. These Sages state that Balak's reward was to have Ruth descend from him, not that a number of Jewish people perish. The Talmud answers: His desire, in any event, was to curse the Jewish people, and his reward for sacrificing his offerings was that the curse was fulfilled in the incident involving Elisha, as well.

Sanhedrin 60a:12

The Talmud asks: From where do we derive that the judges must stand? R' Yitzḥak bar Ami says: It is derived from that which the verse states about Eglon: "And Ehud came to him, and he was sitting by himself alone in his cool upper chamber. And Ehud said: I have a message from God [Elohim] to you. And he arose out of his seat" (Judges 3:20). And are these matters not inferred a fortiori*? And if Eglon, king of Moab, who was a gentile and knew the name of God only by an appellation, stood in honor, all the more so must a Jew stand if he hears the ineffable name.

Sanhedrin 105b:12

Rav Yehuda says that Rav says: A person should always engage in Torah study and performance of a mitzva even if he does not do so for their own sake, as through engaging in them not for their own sake, he will ultimately come to engage in them for their own sake. Proof for this can be cited from the example of Balak, as in reward for the forty-two offerings that Balak sacrificed, even though he sacrificed them to facilitate the destruction of the Jewish people, he was privileged and Ruth descended from him. R' Yosei bar Huna says: Ruth was the daughter of Eglon, son of the son of Balak, king of Moab.

Horayot 10b:18

Rav Yehuda says that Rav says: A person should always engage in Torah study and the performance of mitzvot, even if he does so not for its own sake, as through the performance of mitzvot not for its own sake, one gains understanding and comes to perform them for its own sake. Proof for this can be adduced from the incident involving Balak, as in reward for the forty-two offerings that Balak the wicked sacrificed to God, despite the fact that he did this in order to curse the Jewish people (see Numbers, chapter 23), he merited and Ruth emerged from him, as R' Yosei, son of R' Ḥanina, says: Ruth was the daughter of the son of Eglon, the son of the son of Balak, king of Moab.

Eldad and Medad (3 total matches)

Rosh Hashanah 25a:15

§ The mishna taught that R' Yehoshua next came to R' Dosa ben Horkinas, who proved to him that the court of Rabban Gamliel has the same legal status as the court of Moses. The Sages taught in a baraita: Why were the names of these seventy Elders who sat together with Moses on his court not specified? The reason is so that a person not say: Is so-and-so the judge in my time, like Moses and Aaron? Is so-and-so like Nadav and Avihu? Is so-and-so like Eldad and Medad? Therefore, the names of the other elders were not specified, so that there is no way of knowing the qualifications of the elders in the time of Moses to compare them to later judges.

Sanhedrin 17a:9

R' Shimon says: Eldad and Medad remained in the camp, as they did not want to come to the lottery for the Elders. At the time that God, said to Moses: Gather for me seventy Elders, Eldad and Medad said: We are not fitting for that level of greatness; we are not worthy of being appointed among the Elders. The Holy One, Blessed be He, said: Since you have made yourselves humble, I will add greatness to your greatness. And what is the greatness that he added to them? It was that all of the prophets, meaning the other Elders, who were given prophecy, prophesied for a time and then stopped prophesying, but they prophesied and did not stop.

Sanhedrin 17a:11

Rav Naḥman says: They were prophesying about the matter of Gog and Magog, as it is stated with regard to Gog and Magog: "So says YHWH God: Are you the one of whom I spoke in ancient days, through my servants, the prophets of Israel, who prophesied in those days for many years [shanim] that I would bring you against them?" (Ezekiel 38:17). Do not read it as: "Years [shanim]"; rather, read it as: Two [shenayim]. And who are the two prophets who prophesied the same prophecy at the same time? You must say: Eldad and Medad.

Berakhot 31a:27

Rav Hamnuna said: How many significant halakhot can be derived from these verses of the prayer of Hannah? As it says: “And Hannah spoke in her heart, only her lips moved and her voice could not be heard, so Eli thought her to be drunk” (I Samuel 1:13). The Talmud elaborates: From that which is stated here: “And Hannah spoke in her heart,” the halakha that one who prays must focus his heart on his prayer is derived. And from that which is stated here: “Only her lips moved,” the halakha that one who prays must enunciate the words with his lips, not only contemplate them in his heart, is derived. From that which is written here: “And her voice could not be heard,” the halakha that one is forbidden to raise his voice in his Amida prayer as it must be recited silently. From the continuation of the verse here: “So Eli thought her to be drunk,” the halakha that a drunk person is forbidden to pray. That is why he rebuked her.

Berakhot 31a:28

On the subject of Eli’s rebuke of Hannah, as it is stated: “And Eli said to her: How long will you remain drunk? Remove your wine from yourself” (I Samuel 1:14); R' Elazar said: From here the halakha that one who sees in another

Berakhot 31b:5

The verse continues: “And Eli answered and said: May you go in peace” (I Samuel 1:17). R' Elazar said: From here the halakha is derived that one who suspects another of something that he has not done, he must appease him. Moreover, the one who suspected him must bless him, as Eli continued and offered Hannah a blessing, as it is stated: “And may the God of Israel grant your request that you have asked of Him” (I Samuel 1:17).

Berakhot 31b:20

Additionally, Hannah’s emphasis in speaking to Eli, “for this youth I prayed” (I Samuel 1:27), indicates that she came to protect him from danger. As R' Elazar said: Samuel was one who taught halakha in the presence of his teacher. Hannah wanted to pray that he not be punished by death at the hand of Heaven for his transgression, as it is stated: “And they slaughtered the cow and they brought the youth to Eli” (I Samuel 1:25). This verse is puzzling. Because they slaughtered the cow, therefore, they brought the youth to Eli? What does one have to do with the next?

Berakhot 31b:21

Rather, this is what happened: Eli said to those who brought the offering: Call a priest; he will come and slaughter the offering. Samuel saw them looking for a priest to slaughter the animal. He said to them: Why do you need to look for a priest to slaughter it? Slaughter of an offering performed by a non-priest is valid. They brought him before Eli to clarify his statement. Eli said to him: How do you know this? Samuel said to him: Is it written in the Torah: And the priest shall slaughter indicating that the offering may only be slaughtered by a priest? It is written: “And the priests shall offer,” only from the stage of receiving the blood in the bowls and onward is it a mitzva incumbent upon priests alone. From here the halakha that slaughter by a non-priest is acceptable is derived.

And R' Shimon ben Yoḥai would likewise say: Elimelech and his sons Mahlon and Chilion were prominent members of their generation and were leaders of their generation. And for what reason were they punished? They were punished because they left Eretz Yisrael to go outside of Eretz Yisrael, as it is stated concerning Naomi and Ruth: "And all the city was astir concerning them, and the women said: Is this Naomi?" (Ruth 1:19). The Talmud asks: What is the meaning of the phrase: "Is this Naomi"? How does this indicate that her husband and sons were punished for leaving Eretz Yisrael? R' Yitzḥak says that the women said: Have you seen what befell Naomi, who left Eretz Yisrael for outside of Eretz Yisrael? Not only did she not escape tribulations there, but she lost her status entirely.

The Talmud provides a mnemonic for the ensuing statements that Rav Ḥanan bar Rava said that Rav said: Melech; Abraham; ten years; when he died; and He alone was exalted. Rav Ḥanan bar Rava says that Rav says: With regard to Elimelech, and Boaz's father, Salmon, and So-and-so, the unnamed relative who was a closer relative to Elimelech than Boaz (Ruth 4:1), and Naomi's father, all of these are descendants of Nahshon, son of Amminadab, the head of the tribe of Judah (see Ruth 4:20–21 and Numbers 2:3). The Talmud asks: What is he teaching us by this statement? He is teaching that even in the case of one who has the merit of his ancestors to protect him, this merit does not stand for him when he leaves Eretz Yisrael to go outside of Eretz Yisrael, as Elimelech died on account of this sin.

It is taught in a baraita: A man dies only to his wife, i.e., it is primarily she who suffers the pain and sadness resulting from his death, and a woman dies only to her husband. A man dies only to his wife, as it is stated: "And Elimelech, Naomi's husband, died" (Ruth 1:3), and a woman dies only to her husband, as it is stated in Jacob's parting words to Joseph: "And as for me, when I came from Paddan, Rachel died on me" (Genesis 48:7).

The verse states: "And Job's three friends heard of all this evil that was come upon him, they came every one from his own place, Eliphaz the Temanite, and Bildad the Shuhite, and Zophar the Naamathite; for they had made an appointment together to come to mourn with him and to comfort him" (Job 2:11). What does "they had made an appointment together" mean? Rav Yehuda says that Rav says: This phrase teaches that they all entered through one gate at the same time. And a Sage taught in a baraita: There were three hundred parasangs between each and every one of them, i.e., each one lived three hundred parasangs away from the other.

Avodah Zarah 3a:9

Let Nebuchadnezzar come and testify about Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah that they did not prostrate themselves before a graven image. Let Darius come and testify about Daniel that he did not neglect his prayer (see Daniel 6). Let Bildad the Shuhite, and Zophar the Naamathite, and Eliphaz the Temanite, and Elihu, son of Barachel, the Buzite, friends of Job (see Job 2:11 and 32:2) come and testify about the Jewish people that they fulfilled the Torah in its entirety. As it is stated: "All the nations are gathered together...let them bring their witnesses, that they may be justified" (Isaiah 43:9), i.e., the gathered gentiles will submit testimony on behalf of the Jewish people and demonstrate the Jews' righteousness.

Elisha (58 total matches, showing 5)

Berakhot 7a:4

Similarly, it was taught in a baraita that R' Yishmael ben Elisha, the High Priest, said: Once, on Yom Kippur, I entered the innermost sanctum, the Holy of Holies, to offer incense, and in a vision I saw Akatriel Ya, YHWH of Hosts, one of the names of God expressing His ultimate authority, seated upon a high and exalted throne (see Isaiah 6). And He said to me: Yishmael, My son, bless Me.
I said to Him the prayer that God prays: "May it be Your will that Your mercy overcome Your anger, and may Your mercy prevail over Your other attributes, and may You act toward Your children with the attribute of mercy, and may You enter before them beyond the letter of the law."
The Holy One, Blessed be He, nodded His head and accepted the blessing. This event teaches us that you should not take the blessing of an ordinary person lightly. If God asked for and accepted a man's blessing, all the more so that a man must value the blessing of another man.

Berakhot 7b:26

And R' Yoḥanan said in the name of R' Shimon ben Yoḥai: Service of Torah is greater than its study, i.e., serving a Torah scholar and spending time in his company is greater than learning Torah from him. Torah study is one component of a Torah life, but one who serves a Torah scholar learns about every aspect of life from his actions. This is derived from the verse that speaks in praise of Elisha, as it is stated: "Here is Elisha son of Shafat, who poured water over Elijah's hands" (II Kings 3:11). The verse does not say that he learned from Elijah, rather that he poured water, which teaches that the service of Torah represented by Elisha pouring water over Elijah's hands is greater than its study.

Berakhot 10a:26

With regard to redemption and prayer, the Talmud tells the story of Hezekiah's illness, his prayer to God, and subsequent recuperation. Rav Hamnuna said: What is the meaning of that which is written praising God: "Who is like the wise man, and who knows the interpretation [pesher] of the matter" (Ecclesiastes 8:1)? This verse means: Who is like God, Who knows how to effect compromise [peshara] between two righteous individuals, between Hezekiah, the king of Judea, and Isaiah the prophet. They disagreed over which of them should visit the other. Hezekiah said: Let Isaiah come to me, as that is what we find with regard to Elijah the prophet, who went to Ahab, the king of Israel, as it is stated: "And Elijah went to appear to Ahab" (I Kings 18:2). This proves that it is the prophet who must seek out the king. And Isaiah said: Let Hezekiah come to me, as that is what we find with regard to Yehoram ben Ahab, king of Israel, who went to Elisha the prophet, as it is stated: "So the king of Israel, Jehosaphat and the king of Edom went down to him" (II Kings 3:12).

Berakhot 10b:21

Abaye, and some say R' Yitzḥak, said: A great man who seeks to enjoy the contributions of those who seek to honor him may enjoy those gifts, as Elisha enjoyed gifts given him by the woman from Shunem, among others. And one who does not seek to enjoy these gifts should not enjoy them, as was the practice of the prophet Samuel from Rama, who would not accept gifts from anyone at all. From where do we know that this was Samuel's custom? As it is stated: "And he returned to Rama, for there was his house, and there he judged Israel, and he built an altar to YHWH" (I Samuel 7:17). And similarly, R' Yoḥanan said: Every place where Samuel went, his house was with him, so he would have everything that he needed and not be forced to benefit from public contributions. One may opt to conduct himself in accordance with either of these paths.

Berakhot 17b:1

"There is no breach"; that our faction of Sages should not be like the faction of David, from which Ahitophel emerged, who caused a breach in the kingdom of David.
"And no going forth"; that our faction should not be like the faction of Saul, from which Doeg the Edomite emerged, who set forth on an evil path.
"And no outcry"; that our faction should not be like the faction of Elisha, from which Geihazi emerged.
"In our open places"; that we should not have a child or student who overcooks his food in public, i.e., who sins in public and causes others to sin, as in the well-known case of Jesus the Nazarene.

Rava says: One who marries a woman needs to first examine her brothers so that he will know in advance what character his children will have, as it is stated: "And Aaron took Elisheva, the daughter of Amminadav, the sister of Nahshon" (Exodus 6:23). By inference from that which is stated: "The daughter of Amminadav," do I not know that she is the sister of Nahshon, as Nahshon was the son of Amminadav? What is the meaning when the verse states: "The sister of Nahshon"? From here one learns that one who marries a woman needs to examine her brothers. The reason is as the Sages taught: Most sons resemble the mother's brothers.

The Talmud raises an objection to Rav's statement from a baraita: Elisheva, the daughter of Amminadav and the wife of Aaron, had five more reasons for joy than the other daughters of Israel on the day the Tabernacle was dedicated: Her brother-in-law, Moses, was a king; her husband, Aaron, was the High Priest; her son, Elazar, was the deputy High Priest; her son's son, Pinehas, was the priest anointed for war, who would lead the army out to battle; and her brother, Nahshon, son of Amminadav, was the prince of the tribe of Judah, who brought his offering on that day, as the first of all the princes. But on that same day of joy she was in mourning for her two sons, Nadav and Avihu, who died on that day.

Megillah 4a:2

The Talmud asks: Did Joshua, son of Nun, really build these cities? Didn't Elpaal build them at a later date, as it is written: "And the sons of Elpaal: Eber, and Misham, and Shemed, who built Ono and Lod, with its hamlets" (I Chronicles 8:12)? The Talmud counters: According to your reasoning, that this verse proves that these cities were built later, you can also say that Asa, king of Judah, built them, as it is written: "And he, Asa, built fortified cities in Judah" (see II Chronicles 14:5). Therefore, it is apparent that these cities were built more than once.

Megillah 4a:3

R' Elazar said: These cities were surrounded by a wall since the days of Joshua, son of Nun, and they were destroyed in the days of the concubine in Gibea, as they stood in the tribal territory of Benjamin, and in that war all of the cities of Benjamin were destroyed (see Judges, chapters 19–21). Elpaal then came and built them again. They then fell in the wars between Judah and Israel, and Asa came and restored them.

Ephron (6 total matches, showing 5)

Kiddushin 2a:4

The Talmud continues its explanation: And from where do we derive that betrothal is accomplished by means of giving money? It is derived by means of a verbal analogy between the term expressing taking stated with regard to betrothal and from the term expressing taking with regard to the field of Ephron. How so? It is written here, with regard to marriage: "When a man takes a woman" (Deuteronomy 24:1), and it is written there, concerning Abraham's purchase of the field of the Cave of Machpelah from Ephron the Hittite: "I will give money for the field; take it from me" (Genesis 23:13). This verbal analogy teaches that just as Ephron's field was acquired with money, so too, a woman can be acquired with money.

Kiddushin 3a:6

The Talmud answers: The number serves to exclude acquisition through symbolic exchange, i.e., a pro forma act of acquisition effecting the transfer of ownership of an article. Although a woman can be betrothed by means of money or an item of monetary value, she is not betrothed if she is given an item by symbolic exchange. The Talmud explains why this needs to be excluded: It might enter your mind to say that since the Sages derive the acquisition of a woman by verbal analogy between the term expressing taking stated with regard to betrothal from the term expressing taking with regard to the field of Ephron, it can be suggested that just as a field can be acquired through symbolic exchange, so too, a woman can be acquired through symbolic exchange. Therefore, the tanna teaches us that this is not the case.

Kiddushin 11b:5

The Talmud asks: But there is the case of the betrothal of a woman, as it is written: "When a man takes a woman and engages in sexual intercourse with her" (Deuteronomy 24:1), and one derives betrothal through money by a verbal analogy of the term "taking" used here and "taking" from the case of the field of Ephron. And yet we learned in the mishna that Beit Hillel say one can betroth a woman with one peruta or with any item that is worth one peruta. If so, shall we say that Rav Asi, who claims that all sums of money mentioned in the Torah are in Tyrian coinage, stated his opinion in accordance with the opinion of Beit Shammai?

Bava Metzia 87a:3

From where do we derive this principle that the wicked say much and do not do even a little? We derive it from Ephron. Initially, it is written that Ephron said to Abraham: "A piece of land worth four hundred shekels of silver, what is that between me and you?" (Genesis 23:15). And ultimately it is written: "And Abraham listened to Ephron; and Abraham weighed to Ephron the silver, which he had named in the hearing of the children of Heth, four hundred shekels of silver, current money with the merchant" (Genesis 23:16), i.e., shekels that could be used in any location. This teaches that not only did Ephron take shekels from Abraham, he took from him only centenaria [kantarei], i.e., superior coins, as there is a place where they call a shekel a centenarius.

Bava Batra 69b:1

The Talmud asks: From where are these matters, i.e., that a grafted carob and a sycamore trunk are not included in the sale of a field, derived? Rav Yehuda said that Rav said: As the verse states: "So the field of Ephron, which was in Machpelah, which was before Mamre, the field, and the cave that was within it, and all the trees that were in the field, that were in all the boundaries around, were established for Abraham as a possession" (Genesis 23:17–18). This teaches that anything that requires a boundary around it, as it does not have natural demarcations, is included in the sale of a field. This excludes these trees, i.e., the grafted carob and the sycamore trunk, which do not require a boundary around them, as they stand out individually on their own. Rav Mesharshiyya says: From here there is a source that the acquisition of the actual boundaries in a sale is from the Torah.

R' Yehoshua ben Levi said: Gehenna has seven names, and they are as follows: She'ol, Avadon, Be'er Shaḥat, Bor Shaon, Tit HaYaven, Tzalmavet, and Eretz HaTaḥtit.

Eruvin 19a:17

She'ol, as it is written: "Out of the belly of the nether world [she'ol] I cried and You did hear my voice" (Jonah 2:3). Avadon, as it is written: "Shall Your steadfast love be reported in the grave or Your faithfulness in destruction [avadon]?" (Psalms 88:12). Be'er Shaḥat, as it is written: "For You will not abandon my soul to the nether world; nor will You suffer Your pious one to see the pit [shaḥat]" (Psalms 16:10). And Bor Shaon and Tit HaYaven, as it is written: "He brought me up also out of the gruesome pit [bor shaon], out of the miry clay [tit hayaven]" (Psalms 40:3). And Tzalmavet, as it is written: "Such as sat in darkness and in the shadow of death [tzalmavet], bound in affliction and iron" (Psalms 107:10). And with regard to Eretz Taḥtit, i.e., the underworld, it is known by tradition that this is its name.

Taanit 16a:1

one who is humiliated by others. Accordingly, ashes are placed on the heads of the leaders of the community by others, to increase the appearance of their suffering. The Talmud asks: And where exactly are the ashes placed upon their heads? R' Yitzḥak said: On the place of the phylacteries of the head, as it is stated: "To appoint to those who mourn in Zion, to give to them an ornament [pe'er] instead of ashes" (Isaiah 61:3). This verse likens the placement of ashes on one's head to an ornament, and the term pe'er is traditionally interpreted as a reference to phylacteries.

Moed Katan 15a:6

§ The Talmud moves on to another halakha: A mourner is prohibited from donning phylacteries. This is derived from the fact that the Merciful One says to Ezekiel, while he is in mourning: "Bind your headwear [pe'er] upon yourself" (Ezekiel 24:17). The word pe'er alludes to phylacteries. Ezekiel was unique in that he was commanded to put on phylacteries while in mourning, which proves by inference that everyone else is prohibited from doing so.

Yevamot 34b:1

But didn't Tamar become pregnant from the first act of intercourse, despite the fact that she was a virgin at the time of her sexual act with Judah? Rav Naḥman said: Tamar broke her hymen with her finger prior to intercourse, and it is due to this that she became pregnant from the first act of intercourse, as R' Yitzḥak said: All of those women from the household of Rabbi Yehuda HaNasi who break their hymens are named Tamar by nickname. And why are they named Tamar? They are called this on account of Tamar, who broke her hymen with her finger. The Talmud wonders about the proof from Tamar itself: But weren't there Er and Onan, her previous husbands, who presumably engaged in sexual intercourse with her? The Talmud responds: Er and Onan engaged in sexual intercourse in an atypical manner, i.e., anal intercourse, and therefore she was still a virgin.

The Talmud raises an objection from a baraita: After a woman gives birth, her husband penetrates inside and spills his semen outside for the entire twenty-four months during which the baby is breastfeeding, so that his wife not become pregnant, as that would terminate her milk production and the child might die. This is the statement of R' Eliezer. They said to him: These acts are nothing other than acts similar to those of Er and Onan, which are prohibited. Regardless, it can be deduced from here that Er and Onan engaged in normative sexual intercourse with Tamar, only they did not fully complete the sexual act.

Yevamot 34b:3

The Talmud answers: The Tosefta actually means that what they did was similar to the act of Er and Onan in some ways, but not similar to the act of Er and Onan in other ways. The Talmud elaborates: It was similar to the act of Er and Onan in that there was a spilling of semen, as it is written: "And it came to pass when he had intercourse with his brother's wife, that he spilled it on the ground" (Genesis 38:9). Yet it was not similar to the act of Er and Onan, as there Er and Onan engaged in sexual intercourse in an atypical manner, i.e., anal intercourse, while here the Tosefta is referring to sexual intercourse in a typical manner.

Sotah 13b:8

R' Shmuel bar Naḥmani says: The episode with regard to Judah also indicates that one who initiates performance of a mitzva but does not complete it will also bury his wife and children as Judah did, as it is written: "And in process of time Shua's daughter, the wife of Judah, died" (Genesis 38:12), and it is written further: "And the sons of Judah: Er, and Onan, and Shelah, and Perez, and Zerah; but Er and Onan died in the land of Canaan" (Genesis 46:12).

Berakhot 7b:6

Tangential to the mention of Leah's son, Judah, and the reason for his name, the Talmud explains the sources for other names, including Reuben. R' Elazar said: Reuben's name should be considered a prophecy by Leah, as Leah said: See [re'u] the difference between my son [beni] and the son of my father-in-law, Esau, son of Isaac. Even though Esau knowingly sold his birthright to his brother Jacob, as it is written: "And he sold his birthright to Jacob" (Genesis 25:33), nonetheless, behold what is written about him: "And Esau hated Jacob" (Genesis 27:41).

Shabbat 89b:3

Rather, now God Himself says what punishment we deserve. The Holy One, Blessed be He, said to them: Since you made yourselves dependent on Me, "If your sins be like scarlet, they will become white like snow."

The Talmud points out that this opinion disagrees with R' Abba bar Kahana, as R' Abba bar Kahana said: Until three generations passed, the moral contamination did not cease from our forefathers: Abraham fathered Ishmael, who was of lowly moral stature; Isaac fathered Esau; finally, Jacob fathered twelve tribes in whom there was no flaw. R' Abba bar Kahana holds that the moral contamination ceased in the Patriarchs long before the Revelation at Sinai.

Pesachim 5a:14

Rather, the Talmud explains that those three times the word rishon is mentioned with regard to the Festivals are necessary for that which the school of R' Yishmael taught. As the school of R' Yishmael taught: In reward for the three times the word rishon is stated with regard to the Festivals observed by the Jewish people, they were entitled to three matters also referred to as rishon*: To eradicate the descendants of Esau, to the construction of the Temple, and to the name of Messiah.

Pesachim 5a:15

The tanna provides the sources for his statement. To eradicate the descendants of Esau, as it is written: "And the first [harishon] came forth red, all over like a hairy mantle; and they called his name Esau" (Genesis 25:25). And to the construction of the Temple, as it is written: "The Throne of Glory, on High from the beginning [merishon], the place of our Temple" (Jeremiah 17:12). And the Jewish people were also entitled to the name of Messiah, as it is written: "A harbinger [rishon] to Zion I will give: Behold, behold them; and to Jerusalem a messenger of good tidings" (Isaiah 41:27). However, harishon stated with regard to Passover is referring to the day before the Festival.

Pesachim 117a:19

R' Elazar HaModa'i says: Deborah and Barak recited it when Sisera stood against them (see Judges 4–5). They said: Not to us, and the Divine Spirit responded and said to them: For My own sake, for My own sake, will I do it. R' Elazar ben Azarya says: Hezekiah and his company recited it when Sennacherib stood against them (see II Kings 18–19). They said: Not to us and the Divine Spirit responded: For My own sake. R' Akiva says: Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah recited it when the wicked Nebuchadnezzar stood against them (see Daniel 3). They said: Not to us, and the Divine Spirit responded: For My own sake. R' Yosei HaGelili says: Mordecai and Esther recited it when the wicked Haman stood against them. Rather, Ravina said: This matter we did not learn from the Torah of Moses, our teacher; rather, we learned it from the texts of the tradition, i.e., the Prophets and Writings: "On the twenty-fourth day of the eleventh month, which is the month of Shevat" (Zechariah 1:7). If Shevat is the eleventh month, Nisan must be the first month. Rabba bar Ulla said: It is derived from here, as it is stated: "So Esther was taken to the king Ahasuerus into his royal house in the tenth month, which is the month of Tevet" (Esther 2:16).

Yoma 29a:4

In tractate Megilla, the Talmud states that Queen Esther prophetically recited this Psalm in reference to her situation as she was about to come before King Ahasuerus without being summoned. R' Zeira said: Why is Esther likened to a hind? It is to tell you: Just as in the case of a hind its womb is narrow and it is desirable to its mate at each and every hour like it is at the first hour, so too, Esther was desirable to Ahasuerus at each and every hour like she was at the first hour. R' Asi said: Why was Esther likened to the dawn? It is to tell you: Just as the dawn is the conclusion of the entire night, so too, Esther was the conclusion of all miracles performed for the entire Jewish people.

Yoma 29a:5

The Talmud asks: But isn't there the miracle of Hanukkah, which was performed many years later? The Talmud answers: It is true that additional miracles were performed after the miracle of Purim; however, it is with regard to miracles for which permission was granted to write them in the Bible that we are saying that the miracle of Purim was the last one. The Talmud asks: That works out well according to the one who said: Permission was granted to write the Scroll of Esther in the Bible as a book whose sanctity equals that of the other books of the Bible. However, according to the one who said: Permission was not granted to write the Scroll of Esther in the Bible, and its sanctity does not reach the level of the other books of the Bible, what can be said?

Megillah 11b:7

The Talmud explains: What is this calculation? As it is written with regard to Jeremiah's prophecy of a return to Eretz Yisrael: "After seventy years are accomplished for Babylonia I will remember you and perform My good word toward you, enabling you to return to this place" (Jeremiah 29:10), and elsewhere it is written in a slightly different formulation: "In the first year of his reign, I, Daniel, meditated in the books, over the number of the years, which the word of YHWH came to Jeremiah the prophet, that He would accomplish for the desolations of Jerusalem seventy years" (Daniel 9:2). He, Belshazzar, calculated as follows: Forty-five years of Nebuchadnezzar, and twenty-three of Evil-merodach, and two of his own, for a total of seventy years that had passed without redemption. He was therefore certain that Jeremiah's prophecy would no longer be fulfilled, and he therefore said: I will take out the vessels of the Holy Temple and use them.

Megillah 11b:9

The Talmud explains: They were exiled in the seventh year after Nebuchadnezzar's subjugation of Jehoiakim, in what was known as the exile of Jehoiachin, which was actually the eighth year of Nebuchadnezzar's reign. Then later they were exiled a second time in the eighteenth year after the subjugation of Jehoiakim, in what was known as the exile of Zedekiah, which was actually in the nineteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar's reign, as the Master said: In the first year of his reign, Nebuchadnezzar conquered Nineveh; in his second year he conquered Jehoiakim. And it is written: "And it came to pass in the thirty-seventh year of the exile of Jehoiachin, king of Judea, in the twelfth month, on the twenty-fifth day of the month, that Evil-merodach, king of Babylonia, in the first year of his reign, lifted up the head of Jehoiachin, king of Judea, and brought him out of prison" (Jeremiah 52:31).

Megillah 11b:10

The Talmud calculates: Since Evil-merodach acted in the first year of his reign, immediately after coming to power, it turns out that Nebuchadnezzar ruled for eight years before he sent Jehoiachin into exile, and thirty-seven years during which Jehoiachin was in prison. This equals forty-five years of the reign of Nebuchadnezzar. And the twenty-three years of Evil-merodach are known through tradition. And together with the two years of Belshazzar, this brings the count of the years of exile to seventy. At that point Belshazzar said to himself: Now for sure they will not be redeemed. Therefore, I will take out the vessels of the Holy Temple and use them.

There are also three books of Prophets whose appearance in a dream is meaningful: One who sees the book of Kings should anticipate greatness, royalty; one who sees the book of Ezekiel should anticipate wisdom, as the configuration of the Divine Chariot is described therein; one who sees the book of Isaiah should anticipate consolation; and one who sees the book of Jeremiah should be concerned about calamity, because Jeremiah prophesied extensively of impending calamity.

Shabbat 13b:8

Rav Yehuda said that Rav said: Truly, that man is remembered for the good, and his name is Ḥananya ben Ḥizkiya, as if not for him, the book of Ezekiel would have been suppressed because its contents, in many details, contradict matters of Torah. The Sages sought to suppress the book and exclude it from the canon. What did he, Ḥananya ben Ḥizkiya, do? They brought him three hundred jugs of oil, for light and food, up to his upper story, and he sat isolated in the upper story and did not move from there until he homiletically interpreted all of those verses in the book of Ezekiel that seemed contradictory, and resolved the contradictions.

Eruvin 21a:13

Rav Ḥisda said: Mari bar Mar interpreted homiletically: What is the meaning of that which is written: "I have seen a limit to every purpose; but Your commandment is exceedingly broad" (Psalms 119:96)? This idea with regard to the breadth of the Torah was stated by David, but he did not explain it; it was stated by Job, but he too did not explain it; it was stated by Ezekiel, but he also did not explain it, until Zechariah, son of Berechiah, son of Iddo, came and explained it.

Eruvin 21a:15

And similarly, it was stated by Ezekiel, but he also did not explain it, as it is written: "And He spread it," the scroll, "before me, and it was written inside and outside; and in it was written lamentations, and melody [hegeh], and woe [vahi]" (Ezekiel 2:10).

Rav Ashi said to him: But before Ezekiel came, who said this halakha? How was it known? Ravina retorted: And according to your reasoning, the same question could be asked with regard to that which Rav Ḥisda said concerning the disqualification of an uncircumcised priest from serving in the Temple: This matter we did not learn from the Torah of Moses our teacher, as it is not written explicitly in the Torah; rather, we learned it from the words of Ezekiel ben Buzi, as the verse states: "No foreigner, uncircumcised of heart or uncircumcised of flesh, shall enter into My sanctuary" (Ezekiel 44:9). One could ask here as well: Before Ezekiel came, who said this halakha? Rather, perforce, they learned it as a tradition and then Ezekiel came and supported it with a verse. Here, too, they learned it as a tradition and then Ezekiel came and supported it with a verse.

Moed Katan 5a:14

Ravina said to Rav Ashi: Before the prophet Ezekiel came and alluded to this obligation, who said that graves must be marked? Even before the time of Ezekiel, people were careful with regard to ritual impurity. Rav Ashi responded: And according to your reasoning, that Ezekiel was introducing a new halakha, the same question can be raised with regard to this statement that Rav Ḥisda said. As Rav Ḥisda said with regard to the halakha that one who is uncircumcised or an apostate may not serve in the Temple: This matter we did not learn from the Torah of Moses our teacher, but rather, we learned it from the words of the prophet Ezekiel ben Buzi, who said of such individuals: "No stranger, uncircumcised in heart, or uncircumcised in flesh, shall enter into My Sanctuary to serve Me" (Ezekiel 44:9).

The Talmud interprets homiletically that until Your people will cross refers to the first entry into Eretz Yisrael during the time of Joshua, while until the people You have acquired pass over refers to the second entry following the exile in Babylonia. Based on the juxtaposition of these two entries in this single verse, the Sages said: Israel was worthy of having a miracle performed on its behalf in the time of Ezra the scribe, just as one was performed on their behalf in the time of Joshua bin Nun. However, transgression caused the absence of a miracle.

Up to now, discussion has focused on various problems pertaining to the laws of immersion as they concern one whose impurity is due to seminal emission. The Talmud asks: Since all of the amora'im* and tanna'im disagree with regard to the decree of Ezra, let us examine how Ezra instituted this ordinance, as this is not an uncommon circumstance and we can see how they conducted themselves.

Berakhot 22b:3

Abaye said: Ezra did not institute a sweeping ordinance concerning every case of one who experienced a seminal emission; rather, he instituted only that a healthy person who experienced a normal seminal emission is required to immerse himself in forty se'a, while for a healthy person who experienced an involuntary seminal emission, nine *kav are sufficient. And the amora'im came and disagreed with regard to a sick person. One Sage held that a sick person who experienced a normal seminal emission is considered like a healthy person who experienced a normal seminal emission, while a sick person who experienced an involuntary seminal emission is considered like a healthy person who experienced an involuntary seminal emission. However, another Sage maintained that a sick person who experienced a normal seminal emission is considered like a healthy person who experienced an involuntary seminal emission, and consequently requires only that nine kav be poured over him, while a sick person who experienced an involuntary seminal emission is exempt from any form of immersion or purification.

Berakhot 22b:4

Rava said: Although Ezra instituted immersion for one who experienced a seminal emission, did he institute the pouring of nine kav*? Didn't the Master say that we have a tradition that Ezra only instituted immersion for those who experienced a seminal emission? Rather, Rava said: We must explain that the diverse opinions developed after Ezra's decree. Ezra himself instituted immersion in forty *se'a only for a healthy person who experienced a normal seminal emission. And the Sages came and instituted that a healthy person who experienced an involuntary seminal emission should have nine *kav poured over him. And then the amora'im came and disagreed with regard to a sick person; one Sage held that a sick person who experienced a normal seminal emission is considered like a healthy person who experienced a normal seminal emission, while a sick person who experienced an involuntary seminal emission is considered like a healthy person who experienced an involuntary seminal emission, another Sage maintained that only a healthy person who experienced a normal seminal emission is required to immerse himself in forty se'a while a sick person who experienced a normal seminal emission is considered like a healthy person who experienced an involuntary seminal emission, requiring only nine kav. But a sick person who experienced an involuntary seminal emission is exempt from any form of immersion or purification.

Berakhot 4b:23

After this discussion of the statement that R' Elazar said that R' Avina said, another statement of R' Elazar is cited. R' Elazar bar Avina said: What was said about the angel Michael is greater than what was said about the angel Gabriel. As about Michael, it is written: "And one of the seraphim flew to me" (Isaiah 6:6), indicating that with a single flight, the seraph arrived and performed his mission, while regarding Gabriel, it is written: "The man, Gabriel, whom I had seen at the beginning, in a vision, being caused to fly swiftly, approached close to me about the time of the evening offering" (Daniel 9:21). The double language used in the phrase "to fly swiftly [muaf biaf]," indicates that he did not arrive at his destination in a single flight, but rather, that it took him two flights.

Berakhot 4b:26

This discussion in the Talmud concludes with a Tosefta that arrives at a hierarchy of angels based on the number of flights required by each to arrive at his destination. It was taught in a Tosefta: Michael, as stated above, in one flight; Gabriel, in two flights; Elijah the Prophet, in four flights; and the Angel of Death, in eight flights. During a time of plague, however, when the Angel of Death seems ubiquitous, he arrives everywhere in one flight.

Shabbat 55a:6

The Holy One, Blessed be He, said to the angel Gabriel: Go and inscribe a tav of ink on the foreheads of the righteous as a sign so that the angels of destruction will not have dominion over them. And inscribe a tav of blood on the foreheads of the wicked as a sign so that the angels of destruction will have dominion over them.

Shabbat 56b:14

Rav Yehuda said that Shmuel said: When Solomon married Pharaoh's daughter, the angel Gabriel descended from heaven and implanted a reed into the sea, and a sandbar grew around it, growing larger each year, and upon it the great city of Rome was built, which became God's instrument to punish Israel.

Pesachim 118a:20

And some say that the angel Gabriel recited: "And the truth of YHWH endures forever." This Talmud elaborates: When the evil Nimrod threw our father, Abraham, into the fiery furnace, Gabriel said before God: Master of the Universe, I will descend and cool the furnace, and I will thereby save the righteous Abraham from the fiery furnace. The Holy One, Blessed be He, said to him: I am unique in my world and Abraham is still unique in his world. It is fitting for the unique to save the unique. Therefore, God Himself went down and saved him. And as God, does not withhold reward from any creature who sought to perform a good deed, He said to Gabriel: You will merit the rescue of three of his descendants under similar circumstances.

Shabbat 67b:1

After some discussion of the ways of the Amorite, the Talmud cites additional statements from the Amorite chapter in the Tosefta and from other sources on this topic. One who says: My fortune be fortunate [gad gaddi] and be not weary by day or by night; that statement contains an element of the ways of the Amorite. R' Yehuda says: That is more severe than the ways of the Amorite, as gad is nothing other than a term of idolatry, as it is stated: "And you that forsake YHWH, that forget My holy mountain, that prepare a table for Gad, and that offer mingled wine in full measure unto Meni" (Isaiah 65:11). Gad gaddi is a form of prayer to an idol.

Shabbat 103a:8

MISHNA: One who writes two letters on Shabbat, whether he did so with his right hand or his left, whether they were the same letter or two different letters, whether he did so using two different types of ink, in any language, he is liable. R' Yosei said: One is deemed liable for writing two letters only due to marking, as they would write symbols on adjacent beams of the Tabernacle to know which beam was another beam's counterpart. R' Yehuda said: We found that one is liable for writing even if he did not complete what he was writing, so that he wrote a small name that constituted part of a longer name, e.g., Shem [shin mem] from the name Shimon or from Shmuel; Noa? [nun Ḥet] from Naḥor; Dan [dalet nun] from Daniel; Gad [gimmel dalet] from Gad diel. In all of these cases, the first two letters of the longer name constitute the shorter name.

therefore, the verse states "one," which means one complete labor. How can the two phrases be reconciled? Rather it must be explained that one is liable only if he writes a small name that constitutes part of a longer name, e.g., Shem from the name Shimon or from Shmuel, Noa? from Naḥor, Dan from Daniel, Gad from Gad diel. R' Yehuda says: One is liable even if he wrote only two letters that are one type of letter, e.g., shesh [shin shin], tet [tav tav], rar [reish reish], gag [gimmel gimmel], Ḥa? [Ḥet Ḥet].

Yoma 75a:11

With regard to the manna, the Torah further states: "And it was white [lavan] like coriander seed; and its flavor was like wafers made of honey" (Exodus 16:31). The Talmud questions this, since coriander is brown, not white. R' Asi said: The manna was round like coriander seed but white like a pearl. This was also taught in a baraita: Coriander [gad] is so named because it is similar to flax seeds on their stalks, which are bound [agud] in a bundle.

Yoma 75a:12

Others say: It was called coriander [gad] because it is similar to a tale [hag gada], which draws a person's heart toward it, just like water, which is essential for life, draws one. It was taught in another baraita: Why is it called gad? Because it told [maggid] the Jewish people the answer to issues of uncertainty, such as the paternity of a baby. If a woman remarries within two months after her divorce or the death of her husband and gives birth seven months after her remarriage, it is unclear if the baby gestated for seven months and is the son of the second husband or for nine months and is the son of the first husband. The manna would tell them if the baby was born after nine months and belongs to the first husband, or if the baby was born after seven months and belongs to the second husband. Since the manna was collected by each family based on the number of its biological members, the manna established the baby's paternity.

Bava Batra 15a:8

It is also stated in the baraita that Samuel wrote his own book. The Talmud asks: But isn't it written: "And Samuel died" (I Samuel 28:3)? The Talmud answers: Gad the seer and Nathan the prophet finished it.

Gedaliah ben Ahikam (2 total matches)

Shevuot 20a:13

The Talmud raises an objection from a baraita: What is the bond mentioned in the Torah? A bond applies to one who says: It is incumbent upon me that I will not eat meat and that I will not drink wine like on the day that his, i.e., my, father died, or: Like on the day that so-and-so died, or: Like on the day that Gedaliah ben Ahikam was killed, or: Like on the day on which he saw Jerusalem in its destruction. One who makes one of these pronouncements is prohibited from eating meat and drinking wine. And Shmuel says: This is the case only when he is prohibited from eating meat and drinking wine by vow since that day, e.g., the day his father died.

Shevuot 20b:4

The Talmud discusses the baraita: One who says: It is incumbent upon me that I will not eat meat and that I will not drink wine like on the day that his father died. The Talmud asks: Isn't it obvious that he is prohibited from eating meat and drinking wine? Why does the baraita need to mention the specific example of a vow concerning the day his father died? The Talmud answers: It was necessary that the baraita state that the vow takes effect for the sake of the other example: Like on the day that Gedaliah ben Ahikam was killed. Otherwise, it may enter your mind to say: Since, even if he did not vow to refrain from eating meat or drinking wine on that day they would be prohibited to him anyway, as it is a public fast day, when he did vow to refrain from eating and drinking on that day, the prohibition of the vow would not take effect on him, and that subsequent vow would then not be associated with a vow, but with an ordinary prohibition. Therefore, the baraita teaches us that the vow made on the fast day takes effect and the second vow can be associated with it.

Sotah 9b:3

The baraita continues: And so we found with regard to Cain, who desired to inherit the whole world alone (see Genesis 4); and Korah, who desired the priesthood (see Numbers 16); and Balaam, who desired Balak's money (see Numbers 22); and Doeg, who was jealous of David (see I Samuel 21–22); and Ahithophel, who was also jealous of David (see II Samuel 16); and Gehazi, who took Naaman's money (see II Kings 5); and Absalom, who wanted the kingdom (see II Samuel 15); and Adonijah, who also wanted the kingdom (see I Kings 1); and Uzziah, who wanted to be the High Priest (see II Chronicles 26); and Haman, who wanted to kill all the Jews (see Esther 3:13). All of these were people who placed their eyes on that which is unfit for them, and consequently what they desired was not given to them, and what they had was taken from them.

Sotah 47a:5

§ The Sages taught: Elisha fell ill three times. One was a punishment for inciting the bears to attack the children; and one was a punishment for pushing Gehazi away with both hands, without leaving him the option to return; and one was the sickness from which he died, as an expression of illness is stated three times in the verse about Elisha: "And Elisha became sick [ḥala] with his illness [ḥolyo] from which he would die" (II Kings 13:14). The root ḥet, lamed, heh, which indicates illness, is used twice in this verse, and it is stated once that Elisha will die.

Sotah 47a:6

The Sages taught: It should always be the left, weaker, hand that pushes another away and the right, stronger, hand that draws him near. In other words, even when a student is rebuffed, he should be given the opportunity to return. This is not like Elisha, who pushed Gehazi away with both hands, and not like Yehoshua ben Peraḥya, who pushed Jesus the Nazarene, one of his students, away with both hands.

Sotah 47a:8

The Talmud clarifies the criticism: And did he take all that? But it was only money and garments that he took. R' Yitzḥak says: At that time, Elisha was engaged in the study of the topic of the eight impure creeping animals. He said to Gehazi: Wicked one, it is time for you to receive now, in this temporal world, the reward for studying the topic of the eight impure creeping animals. This is why the verse lists eight items. The Talmud adds parenthetically that Elisha also said to Gehazi: "And the leprosy of Naaman shall cleave to you and to your descendants forever" (II Kings 5:27), and that the verse later states: "Now there were four leprous men" (II Kings 7:3), about whom R' Yoḥanan says: This is referring to Gehazi and his three sons.

Sotah 47a:9

The verse states: "And Elisha came to Damascus" (II Kings 8:7). The Talmud asks: For what purpose did he go there? R' Yoḥanan says: He went to help Gehazi in repentance, but Gehazi would not agree to repent from his evil ways. Elisha said to him: Return from your sins. Gehazi said to him: This is the tradition that I received from you: Whoever sins and caused the masses to sin is not given the opportunity to repent.

Here too, she correctly perceived the character of her guest, as it is later stated: “And Geihazi approached her to push her away [lehodfa]” (II Kings 4:27). And R' Yosei, son of R' Ḥanina, said: He grabbed her by the majesty of her beauty [hod yofya], meaning that when he pushed her he grabbed her breasts in a licentious manner.

Berakhot 17b:1

“There is no breach”; that our faction of Sages should not be like the faction of David, from which Ahitophel emerged, who caused a breach in the kingdom of David.
“And no going forth”; that our faction should not be like the faction of Saul, from which Doeg the Edomite emerged, who set forth on an evil path.
“And no outcry”; that our faction should not be like the faction of Elisha, from which Geihazi emerged.
“In our open places”; that we should not have a child or student who overcooks his food in public, i.e., who sins in public and causes others to sin, as in the well-known case of Jesus the Nazarene.

As it is written: "And Gideon, and the one hundred men who were with him, came to the edge of camp at the beginning of the middle watch" (Judges 7:19). It was taught in the Tosefta: Middle means nothing other than that there is one before it and one after it. From the fact that the verse refers to a middle watch, the fact that the night is comprised of three watches may be inferred.

Berakhot 63a:7

The Talmud explains: And if you say: Boaz said this on his own, and it proves nothing with regard to normative practice, come and hear a proof from the verse: "The Lord is with you, mighty man of valor" (Judges 6:12). And if you say that it was an angel who said this to Gideon, that perhaps this verse was the angel informing Gideon that YHWH is with him, but it is not the standard formula of a greeting, come and hear proof from the verse: "And despise not your mother when she is old" (Proverbs 23:22); the customs of the nation's elders are an adequate source from which to derive halakha.

Rosh Hashanah 25a:16

And similarly it says: "And Samuel said to the people: It is YHWH Who made Moses and Aaron" (I Samuel 12:6). And it says further: "And YHWH sent Jerubaal and Bedan and Jephthah and Samuel" (I Samuel 12:11). The Talmud explains: Jerubaal, this is Gideon. And why is he called Jerubaal? The reason is that he waged a quarrel against Baal. Bedan, this is Samson. And why is he called Bedan? As he came from the tribe of Dan. Jephthah, in accordance with its regular meaning, i.e., this is referring to Jephthah himself and is not a nickname.

Gog and Magog (12 total matches, showing 5)

Berakhot 7b:11

And R' Yoḥanan said other aggadic statements in the name of R' Shimon ben Yoḥai: The existence of wayward children in a person's home is more troublesome than the war of Gog and Magog, the ultimate war, the climax of the travails of Messianic times. As it is stated: "A Psalm of David, when he fled from his son, Absalom" (Psalms 3:1). And it is written thereafter: "Lord, how numerous are my enemies, many have risen against me" (Psalms 3:2). While concerning the war of Gog and Magog, which is alluded to in the second chapter of Psalms, it is written: "Why are the nations in an uproar? And why do the peoples speak for naught? The kings of the earth stand up and the rulers take counsel together, against YHWH, and against His anointed...He that sits in heaven laughs, YHWH mocks them" (Psalms 2:1–4). Yet in this chapter describing the war of Gog and Magog "how numerous are my enemies" is not written, as it is not as difficult as raising a wayward son like Absalom.

Berakhot 10a:11

Why was the chapter of Absalom juxtaposed with the chapter of Gog and Magog? They are juxtaposed so that if a person should say to you, expressing doubt with regard to the prophecy of the war of Gog and Magog "against YHWH and against His anointed": Is there a slave who rebels against his master? Is there someone capable of rebelling against God? You too say to him: Is there a son who rebels against his father and severs the relationship with the one who brought him into the world and raised him? Yet, nevertheless, there was such a son, Absalom, and so too there can be a situation where people will seek to rebel against God.

The priest explains why the soldiers need not be terrified. “For YHWH your God is He that goes with you, to fight for you against your enemies, to save you” (Deuteronomy 20:4). In the end, he fell by the sword, and they fell with him (see I Samuel, chapter 17). The Ammonites came championed by Shobach. What was his end? In the end, he fell by the sword, and they fell with him (see II Samuel, chapter 10). But as for you, you are not so, reliant upon the strength of mortals: “For YHWH your God is He that goes with you, to fight for you against your enemies, to save you”; this verse is referring to the camp of the Ark of the Covenant that accompanies them out to war.

The mishna recorded the particulars of the priest’s address: The Philistines came championed by Goliath. The Talmud describes the battle between David and Goliath. R' Yoḥanan says: The verse indicates that he stood before God, with brazenness [gilui panim], as it is stated: “Choose yourselves a man [ish], and let him come down to me” (I Samuel 17:8), and man [ish] is referring to none other than God, as it is stated: “The Lord is a man [ish] of war” (Exodus 15:3). The Holy One, Blessed be He, said: I will hereby fell him by the son of a man [ben ish], as it is stated: “Now David was the son of that man [ben ish] of Ephrath” (I Samuel 17:12).

Sotah 42b:8

The Talmud continues its discussion of the battle of David and Goliath. “These four were born to Harafa in Gath; and they fell by the hand of David, and by the hand of his servants” (II Samuel 21:22). They sent this message to Ḥoni HaMe'aggel: Pray, and rain will fall. He prayed, but no rain fell. He drew a circle in the dust and stood inside it, in the manner that the prophet Habakkuk did, as it is stated: "And I will stand upon my watch and set myself upon the tower, and I will look out to see what He will say to me, and what I shall answer when I am reproved" (Habakkuk 2:1). This verse is taken to mean that Habakkuk fashioned a kind of prison for himself where he sat.

Megillah 31a:8

The baraita continues: On *Shavuot they read the portion of "Seven weeks," and they read as the haftara from Habakkuk, chapter 2, since it mentions the giving of the Torah at Sinai. Others say: They read the portion of "In the third month" (Exodus 19:1–20:23), which describes the giving of the Torah, and they read as the haftara from the account of the Divine Chariot (Ezekiel 1). Why then was she called Hadassah? On account of the righteous, who are called myrtles [hadassim], and so it states: “And he stood among the myrtles [hahadassim]” (Zechariah 1:8).

Megillah 13a:12

R' Neḥemya concurs and says: Hadassah was her real name. Why then was she called Esther? This was her non-Hebrew name, for owing to her beauty the nations of the world called her after Istahar, Venus. Ben Azzai says: Esther was neither tall nor short, but of average size like a myrtle tree, and therefore she was called Hadassah, the Hebrew name resembling that myrtle tree. R' Yehoshua ben Korḥa said: Esther was called Hadassah because she was greenish, having a pale complexion like a myrtle, but a cord of Divine grace was strung around her, endowing her with a beautiful appearance.

Sanhedrin 93a:5

In connection with this, R' Yoḥanan says in the name of R' Shimon ben Yoḥai: From here it is learned that corruption is linked to one who is corrupt, as this man was linked to Manasseh and Judah despite having no familial connection to them. R' Yosei bar Ḥanina says: That concept can be seen from here, in the matter of Adonijah, the son of David: "And he was also a very handsome man; and she gave birth to him after Absalom," (I Kings 1:6) but Adonijah wasn't the son of Haggith and Absalom was the son of Maachah, so why does the verse state: "And she gave birth to him after Absalom," as if they were sons of the same mother? Rather, since Adonijah acted in a manner fit for Absalom, who also rebelled against the monarchy, the verse linked him to Absalom, referring to him as his full brother. Here too, with regard to Jonathan, since he acted as Manasseh acted, the verse linked him to Manasseh.

Sanhedrin 21a:9

§ As for those eighteen women that the king may marry, from where do we derive that number? The Talmud responds: As it is written: "And to David sons were born in Hebron; and his firstborn was Amnon, from Ahinoam the Jezreelitess; and his second, Chileab, from Abigail the wife of Nabal the Carmelite; and the third, Absalom, son of Maacah, the daughter of Talmai, king of Geshur; and the fourth, Adonijah, son of Haggith; and the fifth, Shephatiah, son of Abital; and the sixth, Ithream, of Eglah, David's wife. Ketubot 112a:8

And even so, Hebron was more developed, i.e., more fertile, than Zoan by sevenfold, as it is written: "Now Hebron was built [nivneta] seven years before Zoan in Egypt" (Numbers 13:22). What is the meaning of the term: Nivneta*, in this verse? If we say it means literally that Hebron was built before Zoan, would a person build a house for his younger son before building one for his older son? As it is stated: "And the sons of Ham: Cush, and Mizraim, and Put, and Canaan" (Genesis 10:6), which indicates that Egypt, Mizraim, was older than Canaan, in whose territory Hebron was located.

Sotah 34b:11

The continuation of the verse states: "Now Hebron was built seven years [shanim] before Zoan of Egypt [Mitzrayim]" (Numbers 13:22). The Talmud asks: What is the meaning of the phrase "was built"? If we say that it was actually built seven years before Zoan, would a person build a house for his younger son before he builds one for his older son? Canaan was the youngest son of Ham, as it is written: "And the sons of Ham: Cush, and Mizraim, and Put, and Canaan" (Genesis 10:6). How then could Hebron, a city in the land of Canaan, have been built before Zoan, a city in the land of Egypt, occupied by the descendants of Mizraim?

Sanhedrin 69b:15

Know that it is true that the verse sometimes lists brothers not according to their birth order, but in the order of their degrees of wisdom, as it is written: "And Noah was five hundred years old; and Noah begot Shem, Ham, and Japheth" (Genesis 5:32). According to this, Shem was at least one year older than Ham, and Ham one year older than Japheth, so it turns out that Shem was two years older than Japheth. And it is written: "And Noah was six hundred years old when the flood of waters was upon the earth" (Genesis 7:6). And it is written: "These are the descendants of Shem; Shem was one hundred years old, and begot Arpachshad two years after the flood" (Genesis 11:10). If Shem was the oldest brother, how could he be only 100 years old? He must have been at least 102 years old, as Noah was 500 years old when his third son was born, and he was 600 years old at the time of the flood.

Sanhedrin 70a:17

A visitor from the Galilee expounded: The conversive vav* is stated thirteen times in the passage concerning wine, as it is stated: "And Noah began [vayyaḥel] to be a farmer, and he planted [vayyita] a vineyard, and he drank [vayyesht] of the wine, and was drunk [vayyishkar]; and he was uncovered [vayyitgal] within his tent. And Ham, the father of Canaan, saw [vayyar] the nakedness of his father, and told [vayyagged] his two brothers outside. And Shem and Japheth took [vayyika?] the garment, and laid it [vayyasimu] upon both their shoulders, and went [vayyelekhu] backward, and covered [vaykhassu] the nakedness of their father; and their faces were backward, and they did not see their father's nakedness. And Noah awoke [vayyiketz] from his wine, and knew [vayyeda] what his younger son had done to him" (Genesis 9:20–24). All thirteen instances of the conversive vav here are followed by the letter yod. Together they form the word vay, meaning woe, and allude to the suffering and misfortune caused by uncontrolled drinking.

Sanhedrin 70a:19

The Talmud explains: The one who says that Ham castrated Noah adduces the following proof: Since he injured Noah with respect to the possibility of conceiving a fourth son, which Noah wanted but could no longer have, therefore Noah cursed him by means of Ham's fourth son. Ham's sons were Cush, Mizraim, Put, and Canaan (see Genesis 10:6), and of all of these, it was Canaan whom Noah cursed (see Genesis 9:25–28). And the one who says that Ham sodomized Noah learned this from a verbal analogy between the words "and he saw" and "and he saw." Here it is written: "And Ham, the father of Canaan, saw the nakedness of his father"; and there it is written: "And Shechem, son of Ham or the Hivite, prince of the country, saw her, and he took her, and lay with her, and afflicted her" (Genesis 34:2). This indicates that the term "saw" alludes to sexual intercourse.

Pesachim 117a:19

R' Elazar HaModa'i says: Deborah and Barak recited it when Sisera stood against them (see Judges 4–5). They said: Not to us, and the Divine Spirit responded and said to them: For My own sake, for My own sake, will I do it. R' Elazar ben Azarya says: Hezekiah and his company recited it when Sennacherib stood against them (see II Kings 18–19). They said: Not to us and the Divine Spirit responded: For My own sake. R' Akiva says: Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah recited it when the wicked Nebuchadnezzar stood against them (see Daniel 3). They said: Not to us, and the Divine Spirit responded: For My own sake. R' Yosei HaGelili says: Mordecai and Esther recited it when the wicked Haman stood against them. They said: Not to us, and the Divine Spirit responded: For My own sake (see the book of Esther).

Rosh Hashanah 7a:9

Rav Kahana said: It is derived from here: "On the fourth day of the ninth month, in Kislev" (Zechariah 7:1). Rav Aḥa bar Ya'akov said: It is derived from here, as it is stated: "And the scribes of the king were called at that time in the third month, that is the month of Sivan" (Esther 8:9). Rav Ashi said: It is derived from here: "He cast pur, that is, the lot, before Haman from day to day, and from month to month, to the twelfth month, that is, the month of Adar" (Esther 3:7). And if you wish, say that it is derived from here: "In the first month, that is, the month of Nisan" (Esther 3:7).

Megillah 7a:12

It is taught in a baraita that R' Eliezer says: The book of Esther was said with the inspiration of the Divine Spirit, as it is stated: "And Haman thought in his heart" (Esther 6:6). If the book of Esther was not divinely inspired, how was it known what Haman thought in his heart? R' Akiva says: The book of Esther was said with the inspiration of the Divine Spirit, as it is stated: "And Esther obtained favor in the sight of all those who looked upon her" (Esther 2:15); this could have been known only through divine inspiration.

Megillah 7b:7

Rava said: A person is obligated to become intoxicated with wine on Purim until he is so intoxicated that he does not know how to distinguish between cursed is Haman and blessed is Mordecai.

Megillah 10b:5

The Talmud cites several proofs corroborating this interpretation. "And it came to pass [vayhi] in the days of Ahasuerus" led to grief, as there was Haman. "And it came to pass [vayhi] in the days when the judges ruled" (Ruth 1:1) introduces a period when there was famine. "And it came to pass [vayhi], when men began to multiply" (Genesis 6:1) is immediately followed by the verse: "And YHWH saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth" (Genesis 6:5).

Megillah 14b:12

Rav Eina the Elder raised an objection from a baraita to Rav Naḥman's teaching. The baraita indicates that Huldah was in fact a descendant of Rahab, and seemingly not of Joshua: Eight prophets, who were also priests, descended from Rahab the prostitute, and they are: Neriah; his son Baruch; Seraiah; Mahseiah; Jeremiah; his father, Hilkiah; Jeremiah's cousin Hanamel; and Hanamel's father, Shallum. R' Yehuda said: So too, Huldah the prophetess was a descendant of Rahab the prostitute, as it is written here with regard to Huldah: "The son of Tikvah," and it is written elsewhere in reference to Rahab's escape from the destruction of Jericho: "This cord of [tikvat] scarlet thread" (Joshua 2:18).

Rosh Hashanah 3b:3

The Talmud answers: It should not enter your mind to say this, as it is taught in a baraita: The words that Hanani told Nehemiah in the month of Kislev, Nehemiah told the king in the month of Nisan.

Rosh Hashanah 3b:4

The baraita explains: The words that Hanani said to Nehemiah in Kislev are as it is stated: "The words of Nehemiah, son of Hachaliah: And it came to pass in the month Kislev, in the twentieth year, as I was in Shushan the capital, that Hanani, one of my brothers, came out of Judah, he and certain men; and I asked them concerning the Jews who had escaped, who were left of the captivity, and concerning Jerusalem. And they said to me: The remnant who are left of the captivity there in the province suffer much hardship and insult; and the wall of Jerusalem is broken down, and its gates are burned with fire" (Nehemiah 1:1–3).

Berakhot 10a:21

Other interpretations of this verse exist. The Talmud relates how Rav Shimi bar Ukva, and some say Mar Ukva, would regularly study before R' Shimon ben Pazi, who was well versed in aggada and would arrange the aggada before R' Yehoshua ben Levi.
Once, R' Shimon ben Pazi said to him: What is the meaning of that which is written: "Bless YHWH, my soul, and all that is within me bless His Holy name"?
Rav Shimi bar Ukva said to R' Shimon ben Pazi: Come and see that the attribute of God, is not like the attribute of flesh and blood, as this verse praises the formation of man in his mother's womb. The attribute of flesh and blood is such that he shapes a form on the wall for all to see, yet he cannot instill it with a spirit and soul, bowels and intestines. While God, is not so, as God shapes one form within another form, a child in its mother's womb, and instills it with spirit and soul, bowels and intestines. And this is the explanation of what Hannah said with regard to the birth of Samuel: "There is none holy like YHWH, for there is none like You, and there is no Rock like our God" (I Samuel 2:2).

Berakhot 29a:11

The Talmud asks further: Corresponding to what were these nine blessings of the Rosh HaShana additional prayer instituted? R' Yitzḥak of Kartignin said: They correspond to the nine mentions of God's name that Hannah said in her prayer (I Samuel 2:10). The connection between Hannah's prayer and Rosh HaShana is based on what the Master said: On Rosh HaShana, Sarah, Rachel, and Hannah were remembered and the divine decree that they would conceive their sons was issued.

Berakhot 30b:16

The Talmud rejects this proof: From what does that conclusion ensue? Perhaps Hannah is different, as her heart was extremely embittered, her prayer was embittered as well. This does not prove that everyone must pray in that frame of mind.

Berakhot 31a:24

Furthermore, I might have thought that one may make his voice heard in his Amida prayer; it has already been articulated by Hannah in her prayer, as it is stated: "And Hannah spoke in her heart, only her lips moved and her voice could not be heard" (I Samuel 1:13).

Berakhot 31a:27

Rav Hamnuna said: How many significant halakhot can be derived from these verses of the prayer of Hannah? As it says: "And Hannah spoke in her heart, only her lips moved and her voice could not be heard, so Eli thought her to be drunk" (I Samuel 1:13). The Talmud elaborates: From that which is stated here: "And Hannah spoke in her heart," the halakha that one who prays must focus his heart on his prayer is derived. And from that which is stated here: "Only her lips moved," the halakha that one who prays must enunciate the words with his lips, not only contemplate them in his heart, is derived. From that which is written here: "And her voice could not be heard," the halakha that one is forbidden to raise his voice in his Amida prayer as it must be recited silently. From the continuation of the verse here: "So Eli thought her to be drunk," the halakha that a drunk person is forbidden to pray. That is why he rebuked her.

Sotah 42b:7

It is written that Goliath's mother was: "Harafa" (II Samuel 21:16), and in another place it is written: "Orpah" (Ruth 1:4), and the Talmud will soon explain that this was the same woman. Rav and Shmuel engaged in a dispute concerning this matter. One of them said: Her name was Harafa, and why is she called by the name Orpah? It is because everyone came at her from behind [orfin] her, i.e., sodomized her. And one of them said: Her name was Orpah, and why is she called by the name Harafa? It is because everyone threshed her like groats [harifot], i.e., engaged in sexual intercourse with her, and so it says that this word means groats: "And the woman took and spread the covering over the well's mouth, and strewed groats [harifot] thereon" (II Samuel 17:19). And if you wish, you can say from here: "Though you should crush a fool in a mortar with a pestle among groats [harifot], yet will not his foolishness depart from him" (Proverbs 27:22).

Sotah 42b:8

The Talmud continues its discussion of the battle of David and Goliath. "These four were born to Harafa in Gath; and they fell by the hand of David, and by the hand of his servants" (II Samuel 21:22). The Talmud asks: What are the names of the four siblings mentioned here? Rav Ḥisda said: They are Saph, and Madon, Goliath, and Ishbi in Nob (see II Samuel 21:16–20).

Sanhedrin 69b:12

Rather, it is from here that one can deduce that in earlier generations men fathered children at the age of eight, as it is written: "And these are the generations of Terah; Terah begot Abram, Nahor, and Haran" (Genesis 11:27). And Abraham was at least one year older than Nahor, and Nahor was one year older than Haran, so it turns out that Abraham was two years older than Haran. And it is written: "And Abram and Nahor took wives for themselves; the name of Abram's wife was Sarai and the name of Nahor's wife was Milka, daughter of Haran, father of Milka and father of Iscah" (Genesis 11:29).

Sanhedrin 69b:13

And R' Yitzḥak says: Iscah is in fact Sarah. And why was she called Iscah? Because she envisioned [shesokha] hidden matters by means of divine inspiration. And this explains what is written: "In all that Sarah has said to you, hearken to her voice" (Genesis 21:12). Alternatively, Sarah was also called Iscah, because all gazed [sokhim] upon her beauty. And it is written: "And Abraham fell upon his face, and laughed, and said in his heart: Shall a child be born to him that is a hundred years old? And shall Sarah, who is ninety years old, give birth?" (Genesis 17:17). How much older was Abraham than Sarah? He was ten years older than her and, as stated above, he was two years older than her father, Haran. It turns out then that when Haran begot Sarah, he begot her at the age of eight.

is as it is written: "And Jacob departed from Beersheba and went to Haran" (Genesis 28:10), and it is written thereafter, ostensibly after he arrived in Haran: "And he encountered [vayyifga] the place, and he slept there, for the sun had set" (Genesis 28:11). This means that when Jacob arrived at Haran, he said: Is it possible that I bypassed a place where my forefathers prayed and I did not pray there? He sought to return to Beit El. Once he contemplated in his mind to return, the land contracted for him, and immediately: "And he encountered the place," indicating that he arrived there unexpectedly, sooner than he would have arrived without a miracle.

Sanhedrin 99b:12

Reish Lakish said: With regard to anyone who teaches Torah to the son of another, the verse ascribes him credit as though he formed that student, as it is stated: "And Abram took Sarai his wife...and the souls that they formed in Haran" (Genesis 12:5). They are given credit for forming the students to whom they taught Torah. R' Elazar says: It is as though he fashioned [asa'an] the words of Torah themselves, as it is stated: "Observe the words of this covenant, va'asitem otam" (Deuteronomy 29:8), indicating that studying the Torah is like fashioning it. Rava says: It is as though he fashioned himself, as it is stated: "Va'asitem otam." Do not read "va'asitem otam" as: And you shall fashion them; rather, read it as va'asitem atem, meaning: You shall fashion yourself.

Avodah Zarah 9a:7

Rather, the two-thousand-year time period of the Torah is counted from the time when it is stated about Abraham and Sarah: "And the souls that they had gotten in Haran" (Genesis 12:5), which is interpreted by the Sages as referring to the men and women who were brought closer to the Torah by Abraham and Sarah. Therefore, it was at this point that the Torah began to spread throughout the world. And it is learned as a tradition that at that time Abraham was fifty-two years old.

The Sages taught: Only four priestly watches ascended from the Babylonian exile, while the other twenty stayed in Babylonia. And these are the watches who returned: The descendants of Jedaiah, Harim, Pashhur, and Immer. The prophets among those who returned arose and divided them and established them as twenty-four watches. They achieved this by writing the names of these new twenty-four watches on pieces of paper, mixing them up, and putting them in a receptacle [kalfei] from which lots were drawn. A representative from the family of Jedaiah came and drew his portion and the lot of five other watches, for a total of six. Harim came and also drew his portion and the lot of five other watches, a total of six. And likewise Pashhur, and likewise Immer.

Arakhin 12b:11

But isn't it taught in a baraita that the watch of Jehoiarib did not exist during the Second Temple era? As it is taught: Only four priestly watches ascended from the Babylonian exile, while the other twenty stayed in Babylonia. And these are the watches who returned: The descendants of Jedaiah, Harim, Pashḥur, and Immer. The prophets among those who returned arose and divided these four families into twenty-four watches. They achieved this as follows: They wrote the names of these new twenty-four watches on pieces of paper, mixed them up, and put them in a receptacle [kalpi] from which lots were drawn. A representative from the family of Jedaiah came and drew his portion and the lot of five other watches, for a total of six.

Arakhin 13a:1

Harim came and also drew his portion and the lot of five other watches, for a total of six. And likewise Pashḥur, and likewise Immer. The prophets among them stipulated that even if the descendants of Jehoiarib, who originally headed the priestly watches, would ascend to Eretz Yisrael, Jedaiah would not be demoted from its place as the first of the watches. Rather, the watch of Jedaiah would retain precedence, and Jehoiarib would be subordinate to it. The Talmud concludes: Rather, when the baraita equates the details pertaining to the destruction of the two Temples, it is referring to other details, i.e., that both were destroyed on the Ninth of Av and on a Sunday, but it is not equating them with regard to all the details.

Bava Batra 4a:9

The Talmud asks: And from where do we derive that Daniel was punished? If we say we know this because it is written: "And Esther called for Hatach, one of the king's chamberlains, whom he had appointed to attend upon her" (Esther 4:5), and Rav said: Hatach is Daniel. This works out well according to the one who says Daniel was called Hatach because they cut him down [Ḥatakh] from his greatness and turned him into a minor attendant. But according to the one who says he was called Hatach because all governmental matters were determined [Ḥatakh] according to his word, what is there to say? What punishment did he receive? The Talmud answers: His punishment was that they threw him into the den of lions.

Hathach (1 total match)

Megillah 15a:11

The verse states: “Then Esther called for Hathach, one of the king’s chamberlains, whom he had appointed to attend upon her” (Esther 4:5). Rav said: Hathach is in fact the prophet Daniel. And why was he called Hathach? Because he was cut down [Ḥatakh] from his greatness during Ahasuerus’s reign, as he was demoted from his high position. Previously he had served as a senior minister, and now he had become Esther’s steward. And Shmuel expounded the name Hathach as derived from Ḥatakh in the opposite sense, as he said: Daniel was called Hathach because all the affairs of the kingdom were decided [neḥtakhin] by his word.

Helah (3 total matches)

Sotah 12a:5

The Talmud interprets an additional verse as referring to Caleb. It is stated: "And Ashhur the father of Tekoa had two wives, Helah and Naarah" (I Chronicles 4:5). Ashhur is Caleb. And why was he called Ashhur? Because his face became blackened [husheḥaru] from the extensive fasts that he accepted upon himself so that he would not be entrapped by the counsel of the spies. "The father of" is also referring to Caleb, as he became like a father to his wife. The next word in the verse, "Tekoa," is an additional reference to Caleb, as he attached [taka] his heart to his Father in Heaven.

Sotah 12a:6

The phrase in the verse "had two wives" actually means it is as if Miriam became like two wives, because she changed over the course of time. And therefore the two names written in the verse: "Helah and Naarah," were not two separate women, Helah and Naarah. Rather, initially Miriam was sickly [Ḥela] and forlorn, and ultimately she was healthy and beautiful like a young woman [na'ara].

Sotah 12a:7

The Talmud expounds the following verse as referring to Miriam: "And the children of Helah were Zereth [Tzeret] and Zohar and Ethnan" (I Chronicles 4:7). She was now called "Tzeret," for she became so beautiful that she was like a rival [tzara] to other women, as they were jealous of her beauty. She is called "Zohar," as her face shined like the sun does at noon [tzohorayim]. She is called "Ethnan," as any man that saw her would be aroused so much that he would bring a gift [etnan] to his wife to entice her.

Heman (3 total matches)

Bava Batra 14b:12

The baraita now considers the authors of the biblical books: And who wrote the books of the Bible? Moses wrote his own book, i.e., the Torah, and the portion of Balaam in the Torah, and the book of Job. Joshua wrote his own book and eight verses in the Torah, which describe the death of Moses. Samuel wrote his own book, the book of Judges, and the book of Ruth. David wrote the book of Psalms by means of ten elders of previous generations, assembling a collection that included compositions of others along with his own. He included psalms authored by Adam the first man, by Melchizedek king of Salem, and by Abraham, and by Moses, and by Heman, and by Jeduthun, and by Asaph,

Bava Batra 15a:10

The Talmud asks: The baraita counts Moses among the ten elders whose works are included in the book of Psalms, and it also counts Heman. But doesn't Rav say: The Heman mentioned in the Bible (I Kings 5:11) is the same person as Moses? This is proven by the fact that it is written here: "Heman" (Psalms 88:1), which is Aramaic for trusted, and it is written there about Moses: "For he is the trusted one in all My house" (Numbers 12:7). The Talmud answers: There were two Hemans, one of whom was Moses, and the other a Temple singer from among the descendants of Samuel.

Sanhedrin 44b:8

§ The mishna teaches: From where is it derived that Achan's confession achieved atonement for him? The Sages taught likewise in a baraita: From where is it derived that Achan's confession achieved atonement for him? As it is stated: "And Joshua said: Why have you brought trouble on us? The Lord shall trouble you this day" (Joshua 7:25). Joshua said to Achan: On this day of your judgment you are troubled, but you will not be troubled in the World-to-Come. And elsewhere it is written: "And the sons of Zerah were Zimri and Ethan and Heman and Calcol and Dara, five of them in all" (I Chronicles 2:6). What do the words "five of them in all" serve to teach? All five sons are destined to receive a share in the World-to-Come. According to the Sages, Zimri is Achan, son of Zerah, as will be explained. Since Achan has a share in the World-to-Come, his confession must have achieved atonement for him.

MISHNA: Zelophehad's daughters took three portions of land in the inheritance of Eretz Yisrael: Their father's portion that he received because he was among those who left Egypt; and his portion that he received with his brothers in the property of Hepher, their father; and an additional portion that he received from Hepher because he was a firstborn, and a firstborn takes two portions of inheritance from his father.

Bava Batra 118a:3

Abaye answers: Rather, according to this opinion, the protest of Zelophehad's daughters was in reference to the returning of the portions from the generation that entered Eretz Yisrael to the generation that left Egypt, as described in the baraita above. And accordingly, Zelophehad's daughters demanded to take their portion in the property of their grandfather Hepher, who received land posthumously through his children, their uncles.

Bava Batra 122b:6

The Talmud questions this explanation: We already learn this as well in a mishna (116b): Zelophehad's daughters took three portions of land in the inheritance of Eretz Yisrael: Their father's portion that he received because he was among those who left Egypt; and his portion that he received with his brothers in the property of Hepher, their father, although Zelophehad predeceased his father and never was in possession of the inheritance from Hepher; and an additional portion that he received from Hepher because he was a firstborn. It is already taught in that mishna that property due to the deceased is inherited in the same manner as property possessed by the deceased.

Bava Batra 123b:4

Rav Yosef raises an objection: Another verse indicates that the descendants of Simeon also have the ability to defeat the descendants of Esau: "And some of them, even of the sons of Simeon, five hundred men, went to Mount Seir, having for their captains Pelatiah, and Ne'ariah, and Rephaiah, and Uzziel, the sons of Ishi. And they struck the remnant of the Amalekites that escaped, and dwelled there until this day" (I Chronicles 4:42–43). Rabba bar Sheila said in response: Ishi came from the children of Manasseh, as it is written: And the sons of Manasseh: Hepher and Ishi.

Berakhot 5b:21

The Talmud returns to the topic of prayer. It was taught in a baraita that the tanna Abba Binyamin would say: All of my life I have taken great pains with regard to two things: That my prayer should be before my bed and that my bed should be placed north to south. Abba Binyamin's statement requires explanation. With regard to his statement: That my prayer should be before my bed, the Talmud asks, what does before my bed mean? If you say that it literally means that he would stand before his bed and pray, it is difficult, as Rav Yehuda said that Rav said, and some say that R' Yehoshua ben Levi said: From where is it derived that one who prays should have nothing separating between him and the wall? As it is stated: "And Hezekiah turned to face the wall and prayed" (Isaiah 38:2), in order to facilitate his concentration during prayer. That being said, why would Abba Binyamin pray before his bed? Rather, do not say that before my bed refers to where he stood during prayer, but rather, say that he prayed adjacent to the time that he would retire to bed; he was careful to recite Shema and recite the evening prayer just before going to sleep (Rabbeinu Ḥananel).

Berakhot 10a:26

With regard to redemption and prayer, the Talmud tells the story of Hezekiah's illness, his prayer to God, and subsequent recuperation. Rav Hamnuna said: What is the meaning of that which is written praising God: "Who is like the wise man, and who knows the interpretation [pesher] of the matter" (Ecclesiastes 8:1)? This verse means: Who is like God, Who knows how to effect compromise [peshara] between two righteous individuals, between Hezekiah, the king of Judea, and Isaiah the prophet. They disagreed over which of them should visit the other. Hezekiah said: Let Isaiah come to me, as that is what we find with regard to Elijah the prophet, who went to Ahab, the king of Israel, as it is stated: "And Elijah went to appear to Ahab" (I Kings 18:2). This proves that it is the prophet who must seek out the king. And Isaiah said: Let Hezekiah come to me, as that is what we find with regard to Yehoram ben Ahab, king of Israel, who went to Elisha the prophet, as it is stated: "So the king of Israel, Jehosaphat and the king of Edom went down to him" (II Kings 3:12).

Berakhot 10a:27

What did God, do to effect compromise between Hezekiah and Isaiah? He brought the suffering of illness upon Hezekiah and told Isaiah: Go and visit the sick. Isaiah did as God instructed, as it is stated: "In those days Hezekiah became deathly ill, and Isaiah ben Amoz the prophet came and said to him: Thus says YHWH of Hosts: Set your house in order, for you will die and you will not live" (Isaiah 38:1). This seems redundant; what is the meaning of you will die and you will not live? This repetition means: You will die in this world, and you will not live, you will have no share, in the World-to-Come.

Berakhot 10b:2

Having heard Isaiah's harsh prophecy, immediately "Hezekiah turned his face toward the wall and prayed to YHWH" (Isaiah 38:2).

Berakhot 10b:6

The Sages taught: King Hezekiah performed six innovative actions. With regard to three the Sages agreed with him, and with regard to three they did not agree with him.

Hezron (3 total matches)

Yevamot 62b:7

Rather, the proof is from here: "And afterward Hezron went in to the daughter of Machir, the father of Gilead…and she bore him Segub" (I Chronicles 2:21), and it is written: "Out of Machir came down governors" (Judges 5:14), and it is written: "Judah is my governor" (Psalms 60:9). Consequently, the governors, who were from the tribe of Judah, were also called the sons of Machir, who was from the tribe of Manasseh. This must be because they were the children of Machir's daughter and Hezron, indicating that grandchildren are considered like children.

Sotah 11b:23

The Talmud discusses the family of Caleb: In Chronicles it says: "And Caleb, the son of Hezron, begot children of Azubah his wife, and of Jerioth, and these were her sons: Jesher, and Shobab, and Ardon" (I Chronicles 2:18). The Talmud asks: Was Caleb actually the son of Hezron? Wasn't he the son of Jephunneh, as the verse states in Numbers 13:6? The Talmud answers: He was the son of Hezron, but he is called "son of Jephunneh" as an appellation indicating that he was a son who turned away [sheppana] from the counsel of the spies.

Temurah 16a:13

The Talmud further asks: But still, was he the son of Kenaz? He was the son of Hezron, as it is written: "And Caleb, son of Hezron, begot children of Azubah his wife, and of Jerioth, and these were her sons: Jesher, and Shobab, and Ardon" (I Chronicles 2:18). Rava said: Caleb was actually the son of Hezron, but after his father passed away his mother remarried Kenaz, and consequently he was the stepson of Kenaz. Othniel, son of Kenaz, was therefore his maternal half brother.

Megillah 14b:5

Huldah was a prophetess, as it is written: "So Hilkiah the priest and Ahikam and Achbor and Shaphan and Asaiah went to Huldah the prophetess" (II Kings 22:14) as emissaries of King Josiah. The Talmud asks: But if Jeremiah was found there, how could she prophesy? Out of respect for Jeremiah, who was her superior, it would have been fitting that she not prophesy in his presence. The Sages of the school of Rav say in the name of Rav: Huldah was a close relative of Jeremiah, and he did not object to her prophesying in his presence.

Megillah 14b:12

Rav Eina the Elder raised an objection from a baraita to Rav Naḥman's teaching. The baraita indicates that Huldah was in fact a descendant of Rahab, and seemingly not of Joshua: Eight prophets, who were also priests, descended from Rahab the prostitute, and they are: Neriah; his son Baruch; Seraiah; Mahseiah; Jeremiah; his father, Hilkiah; Jeremiah's cousin Hanamel; and Hanamel's father, Shallum. R' Yehuda said: So too, Huldah the prophetess was a descendant of Rahab the prostitute, as it is written here with regard to Huldah: "The son of Tikvah," and it is written elsewhere in reference to Rahab's escape from the destruction of Jericho: "This cord of [tikvat] scarlet thread" (Joshua 2:18).

Megillah 23a:9

Ya'akov of Mina said to Rav Yehuda: Corresponding to whom were these six readers on Yom Kippur instituted? Rav Yehuda said to him: The number six corresponds to the six people who stood to Ezra's right and the six people who stood to his left, as it is stated: "And Ezra the Scribe stood upon a platform of wood, which they had made for the purpose, and beside him stood Mattithiah, and Shema, and Anaiah, and Uriah, and Hilkiah, and Maaseiah, on his right hand, and on his left hand, Pedaiah, and Mishael, and Malchiah, and Hashum, and Hashbadanah, Zechariah, Meshullam" (Nehemiah 8:4).

Sanhedrin 60a:13

The mishna teaches that upon hearing the curse the judges each make a tear in their garments. The Talmud asks: From where do we derive this? The Talmud answers that it is derived from that which is written: "Then came Eliakim, son of Hilkiah, who was over the household, and Shebna the scribe, and Joah, son of Asaph, the recorder, to Hezekiah with torn garments, and they told him Rabshakeh's statement" (II Kings 18:37). Apparently, since they heard the blasphemous statement of Rabshakeh they were obligated to make a tear in their garments.

Sanhedrin 95a:1

"Poor [aniyya] Anathoth" (Isaiah 10:30)? Jeremiah, son of Hilkiah, is destined to prophesy about Nebuchadnezzar from Anathoth, as it is written: "The statements of Jeremiah, son of Hilkiah, of the priests who were in Anathoth in the land of Benjamin" (Jeremiah 1:1).

Shabbat 55b:12

R' Shmuel bar Naḥmani said that R' Yonatan said: Anyone who says that the sons of Eli sinned is nothing other than mistaken, as it is written: "And the two sons of Eli, Hophni and Pinehas, were there priests of YHWH" (I Samuel 1:3).

Shabbat 55b:13

The Talmud explains: R' Yonatan holds in accordance with the opinion of Rav, as Rav said: Pinehas did not sin. And the verse juxtaposes Hophni to Pinehas; just as Pinehas did not sin, so too Hophni did not sin. The Talmud asks: How, then, do I establish the meaning of the verse: "Now Eli was very old, and heard all that his sons did to all Israel; and how they lay with the women that assembled at the door of the Tent of Meeting" (I Samuel 2:22), which indicates otherwise? The Talmud answers: Since the sons of Eli delayed sacrificing the bird-offerings of women who had given birth, a pair of doves brought as part of the purification process, and this delay caused the women not to go to their husbands in timely fashion, the verse ascribes to Hophni and Pinehas liability as if they had lain with them. They were guilty of nothing more than negligence and carelessness.

Shabbat 55b:19

The Talmud raises one last challenge: Isn't it written: "Now the sons of Eli were scoundrels; they knew not YHWH" (I Samuel 2:12), indicating that they were both sinners. The Talmud answers: Since Pinehas should have protested Hophni's conduct, but he did not protest, the verse ascribes to him liability as if he too had sinned.

Hosea (9 total matches, showing 5)

Shabbat 55a:13

With regard to the statement that the merit of the Patriarchs has ceased, the Talmud asks: From when did the merit of the Patriarchs cease? Rav said: From the days of the prophet Hosea, son of Beeri, as it is stated: "And now I will uncover her lewdness in the sight of her lovers, and none shall deliver her out of My hand" (Hosea 2:12). Israel will no longer be saved by the merit of the Patriarchs.

Pesachim 87a:12

Apropos the verse from Hosea, the Talmud interprets additional verses there: "The word of YHWH that came unto Hosea, the son of Beeri, in the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judea, and in the days of Jeroboam the son of Joash, king of Israel" (Hosea 1:1). The Sages explained: Four prophets prophesied in one era and the oldest of them was Hosea, as it is stated: "When YHWH spoke at first with Hosea" (Hosea 1:2), indicating that Hosea was the first of these prophets. If not, the question arises: And was it with Hosea that YHWH spoke first of all the prophets? Weren't there several prophets who lived and prophesied during the period from Moses until Hosea? Rather, R' Yoḥanan said: He was the first of the four prophets who prophesied during that period, and these are they: Hosea, Isaiah, Amos, and Micah.

Pesachim 87a:13

The Holy One, Blessed be He, said to Hosea: Your sons, the Jewish people, have sinned. Hosea should have said to God in response: But they are Your sons; they are the sons of Your beloved ones, the sons of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. Extend Your mercy over them. Not only did he fail to say that, but instead he said before Him: Master of the Universe, the entire world is Yours; since Israel has sinned, exchange them for another nation.

Pesachim 87a:14

The Holy One, Blessed be He, said: What shall I do to this Elder who does not know how to defend Israel? I will say to him: Go and take a prostitute and bear for yourself children of prostitution. And after that I will say to him: Send her away from before you. If he is able to send her away, I will also send away the Jewish people. This deliberation provides the background of the opening prophecy in Hosea, as it is stated: "The Lord said to Hosea: Go, take for yourself a wife of prostitution and children of prostitution" (Hosea 1:2). And then it is written: "So he went and took Gomer the daughter of Diblaim" (Hosea 1:3), and the Sages interpreted her name homiletically. "Gomer"; Rav said she was so called because everyone would finish [gomerim] having relations with her and satisfy their desires with her. Pesachim 87b:4

After two sons and one daughter had been born to him, God, said to Hosea: Shouldn't you have learned from the example of your master Moses, who, once I spoke with him, separated from his wife? Rav Kahana and Rav Asi said to Rav: It is written with regard to Hoshea ben Elah: "And he did that which was evil in the eyes of YHWH, yet not as the kings of Israel that were before him" (II Kings 17:2). But it is written subsequently: "Against him came up Shalmaneser, king of Assyria" (II Kings 17:3) and exiled the people of Israel. If Hoshea performed less evil than the previous kings of Israel, why was his generation the one that was punished?

§ The Talmud asks with regard to the prophetesses recorded in the baraita: Who were the seven prophetesses? The Talmud answers: Sarah, Miriam, Deborah, Hannah, Abigail, Huldah, and Esther. The Talmud offers textual support: Sarah, as it is written: "Haran, the father of Milcah, and the father of Iscah" (Genesis 11:29). And R' Yitzḥak said: Iscah is in fact Sarah. And why was she called Iscah? For she saw [sakhta] by means of divine inspiration, as it is stated: "In all that Sarah has said to you, hearken to her voice" (Genesis 21:12). Alternatively, Sarah was also called Iscah, for all gazed [sokhin] upon her beauty.

Megillah 14b:5

Huldah was a prophetess, as it is written: "So Hilkiah the priest and Ahikam and Achbor and Shaphan and Asaiah went to Huldah the prophetess" (II Kings 22:14) as emissaries of King Josiah. Megillah 14b:11

Furthermore, Rav Naḥman said: Huldah was a descendant of Joshua. An allusion to this is written here: "Huldah the prophetess, the wife of Shallum, the son of Tikvah, the son of Harhas [Ḥarḥas]" (II Kings 22:14), and it says elsewhere with regard to Joshua: "And they buried him in the border of his inheritance in Timnath-heres [Ḥeres]" (Judges 2:9), therefore intimating that there is a certain connection between them.

Eruvin 21a:13

Rav Ḥisda said: Mari bar Mar interpreted homiletically: What is the meaning of that which is written: "I have seen a limit to every purpose; but Your commandment is exceedingly broad" (Psalms 119:96)? This idea with regard to the breadth of the Torah was stated by David, but he did not explain it; it was stated by Job, but he too did not explain it; it was stated by Ezekiel, but he also did not explain it, until Zechariah, son of Berechiah, son of Iddo, came and explained it.

Eruvin 21a:17

But nonetheless, Ezekiel did not explain the extent of the Torah, until Zechariah, son of Berechiah, son of Iddo, came and explained it, as it is written: "And he said to me: What do you see? And I said: I see a flying [afa] scroll; the length of it is twenty cubits, and the breadth of it is ten cubits" (Zechariah 5:2). Since the scroll was flying, the implication is that it had two equal sides, so that when you open it, it is twenty by twenty cubits. And it is written: "And it was written inside and outside," i.e., on both sides. And when you peel them apart and separate the two sides, how much is it? Its entire area amounts to forty by twenty cubits, or eight hundred of God's cubits.

Sanhedrin 89b:2

The mishna lists among those liable to receive death at the hand of Heaven: And a prophet who violated his own statement. The Talmud comments: For example, Iddo the prophet, who, according to tradition, prophesied the punishment of Jeroboam in Bethel, as it is written: "I will neither eat bread nor drink water in this place, for it so was commanded me by the word of YHWH" (I Kings 13:8–9). And it is written: "And he said to him: I too am a prophet like you; and an angel spoke unto me by the word of YHWH, saying: Bring him back with you into your house, that he may eat bread and drink water" (I Kings 13:18). And it is written: "And he went back with him, and ate bread in his house, and drank water" (I Kings 13:19). And it is written that he died at the hand of Heaven: "And he went, and a lion met him by the way, and killed him" (I Kings 13:24).

Sanhedrin 104a:4

and divided them and established them as twenty-four watches. They achieved this by writing the names of these new twenty-four watches on pieces of paper, mixing them up, and putting them in a receptacle [kalfei] from which lots were drawn. A representative from the family of Jedaiah came and drew his portion and the lot of five other watches, for a total of six. Harim came and also drew his portion and the lot of five other watches, a total of six. And likewise Pashhur, and likewise Immer.

Kiddushin 70a:5

Rather, the proof that mamzerim were among those who ascended from Babylonia is from here: "And these were they that ascended from Tel Melah, Tel Harsha, Cherub, Addon, and Immer; but they could not tell their fathers' houses, nor their offspring, whether they were of Israel" (Nehemiah 7:61). The Talmud explains that these names are to be interpreted as follows: "Tel Melah"; these are people whose licentious actions were similar to the act of Sodom, which was turned into a mound of salt [tel mela?]. "Tel Harsha"; this is referring to one who calls a man father, and his mother silences him, as the word Ḥarsha is similar to maḥarishto, meaning: Silences him. In any event, the statement that there were those who acted licentiously, as did the people of Sodom, means that there were mamzerim among them.

Kiddushin 70a:6

The Talmud continues with its explication of the verse: "But they could not tell their fathers' houses, nor their offspring, whether they were of Israel"; this is referring to a foundling who is gathered from the marketplace. Such a person does not even know if he is Jewish, as he has no knowledge of his parents. With regard to the names "Cherub, Addon, and Immer," R' Abbahu says that these terms should be expounded as follows: The Master [Adon], God, said: I said that the Jewish people shall be as important before Me as a cherub, but they made themselves impudent as a leopard [namer]. There are those who say a different version: R' Abbahu said: The Master [Adon] said that although they made themselves as a leopard [namer], they are as important before Me as a cherub.

Kiddushin 70b:11

Abaye said: They all sit in the rows of honor that are in the city of Neharde'a. The Talmud comments: And this statement disagrees with the statement of R' Elazar, as R' Elazar says: If you see an insolent priest, do not speculate about him that he may be of flawed lineage, since it is stated: "For your people are as those who strive with a priest" (Hosea 4:4), which indicates that priests had a reputation for being cantankerous.

Berakhot 10b:12

The Talmud cites proof from Moses. When he prayed to God for forgiveness after the incident of the Golden Calf, he based his request upon the merit of others, as it is stated: "Remember Abraham, Isaac and Israel your servants, to whom You swore upon Yourself, and told them: I will increase your descendants like the stars of the heavens, and all of this land of which I have spoken, I will give to your descendants and they will inherit it forever" (Exodus 32:13). Yet when this story is related, God's forgiveness of Israel is based upon Moses' own merit, as it is stated: "And He said He would destroy them, had Moses, His chosen, not stood before Him in the breach to turn back His destructive fury, lest He should destroy them" (Psalms 106:23).

Berakhot 18b:17

In any case, with regard to the crux of the issue, R' Yonatan also reconsidered his opinion, as R' Shmuel bar Naḥmani said that R' Yonatan said: From where is it derived that the dead converse with each other? As it is stated: "And YHWH said to him, this is the land that I swore to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, saying: I will give it to your offspring" (Deuteronomy 34:4). What is the meaning of "saying"? It means that God told Moses: Go and tell Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, that the oath that I swore to you I have already fulfilled for your descendants.

Berakhot 26b:6

Isaac instituted the afternoon prayer, as it is stated: "And Isaac went out to converse [lasua?] in the field toward evening" (Genesis 24:63), and conversation means nothing other than prayer, as it is stated: "A prayer of the afflicted when he is faint and pours out his complaint [siḥo] before YHWH" (Psalms 102:1). Obviously, Isaac was the first to pray as evening approached, at the time of the afternoon prayer.

Berakhot 32a:24

As Moses continues his prayer, he says: "Remember Abraham, Isaac and Israel Your servants, to whom You swore in Your name" (Exodus 32:13). What is the meaning of in Your name? Now that You swore to them by Your great name, just as Your name lives and stands for all eternity, so too does Your oath live and stand for all eternity.

They disagreed over which of them should visit the other. Hezekiah said: Let Isaiah come to me, as that is what we find with regard to Elijah the prophet, who went to Ahab, the king of Israel, as it is stated: "And Elijah went to appear to Ahab" (I Kings 18:2). This proves that it is the prophet who must seek out the king. And Isaiah said: Let Hezekiah come to me, as that is what we find with regard to Yehoram ben Ahab, king of Israel, who went to Elisha the prophet, as it is stated: "So the king of Israel, Jehosaphat and the king of Edom went down to him" (II Kings 3:12).

Berakhot 10a:27

What did God, do to effect compromise between Hezekiah and Isaiah? He brought the suffering of illness upon Hezekiah and told Isaiah: Go and visit the sick. Isaiah did as God instructed, as it is stated: "In those days Hezekiah became deathly ill, and Isaiah ben Amoz the prophet came and said to him: Thus says YHWH of Hosts: Set your house in order, for you will die and you will not live" (Isaiah 38:1). This seems redundant; what is the meaning of you will die and you will not live? This repetition means: You will die in this world, and you will not live, you will have no share, in the World-to-Come.

Berakhot 57b:2

There are also three books of Prophets whose appearance in a dream is meaningful: One who sees the book of Kings should anticipate greatness, royalty; one who sees the book of Ezekiel should anticipate wisdom, as the configuration of the Divine Chariot is described therein; one who sees the book of Isaiah should anticipate consolation; and one who sees the book of Jeremiah should be concerned about calamity, because Jeremiah prophesied extensively of impending calamity.

Shabbat 114a:4

And similarly, R' Ḥiyya bar Abba said that R' Yoḥanan said: That which is written: "As My servant Isaiah went naked and barefoot for three years" (Isaiah 20:3), is not to be understood literally. Rather, naked means that he wore tattered clothing, and barefoot means that he walked with patched shoes.

Eruvin 26a:9

R' Yoḥanan said: Both R' Elai and Ḥananya derived their opinion from the same verse, as it is stated: "And it came to pass, before Isaiah was gone out into the middle courtyard, that the word of YHWH came to him, saying" (ii Kings 20:4). In the biblical text, it is written: "The city [ha'ir]," and we read it as: "The middle courtyard [Ḥatzer]," as there is a difference in this verse between the written word and how it is spoken. From here it is derived that royal courts were as large as intermediate-sized cities. Consequently, there is no contradiction, as the central courtyard of the royal palace was itself like a small town.

Iscah (2 total matches)

Megillah 14a:13

§ The Talmud asks with regard to the prophetesses recorded in the baraita: Who were the seven prophetesses? The Talmud answers: Sarah, Miriam, Deborah, Hannah, Abigail, Huldah, and Esther. The Talmud offers textual support: Sarah, as it is written: "Haran, the father of Milcah, and the father of Iscah" (Genesis 11:29). And R' Yitzḥak said: Iscah is in fact Sarah. And why was she called Iscah? For she saw [sakhta] by means of divine inspiration, as it is stated: "In all that Sarah has said to you, hearken to her voice" (Genesis 21:12). Alternatively, Sarah was also called Iscah, for all gazed [sokhin] upon her beauty.

Sanhedrin 69b:13

And R' Yitzḥak says: Iscah is in fact Sarah. And why was she called Iscah? Because she envisioned [shesokha] hidden matters by means of divine inspiration. And this explains what is written: "In all that Sarah has said to you, hearken to her voice" (Genesis 21:12). Alternatively, Sarah was also called Iscah, because all gazed [sokhim] upon her beauty. And it is written: "And Abraham fell upon his face, and laughed, and said in his heart: Shall a child be born to him that is a hundred years old? And shall Sarah, who is ninety years old, give birth?" (Genesis 17:17). How much older was Abraham than Sarah? He was ten years older than her and, as stated above, he was two years older than her father, Haran. It turns out then that when Haran begot Sarah, he begot her at the age of eight.

Ish Boshet (1 total match)

Berakhot 4a:11

It was taught in a Tosefta from a tannaitic tradition: His name was not Mefivoshet, but rather Ish Boshet was his name. Why was Ish Boshet referred to as Mefivoshet? Because he would embarrass [mevayesh] David in matters of *halakha. According to this approach, Mefivoshet is an abbreviation of boshet panim, embarrassment. Because David was not embarrassed to admit his errors, he merited that Kilav, who, according to tradition, was exceedingly wise, would descend from him.

Ish-bosheth (1 total match)

Zevachim 102a:17

The Talmud responds: If you wish, say: There was Ish-Bosheth, Saul's son, who was a king (see II Samuel 2:10), indicating that Saul's kingship did pass to his son. And if you wish, say instead: Saul is different, because the kingship did not stand even for himself, and this is why it did not pass on to his descendants.

Ishbi in Nob (1 total match)

Sotah 42b:8

The Talmud continues its discussion of the battle of David and Goliath. “These four were born to Harafa in Gath; and they fell by the hand of David, and by the hand of his servants” (II Samuel 21:22). The Talmud asks: What are the names of the four siblings mentioned here? Rav Ḥisda said: They are Saph, and Madon, Goliath, and Ishbi in Nob (see II Samuel 21:16–20).

Ishbibenob (3 total matches)

Sanhedrin 95a:6

§ Apropos the massacre of Nov, the Talmud relates: "And Ishbibenob, who was of the sons of the giant, the weight of whose spear was three hundred shekels of brass; and he was girded with new armor and planned to slay David" (II Samuel 21:16). The Talmud asks: What is the meaning of Ishbibenob? Rav Yehuda says that Rav says: This is a man [ish] who came to punish David over matters of Nov. The Holy One, Blessed be He, said to David: Until when will this sin be concealed in your hand without punishment? Through your actions the inhabitants of Nov, the city of priests, were massacred, and through your actions, Doeg the Edomite was banished from the World-to-Come, and through your actions Saul and his three sons were killed.

Sanhedrin 95a:8

One day David went to hunt with a falcon [liskor bazzai]. Satan came and appeared to him as a deer. He shot an arrow at the deer, and the arrow did not reach it. Satan led David to follow the deer until he reached the land of the Philistines. When Ishbibenob saw David he said: This is that person who killed Goliath, my brother. He bound him, doubled him over, and placed him on the ground, and then he cast him under the beam of an olive press to crush him. A miracle was performed for him, and the earth opened beneath him so he was not crushed by the beam. That is the meaning of that which is written: "You have enlarged my steps beneath me, that my feet did not slip" (Psalms 18:37).

Sanhedrin 95a:11

When Ishbibenob saw him, he said: Now they are two, David and Abishai, and they will kill me. He threw David up in the air, and stuck his spear into the ground. He said: Let David fall upon it and die. Abishai recited a sacred name of God and suspended David between heaven and earth so that he would not fall.

Ishi (3 total matches)

Yoma 54a:5

Ulla said to him: Here, with regard to the Ark, it is written: "And they are there"; whereas there, in the verse that deals with the Jebusites, it is not written. And anywhere that "there" is written with the phrase "to this day" it means forever. The Talmud raises an objection from the following verse: "And some of them, even of the sons of Simeon, five hundred men, went to Mount Seir having for their captains Pelatiah and Neariah and Rephaiah and Uzziel, the sons of Ishi. And they smote the remnant of the Amalekites who escaped, and dwelt there to this day" (I Chronicles 4:42–43).

Ketubot 71b:15

Similarly, concerning the verse "And it shall be on that day, says YHWH, that you will call Me: My Husband [Ishi], and you will no longer call Me: My Master [Ba'ali]" (Hosea 2:18), R' Yoḥanan said: The meaning is: Like a bride in her father-in-law's house after she has already lived with her husband, whom she is consequently not ashamed to call her marriage partner, and not like a betrothed bride still in her father's house, who simply refers to her groom as: My master.

Bava Batra 123b:4

Rav Yosef raises an objection: Another verse indicates that the descendants of Simeon also have the ability to defeat the descendants of Esau: "And some of them, even of the sons of Simeon, five hundred men, went to Mount Seir, having for their captains Pelatiah, and Ne'ariah, and Rephaiah, and Uzziel, the sons of Ishi. And they struck the remnant of the Amalekites that escaped, and dwelled there until this day" (I Chronicles 4:42–43). Rabba bar Sheila said in response: Ishi came from the children of Manasseh, as it is written: And the sons of Manasseh: Hepher and Ishi.

Ishmael (25 total matches, showing 5)

Berakhot 56b:19

The Talmud says: One who sees Ishmael in a dream, it is an omen that his prayer will be heard, just as Ishmael's prayer was heard. The Talmud notes: This refers specifically to where one saw Ishmael, son of Abraham, but not if one saw a random Arab. One who sees a camel [gamal] in a dream, it is an omen that death was decreed upon him from heaven but he was spared. R' Ḥama, son of R' Ḥanina, said: What verse alludes to this? "I will go down with you into Egypt; and I will also surely bring you up again [gam alo]" (Genesis 46:4), the acronym for which is gamal. Rav Naḥman bar Yitzḥak said: The source for this is from here, another verse: "The Lord also [gam] has put away your sin; you shall not die" (II Samuel 12:13).

Shabbat 11a:3

And Rava bar Meḥasseya said that Rav Ḥama bar Gurya said that Rav said: It is preferable to be under the yoke of Ishmael and not under the yoke of a stranger, the Romans; under a stranger and not under a Ḥabar, a Persian Zoroastrian fire priest; under a Ḥabar and not under a Torah scholar, as if one offends a Torah scholar who is greater than he, the scholar will be exacting with him and he will be punished at the hand of Heaven; under a Torah scholar and not under an orphan or a widow, as they are easily insulted and God promised to hear their cries and punish those who offend them.

Shabbat 146a:2

The Talmud points out that this opinion disagrees with R' Abba bar Kahana, as R' Abba bar Kahana said: Until three generations passed, the moral contamination did not cease from our forefathers: Abraham fathered Ishmael, who was of lowly moral stature; Isaac fathered Esau; finally, Jacob fathered twelve tribes in whom there was no flaw. R' Abba bar Kahana holds that the moral contamination ceased in the Patriarchs long before the Revelation at Sinai.

Pesachim 56a:7

As R' Shimon ben Lakish said that it is written: "And Jacob called his sons and said, Gather around and I will tell you what will occur to you in the end of days" (Genesis 49:1). Jacob wanted to reveal to his sons when the complete redemption would arrive at the end of days (see Daniel 12:13), but the Divine Presence abandoned him, rendering him unable to prophesy. He said: Perhaps the Divine Presence has abandoned me because, Heaven forfend, one of my descendants is unfit, as was the case with my grandfather Abraham, from whom Ishmael emerged, and like my father Isaac, from whom Esau emerged. His sons said to him: Hear Israel, our father, YHWH is our God, YHWH is One. They said: Just as there is only one God in your heart, so too, there is only one in our hearts. At that moment Jacob our father said in praise: Blessed be the name of His glorious kingdom for ever and ever, as all his children were righteous.

Pesachim 119b:5

And Abraham will say to them: I will not recite the blessing, as I am blemished, for the wicked Ishmael came from me. Abraham will say to Isaac: Take the cup and recite the blessing. Isaac will say to them: I will not recite the blessing, as the wicked Esau came from me. Isaac will say to Jacob: Take the cup and recite the blessing. Jacob will say to them: I will not recite the blessing, as I married two sisters, Rachel and Leah, in their lifetimes, and in the future the Torah forbade them to me. Although at the time it was not prohibited to wed two sisters, this practice would eventually be considered a serious transgression.

Issachar (8 total matches, showing 5)

Eruvin 100b:19

While with regard to Leah, it is written: "And Leah went out to meet him, and said, You must come in to me, for indeed I have hired you with my son's mandrakes" (Genesis 30:16). Her reward for demanding that Jacob fulfill the conjugal mitzva with her was the birth of Issachar, and it is written: "And of the children of Issachar, men who had understanding of the times, to know what Israel ought to do; the heads of them were two hundred, and all their brethren were at their commandment" (I Chronicles 12:33).

Yoma 26a:6

Apropos this passage in Deuteronomy, Rava said: You do not find a young Torah scholar who gives halakhic instruction unless he comes from the tribe of Levi or from the tribe of Issachar. The assertion with regard to the tribe of Levi is as it is written: "They shall teach Jacob Your ordinances and Israel Your law" (Deuteronomy 33:10). And the assertion with regard to the tribe of Issachar is as it is written: "And of the children of Issachar, men that had understanding of the times, to know what Israel should do" (I Chronicles 12:33). The Talmud asks: And say that scholars come from the tribe of Judah also, as it is written: "Judah is my lawgiver" (Psalms 60:9). Rava answers: While it is true that the tribe of Judah also taught Torah, in my statement I was speaking only of those who can draw conclusions according to the halakha. Although Judah produces great scholars, men capable of translating abstract analysis of the Torah into legal principles come from the two tribes mentioned.

Nedarim 20b:11

And by contrast, it is written: "Issachar is a large-boned donkey" (Genesis 49:14). The Sages transmitted a tradition that this is an allusion to the incident when Jacob came in from the field riding on a donkey, and Leah went out to greet him, saying: "You must come in to me; for I have hired you with my son's mandrakes" (Genesis 30:16). Issachar was conceived from their subsequent sexual intercourse. And it is written: "And of the children of Issachar, men that had understanding of the times" (I Chronicles 12:33). The descendants of Issachar were understanding men. It is derived from here that a woman who demands from her husband that he engage in sexual intercourse with her has a positive effect on their children.

Sotah 11b:20

Rather, the midwives said to Pharaoh: This nation is compared to an animal [Ḥayya], and animals give birth without a midwife. For example, with regard to Judah it is written: "Judah is a lion's whelp" (Genesis 49:9); with regard to Dan it is written: "Dan shall be a serpent in the way" (Genesis 49:17); with regard to Naphtali it is written: "A hind let loose" (Genesis 49:21); with regard to Issachar it is written: "A large-boned donkey" (Genesis 49:14); with regard to Joseph it is written: "His first bullock" (Deuteronomy 33:17); with regard to Benjamin it is written: "A ravenous wolf" (Genesis 49:27).

Bava Kamma 17a:10

And the fact that he merits reward equal to the portion of two tribes is derived as follows: The reference to the ox in the verse is an allusion to Joseph, who is described as an ox (Deuteronomy 33:17), and one's reward is that he merits to receive a canopy of honor, as did Joseph, as it is written: "Joseph is a fruitful vine, a fruitful vine by a fountain; its branches run over the wall." The branches over the wall in this verse allude to the canopy. And the reference to the donkey is an allusion to the fact that he merits to receive the portion of Issachar, who is described as a donkey, as it is stated: "Issachar is a large-boned donkey" (Genesis 49:14).

Istahar (1 total match)

Megillah 13a:12

R' Neḥemya concurs and says: Hadassah was her real name. Why then was she called Esther? This was her non-Hebrew name, for owing to her beauty the nations of the world called her after Istahar, Venus. Ben Azzai says: Esther was neither tall nor short, but of average size like a myrtle tree, and therefore she was called Hadassah, the Hebrew name resembling that myrtle tree. R' Yehoshua ben Korḥa said: Esther was called Hadassah because she was greenish, having a pale complexion like a myrtle, but a cord of Divine grace was strung around her, endowing her with a beautiful appearance.

Ittai the Gittite (3 total matches)

Kiddushin 76b:16

The Talmud further asks: But isn't there Ittai the Gittite (II Samuel 15:19)? And if you would say that so too his name indicates that he dwelled in Gath but was born a Jew, but doesn't Rav Naḥman say, to explain how David could make use of the crown of the idol of Ammon in apparent violation of the prohibition against deriving benefit from idolatry: Ittai the Gittite came and nullified its status of an idol. The halakha is that only a gentile can nullify an idol, by doing something degrading to it. This indicates that Ittai the Gittite must have been a gentile.

Avodah Zarah 44a:13

Rav Huna answers: It is not difficult. In the interim, Ittai the Gittite, who was a gentile, arrived, and David commanded him to revoke the idolatrous status of the idols, as only gentiles are capable of doing this. Here, the verse that states that they burned the idols describes their actions before Ittai the Gittite came, whereas there, the verse that indicates that they simply carried them away is referring to after Ittai the Gittite came and revoked their status as objects of idol worship, obviating the need to burn them.

Avodah Zarah 44a:14

Another difficulty is resolved by Ittai's arrival; as it is written with regard to the Ammonite idol: "And he took the crown of Malcam from off his head, and its weight was a talent of gold, and in it were precious stones; and it was set on David's head" (II Samuel 12:30). But is it permitted for David to wear the crown? Isn't it an object of idol worship and therefore under the category of items from which deriving benefit is prohibited? Rav Naḥman says: Ittai the Gittite arrived and revoked its status as an object of idol worship.

Jacob (187 total matches, showing 5)

Berakhot 4a:16

The Talmud cites a proof that there is room for one to fear lest he commit a transgression in the future in accordance with the opinion of R' Ya'akov bar Idi, as R' Ya'akov bar Idi raised a contradiction between two verses. It is written that God told Jacob in his vision of the ladder: "Behold, I am with you and I guard you wherever you go" (Genesis 28:15), yet when Jacob returned to Canaan and realized that Esau was coming to greet him, it is written: "And Jacob became very afraid, and he was pained" (Genesis 32:8). Why did Jacob not rely on God's promise? Jacob had concerns and said to himself: Lest a transgression that I might have committed after God made His promise to me will cause God to revoke His promise of protection.

Berakhot 7b:6

Tangential to the mention of Leah's son, Judah, and the reason for his name, the Talmud explains the sources for other names, including Reuben. R' Elazar said: Reuben's name should be considered a prophecy by Leah, as Leah said: See [re'u] the difference between my son [beni] and the son of my father-in-law, Esau, son of Isaac. Even though Esau knowingly sold his birthright to his brother Jacob, as it is written: "And he sold his birthright to Jacob" (Genesis 25:33), nonetheless, behold what is written about him: "And Esau hated Jacob" (Genesis 27:41).

Berakhot 7b:7

Esau was not only angry over Isaac's blessing, but he was angry about another matter as well, as it is written: "And he said, 'Is he not rightly named Jacob, for he has supplanted me twice? He took my birthright, and behold, now he has taken my blessing'" (Genesis 27:36). Despite having sold his birthright, he refused to relinquish it.

Berakhot 8a:17

Rafram said to him, Rav Ḥisda said as follows: What is the meaning of the verse: "The Lord loves the gates of Zion [Tziyyon] more than all the dwellings of Jacob" (Psalms 87:2)? This means that YHWH loves the gates distinguished [metzuyanim] through the study of halakha as they are the gates of Zion, the outstanding gates, more than the synagogues and study halls. Although those places are the most outstanding of the dwellings of Jacob, they are not engaged in the study of halakha.

Berakhot 8b:14

Rav Adda bar Ahava said: From what verse is this derived? From the verse, "And Jacob sent and he called Rachel and Leah to the field to his flock" (Genesis 31:4); it was only there in the field that he held counsel with them.

Jacob our forefather (6 total matches, showing 5)

Sotah 9b:21

The verse states with regard to Samson: “And the spirit of YHWH began [vataḥel] to move him in Mahaneh Dan, between Zorah and Eshtaol” (Judges 13:25). R' Ḥama, son of R' Ḥanina, says: The prophecy of Jacob our forefather concerning the tribe of Dan took effect [Ḥaleta] through Samson, a member of the tribe of Dan, as it is written: “Dan shall be a serpent in the way, a horned snake in the path, that bites the horse’s heels, so that his rider falls backward” (Genesis 49:17).

Bava Metzia 84a:8

The Talmud asks: Is that so? Was R' Yoḥanan so beautiful? But doesn’t the Master say: The beauty of Rav Kahana is a semblance of the beauty of R' Abbahu; the beauty of R' Abbahu is a semblance of the beauty of Jacob, our forefather; and the beauty of Jacob, our forefather, is a semblance of the beauty of Adam the first man, who was created in the image of God. And yet R' Yoḥanan is not included in this list. The Talmud answers: R' Yoḥanan is different from these other men, as he did not have a beauty of countenance, i.e., he did not have a beard.

Bava Metzia 93b:3

Abaye raised an objection to Rabba from another baraita: To what extent is a paid bailee obligated to safeguard? He is obligated to the extent that Jacob said to Laban: “Thus I was: In the day the drought consumed me, and the frost by night” (Genesis 31:40). Rava said to him: There too, the baraita is speaking of city watchmen, whose responsibility extends further. Abaye said to him: Is that to say that Jacob, our forefather, whose statement is the source of this halakha, was a city watchman? Rava replied: It means that Jacob said to Laban: I safeguarded for you an extra level of safeguarding, like that of city watchmen.

Bava Batra 16b:11

Alternatively, what is the blessing of bakkol? That Esau did not rebel in Abraham’s lifetime, that is to say, as long as Abraham lived Esau did not sin. Alternatively, the blessing of bakkol is that Ishmael repented in Abraham’s lifetime. The Talmud explains: From where do we derive that Esau did not rebel in Abraham’s lifetime? As it is written: “And Jacob was cooking a stew and Esau came in from the field and he was faint” (Genesis 25:29), and a baraita taught: On that day Abraham our forefather passed away, and Jacob our forefather prepared a lentil stew to comfort Isaac, his father, as it was customary to serve mourners lentil stew.

Bava Batra 58a:7

It was also stated that the beauty of Rav Kahana is a semblance of the beauty of Rav. The beauty of Rav is a semblance of the beauty of R' Abbahu. The beauty of R' Abbahu is a semblance of the beauty of Jacob our forefather. The beauty of Jacob our forefather is a semblance of the beauty of Adam the first man.

Japheth (8 total matches, showing 5)

Yoma 9b:18

Rav Pappa said: Cast a man between them, and say that the incident did not involve Reish Lakish and Rabba bar bar Ḥana. It was either Reish Lakish bathing in the river and Ze'iri, the prominent Babylonian Sage, who extended him a hand, or it was Rabba bar bar Ḥana who was in the river and R' Elazar extended a hand to him. In any event, when the Sage who heard what Reish Lakish said came before R' Yoḥanan and related it, R' Yoḥanan said to him: That is not the reason; even had they all ascended in the days of Ezra, the Divine Presence would not have rested in the Second Temple, as it is written: "God will enlarge Japheth, and dwell in the tents of Shem" (Genesis 9:27).

Yoma 10a:1

The Talmud explains: Although God will enlarge Japheth, referring to the Persians, who descended from Japheth and who assisted in constructing the Second Temple, the Divine Presence rests only in the tents of Shem, in the First Temple, which was built by King Solomon without the patronage of a foreign power.

Yoma 10a:2

§ The Talmud asks: From where do we derive that the Persians descend from Japheth? The Talmud answers: As it is written: "The sons of Japheth were Gomer and Magog and Madai and Javan and Tuval and Meshech and Tiras" (Genesis 10:2). The Talmud explains: Gomer, that is Germamya; Magog, that is Kandiya; Madai, that is Macedonia; Javan, in accordance with its plain meaning, Greece; Tuval, that is the nation called Beit Unaiki; Meshech, that is Musya. With regard to Tiras, R' Simai and the Rabbis disagree, and some say the dispute is between R' Simon and the Rabbis: One said: That is Beit Teraiki, and one said: That is Persia. According to that approach, Persia is listed among the descendants of Japheth. Rav Yosef taught: Tiras is Persia.

Megillah 9b:4

The mishna cites that Rabban Shimon ben Gamliel says: Even with regard to Torah scrolls, the Sages permitted them to be written only in Greek. R' Abbahu said that R' Yoḥanan said: The halakha is in accordance with the opinion of Rabban Shimon ben Gamliel. And R' Yoḥanan said: What is the reason for the opinion of Rabban Shimon ben Gamliel? He based his opinion on an allusion in the Torah, as the verse states: "God shall enlarge Japheth, and He shall dwell in the tents of Shem" (Genesis 9:27), indicating that the words of Japheth shall be in the tents of Shem. The language of Javan, who is the forbear of the Greek nation and one of the descendants of Japheth, will also serve as a sacred language in the tents of Shem, where Torah is studied.

Megillah 9b:5

The Talmud asks: And say that it is the languages of Gomer and Magog that serve as sacred languages, as they too were descendants of Japheth (see Genesis 10:2). The Talmud answers that R' Ḥiyya bar Abba said: This is the reason, as it is written: "God shall enlarge [yaft] Japheth [Yefet]." Yaft is etymologically similar to the Hebrew term for beauty [yofi]. The verse teaches that the beauty of Japheth shall be in the tents of Shem, and Greek is the most beautiful of the languages of the descendants of Japheth.

Jeconiah (7 total matches, showing 5)

Gittin 88a:21

Rather, it must be interpreted as follows: The Holy One, Blessed be He, performed charity [tzedaka] with the people of Israel by exiling them in the exile of Zedekiah while the exile of Jeconiah still existed in Babylonia, as it is written with regard to the exile of Jeconiah: "And the craftsmen [Ḥarash] and the smiths [masger] a thousand" (II Kings 24:16). The great scholars, referred to in this verse as craftsmen and smiths, of the generation were exiled with Jeconiah, and they were therefore able to give guidance to those who were exiled in the time of Zedekiah when they came to Babylonia.

Sanhedrin 37b:14

R' Yoḥanan says: Exile atones for all transgressions and renders a sinner like a new person, as it is stated concerning the king Jeconiah, a descendant of King David: "So says YHWH: Write you this man childless, a man that shall not prosper in his days; for no man of his seed shall prosper, sitting upon the throne of David, and ruling anymore in Judah" (Jeremiah 22:30). And after Jeconiah was exiled it is written: "And the sons of Jeconiah, the same is Assir, Shealtiel his son" (I Chronicles 3:17). The verse employs the plural "sons of" although he had only one son, Shealtiel. "Assir," literally, prisoner, teaches that his mother conceived him in prison. "Shealtiel," literally, planted by God, teaches that God planted him in a way atypical of most plants [hanishtalin], i.e., people. It is learned as a tradition that a woman does not conceive when she is standing during sexual intercourse,

Sanhedrin 38a:4

Apropos the discussion of exile, Rav Ḥisda says that Mar Ukva says, and some say that Rav Ḥisda says that Mari bar Mar taught: What is the meaning of that which is written: "And so YHWH has hastened the evil, and brought it upon us; for YHWH our God is righteous in all His works He has done" (Daniel 9:14)? Is it because "YHWH our God is righteous" that "YHWH has hastened the evil, and brought it upon us"? He explains: Yes, because it was a righteous act that God, performed for the Jewish people by hastening the exile of Zedekiah while the Jews who had been exiled in the exile of Jeconiah, which preceded it, were still alive, as the wise people among those exiled with Jeconiah were able to instruct those exiled with Zedekiah.

Sanhedrin 38a:5

This is as it is written concerning the exile of Jeconiah: "And all the men of might, seven thousand, and the craftsmen [heḥarash] and the smiths [vehammasger] one thousand" (II Kings 24:16). The Talmud interprets: The term "Ḥarash," which can be read as Ḥeresh, deaf-mute, is referring to Torah scholars, as when they open their mouths to teach Torah, all the others become as though they were deaf-mutes, as they would listen quietly to the one teaching Torah. The term "masger," which is related to saggur, meaning closed, teaches that when they close, i.e., finish, teaching the halakha, they do not reopen the discussion, as all has been clarified. And how many were these Torah scholars? One thousand.

Sanhedrin 48b:19

The curse of those who "lack bread" was fulfilled among Solomon's descendants in Jeconiah, as it is written concerning him: "And as for his food allowance, there was a continual food allowance given him by the king, a daily portion for every day, all the days of his life" (II Kings 25:30). Rav Yehuda says that Rav says: This explains the adage that people say:

Taanit 27a:12

The Sages taught: Only four priestly watches ascended from the Babylonian exile, while the other twenty stayed in Babylonia. And these are the watches who returned: The descendants of Jedaiah, Harim, Pashhur, and Immer. The prophets among those who returned arose and divided them and established them as twenty-four watches. They achieved this by writing the names of these new twenty-four watches on pieces of paper, mixing them up, and putting them in a receptacle [kalfei] from which lots were drawn. A representative from the family of Jedaiah came and drew his portion and the lot of five other watches, for a total of six. Harim came and also drew his portion and the lot of five other watches, a total of six. And likewise Pashhur, and likewise Immer.

Taanit 27b:2

And likewise the prophets among them stipulated that even if the descendants of Jehoiarib, who originally headed the priestly watches, ascended to Eretz Yisrael, Jedaiah would not be demoted from its place as the first of the watches. Rather, the watch of Jedaiah would retain precedence, and Jehoiarib would be subordinate to it.

Bava Kamma 110a:10

The mishna continues: If the robber gave the money to the priestly watch of Joiarib and then gave the guilt-offering to the priestly watch of Jedaiah, the following priestly watch, to sacrifice on his behalf, he has fulfilled his obligation. By contrast, if he first gave the guilt-offering to the priestly watch of Joiarib and then gave the money to the priestly watch of Jedaiah, if the animal designated for the guilt-offering is extant, then members of the priestly watch of Jedaiah, who received the money, should sacrifice it. But if it is no longer extant because the priestly watch of Joiarib had already sacrificed it, he should return and bring another guilt-offering; for one who brings his stolen item to the priests before he brings his guilt-offering has fulfilled his obligation, but one who brings his guilt-offering before he brings his stolen item has not fulfilled his obligation.

Joshua wrote his own book and eight verses in the Torah, which describe the death of Moses. Samuel wrote his own book, the book of Judges, and the book of Ruth. And Shmuel said: The merit of the Patriarchs ceased since the days of Hazael, as it is stated: "And Hazael, king of Aram, oppressed Israel all the days of Jehoahaz" (II Kings 13:22). And it is written there: "And YHWH was gracious to them, and had compassion on them, and turned toward them because of His covenant with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob and would not destroy them; neither has He till now cast them away from His presence" (II Kings 13:23). That was the last time that the merit of the Patriarchs was mentioned.

Horayot 11b:10

Apropos the anointing oil, the baraita continues: And even a High Priest, son of a High Priest, requires anointing, but one does not anoint a king, son of a king. And if you say: For what reason did they anoint King Solomon (see I Kings, chapter 1), who was the son of a king? It was due to the challenge of Adonijah, who sought to succeed their father David as king. And they anointed Joash due to Athaliah (see II Kings, chapter 11). And they anointed Jehoahaz due to Jehoiakim, who was two years older than he was (see II Kings 23:30). In all these cases, it was necessary to underscore that these men were crowned king. And that oil remains in existence for the future, as it is stated: "This [zeh] shall be a sacred anointing oil unto Me throughout your generations" (Exodus 30:31). The numerical value of zeh is twelve log, indicating that this amount of oil remains intact despite its use.

Horayot 11b:15

The baraita teaches: And they anointed Jehoahaz due to Jehoiakim, who was two years older than he was. The Talmud asks: And was Jehoiakim older than Jehoahaz? But isn't it written: "And the sons of Josiah: The firstborn Johanan, the second Jehoiakim, the third Zedekiah, the fourth Shallum" (I Chronicles 3:15), and R' Yoḥanan says: He is Shallum, he is Zedekiah; these are two names for one person. Likewise, he is Johanan, he is Jehoahaz, who is mentioned in the book of Kings. Since Jehoahaz was the eldest, why was it necessary to anoint him? The Talmud answers: Actually, Jehoiakim was older than Jehoahaz. And what is the meaning of the term "firstborn" written with regard to Jehoahaz? It means that his status was like that of a firstborn in terms of ascent to the kingship.

Horayot 11b:17

The Master said: He is Shallum, he is Zedekiah; he is Johanan, he is Jehoahaz. The Talmud asks: But doesn't the verse enumerate them individually, as it is written: "The third Zedekiah, the fourth Shallum," indicating that they are two people? The Talmud answers: What is the meaning of third? It means the third among the sons. And what is the meaning of fourth? It means the fourth to ascend to the kingship. How so? Initially, Jehoahaz reigned, and ultimately, after him, Jehoiakim, and ultimately, after him, Jeconiah, son of Jehoiakim, and ultimately, after him, Zedekiah, who was fourth to the kingship.

Keritot 5b:4

The baraita adds: And High Priests and kings were anointed with it, and even a High Priest, the son of a High Priest, requires anointing with the oil. But one does not anoint a king, the son of a king. And if you say: If so, for what reason did they anoint King Solomon, who was the son of King David? It was due to the dispute over the throne instigated by his older brother Adonijah, who attempted to usurp the monarchy. And similarly Joash, son of Ahaziah, was anointed king (see II Kings 11:12) due to the threat of Athaliah, his paternal grandmother, who attempted to seize the monarchy for herself (II Kings 11:1–3). And Jehoahaz, son of Josiah, was anointed as king (II Kings 23:30) due to the competition from Jehoiakim, his brother, who was two years older than his brother, i.e., Jehoahaz. Ordinarily the older brother succeeds the father, but Jehoahaz was more worthy of the throne.

R' Neḥemya said to R' Yehuda, and some say that R' Shimon said to him: If so, you have nullified the interpretation of Jehoiada the priest. As it is taught in a mishna (Shekalim 6:6) that Jehoiada the priest taught this interpretation: The verse states: "It is a guilt offering; he is certainly guilty before YHWH" (Leviticus 5:19). The phrase "before YHWH" teaches that if any money comes on account of a sin offering or on account of a guilt offering, i.e., it is left over after their purchase, burnt offerings must be purchased with it, and their flesh must be burned on the altar to YHWH. But its hide shall go to the priests. R' Yehuda did not respond, indicating that he conceded that the hides of such offerings go to the priests.

Menachot 34a:7

Rav Shmuel bar Aḥa said before Rav Pappa in the name of Rava bar Ulla that the requirement that the mezuza be affixed to the right of the entrance is derived from here: "And Jehoiada the priest took a chest, and bored a hole in the lid of it, and set it beside the altar, on the right side as one comes into the House of YHWH; and the priests that kept the threshold put in there all the money that was brought into the House of YHWH" (II Kings 12:10). Temurah 23b:15

R' Neḥemya said to him, and some say it was R' Shimon who said to R' Yehuda: If so, the teaching of Jehoiada the High Priest has been negated. As it is taught in the aforementioned mishna: This teaching was taught by Jehoiada the High Priest: There is an apparent contradiction in a verse. On the one hand, the verse states: "It is a guilt offering" (Leviticus 5:19), indicating that the meat of this guilt offering is eaten by the priests, as is the halakha with regard to all guilt offerings. On the other hand, the same verse concludes: "He is certainly guilty before YHWH," which indicates that the entire offering is for God, like a burnt offering. Rather, the verse comes to include the following halakha: With regard to anything that comes from surplus funds designated for sin offerings or guilt offerings, those funds should be used to purchase burnt offerings. And likewise, the same happened when the Second Temple was destroyed.

Arakhin 12b:10

The Talmud comments: So too, it is reasonable to conclude that not all of the details pertaining to the destruction of the First Temple also apply to the destruction of the Second Temple. As, if you do not say so, then with regard to the statement that the destruction occurred during the week of the priestly watch of Jehoiarib, was the priestly watch of Jehoiarib present during the time of the Second Temple?

This indicates that the firstborn is the one who inherits his father's appointment, and so Levi legitimately asked why R' Yehuda HaNasi had to leave specific instructions about this.

Horayot 11b:16

The Talmud asks: And do younger sons rule before elder sons? But isn't it written: "And the kingdom he gave to Jehoram, because he was the firstborn" (II Chronicles 21:3). The Talmud answers: Jehoram was a surrogate for his ancestors as he was suited to serve as king, so since he was firstborn, he ascended to the throne. Jehoiakim was not a surrogate for his ancestors; he was not suited to serve as king. Therefore, his brother ascended to the throne before him.

Keritot 5b:12

The Talmud answers: Rather, Jehoiakim was actually older than Jehoahaz. And why does the verse call Jehoahaz the firstborn? This is referring to the fact that Jehoahaz was the firstborn with regard to the monarchy, i.e., he became king first. The Talmud asks: And do we establish the younger son as king before the older son? But isn't it written with regard to Jehoshaphat: "And he gave the kingdom to Jehoram, because he was the firstborn" (II Chronicles 21:3)? The Talmud answers: Jehoram was one who filled the place of his fathers, i.e., he was fit to serve as king, and therefore as he was firstborn he received the kingship, whereas Jehoiakim was deemed unworthy of the honor, despite being the oldest among his brothers.

Didn't Asa and Jehosaphat destroy all the idolatry in Eretz Yisrael? Rather, the verse juxtaposes the earlier ones, i.e., Solomon, to the later ones, i.e., Josiah. Just as the later ones, Josiah, did not effect the destruction of the altars, as it was done by his predecessors, and nevertheless the verse attributes it to him to praise him as if he had destroyed all those altars, so too, the earlier ones, Solomon, did not effect the construction, and nevertheless the verse attributes it to him to disgrace him as he did not prevent their construction.

Pesachim 119a:9

Asa came and took it from Zerah, king of Kush, when he defeated him in battle (II Chronicles 14) and sent it to Hadrimmon ben Tabrimmon, king of Aram (see I Kings 15). The children of Ammon came and took it from Hadrimmon ben Tabrimmon, as learned by tradition. Jehosaphat came and took it from the children of Ammon (see II Chronicles 20), and it remained in Eretz Yisrael until the reign of Ahaz.

Pesachim 66b:8

And that if he is a prophet, his prophecy departs from him, we learn from Elisha, as it is written that he became angry with the king of Israel and said to him: “Were it not that I have regard for the presence of Jehoshaphat the king of Judea, I would not look toward you, nor see you” (II Kings 3:14), and it is afterward written: “But now bring me a minstrel; and it came to pass when the minstrel played that the hand of YHWH came upon him” (II Kings 3:15). Because Elisha became angry with the king of Israel, his prophetic spirit departed from him and a minstrel was needed to rouse it anew.

Pesachim 92a:16

And furthermore, R' Yoḥanan said: By Torah law, there is not even a positive mitzva that restricts one who has immersed that day and will become pure only upon nightfall from entering the Temple, as it is stated: “And Jehoshaphat stood in the congregation of Judea and Jerusalem, in the House of YHWH, before the new courtyard” (II Chronicles 20:5). What is indicated by identifying the courtyards as the new courtyard? It indicates that they innovated something in it, and they said: One who has immersed on that day but will become pure only upon nightfall may not enter the Levite camp, which includes the entire Temple Mount. This suggests that the prohibition is of rabbinic origin and is not a positive mitzva.

Megillah 28a:15

In a similar incident, Rabbi Yehuda HaNasi once asked R' Yehoshua ben Korḥa: In the merit of which virtue were you blessed with longevity? He said to him: Why do you ask me, are you wearied of my long life? R' Yehuda HaNasi said to him: My teacher, it is Torah and so I must learn it. R' Yehoshua ben Korḥa said to him: In all my days I never gazed at the likeness of a wicked man, as R' Yoḥanan said: It is prohibited for a person to gaze in the image of the likeness of a wicked man, as it is stated that the prophet Elisha said to Jehoram king of Israel: “Were it not that I regard the presence of Jehoshaphat, the king of Judea, I would not look toward you, nor see you” (II Kings 3:14).

Yevamot 7b:7

R' Yoḥanan explains his claim: As it is stated: “And Jehoshaphat stood in the congregation of Judah and Jerusalem, in the House of YHWH, before the new courtyard” (II Chronicles 20:5). What is the meaning of “the new courtyard”? R' Yoḥanan said: This is referring to the place where they issued new matters and said that one who immersed himself that day may not enter the camp of the Levites, which in Jerusalem is the Temple Mount, despite the fact that by Torah law no such prohibition applies.

Ketubot 103b:23

The Talmud asks: Is that so that it is correct to behave in such a manner? But isn’t it written: “But he honors those that fear YHWH” (Psalms 15:4), and the Master said: This is referring to Jehoshaphat, king of Judea. When he would see a Torah scholar he would rise from his throne and hug him and kiss him and call to him: My teacher, my teacher, my master, my master. This demonstrates that it is appropriate even for a king to behave with affection toward Torah scholars.

Pesachim 87b:3

The passage in Hosea continues: "And she conceived, and bore him a son. And YHWH said to him: Call his name Jezreel; for soon I will visit the blood of Jezreel upon the house of Jehu, and will obliterate the kingdom of the house of Israel...And she conceived again, and bore a daughter. And He said to him: Call her name Lo-ruhamah, for I will no more have compassion upon the house of Israel that I should bear them...And she conceived, and bore a son. And He said: Call his name Lo-ammi; for you are not My people, and I will not be yours" (Hosea 1:3–9).

Megillah 14a:18

Hannah was a prophetess, as it is written: "And Hannah prayed and said, My heart rejoices in YHWH, my horn is exalted in YHWH" (I Samuel 2:1), and her words were prophecy, in that she said: "My horn is exalted," and not: My pitcher is exalted. As, with regard to David and Solomon, who were anointed with oil from a horn, their kingship continued, whereas with regard to Saul and Jehu, who were anointed with oil from a pitcher, their kingship did not continue. This demonstrates that Hannah was a prophetess, as she prophesied that only those anointed with oil from a horn will merit that their kingships continue.

Gittin 88a:16

§ The Talmud cites another derivation from this verse. R' Yehoshua ben Levi says: The first destruction of Eretz Yisrael did not occur until seven dynasties and their courts committed idol worship in it, and they are these: Jeroboam, son of Nevat; and Baasa, son of Ahijah; and Ahab, son of Omri; and Jehu, son of Nimshi; and Pekah, son of Remaliah; and Menahem, son of Gadi; and Hoshea, son of Elah, as it is stated: "She who has given birth to seven languishes; her spirit droops; her sun is gone down while it was yet day, she is ashamed and confounded" (Jeremiah 15:9).

Sanhedrin 102a:1

And even Ahijah the Shilonite erred in this matter and signed that he would accept all of Jeroboam's pronouncements. And generations later this caused Jehu to sin. The Talmud explains: As Jehu was an extremely righteous person. As it is stated: "And YHWH said to Jehu: Because you have done well, to perform what is right in My eyes, and have done to the house of Ahab according to all that was in My heart, your children of the fourth generation shall sit on the throne of Israel" (II Kings 10:30). And it is written: "But Jehu took no care to walk in the Torah of YHWH, God of Israel, with all his heart; he departed not from the sins of Jeroboam, who made Israel sin" (II Kings 10:31).

Sanhedrin 102a:2

What caused Jehu to do so? Abaye says: A covenant is made with the lips, as it is stated that Jehu said cunningly in an attempt to entrap the priests of the Baal: "Ahab worshipped Baal a little, but Jehu shall serve him much" (II Kings 10:18). Although it was not his intention, once the statement escaped his lips he began following the path to its fulfillment. Rava says: He saw the seal of Ahijah the Shilonite on the coronation document of Jeroboam and he erred and believed that it was permitted to act as Jeroboam did.

Bava Batra 16b:7

R' Yoḥanan said to him: Granted, the numbers of Job's daughters were not doubled in name, meaning they did not become twice as many, but they were doubled in beauty, as it is written: "He had also seven sons and three daughters. And he called the name of the first Jemimah, and the name of the second was Keziah, and the name of the third one was Keren-happuch" (Job 42:13–14). All three names relate to the daughters' beauty.

Bava Batra 16b:8

Jemimah [Yemima]; in her beauty she was similar to the day [yom]. Keziah; her scent wafted like the cassia [ketzia] tree. Keren-happuch; in the school of Rav Sheila they say: She was similar to the horn [keren] of a keresh, an animal whose horns are particularly beautiful. They laughed at this in the West, Eretz Yisrael, since it is considered a blemish when a person resembles the horn of a keresh. Rather, Rav Ḥisda said: She was like garden saffron [kekurkema derishka], which is the best of its kind. Keren refers to a garden, and pukh means ornament, as it is stated: "Though you enlarge your eyes with paint [pukh], you beautify yourself in vain" (Jeremiah 4:30).

Rosh Hashanah 25a:16

And similarly it says: "And Samuel said to the people: It is YHWH Who made Moses and Aaron" (I Samuel 12:6). And it says further: "And YHWH sent Jerubaal and Bedan and Jephthah and Samuel" (I Samuel 12:11). The Talmud explains: Jerubaal, this is Gideon. And why is he called Jerubaal? The reason is that he waged a quarrel against Baal. Bedan, this is Samson. And why is he called Bedan? As he came from the tribe of Dan. Jephthah, in accordance with its regular meaning, i.e., this is referring to Jephthah himself and is not a nickname.

Rosh Hashanah 25b:2

This comes to tell you that Jerubaal in his generation is worthy of being treated like Moses in his generation; Bedan in his generation is like Aaron in his generation; and Jephthah in his generation is like Samuel in his generation. This serves to teach you that even the lightest of the light, i.e., the least distinguished individual, once he has been appointed as a leader over the community, he must be treated like the greatest of the great, and all are required to heed him and obey his rulings.

Taanit 4a:4

As a preamble to the statement of R' Berekhya, below, the Talmud cites that which R' Shmuel bar Naḥmani said that R' Yonatan said: Three people entreated God in an unreasonable manner, i.e., in situations where their requests might have received an unfavorable answer. To two of them God responded reasonably, with a favorable response to their requests, and to one God responded unreasonably, i.e., unfavorably, in a manner befitting the unreasonable request. And they are: Eliezer, servant of Abraham; Saul, son of Kish; and Jephthah the Gileadite.

Taanit 4a:7

By contrast, there is the case of Jephthah the Gileadite. Upon leaving for battle he issued a statement, as it is written: "Then it shall be that whatever comes forth from the doors of my house to meet me when I return in peace...it shall be to YHWH and I will bring it up for a burnt-offering" (Judges 11:31). This might even have been an impure, non-kosher animal, which he had committed himself to sacrifice. In this instance, God responded to him unreasonably, and his daughter happened to come to him.

Taanit 4a:10

The Talmud interprets each phrase of this verse: "Which I did not command," this is referring to the son of Mesha, king of Moab. King Mesha sacrificed his son, as it is stated: "Then he took his firstborn son, who would reign after him, and he offered him as a burnt-offering" (II Kings 3:27). "And I did not speak," this is referring to Jephthah, who sacrificed his daughter as an offering. "Nor did it come into my heart," this is referring to Isaac, son of Abraham. Although God commanded Abraham to sacrifice Isaac, there was no intent in God's heart that he should actually do so; it was merely a test.

Taanit 4a:4

As a preamble to the statement of R' Berekhya, below, the Talmud cites that which R' Shmuel bar Naḥmani said that R' Yonatan said: Three people entreated God in an unreasonable manner, i.e., in situations where their requests might have received an unfavorable answer. To two of them God responded reasonably, with a favorable response to their requests, and to one God responded unreasonably, i.e., unfavorably, in a manner befitting the unreasonable request. And they are: Eliezer, servant of Abraham; Saul, son of Kish; and Jephthah the Gileadite.

Taanit 14b:13

And R' Elazar further said: Not all are worthy to petition God by rending their garments, and not all are worthy of falling on their faces in times of trouble. Moses and Aaron were worthy of petitioning God by falling on their faces, whereas their students Joshua and Caleb prayed by only rending their garments. The Talmud elaborates: Moses and Aaron petitioned God by falling on their faces, as it is written: "Then Moses and Aaron fell on their faces" (Numbers 14:5). Joshua and Caleb prayed by rending their garments, as it is written in the next verse: "And Joshua, son of Nun, and Caleb, son of Jephunneh, who were of those who spied out the land, rent their garments" (Numbers 14:6).

Sotah 11b:23

The Talmud discusses the family of Caleb: In Chronicles it says: "And Caleb, the son of Hezron, begot children of Azubah his wife, and of Jerioth, and these were her sons: Jesher, and Shobab, and Ardon" (I Chronicles 2:18). The Talmud asks: Was Caleb actually the son of Hezron? Wasn't he the son of Jephunneh, as the verse states in Numbers 13:6? The Talmud answers: He was the son of Hezron, but he is called "son of Jephunneh" as an appellation indicating that he was a son who turned away [sheppana] from the counsel of the spies.

Bava Batra 118b:3

§ The Talmud analyzes the next section of the baraita, which states: With regard to the twelve spies sent to survey Eretz Yisrael prior to the Jewish people's entry into the land, Joshua and Caleb took all of the spies' portions of the land. The Talmud asks: From where is this matter derived? Ulla said: It is as the verse states: "But Joshua, son of Nun, and Caleb, son of Jephunneh, lived of those men that went to spy out the land" (Numbers 14:38). What does the term "lived" mean? If we say that it means literally that they lived, but there is another verse that states: "And there was not left a man of them, save Caleb, son of Jephunneh, and Joshua, son of Nun" (Numbers 26:65), so why would the Torah state it twice? Rather, what does the term "lived" mean? That Joshua and Caleb lived in the other spies' portion of the land.

Bava Batra 121b:7

The Talmud asks: And is it true that Ahijah the Shilonite saw Amram? But it is written: "And no man among them remained, save Caleb, son of Jephunneh, and Joshua, son of Nun" (Numbers 26:65). Since Amram died well before the Jewish people left Egypt, in order to have lived at the time of Amram, Ahijah would have had to be an adult at the time of the Exodus. How, then, could he have lived through the generation of those who died in the wilderness?

Bava Batra 122b:2

Caleb also received his portion directly from God and not through the lottery, as it is written: "And they gave Hebron to Caleb, as Moses had spoken; and he drove out from there the three sons of the giant" (Judges 1:20). The Talmud asks about this verse: But Hebron was a city of refuge that belonged to the priests, as described in the book of Joshua (21:13); how could it have been given to Caleb? Abaye said: Its outskirts [parvaraha], i.e., only the fields and vineyards lying beyond the city limits, were given to Caleb. As it is written: "But the fields of the city, and the villages thereof, they gave to Caleb the son of Jephunneh for his possession" (Joshua 21:12).

Megillah 13a:3

§ Incidental to the exposition of the word Yehudi as one who repudiates idolatry, the Talmud relates that when R' Shimon ben Pazi introduced his exposition of the book of Chronicles, he addressed the book of Chronicles and said as follows: All of your words are one, and we know how to expound them. This introduction made reference to the fact that the book of Chronicles cannot always be interpreted literally but requires exposition, as the same individual might be called by various different names, as in the following verse: "And his wife HaYehudiyya bore Jered the father of Gedor, and Heber the father of Soco, and Jekuthiel the father of Zanoah. And these are the sons of Bithiah the daughter of Pharaoh, whom Mered took" (I Chronicles 4:18).

Megillah 13a:6

The Talmud explains how all the names in fact are referring to Moses: "Jered"; this is Moses, and why was he called Jered? Because manna came down [yarad] for the Jewish people in his days. He was also called "Gedor" because he fenced in [gadar] the breaches of the Jewish people. He was called "Heber" because he connected [Ḥibber] the Jewish people to their Father in Heaven. He was called "Soco" because he was for the Jewish people like a shelter [sukka] and shield. He was called "Jekuthiel" because the Jewish people trusted in God [kivu laEl] in his days. Lastly, he was called "Zanoah" because he caused the iniquities of the Jewish people to be disregarded [hiznia?].

Sanhedrin 19b:15

R' Yoḥanan says: Proof for the aforementioned statement can be derived from here: "And his wife Hajehudijah gave birth to Jered the father of Gedor, and Heber the father of Soco, and Jekuthiel the father of Zanoah, and these are the sons of Bithiah, daughter of Pharaoh, whom Mered took" (I Chronicles 4:18). Mered is Caleb, and why was his name called Mered? Because he rebelled [marad] against the counsel of the spies. And according to the midrash, Jered, Heber, and Jekuthiel all refer to Moses our teacher. And did Bithiah give birth to Moses? But didn't Jochebed give birth to him? Rather, Jochebed gave birth to him and Bithiah raised him. Therefore, he was called by her name as though she had given birth to him.

Berakhot 57b:2

There are also three books of Prophets whose appearance in a dream is meaningful: One who sees the book of Kings should anticipate greatness, royalty; one who sees the book of Ezekiel should anticipate wisdom, as the configuration of the Divine Chariot is described therein; one who sees the book of Isaiah should anticipate consolation; and one who sees the book of Jeremiah should be concerned about calamity, because Jeremiah prophesied extensively of impending calamity.

Yoma 38b:5

And with regard to her and others like her Jeremiah lamented: "Shall the women eat their fruit, their children in their care [tipuḥim]?" (Lamentations 2:20). The Talmud interprets the term tipuḥim homiletically as referring to this baby, who was measured in handbreadths [tefaḥim]. Even he was eaten by his mother. And the Divine Spirit responds and says: Why did this happen? "Shall the priest and the prophet be slain in the Temple of YHWH?" (Lamentations 2:20). It is punishment for the murder of the priest Zechariah ben Jehoiada. This incident involves a boy named Doeg; even though the person with that name was wicked (see I Samuel, chapter 22), the boy was named for him. The Talmud responds: See what befell him. Clearly, his name was a bad omen.

Yoma 69b:14

The Talmud comments: This interpretation that Rav Mattana said leans to, i.e., is consonant with, the exposition of R' Yehoshua ben Levi. As R' Yehoshua ben Levi said: Why are the Sages of those generations called the members of the Great Assembly? It is because they returned the crown of God, to its former glory. How so? Moses came and said in his prayer: "The great, the mighty, and the awesomeGod" (Deuteronomy 10:17). Jeremiah the prophet came and said: Gentiles, i.e., the minions of Nebuchadnezzar, are carousing in His sanctuary; where is His awesomeness? Therefore, he did not say awesome in his prayer: "The great God, the mighty Lord of Hosts, is His name" (Jeremiah 32:18). Daniel came and said: Gentiles are enslaving His children; where is His might? Therefore he did not say mighty in his prayer: "The great and awesome God" (Daniel 9:4).

Taanit 15a:8

R' Yehuda says: The prayer leader did not need to recite the Remembrances and *Shofarot passages. Rather, he recites instead of them the passage beginning with: "If there be famine in the land, if there be pestilence" (I Kings 8:37), followed by the verse "The word of YHWH that came to Jeremiah concerning the droughts" (Jeremiah 14:1).

Taanit 22b:4

R' Shmuel bar Naḥmani said that R' Yoḥanan said: For what reason was Josiah punished? Because he should have consulted with the prophet Jeremiah to find out if he should go to war, but he did not consult with him. How did Josiah interpret the verses of the Torah? How did they lead him to go to war? The verse states: "Neither shall a sword go through your land" (Leviticus 26:6).

The Talmud asks: Was Caleb actually the son of Hezron? Wasn't he the son of Jephunneh, as the verse states in Numbers 13:6? The Talmud answers: He was the son of Hezron, but he is called "son of Jephunneh" as an appellation indicating that he was a son who turned away [sheppana] from the counsel of the spies.

Sotah 12a:3

The same verse refers to Miriam additionally as Jerioth, which the Talmud explains was appropriate, for her face was like extremely pallid curtains [yeriot].

What is the meaning of the continuation of the verse: He is the companion of a destroyer? R' Ḥanina bar Pappa said: He is a companion of Jeroboam ben Nevat, who corrupted Israel before their Father in heaven by sinning and causing others to sin.

Shabbat 56b:3

To the matter at hand: Rav Yehuda said that Rav said: When David said to Mephibosheth: You and Ziba shall divide the estate, a Divine Voice emerged and said to him: Rehoboam and Jeroboam shall divide the kingdom.

Shabbat 56b:15

It was taught in a baraita: On that very day that Jeroboam introduced two golden calves, one in Beth-El and the other in Dan, a single small hut was constructed, which was the first house constructed there. And that was the inauguration of Italy of Greece.

Pesachim 87b:10

R' Yoḥanan said: Due to what reason was the less than righteous Jeroboam, son of Joash, king of Israel, privileged to be counted in the verse together with the righteous kings of Judea? It is due to the fact that he did not accept slander about Amos.

Pesachim 87b:11

The Talmud asks: From where do we derive that he was counted together with the righteous kings of Judea? As it is written: "The word of YHWH that came to Hosea, son of Beeri, in the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judea, and in the days of Jeroboam, the son of Joash, king of Israel" (Hosea 1:1).

The Talmud discusses the family of Caleb: In Chronicles it says: "And Caleb, the son of Hezron, begot children of Azubah his wife, and of Jerioth, and these were her sons: Jesher, and Shobab, and Ardon" (I Chronicles 2:18). The Talmud asks: Was Caleb actually the son of Hezron? Wasn't he the son of Jephunneh, as the verse states in Numbers 13:6? The Talmud answers: He was the son of Hezron, but he is called "son of Jephunneh" as an appellation indicating that he was a son who turned away [sheppana] from the counsel of the spies.

Sotah 12a:4

The verse continues: "And these were her sons [vaneha]." The Talmud explains: Do not read it as vaneha*, her sons; rather, read it as boneha*, her builders. In other words, the rest of the names in the verse are not the names of her children, but rather appellations for her husband, whose marriage to her built her, as it were. The first appellation for Caleb, "Jesher," is referring to his actions, as he set himself straight [yisher] and did not join in the counsel of the spies. The second appellation, "Shobab," is referring to the fact that he broke [sibbev] his evil inclination by rebelling against the other spies. The third appellation, "and Ardon [veArdon]," is referring to the fact that he ruled [rada] over his evil inclination. The Talmud is still puzzled by this verse: And did Saul not recognize David's father? But isn't it written with regard to Jesse, David's father: "And the man in the days of Saul was old, and came among men" (I Samuel 17:12), and Rav, and some say R' Abba, said: This is referring to Jesse, father of David, who always entered with multitudes [ukhlusa] and left with multitudes. As he was clearly a man of importance, everyone must have known who he was.

Rava says: The verse is speaking of actual harlots. Ahab was a frigid man, who did not lust for women. And Jezebel, his wife, fashioned two forms of harlots for him in his chariot, in order that he see them while traveling and become aroused. Accordingly, one would understand the verse as stating that the harlots were washed, not that they washed themselves.

R' Yitzḥak says: For what reason did Obadiah merit prophecy? It is because he concealed one hundred prophets in a cave, as it is stated: "It was so, when Jezebel cut off the prophets of YHWH, that Obadiah took one hundred prophets, and hid them, fifty men in a cave, and fed them with bread and water" (I Kings 18:4). The Talmud asks: What is different, i.e., why did he decide, to conceal fifty men in each of two caves and not conceal them all together in one cave? R' Elazar says: He learned from the behavior of Jacob to do so, as it is stated: "And he said: If Esau comes to the one camp and smites it, then the camp that is left shall escape" (Genesis 32:9). Obadiah learned from this to divide the prophets and thereby lessen the danger. R' Abbahu says: It is because there is no cave big enough to contain more than fifty people.

Sanhedrin 102b:14

Rav Naḥman says: Ahab was balanced in terms of the mitzvot and transgressions that he performed, as it is stated: "And YHWH said, who shall entice Ahab that he may ascend and fall at Ramoth Gilead? And this one said in this manner, and that one said in that manner" (I Kings 22:20), indicating that it is unclear whether or not he was a full-fledged transgressor. Rav Yosef objects to this statement: This is the person about whom the prophet wrote: "But there was none like Ahab who devoted himself to do evil in the eyes of YHWH, whom Jezebel his wife had incited" (I Kings 21:25). And we learn in a baraita: Every day she would weigh gold shekels equal to Ahab's weight for idol worship. And you say he was balanced? Rather, Ahab was generous with his money and did not scrimp, and since he also benefited Torah scholars with his property, the heavenly court expiated half his sins for him. The result was a balance between mitzvot and transgressions.

Zevachim 31a:12

§ R' Yannai says: If one had intent that dogs would eat the offering the next day, it is rendered piggul*, as it is written: "And the dogs shall eat Jezebel in the portion of Jezreel" (II Kings 9:10). The verse indicates that consumption by dogs is considered eating.

Shabbat 55b:3

The Talmud raises an objection from what was taught in the following baraita: Four people died due to Adam's sin with the serpent, in the wake of which death was decreed upon all of mankind, although they themselves were free of sin. And they are: Benjamin, son of Jacob; Amram, father of Moses; Yishai, father of David; and Kilab, son of David. And all of them were learned through tradition, except for Yishai, father of David, with regard to whom there is an explicit verse interpreted homiletically, as it is written: "And Absalom placed Amasa in charge of the army in place of Joab, and Amasa was the son of a man named Ithra the Israelite, who had taken to himself Abigail the daughter of Nahash, sister of Zeruiah, the mother of Joab" (II Samuel 17:25).

Shabbat 56a:11

What is the reason that David was not liable for the death of Uriah? Because Uriah was a traitor against the throne. As he said to David: "And my lord Joab and the servants of my lord are encamped in the open fields" (II Samuel 11:11). In the presence of the king, one may not refer to another as his lord. Doing so is treason.

Taanit 28a:13

§ The mishna taught: On the twentieth of Av, the wood offering was brought by the descendants of Pahath Moab ben Yehuda. A tanna taught: The descendants of Pahath Moab ben Yehuda are the descendants of David ben Yehuda. He is called Moab because Ruth the Moabite was the grandmother of David's father, Yishai. This is the statement of R' Meir. R' Yosei says: These are the descendants of Joab, son of Zeruiah, whose mother was the daughter of Yishai and therefore also descended from Ruth.

Taanit 28a:14

The mishna further taught: On the twentieth of Elul, the descendants of Adin ben Yehuda brought their wood offering. The Sages taught: The descendants of Adin ben Yehuda are the descendants of David ben Yehuda, who was called Adin. This is the statement of R' Yehuda. R' Yosei says: These are the descendants of Joab, son of Zeruiah.

Taanit 28a:16

The Talmud continues: If it represents the opinion of R' Yehuda, let him teach that the descendants of David ben Yehuda returned for a second time on a different date, the twentieth of Elul, as he contends that the descendants of Adin ben Yehuda are the descendants of David. And if the mishna represents the opinion of R' Yosei, let him teach that the descendants of Joab, son of Zeruiah, returned for a second time, as he maintains that the descendants of Pahath Moab and the descendants of Adin ben Yehuda are both the descendants of Joab.

Kiddushin 49b:3

If a man says to a woman: Be betrothed to me on the condition that I am strong, one does not say that he must be as strong as Abner ben Ner, King Saul's cousin and general, or as strong as Joab ben Zeruiah, King David's nephew and general. Rather, it means anyone of whom others are afraid due to his strength. If a man says to a woman: Be betrothed to me on the condition that I am wealthy, one does not say he must be as wealthy as R' Elazar ben Ḥarsom or as wealthy as R' Elazar ben Azarya, but rather it can refer to anyone who is honored by the members of his town due to his wealth.

Makkot 11b:7

And one who is exiled may not leave the city at all, either for testimony relating to a mitzva, or for testimony relating to monetary matters, or for testimony relating to capital matters. And even if the Jewish people require his services, and even if he is the general of the army of Israel like Joab ben Zeruiah, he never leaves the city of refuge, as it is stated: "And the congregation shall restore him to his city of refuge, that he fled there" (Numbers 35:25), from which it is derived: There shall be his dwelling, there shall be his death, there shall be his burial.

Pesachim 87b:10

R' Yoḥanan said: Due to what reason was the less than righteous Jeroboam, son of Joash, king of Israel, privileged to be counted in the verse together with the righteous kings of Judea? It is due to the fact that he did not accept slander about Amos.

Pesachim 87b:11

The Talmud asks: From where do we derive that he was counted together with the righteous kings of Judea? As it is written: "The word of YHWH that came to Hosea, son of Beeri, in the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judea, and in the days of Jeroboam, the son of Joash, king of Israel" (Hosea 1:1).

Yevamot 98a:11

Ravina said: R' Akiva was saying that Jonah did not prophesize a third time about the issue of Nineveh. Rav Naḥman bar Yitzḥak said that this is the meaning of the phrase "According to the word of YHWH, the God of Israel, which He spoke by the hand of His servant Jonah the son of Amittai, the prophet": It is not that Jonah had prophesized about the conquests of Jeroboam ben Joash, but rather that just as the fortune of Nineveh turned from bad to good, so too, in the days of Jeroboam ben Joash, Israel's fortune turned from bad to good.

Bava Batra 91b:7

The Talmud returns to its discussion of the story of Ruth. It is written: "Mahlon and Chilion" (Ruth 1:2), and it is written elsewhere: "Joash and Saraph, who had dominion in Moab" (I Chronicles 4:22). Apparently, both names refer to the same individuals who married Moabite wives. Rav and Shmuel disagreed with regard to their true names. One says: Their given names were Mahlon and Chilion, and why were they called by the names Saraph and Joash? One was called Joash [yoash] because they despaired [nitya'ashu] of the redemption of Eretz Yisrael, as they established themselves in Moab and lived there for many years. The other was called Saraph, because they were liable to receive the punishment of burning [sereifa] for their sins against God, because they left their community.

Bava Batra 91b:8

And one of them says: Their given names were Joash and Saraph, and why were they called by the names Mahlon and Chilion? One was called Mahlon [maḥlon] because they made their bodies profane [ḥullin], and the other was called Chilion [khilyon] because they were liable to receive the punishment of destruction [kelaya] for their sins against God.

Berakhot 17a:6

When R' Yoḥanan would conclude study of the book of Job, he said the following:
A person will ultimately die and an animal will ultimately be slaughtered, and all are destined for death.
Therefore, death itself is not a cause for great anguish.
Rather, happy is he who grew up in Torah, whose labor is in Torah,
who gives pleasure to his Creator,
who grew up with a good name and who took leave of the world with a good name.
Such a person lived his life fully, and about him, Solomon said:
"A good name is better than fine oil, and the day of death than the day of one's birth" (Ecclesiastes 7:1); one who was faultless in life reaches the day of his death on a higher level than he was at the outset.

Berakhot 57b:3

Similarly, there are three great books of Writings whose appearance in a dream has particular significance: One who sees the book of Psalms should anticipate piety; one who sees the book of Proverbs should anticipate wisdom; one who sees the book of Job should be concerned about calamity.

Berakhot 58b:13

And we learned a tradition that if the tail of the constellation Scorpio did not rest in the River of Fire, anyone stung by a scorpion would not survive. And that is what the All-Merciful said to Job of the relationship between heat and cold among the stars: "Can you bind the chains of the Pleiades or loosen the bands of Orion?" (Job 38:31); God alternates intensifying the power of different constellations in order to raise or lower the temperature.

Shabbat 115a:7

R' Yosei said: There was an incident involving my father, Ḥalafta, who went to the esteemed Rabban Gamliel of Yavne in Tiberias, where he found him sitting at the table of Yoḥanan HaNazuf and in his hand there was a translation of the book of Job, and he was reading from it. Yoḥanan said to Rabban Gamliel of Yavne: I remember Rabban Gamliel, your father's father, who was standing on top of a step on the Temple Mount. And they brought before him a translation of the book of Job, and he said to the builder: Bury this book under the course of bricks. When he heard of that incident, Rabban Gamliel of Yavne ordered that it be buried and he buried it. R' Yosei, son of R' Yehuda, says that on the Temple Mount they overturned a large bowl of mortar on it. Rabbi Yehuda HaNasi said: There are two responses to this that prove that it did not happen: One, from where would they get mortar on the Temple Mount? Construction on the Temple Mount was performed with other materials, not with mortar. And furthermore, is it permitted to actively destroy even sacred writings that are not read, with one's hands? Rather, at the very least they leave them in a neglected place, where they are likely to decompose quickly, and they decay on their own. The Talmud seeks to clarify: Who are the tanna'im who dispute this halakha according to Rav Huna?

Eruvin 21a:13

Rav Ḥisda said: Mari bar Mar interpreted homiletically: What is the meaning of that which is written: "I have seen a limit to every purpose; but Your commandment is exceedingly broad" (Psalms 119:96)? This idea with regard to the breadth of the Torah was stated by David, but he did not explain it; it was stated by Job, but he too did not explain it; it was stated by Ezekiel, but he also did not explain it, until Zechariah, son of Berechiah, son of Iddo, came and explained it.

Sotah 11b:11

§ The verse states: “And the king of Egypt spoke to the Hebrew midwives, of whom the name of the one was Shiphrah, and the name of the other Puah” (Exodus 1:15). Rav and Shmuel disagree as to the proper interpretation of this verse. One says that these midwives were a woman and her daughter, and one says that they were a daughter-in-law and her mother-in-law. According to the one who says that they were a woman and her daughter, the women were Jochebed, the mother of Moses and Aaron, and her daughter, Miriam. And according to the one who says that they were a daughter-in-law and her mother-in-law, the verse is referring to Jochebed and her daughter-in-law Elisheba, the wife of Aaron.

Sotah 11b:12

It is taught in a baraita according to the one who says that they were a woman and her daughter, because it is taught in a baraita: With regard to Shiphrah, who is referred to in the verse, this is really a reference to Jochebed. And why was she called Shiphrah? Because she would prepare [mishapperet] the newborn. Alternatively, she is referred to as Shiphrah because the Jewish people increased and multiplied [shepparu verabbu] in her days, due to her assistance.

Sotah 12a:14

The verse is referring to Jochebed as “a daughter of Levi” (Exodus 2:1). The Talmud asks: Is it possible that this is Jochebed? Jochebed was then 130 years old and the verse still calls her a daughter? Jochebed’s age is established based on a tradition concerning the number of the descendants of Jacob who came to Egypt, as follows: While the verse states that Leah had thirty-three descendants (Genesis 46:15), only thirty-two were enumerated. This was explained as R' Ḥama, son of R' Ḥanina, says: The “daughter of Levi” is Jochebed, whose conception was on the road, as the family of Jacob descended to Egypt, and she was born between the walls, i.e., in Egypt, as it is stated: “And the name of Amram’s wife was Jochebed, the daughter of Levi, who was born to Levi in Egypt” (Numbers 26:59).

Bava Batra 119b:13

The Talmud asks: Is that so? But doesn’t Rav Ḥisda say: If a woman marries when she is less than twenty years old, she is able to give birth until she reaches the age of sixty; if she marries when she is twenty years old or older, she is able to give birth until she reaches the age of forty; if she marries when she is forty years old or older, she is no longer able to give birth at all. If so, how could Zelophehad’s daughters have waited until the age of forty to marry? Rather, since they are righteous women, a miracle was performed for them, like the one done for Jochebed. As it is written: “And a man of the house of Levi went, and took as a wife a daughter of Levi” (Exodus 2:1).

Bava Batra 120a:1

The Talmud asks: Is it possible that this is Jochebed? Jochebed was then 130 years old and the verse called her a daughter, indicating one who is very young. Jochebed’s age is established based on a tradition concerning the number of Jacob’s descendants who came to Egypt, as follows: While the verse states that Leah had thirty-three descendants (Genesis 46:15), only thirty-two were enumerated. This was explained as R' Ḥama bar Ḥanina says: This “daughter of Levi” is Jochebed, whose conception occurred on the journey as the family of Jacob descended to Egypt, and she was born within the walls, i.e., having entered Egypt, as it is written: “And the name of Amram’s wife was Jochebed, the daughter of Levi, who was born to Levi in Egypt” (Numbers 26:59).

Sukkah 52a:9

Isaiah called it a stumbling block, as it is stated: "And He will say: Cast you up, cast you up, clear the way, take up the stumbling block out of the way of My people" (Isaiah 57:14). Ezekiel called it stone, as it is stated: "And I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and I will give you a heart of flesh" (Ezekiel 36:26). Joel called it hidden one, as it says: "But I will remove the northern one [hatzefoni] far off from you" (Joel 2:20). The Sages taught concerning the verse: "But I will remove the northern one [hatzefoni] far off from you," that this is referring to the evil inclination. And why is the evil inclination referred to as tzefoni? It is due to the fact that it is always hidden [tzafun] in the heart of man.

Taanit 5a:4

GEMARA: Rav Naḥman said to R' Yitzḥak: Is the first rain in Nisan? The first rain is in Marḥeshvan, as we learned in a baraita: The first rain is in Marḥeshvan and the last rain is in Nisan. R' Yitzḥak said to Rav Naḥman that R' Yoḥanan said as follows: This verse was fulfilled in the days of the prophet Joel, son of Pethuel, in a year concerning which it is written: "That which the palmer-worm has left, the locust has eaten and that which the locust has left, the canker-worm has eaten; and that which the canker-worm has left, the caterpillar has eaten" (Joel 1:4), when no crops remained. In that year, the month of Adar ended and still no rain had fallen. The rain of the first rainy season fell for them on the first of Nisan.

Johanan (4 total matches)

Horayot 11b:15

The baraita teaches: And they anointed Jehoahaz due to Jehoiakim, who was two years older than he was. The Talmud asks: And was Jehoiakim older than Jehoahaz? But isn't it written: "And the sons of Josiah: The firstborn Johanan, the second Jehoiakim, the third Zedekiah, the fourth Shallum" (I Chronicles 3:15), and R' Yoḥanan says: He is Shallum, he is Zedekiah; these are two names for one person. Likewise, he is Johanan, he is Jehoahaz, who is mentioned in the book of Kings. Since Jehoahaz was the eldest, why was it necessary to anoint him? The Talmud answers: Actually, Jehoiakim was older than Jehoahaz. And what is the meaning of the term "firstborn" written with regard to Jehoahaz? It means that his status was like that of a firstborn in terms of ascent to the kingship.

Horayot 11b:17

The Master said: He is Shallum, he is Zedekiah; he is Johanan, he is Jehoahaz. The Talmud asks: But doesn't the verse enumerate them individually, as it is written: "The third Zedekiah, the fourth Shallum," indicating that they are two people? The Talmud answers: What is the meaning of third? It means the third among the sons. And what is the meaning of fourth? It means the fourth to ascend to the kingship. How so? Initially, Jehoahaz reigned, and ultimately, after him, Jehoiakim, and ultimately, after him, Jeconiah, son of Jehoiakim, and ultimately, after him, Zedekiah, who was fourth to the kingship.

Keritot 5b:11

It was further stated in the baraita: And Jehoahaz, son of Josiah, was anointed due to the competition from Jehoiakim, his brother, who was two years older than him. The Talmud asks: And was Jehoiakim in fact older than Jehoahaz? But isn't it written: "And the sons of Josiah: The firstborn Johanan, the second Jehoiakim, the third Zedekiah, the fourth Shallum" (I Chronicles 3:15); and R' Yoḥanan says: The one who is called Johanan in that verse is also called Jehoahaz, and the one who is called Zedekiah is the same as the one called Shallum. If so, Jehoahaz is the eldest son, not Jehoiakim. Why, then, was it necessary to anoint Jehoahaz?

Niddah 61a:15

The Talmud analyzes that verse: And did Gedaliah kill them? But didn't Ishmael kill them? Gedaliah was one of those killed by Ishmael and his men (see Jeremiah 41:2). The Talmud answers: Rather, since Gedaliah should have been concerned and cautious based on the advice of Johanan, son of Kareah, who warned him that Ishmael was conspiring to kill him and even offered to go and kill Ishmael in a preemptive strike (see Jeremiah 40:13–16), but Gedaliah was not concerned and he refused to listen to Johanan's advice, saying that he did not want to listen to malicious speech, the verse ascribes him blame as though he himself killed them.

Bava Kamma 110a:10

The mishna continues: If the robber gave the money to the priestly watch of Joiarib and then gave the guilt-offering to the priestly watch of Jedaiah, the following priestly watch, to sacrifice on his behalf, he has fulfilled his obligation. By contrast, if he first gave the guilt-offering to the priestly watch of Joiarib and then gave the money to the priestly watch of Jedaiah, if the animal designated for the guilt-offering is extant, then members of the priestly watch of Jedaiah, who received the money, should sacrifice it. But if it is no longer extant because the priestly watch of Joiarib had already sacrificed it, he should return and bring another guilt-offering; for one who brings his stolen item to the priests before he brings his guilt-offering has fulfilled his obligation, but one who brings his guilt-offering before he brings his stolen item has not fulfilled his obligation.

Bava Kamma 110a:20

Based on this halakha, Rava raises a dilemma: If the stolen item does not have the value of one peruta for each priest on the priestly watch of Joiarib, which had many priests, but it has

Bava Kamma 110b:3

The Talmud explains: No, it is necessary to raise the dilemma in a case where he gave it to the Jedaiah priestly watch during the time of the Temple service of the priestly watch of Joiarib; in that case, what is the halakha? The Talmud explains the two possibilities: Do we say that since it is not during Jedaiah's priestly watch, it is nothing, i.e., it is not a fulfillment of the mitzva to return the stolen item? Or perhaps we say that since it was not fit for the Joiarib priestly watch, as it was of insufficient value, from the outset it stands ready for the Jedaiah priestly watch, and by giving it to them he fulfilled the mitzva? The Talmud comments: The question shall stand unresolved.

Bava Kamma 111a:2

§ The mishna teaches: If the robber gave the money to the priestly watch of Joiarib and then gave the guilt-offering to the priestly watch of Jedaiah, the following priestly watch, to sacrifice on his behalf, he has fulfilled his obligation. By contrast, if he first gave the guilt-offering to the priestly watch of Joiarib and then gave the money to the priestly watch of Jedaiah, if the guilt-offering is extant, then members of the priestly watch of Jedaiah, who received the money, should sacrifice it. The Talmud quotes a baraita that records a dispute between tanna'im concerning this case. The Sages taught (Tosefta 10:18): If the robber gave the guilt-offering to the priestly watch of Joiarib and then gave the money to the priestly watch of Jedaiah, they should return the money to be with the guilt-offering, i.e., with the priestly watch of Joiarib; this is the statement of R' Yehuda. And the Rabbis say the opposite: They should return the guilt-offering to be with the money, and the priestly watch of Jedaiah will sacrifice it.

Bava Kamma 111a:3

The Talmud asks: What are the circumstances of this dispute? If we say that he gave the guilt-offering to the priestly watch of Joiarib during the priestly watch of Joiarib and the money to the priestly watch of Jedaiah during the priestly watch of Jedaiah, then this one acquired that which belongs to it and that one acquired that which belongs to it. Why would the court remove what was given lawfully to the priestly watch?

Shabbat 21a:3

And we learned in the mishna that one may not light the Shabbat lamp with kik oil. The Talmud asks: What is kik oil? Shmuel said: I asked all the seafarers, and they said to me that there is a bird in the cities on the sea coast, and kik is its name. Kik oil is produced from that bird. Rav Yitzḥak, son of Rav Yehuda, said: This is referring to cotton oil. Reish Lakish said: It is the oil made from the seed of a plant like the castor plant [kikayon] of Jonah. Rabba bar bar Ḥana said: I have seen the species of the castor plant of Jonah, and it is similar to the ricinus tree and it grows in swamps, and they place it at the entrance of shops for shade, and they produce oil from its seeds, and all the sick people of the West, Eretz Yisrael, rest beneath its branches.

Eruvin 96a:13

Rather, we must say that it is this *tanna who maintains that Shabbat is a time for phylacteries, as it was taught in a baraita: Michal, daughter of Kushi, King Saul, would don phylacteries, and the Sages did not protest against her behavior, as she was permitted to do so. And similarly, Jonah's wife would undertake the Festival pilgrimage and the Sages did not protest against her practice. From the fact that the Sages did not protest against Michal's donning phylacteries, it is apparent that these Sages hold that phylacteries is a positive mitzva not bound by time, i.e., it is a mitzva whose performance is mandated at all times, including nights and Shabbat. There is an accepted principle that women are obligated in all positive mitzvot not bound by time.

Eruvin 96b:2

As, if you do not say so, that this tanna holds in accordance with the opinion of R' Yosei, the baraita states that Jonah's wife would ascend to Jerusalem for the Festival pilgrimage and the Sages did not reprimand her. Is there anyone who says that the mitzva of Festival pilgrimage is not a time-bound positive mitzva and that women are obligated to fulfill it? Rather, he holds that she did not embark on the pilgrimage as an obligation, but that it was optional; here, too, with regard to phylacteries, it is optional. Consequently, no proof can be cited from this baraita as to whether or not Shabbat is a fit time for phylacteries.

Taanit 15a:11

For the sixth blessing he recites: He Who answered Jonah from within the innards of the fish (see Jonah 2:2–11), He will answer you and hear the sound of your cry on this day. Blessed are You, Lord, Who answers in a time of trouble. For the conclusion of the seventh blessing, which is actually the sixth additional blessing, as the first blessing listed here is an expanded version of a regular weekday blessing, he recites: He Who answered David and Solomon his son in Jerusalem (see I Kings 8:12–53), He will answer you and hear the sound of your cry on this day. Blessed are You, Lord, Who has mercy on the Land.

Taanit 17a:4

§ The mishna further teaches: For the sixth he recites: He Who answered Jonah; for the seventh he recites: He Who answered David. The Talmud asks: Since Jonah was after David and Solomon, what is the reason that the tanna mentions Jonah first? The Talmud answers: The reason is due to the fact that he wants to conclude the series with: Blessed are You, Lord, Who has mercy on the Land. Therefore, the last blessing mentions David and Solomon, who were kings of Eretz Yisrael and prayed on its behalf. It was taught in the name of Sumakhos that they said he concludes the final blessing with: Blessed are You, Lord, Who humbles the exalted.

And three redemptions, as it is written:
"He has redeemed my soul in peace so that none came near me; for they were many that strove with me" (Psalms 55:19);
"The redeemed of YHWH shall return, and come with singing unto Zion, and everlasting joy shall be upon their heads; they shall obtain gladness and joy, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away" (Isaiah 35:10); and: "The people said to Saul: Shall Jonathan die, who has wrought this great salvation in Israel?
So the people rescued Jonathan, that he died not" (I Samuel 14:45).

Shabbat 56b:2

This is what is written: "And the son of Jonathan was Meriv-Baal" (I Chronicles 8:34). The Talmud asks: And was Meriv-Baal his name? Wasn't his name Mephibosheth? However, since he entered into a quarrel [meriva] with his Master [ba'al], i.e., God, and complained about God having saved David, a Divine Voice emerged and said to him: Quarrelsome one, the son of a quarrelsome one; you are just like your father, Saul. The Talmud explains: Quarrelsome one; that which we just said that Mephibosheth complained to God about His salvation of David. The son of a quarrelsome one; as it is written: "And Saul came to a city of Amalek and quarreled in the valley" (I Samuel 15:5). And R' Mani said: Saul quarreled with God with regard to matters of the valley, saying: For the murder of even a single person, there is a commandment to break the neck of a heifer in a valley to atone for the crime (see Deuteronomy 21:1–9); why then must all these Amalekites be killed?

Megillah 31a:18

The baraita continues: On Purim they read the portion of "And Amalek came" (Exodus 17:8–16). On the New Moon they read the portion of "And in the beginnings of your month" (Numbers 28:11–15). When the New Moon occurs on Shabbat, they read as the *haftara the portion that concludes with "And it shall come to pass that every New Moon, and every Shabbat, shall all flesh come to bow down on the ground before Me" (Isaiah 66), as it mentions both Shabbat and the New Moon. When the New Moon occurs on Sunday, on the previous day, i.e., Shabbat, they read as the *haftara the portion of "And Jonathan said to him: Tomorrow is the New Moon" (I Samuel 20:18–42), which describes events that took place on the eve of the New Moon.

Moed Katan 26a:6

§ From where do we derive that one must rend his clothing for the death of the Nasi* or the president of the court and upon hearing evil tidings? As it is written, when David heard about the defeat of Israel and the death of Saul and his sons: "Then David took hold of his clothes, and rent them; and likewise all the men that were with him: And they mourned, and wept, and fasted until evening, for Saul and for Jonathan his son, and for the people of YHWH, and for the house of Israel; because they were fallen by the sword" (II Samuel 1:11–12).

Moed Katan 26a:7

The Talmud explains how the aforementioned halakhot are derived from the verse: "Saul"; this is a reference to the Nasi*, as Saul was king of Israel. "Jonathan"; this is a reference to the president of the court. "For the people of YHWH, and for the house of the Israel"; these are a reference to evil tidings.

Horayot 11b:13

It is taught: Even Jehu, son of Nimshi, king of Israel, was anointed only due to the challenge of Joram (see II Kings 9:1–14). The Sages challenge: And let him derive that Jehu was anointed due to the fact that he was the first of his dynasty and was not the son of a king. The Talmud answers: The baraita is incomplete and this is what it is teaching: Kings of the house of David are anointed; kings of Israel are not anointed. The Talmud asks: From where do we derive this? Rava said that the verse states: "Arise, anoint him, for this is he" (I Samuel 16:12), from which it is derived: This king, David, requires anointing, but another king does not require anointing.

Horayot 11b:14

The Talmud analyzes the baraita. The Master said: Even Jehu, son of Nimshi, king of Israel, was anointed only due to the challenge of Joram. The Talmud asks: And due to the challenge of Joram, son of Ahab, shall we misuse consecrated anointing oil and anoint a king of Israel, who does not require anointing? The Talmud answers that it is like that which Rav Pappa said in another context: They anointed him with pure balsam oil, not with anointing oil. So too, with regard to Jehu, they anointed him with pure balsam oil, not with anointing oil.

Keritot 5b:8

It was taught in a baraita: Also Jehu, son of Jehoshaphat, son of Nimshi, was anointed by Elisha the prophet only due to the dispute with Joram, son of Ahab, who was the incumbent king, against whose reign Jehu rebelled (see II Kings 9:1–6). The Talmud asks: Why is it necessary to state this reason? Let the tanna of the baraita derive that Jehu required anointing due to the fact that he was the first king of his lineage, as Jehu was not the son of a king. The Talmud answers: The baraita is incomplete, and this is what it is teaching: One anoints the kings of the house of David with the anointing oil, but one does not anoint the kings from the kingdom of Israel. And if you say: For what reason did Elisha anoint Jehu, son of Jehoshaphat, son of Nimshi? This was due to the dispute with Joram, son of Ahab.

Keritot 5b:10

The Master said earlier that Jehu was anointed due to the dispute with Joram. The Talmud asks: And due to the dispute with Joram, son of Ahab, will we misuse consecrated property by anointing someone unnecessarily with the anointing oil, which is called "a sacred anointing oil" (Exodus 30:31)? After all, kings of the kingdom of Israel do not require anointing. The Talmud answers: This is as Rav Pappa said with regard to Jehoahaz: They anointed him with pure balsam oil, rather than with the anointing oil. Here too, Elisha anointed Jehu with pure balsam oil, not the anointing oil.

Berakhot 7b:8

While my son, Reuben, even though Joseph took his birthright from him by force, as it is written: "And the sons of Reuben the firstborn of Israel, for he was the firstborn; but, since he defiled his father's bed, his birthright was given to the sons of Joseph, son of Israel" (I Chronicles 5:1). Nevertheless, he was not jealous of him, as it is written when Joseph's brothers sought to kill him: "And Reuben heard and he saved him from their hands, saying 'Let us not take his life'" (Genesis 37:21).

Berakhot 20a:7

Similarly, the Talmud relates that R' Yoḥanan was accustomed to go and sit at the gates of the women's immersion sites. R' Yoḥanan, who was known for his extraordinary good looks, explained this and said: When the daughters of Israel emerge from their immersion, they will look at me, and will have children as beautiful as I. The Sages asked him: Master, do you not fear the evil eye? He said to them: I descend from the seed of Joseph over whom the evil eye has no dominion, as it is written: "Joseph is a bountiful vine, a bountiful vine on a spring [alei ayin]" (Genesis 49:22). "Ayin" can mean both "spring" and "eye." And R' Abbahu said a homiletic interpretation: Do not read it alei ayin*, rather olei ayin, above the eye; they transcend the influence of the evil eye.

Berakhot 20a:8

R' Yosei, son of R' Ḥanina, cited a different proof, from Jacob's blessing of Joseph's sons, Ephraim and Menashe: "The angel who redeems me from all evil shall bless the young and in them may my name be recalled, and the name of my fathers, Abraham and Isaac, and may they multiply [veyidgu] in the midst of the earth" (Genesis 48:16). Veyidgu is related etymologically to the word fish [dag]. Just as the fish in the sea, water covers them and the evil eye has no dominion over them, so too the seed of Joseph, the evil eye has no dominion over them.

Berakhot 42a:8

Abaye said that on a similar note, we too will say: Immediately following the entrance of Torah scholars into a house, a blessing rests upon that house, as it is stated with regard to Laban and Jacob: "The Lord has blessed me because of you" (Genesis 30:27). If you wish, say instead, that the proof is from here, as it is stated: "And it was from when he placed him in charge of his house and over all that he owned, YHWH blessed the house of the Egyptian on account of Joseph" (Genesis 39:5).

Berakhot 55a:8

The Talmud details the biblical sources for these cases: One who is given the Torah scroll to read and he does not read, as it is written of the Torah: "It is your life and the length of your days" (Deuteronomy 30:20). A cup of blessing over which to recite a blessing and he does not recite a blessing, as it is written: "I will bless them that bless you" (Genesis 12:3); one who blesses is blessed and one who does not bless does not merit a blessing. And with regard to one who conducts himself with an air of superiority, as R' Ḥama, son of R' Ḥanina, said: Why did Joseph die before his brothers, as evidenced by the order in the verse: "And Joseph died, and all his brethren, and all that generation" (Exodus 1:6)? Because he conducted himself with an air of superiority, and those who did not serve in a leadership role lived on after he died.

And if a wicked man comes to judgment, the members of the court say to him: Why did you not engage in Torah? If he said: I was handsome and preoccupied with my evil inclination, as I had many temptations, they say to him: Were you any more handsome than Joseph, who did not neglect Torah despite his beauty? They said about Joseph the righteous: Each and every day, the wife of Potiphar seduced him with words. In addition, the clothes that she wore to entice him in the morning, she did not wear to entice him in the evening. The clothes that she wore to entice him in the evening, she did not wear to entice him in the morning of the next day.

Berakhot 4a:18

The Talmud interprets homiletically that until Your people will cross refers to the first entry into Eretz Yisrael during the time of Joshua, while until the people You have acquired pass over refers to the second entry following the exile in Babylonia. Based on the juxtaposition of these two entries in this single verse, the Sages said: Israel was worthy of having a miracle performed on its behalf in the time of Ezra the scribe, just as one was performed on their behalf in the time of Joshua bin Nun. However, transgression caused the absence of a miracle.

Berakhot 48b:2

With regard to the origins of the four blessings of Grace after Meals, Rav Naḥman said:
Moses instituted for Israel the first blessing of: Who feeds all, when the manna descended for them and they needed to thank God.
Joshua instituted the blessing of the land when they entered Eretz Yisrael.
David and Solomon instituted the third blessing: Who builds Jerusalem, in the following manner:
David instituted "...on Israel Your people and on Jerusalem Your city..." as he conquered the city, and Solomon instituted "...on the great and Holy Temple..." as he was the one who built the Temple.
They instituted the blessing: Who is good and does good, at Yavne in reference to the slain Jews of the city of Beitar at the culmination of the bar Kokheva rebellion. They were ultimately brought to burial after a period during which Hadrian refused to permit their burial. As Rav Mattana said: On the same day that the slain of Beitar were brought to burial, they instituted the blessing: Who is good and does good. Who is good, thanking God that the corpses did not decompose while awaiting burial, and does good, thanking God that they were ultimately brought to burial.

Berakhot 54a:14

The Sages taught in a baraita a list of places where one is required to recite a blessing due to miracles that were performed there: One who sees the crossings of the Red Sea, where Israel crossed; and the crossings of the Jordan; and the crossings of the streams of Arnon; the hailstones of Elgavish on the descent of Beit Ḥoron; the rock that Og, King of Bashan, sought to hurl upon Israel; and the rock upon which Moses sat when Joshua waged war against Amalek; and Lot's wife; and the wall of Jericho that was swallowed up in its place. On all of these miracles one must give thanks and offer praise before God.

Berakhot 54b:3

It is taught in the midrash: They are the stones that remained suspended in the air and did not fall because of [al gav] a man [ish] and they fell down because of [al gav] a man [ish]. The Talmud explains: They remained suspended because of a man; that is Moses, whom the verse refers to as a man, as it is written: "And the man Moses was very modest" (Numbers 12:3), and it is written: "And Moses went out of the city from Pharaoh, and spread forth his hands unto YHWH; the thunders and hail ceased, and the rain was not poured upon the earth" (Exodus 9:33). Moses' hailstones remained suspended. And the stones descended because of a man; that is Joshua, who was also called man, as it is written: "Take Joshua the son of Nun, a man in whom is spirit" (Numbers 27:18). And it is written that when Joshua and his people waged war against the army of the Emorite kings, God told him not to fear them because God would deliver them into his hands; and indeed, they died by means of these stones: "As they fled from before Israel, while they were at the descent of Beit Ḥoron, that YHWH cast down great stones from heaven upon them unto Azeka, and they died; they were more who died with the hailstones than they whom the children of Israel slew by sword" (Joshua 10:11).

Berakhot 58a:16

R' Sheila said: Since a miracle was performed on my behalf with this verse that I cited, I will interpret it homiletically: Yours, O Lord, is the greatness; that is the act of creation, and so it says: "Who does great things past finding out" (Job 9:10);
And the power; that is the exodus from Egypt, as it is stated: "And Israel saw the great work which YHWH did to the Egyptians" (Exodus 14:31);
And the glory; that is the sun and the moon that stood still for Joshua, as it is stated: "And the sun stood still, and the moon stayed, until the nation had avenged themselves of their enemies" (Joshua 10:13);
And the triumph; that is the downfall of Rome, and so it says describing the downfall of Edom, whom the Sages identified as the forefather of Rome: "Their lifeblood is dashed against My garments and I have stained all My raiment" (Isaiah 63:3);
And the majesty; this is the war of the valleys of Arnon, as it is stated: "Wherefore it is said in the book of the Wars of YHWH: Vahev in Sufa, and the valleys of Arnon" (Numbers 21:14);
For all that is in the heaven and in the earth is Yours; this is the war of Sisera, as it is stated: "They fought from heaven, the stars in their courses fought against Sisera" (Judges 5:20).
Yours is the kingdom, O Lord; this is the war of Amalek, and so it says: "And he said: The hand upon the throne of YHWH: YHWH will have war with Amalek from generation to generation" (Exodus 17:16), as then God will sit on His throne.
And you are exalted; this is the war of Gog and Magog, and so it says: "I am against you, O Gog, the chief prince of Meshekh and Tubal" (Ezekiel 38:3); and:
As head above all; Rav Ḥanan bar Rava said that R' Yoḥanan said: All leadership and authority, even the most insignificant, the one responsible for distributing water, is appointed by heaven.

Joshua bin Nun (7 total matches, showing 5)

Berakhot 4a:18

The Talmud interprets homiletically that until Your people will cross refers to the first entry into Eretz Yisrael during the time of Joshua, while until the people You have acquired pass over refers to the second entry following the exile in Babylonia. Based on the juxtaposition of these two entries in this single verse, the Sages said: Israel was worthy of having a miracle performed on its behalf in the time of Ezra the scribe, just as one was performed on their behalf in the time of Joshua bin Nun. Shabbat 104a:4

The Sages said to R' Yehoshua ben Levi: Young students came today to the study hall and said things the likes of which were not said even in the days of Joshua bin Nun. These children who only knew the Hebrew alphabet interpreted the letters homiletically.
Alef beit means learn [elaf] the wisdom [bina] of the Torah.
Gimmel dalet means give to the poor [gemol dalim]. Why is the leg of the gimmel extended toward the dalet*? Because it is the manner of one who bestows loving-kindness to pursue the poor. And why is the leg of the dalet* extended toward the gimmel*? It is so that a poor person will make himself available to him who wants to give him charity. And why does the dalet face away from the gimmel*? It is to teach that one should give charity discreetly so that the poor person will not be embarrassed by him.

Eruvin 63a:26

With regard to this same issue, R' Levi said: Whoever answers a word in the presence of his teacher will go down to the netherworld childless, as it is stated: "And Joshua bin Nun, the minister of Moses from his youth, answered and said: My lord Moses, shut them in" (Numbers 11:28). Since he spoke to his teacher out of turn, he was punished by remaining childless.

Sukkah 28a:5

The Talmud continues to praise the Sages. The Sages taught: Hillel the Elder had eighty students. Thirty of them were sufficiently worthy that the Divine Presence should rest upon them as it did upon Moses our teacher, and thirty of them were sufficiently worthy that the sun should stand still for them as it did for Joshua bin Nun, and twenty were on an intermediate level between the other two. The greatest of all the students was Yonatan ben Uzziel, and the youngest of them was Rabban Yoḥanan ben Zakkai.

Megillah 22b:15

And if you wish, say a different reason as to why Rav did not fall on his face: An important person is different, in accordance with the opinion of R' Elazar, as R' Elazar said: An important person is not permitted to fall on his face in public unless he knows that he will be answered like Joshua bin Nun in his time, as it is written: "And YHWH said to Joshua: Get up; why do you lie upon your face?" (Joshua 7:10). It is a disgrace for a distinguished person to fall on his face and have his prayers unanswered. Consequently, Rav did not prostrate himself in public.

Joshua the High Priest (4 total matches)

Sanhedrin 93a:7

The Talmud comments: This amoraic dispute is parallel to a dispute between tanna'im*. R' Eliezer says: They died as the result of the evil eye. R' Yehoshua says: They drowned in the spittle. And the Rabbis say: They ascended to Eretz Yisrael and married women and fathered sons and daughters, as it is stated: "Hear now, Joshua the High Priest, you and your fellows who sit before you, for they are men of wonder" (Zechariah 3:8). Who are the people who had a wonder performed for them in that generation? You must say that it is Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah.

Sanhedrin 93a:15

Ahab and Zedekiah said to Nebuchadnezzar: They were three and we are only two, and our merit is not great enough to save us from the fire. Nebuchadnezzar said to them: Choose for yourselves a third person, whomever you wish, to be put to the test with you. They said to him: We choose Joshua the High Priest. They chose him because they thought: Let Joshua the High Priest come with us, since his merit is great and it will protect us.

Sanhedrin 93a:16

They took the three of them down and cast them into the furnace. They were burned, and as for Joshua the High Priest, his garments were singed, as it is stated: "And He showed me Joshua the High Priest, standing before the angel of YHWH, and Satan was standing at his right to thwart him" (Zechariah 3:1). And it is written: "And YHWH said to Satan, YHWH shall rebuke you, Satan, YHWH Who has chosen Jerusalem shall rebuke you; is this man not a firebrand plucked from fire?" (Zechariah 3:2). This is an allusion to the fact that he was delivered from the fiery furnace, although he was slightly singed.

Horayot 13a:12

A High Priest precedes a prophet, as it is stated: "And let Zadok the priest and Nathan the prophet anoint him there" (I Kings 1:34); Zadok is written before Natan. And similarly, the prophet says: "Hear now, Joshua the High Priest, you and your colleagues who sit before you, for they are men that are a sign; for behold, I will bring forth My servant Zemah" (Zechariah 3:8). One might have thought that these colleagues were laymen. Therefore, the verse states: "For they are men that are a sign," and "sign" means nothing other than a prophet, as it is stated: "And he gives you a sign or a wonder" (Deuteronomy 13:2).

Joshua the son of Nun (5 total matches)

Berakhot 54b:3

It is taught in the midrash: They are the stones that remained suspended in the air and did not fall because of [al gav] a man [ish] and they fell down because of [al gav] a man [ish]. The Talmud explains: They remained suspended because of a man; that is Moses, whom the verse refers to as a man, as it is written: "And the man Moses was very modest" (Numbers 12:3), and it is written: "And Moses went out of the city from Pharaoh, and spread forth his hands unto YHWH; the thunders and hail ceased, and the rain was not poured upon the earth" (Exodus 9:33). Moses' hailstones remained suspended. And the stones descended because of a man; that is Joshua, who was also called man, as it is written: "Take Joshua the son of Nun, a man in whom is spirit" (Numbers 27:18). And it is written that when Joshua and his people waged war against the army of the Emorite kings, God told him not to fear them because God would deliver them into his hands; and indeed, they died by means of these stones: "As they fled from before Israel, while they were at the descent of Beit Ḥoron, that YHWH cast down great stones from heaven upon them unto Azeka, and they died; they were more who died with the hailstones than they whom the children of Israel slew by sword" (Joshua 10:11).

Pesachim 119b:6

Jacob will say to Moses: Take the cup and recite the blessing. Moses will say to them: I will not recite the blessing, as I did not merit to enter Eretz Yisrael, neither in my life nor in my death. Moses will say to Joshua: Take the cup and recite the blessing. Joshua will say to them: I will not recite the blessing, as I did not merit to have a son. The proof for this is that it is written: "Joshua the son of Nun" (Numbers 14:6), and in the genealogical list of Ephraim it states: "Nun his son, Joshua his son" (I Chronicles 7:27). Since the verse does not mention any children of Joshua, evidently he had no sons.

Yoma 76a:1

the verse is referring to Joshua, for whom manna fell corresponding to all the rest of the Jewish people, when he waited for Moses at Mount Sinai during the forty days Moses was on the mountain. The verses allude to this: "Man" is written here, and "man" is written there: "Take to you Joshua, the son of Nun, a man in whom there is spirit, and lay your hand upon him" (Numbers 27:18). From here, the Talmud learns that the "man" is Joshua. The Talmud asks: Say that the verse is referring to Moses, about whom it is written: "Now the man Moses was very humble" (Numbers 12:3). The Talmud answers: We can learn a verbal analogy to the word "man" from the word "man," but we cannot learn a verbal analogy to the word "man" from the phrase "the man," which is used to refer to Moses.

Gittin 36b:4

R' Eliezer said: The halakha that property declared ownerless by the court is ownerless is derived from here: The verse states: "These are the inheritances, which Eleazar the priest, and Joshua the son of Nun, and the heads of the fathers' houses of the tribes of the children of Israel distributed for inheritance" (Joshua 19:51). The Talmud asks: What do the heads have to do with the fathers? It comes to tell you: Just as fathers transmit anything that they wish to their children, so too, heads of the nation transmit to the people anything that they wish. This demonstrates that the court has the authority to take property from one person and to give it to another; therefore, the Sages have the authority to decide that all debts are canceled.

Bava Kamma 92b:10

Rava said to Rabba bar Mari: From where is this matter derived whereby people say: While the wine belongs to its owner, the gratitude is given to the one who pours it? Rabba bar Mari said to him that the source is as it is written with regard to God commanding Moses to transfer his authority to Joshua: "And YHWH said unto Moses: Take you Joshua the son of Nun, a man in whom is spirit, and lay your hand upon him…that all the congregation of the children of Israel may hearken" (Numbers 27:18–20). And it is written: "And Joshua the son of Nun was full of the spirit of wisdom; for Moses had laid his hands upon him; and the children of Israel hearkened unto him, and did as YHWH commanded Moses" (Deuteronomy 34:9). Although the spirit of God was not given to Joshua by Moses, as Moses was only a conduit, he was given credit for it.

Josiah (30 total matches, showing 5)

Shabbat 55b:11

The Talmud prefaces the following statements of R' Shmuel bar Naḥmani with a mnemonic: Reuben, the sons of Eli, the sons of Samuel, David, Solomon, and Josiah.

Shabbat 56b:10

The Talmud asks: Is it possible that the righteous king Asa came and did not destroy them, and the righteous king Jehosaphat came and did not destroy them until Josiah came and destroyed them? Didn't Asa and Jehosaphat destroy all the idolatry in Eretz Yisrael? Rather, the verse juxtaposes the earlier ones, i.e., Solomon, to the later ones, i.e., Josiah. Just as the later ones, Josiah, did not effect the destruction of the altars, as it was done by his predecessors, and nevertheless the verse attributes it to him to praise him as if he had destroyed all those altars, so too, the earlier ones, Solomon, did not effect the construction, and nevertheless the verse attributes it to him to disgrace him as he did not prevent their construction.

Shabbat 56b:16

R' Shmuel bar Naḥmani said that R' Yonatan said: Anyone who says that Josiah sinned is nothing other than mistaken, as it is stated: "And he did that which was right in the sight of YHWH, and walked in all the way of David his father, and turned not aside to the right hand nor to the left" (II Kings 22:2). However, how then do I establish the meaning of the verse: "And like him was there no king before him that returned to YHWH with all his heart, and with all his soul, and with all his might, according to all the Torah of Moses; neither after him arose there any like him" (II Kings 23:25)? The verse states: Josiah returned to YHWH. Apparently, in his early days he was a sinner, and later he returned to God.

Shabbat 56b:18

The Talmud notes that R' Yonatan disagrees with Rav, as Rav said: There is no greater penitent than Josiah in his generation, and there is one in our generation. The Talmud asks: And who is the great penitent in Rav's generation? The Talmud answers: He is Abba, father of R' Yirmeya bar Abba, and some say it is Aḥa, brother of Abba, father of R' Yirmeya bar Abba, as the Master said: R' Abba and Aḥa were brothers.

Yoma 52b:12

§ And who buried the Ark? Josiah, king of Judea, buried it. And what did he see that he decided to bury it? He saw that it is written: "The Lord will bring you, and your king whom you shall set over you, to a nation that you have not known" (Deuteronomy 28:36). Since he knew that the Jewish people would ultimately be exiled, he felt it was better that the Ark should not be disgraced in exile, and therefore he arose and buried it.

Megillah 14b:8

And Josiah the son of Amon ruled over the ten tribes, as it is written: “Then he said: What monument is that which I see? And the men of the city told him, It is the tomb of the man of God who came from Judah and proclaimed these things that you have done against the altar of Bethel” (II Kings 23:17). Now what connection did Josiah, king of Judea, have with the altar at Bethel, a city in the kingdom of Israel? Rather, this teaches that Josiah ruled over the ten tribes of Israel. Rav Naḥman said: Proof that the tribes returned may be adduced from the verse here: “Also, O Judah, there is a harvest appointed for you, when I would return the captivity of My people” (Hosea 6:11), which indicates that they returned to their places.

Pesachim 87a:12

Apropos the verse from Hosea, the Talmud interprets additional verses there: “The word of YHWH that came unto Hosea, the son of Beeri, in the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judea, and in the days of Jeroboam the son of Joash, king of Israel” (Hosea 1:1). The Sages explained: Four prophets prophesied in one era and the oldest of them was Hosea, as it is stated: “When YHWH spoke at first with Hosea” (Hosea 1:2), indicating that Hosea was the first of these prophets. If not, the question arises: And was it with Hosea that YHWH spoke first of all the prophets? Weren’t there several prophets who lived and prophesied during the period from Moses until Hosea? Rather, R' Yoḥanan said: He was the first of the four prophets who prophesied during that period, and these are they: Hosea, Isaiah, Amos, and Micah.

Pesachim 87b:11

The Talmud asks: From where do we derive that he was counted together with the righteous kings of Judea? As it is written: “The word of YHWH that came to Hosea, son of Beeri, in the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judea, and in the days of Jeroboam, the son of Joash, king of Israel” (Hosea 1:1).

Sukkah 45b:4

And Ḥizkiya said that R' Yirmeya said in the name of R' Shimon ben Yoḥai: I am able to absolve the entire world from judgment for sins committed from the day I was created until now. The merit that he accrued through his righteousness and the suffering that he endured atone for the sins of the entire world. And were the merit accrued by Eliezer, my son, calculated along with my own, we would absolve the world from judgment for sins committed from the day that the world was created until now. And were the merit accrued by the righteous king, Jotham ben Uzziah, calculated with our own, we would absolve the world from judgment for sins committed from the day that the world was created until its end. The righteousness of these three serves as a counterbalance to all the evil deeds committed throughout the generations, and it validates the ongoing existence of the world.

Moed Katan 7b:7

And R' Ḥiyya said: I deliberated this matter before Rabbi Yehuda HaNasi and said: Have you not taught us, our teacher, that King Jotham was only born to Uzziah, the king of Judah, during the days of his confirmed leprosy? This would indicate that a confirmed leper is permitted to engage in conjugal relations. R' Yehuda HaNasi said to him: I too said this; I am also of the opinion that a confirmed leper is permitted to engage in conjugal relations, in contrast to the opinion of R' Yosei, son of R' Yehuda.

Sanhedrin 104a:6

§ The Talmud asks: And for what reason did the tanna’im not enumerate Ahaz among the kings with no share in the World-to-Come? His wickedness is extensively recounted in the Bible. R' Yirmeya bar Abba says: He is not enumerated because he is cast between two righteous people, between his father, Jotham, and his son, Hezekiah. Rav Yosef says: He is not enumerated because he had a sense of embarrassment from Isaiah the prophet, as it is stated: “And YHWH said to Isaiah: Go out now to meet Ahaz, you, and Shear-Jashub your son, at the end of the aqueduct of the upper pool in the highway of the launderer’s [koves] field” (Isaiah 7:3). What is the meaning of the term koves*? There are those who say: It means concealed [kavash], as Ahaz concealed [dekhavshinhu] his face and passed by the prophet because he was embarrassed to be seen. And there are those who say: He placed a launderer’s vessel over his head and passed by the prophet so that Isaiah would be unable to identify him.

Sukkah 45b:4

And Ḥizkiya said that R' Yirmeya said in the name of R' Shimon ben Yoḥai: I am able to absolve the entire world from judgment for sins committed from the day I was created until now. The merit that he accrued through his righteousness and the suffering that he endured atone for the sins of the entire world. And were the merit accrued by Eliezer, my son, calculated along with my own, we would absolve the world from judgment for sins committed from the day that the world was created until now. And were the merit accrued by the righteous king, Jotham ben Uzziah, calculated with our own, we would absolve the world from judgment for sins committed from the day that the world was created until its end. The righteousness of these three serves as a counterbalance to all the evil deeds committed throughout the generations, and it validates the ongoing existence of the world.

Berakhot 8a:5

Continuing to extol communal prayer, Reish Lakish said: One who has a synagogue nearby in his city but does not enter to pray there is called an evil neighbor, as it is stated: "Thus said YHWH: As for all My evil neighbors who touch My inheritance which I have caused My people Israel to inherit, behold, I will pluck them up from off their land, and will pluck the house of Judah up from among them" (Jeremiah 12:14). One who only touches, but does not enter the place of prayer, My inheritance, is considered an evil neighbor. And furthermore, he is punished in that he causes himself and his children to go into exile, as it is stated: "Behold, I will pluck them up from off their land, and will pluck the house of Judah up from among them."

Eruvin 61b:4

Come and hear another difficulty from the following baraita: If one established his Shabbat residence through his physical presence in a city, even if it is as large as Antioch, or in a cave, even if it is particularly large, like the Cave of Zedekiah, king of Judah, he may walk through all of it and another two thousand cubits beyond it. The baraita teaches the case of a city that is similar to that of a cave: Just as a cave is presumably desolate, i.e., uninhabited, so too the city must be one that is desolate. And only in the case where he established his Shabbat residence through his physical presence would yes, this halakha apply; but if he merely placed his eiruv there, no, he may not measure his two thousand cubits from the edge of the city.

Pesachim 50a:15

And from where do we derive that a merchant can be called a kena'ani? As it is written: "And Judah saw there the daughter of a certain kena'ani...and he took her, and went in unto her" (Genesis 38:2). What is the meaning of the word kena'ani in this context? If you say it refers to an actual Canaanite, is it possible that Abraham warned Isaac not to marry a Canaanite woman, and Isaac warned Jacob to the same effect, and nonetheless Judah went and married a Canaanite woman? Rather, R' Shimon ben Lakish said: She was the daughter of a merchant, as it is written: "As for the merchant [kena'an], the balances of deceit are in his hand. He loves to oppress" (Hosea 12:8). And if you wish, say instead that this meaning of the word can be understood from the following verse, which describes Tyre: "Whose traders are princes, whose merchants [kinaneha] are the honorable of the earth" (Isaiah 23:8).

Rosh Hashanah 3b:4

The baraita explains: The words that Hanani said to Nehemiah in Kislev are as it is stated: "The words of Nehemiah, son of Hachaliah: And it came to pass in the month Kislev, in the twentieth year, as I was in Shushan the capital, that Hanani, one of my brothers, came out of Judah, he and certain men; and I asked them concerning the Jews who had escaped, who were left of the captivity, and concerning Jerusalem. And they said to me: The remnant who are left of the captivity there in the province suffer much hardship and insult; and the wall of Jerusalem is broken down, and its gates are burned with fire" (Nehemiah 1:1–3).

Rosh Hashanah 18b:1

As Rav Ḥana bar Bizna said that R' Shimon Ḥasida said: What is the meaning of that which is written: "Thus said YHWH of hosts: The fast of the fourth month, and the fast of the fifth, and fast of the seventh, and the fast of the tenth, shall become times of joy and gladness, and cheerful seasons, to the house of Judah" (Zechariah 8:19). It calls them days of "fast" and it calls them "times of joy and gladness." How so? When there is peace in the world, they will be times of joy and gladness, on which eulogies and fasting are forbidden; but when there is no peace, they are days of fasting. In a time when there is no peace, why are messengers not sent out also for the fourth and tenth months, so that people can know when to observe the fasts?

R' Yoḥanan said to him: Granted, the numbers of Job's daughters were not doubled in name, meaning they did not become twice as many, but they were doubled in beauty, as it is written: "He had also seven sons and three daughters. And he called the name of the first Jemimah, and the name of the second was Keziah, and the name of the third one was Keren-happuch" (Job 42:13–14). All three names relate to the daughters' beauty.

Jemimah [Yemima]; in her beauty she was similar to the day [yom]. Keziah; her scent wafted like the cassia [ketzia] tree. Keren-happuch; in the school of Rav Sheila they say: She was similar to the horn [keren] of a keresh, an animal whose horns are particularly beautiful. They laughed at this in the West, Eretz Yisrael, since it is considered a blemish when a person resembles the horn of a keresh. Rather, Rav Ḥisda said: She was like garden saffron [kekurkema derishka], which is the best of its kind. Keren refers to a garden, and pukh means ornament, as it is stated: "Though you enlarge your eyes with paint [pukh], you beautify yourself in vain" (Jeremiah 4:30).

Kilav (2 total matches)

Berakhot 4a:11

It was taught in a Tosefta from a tannaitic tradition: His name was not Mefivoshet, but rather Ish Boshet was his name. Why was Ish Boshet referred to as Mefivoshet? Because he would embarrass [mevayesh] David in matters of *halakha. According to this approach, Mefivoshet is an abbreviation of boshet panim, embarrassment. Because David was not embarrassed to admit his errors, he merited that Kilav, who, according to tradition, was exceedingly wise, would descend from him.

Berakhot 4a:12

R' Yoḥanan said: His name was not Kilav; rather, his name was Daniel, as it appears in a different list of David's descendants. Why was he called Kilav? Because he would embarrass [makhlim] Mefivoshet, the teacher or authority figure [av] in matters of halakha.

King Ahasuerus (8 total matches, showing 5)

Rosh Hashanah 7a:8

Rather, Ravina said: This matter we did not learn from the Torah of Moses, our teacher; rather, we learned it from the texts of the tradition, i.e., the Prophets and Writings: "On the twenty-fourth day of the eleventh month, which is the month of Shevat" (Zechariah 1:7). If Shevat is the eleventh month, Nisan must be the first month. Rabba bar Ulla said: It is derived from here, as it is stated: "So Esther was taken to the king Ahasuerus into his royal house in the tenth month, which is the month of Tevet" (Esther 2:16).

Megillah 11a:16

And Shmuel said: The name Ahasuerus should be understood in the sense of black [shaḥor], as the face of the Jewish people was blackened in his days like the bottom of a pot. And R' Yoḥanan said a different explanation: Everyone who recalled him said: "Woe upon his head" [a? lerosho]. And R' Ḥanina said: The name alludes to the fact that everyone became poor [rash] in his days, as it is stated: "And the king Ahasuerus laid a tribute upon the land" (Esther 10:1).

Megillah 12b:4

The Talmud comments: Vashti was punished in this humiliating way for it is with the measure that a man measures to others that he himself is measured. In other words, God punishes individuals in line with their transgressions, measure for measure. This teaches that the wicked Vashti would take the daughters of Israel, and strip them naked, and make them work on Shabbat. Therefore, it was decreed that she be brought before the king naked, on Shabbat. This is as it is written: "After these things, when the wrath of King Ahasuerus was appeased, he remembered Vashti, and what she had done, and what was decreed against her" (Esther 2:1). That is to say, just as she had done with the young Jewish women, so it was decreed upon her.

Megillah 13a:20

The verse states: "And Esther obtained favor in the sight of all those who looked upon her" (Esther 2:15). R' Elazar said: This teaches that she appeared to each and every one as if she were a member of his own nation, and therefore she obtained favor in the eyes of all. The next verse states: "So Esther was taken to King Ahasuerus into his royal house in the tenth month, which is the month Tevet" (Esther 2:16). It was by act of divine providence that Esther was taken to Ahasuerus in a cold winter month, in which the body takes pleasure in the warmth of another body, and therefore she found favor in his eyes.

Megillah 15b:20

The verse states: "On that night the sleep of the king was disturbed" (Esther 6:1). R' Tanḥum said: The verse alludes to another king who could not sleep; the sleep of the King of the universe, God, was disturbed. And the Sages say: The sleep of the higher ones, the angels, was disturbed, and the sleep of the lower ones, the Jewish people, was disturbed. Rava said: This should be understood literally: The sleep of King Ahasuerus was disturbed.

King Baladan (1 total match)

Sanhedrin 96a:14

The Talmud asks: What is the meaning of: Merodach-Baladan, son of Baladan? If his name was Merodach it was not Baladan. The Sages say: Baladan was a king, and his visage was transformed and became like that of a dog. His son was sitting on the throne in his stead and when he would write a letter he would write his name and the name of his father, King Baladan. That is the meaning of that which is written with regard to the honor accorded by gentiles to their fathers: "A son honors his father and a servant his master" (Malachi 1:6).

King David (12 total matches, showing 5)

Berakhot 62b:10

The Talmud continues with a homiletic interpretation of the verse: “Then David arose, and cut off the corner of Saul’s robe privily” (I Samuel 24:4). R' Yosei, son of R' Ḥanina, said: Anyone who treats clothing with contempt, like David who tore Saul’s robe for no reason, will be punished in that ultimately he will not benefit from his garments, as it is stated: “Now King David was old and stricken in years; and they covered him with clothes, but he could get no heat” (I Kings 1:1).

Shabbat 113b:9

It also says: “And Boaz said to her at mealtime: Come here [halom] and eat from the bread and dip your bread in vinegar. And she sat beside the harvesters and he gave her roasted grain and she ate, and she was satiated, and she left some over” (Ruth 2:14). R' Elazar interpreted this and said that he hinted to her prophetically: In the future the kingdom of David will come from you, as it is written with regard to it, i.e., the kingdom of David: “Here,” as it is stated: “And King David came and sat before God and said: Who am I, Lord, God, and who is my family that You have brought me to here [halom]?” (II Samuel 7:18). With regard to his saying: “And dip your bread in vinegar” (Ruth 2:14), R' Elazar said: From here we see that vinegar is good to have in hot weather.

Yoma 69b:1

Sitting in the Temple courtyard is permitted only for kings of the House of David, as it is stated: “Then King David went in and sat before YHWH” (I Chronicles 17:16)? How, then, could the High Priest have been sitting? The Talmud explains: As Rav Ḥisda said in a similar context: This took place not in the Israelite courtyard, where the prohibition against sitting applies, but in the women’s courtyard. Here, too, the reading was in the women’s courtyard, where it is permitted to sit.

Sotah 40a:14

Rav Naḥman said that this principle is derived from here: “Then King David stood up upon his feet, and said: Hear me, my brethren, and my people” (I Chronicles 28:2). Evidently, King David stood up to address the people rather than remain seated. If he said “my brethren,” why did he say “my people”? And if he said “my people” why did he say “my brethren”? R' Elazar says: David said to the Jewish people: If you listen to me, you are my brethren. And if you do not listen to me willingly, you are my people and I am your king, and I will rule over you by force with a staff. This shows that if the nation acted properly, David would relate to them respectfully.

Sotah 40b:8

It is stated in the mishna: And the High Priest stands, and receives the Torah scroll, and reads from it. The Talmud asks: From the fact that he stands, it can be understood by inference that until that point he had been sitting. But didn’t the Master say (Tosefta, Sanhedrin 4:4) that sitting in the Temple courtyard is permitted only for kings from the house of David, as it is stated: “Then King David went in, and sat before YHWH; and he said: Who am I, O Lord God, and what is my house, that You have brought me thus far?” (II Samuel 7:18).

King Hezekiah (7 total matches, showing 5)

Berakhot 10b:6

The Sages taught: King Hezekiah performed six innovative actions. With regard to three the Sages agreed with him, and with regard to three they did not agree with him.

Pesachim 56a:2

GEMARA: Apropos the people of Jericho, who were reprimanded for some of their actions and not reprimanded for others, the Talmud cites a similar baraita. The Sages taught: King Hezekiah performed six actions. With regard to three of them, the Sages of his generation conceded to him; and with regard to three of them, the Sages did not concede to him. Due to King Hezekiah's father's wickedness, he dragged the bones of his father Ahaz on a bier of ropes and did not afford him the respect due to a king, and the Sages conceded to him. He ground the copper snake that Moses fashioned in the desert because Israel worshipped it, and the Sages conceded to him. He suppressed the Book of Cures, and they conceded to him.

Moed Katan 26a:13

The Talmud asks: What difference does it make that they rent their garments when they heard the curse the first time? Didn't they hear it again now? The Talmud rejects this argument: This will not enter your mind, as it is written: "And it came to pass, when King Hezekiah heard it, that he rent his clothes" (II Kings 19:1). This indicates that the king rent his garments, but those who reported the blasphemy to him did not rend theirs, as they had already rent their garments the first time.

Sanhedrin 60a:17

The Talmud asks: And if they made a tear when they heard the curse, what of it? Aren't they also hearing the curse now? The Talmud answers: It should not enter your mind that they are obligated to make a tear a second time, as it is written: "And it came to pass, when King Hezekiah heard the statement of Rabshakeh, that he tore his clothes" (II Kings 19:1). It can be inferred that King Hezekiah tore his clothes, but those who reported the blasphemy did not tear their clothes a second time.

Sanhedrin 96a:11

And when Hezekiah fell ill and recovered, God, restored those ten hours to Hezekiah, as it is written: "Behold, I will return the shadow of the dial, which descended on the sundial of Ahaz, ten degrees backward. So the sun returned ten degrees, by which it had gone down" (Isaiah 38:8). Merodach said to his servants: What is this wonder that the day was extended? They said to him: Hezekiah fell ill and recovered, and the sun shone for him. Merodach said: There is a man like that and I do not need to send him greetings? The ministers of Merodach wrote to Hezekiah: Greetings to King Hezekiah, greetings to the city of Jerusalem, and greetings to the great God.

King Josiah (4 total matches)

Taanit 22a:17

§ The mishna taught that they sound the alarm for the sword. The Sages taught: With regard to the sword that they mentioned, it is not necessary to state that this includes a sword that is not of peace, i.e., an enemy army that has come to wage war against the Jews. Rather, even in a case of a sword of peace, when an army passes through with no intention of waging war against the Jews, but is merely on its way to another place, this is enough to obligate the court to sound the alarm, as you do not have a greater example of a sword of peace than Pharaoh Neco. He passed through Eretz Yisrael to wage war with Nebuchadnezzar, and nevertheless King Josiah stumbled in this matter, as it is stated:

Taanit 22b:3

With regard to Josiah's battle with Pharaoh Neco, the verse states: "And the archers shot at King Josiah and the king said to his servants: Move me away, for I am seriously wounded" (II Chronicles 35:23). What is the meaning of the phrase: "For I am seriously wounded"? Rav Yehuda said that Rav said: This teaches that the Egyptian archers made his entire body like a sieve from the many arrows they shot at him.

Moed Katan 28b:21

And Rava further said to Rabba bar Mari: It is written with regard to Josiah: "Behold, therefore I will gather you unto your fathers, and you shall be gathered into your grave in peace" (II Kings 22:20), and elsewhere it is written: "And the archers shot at King Josiah; and the king said to his servants, Get me away; for I am grievously wounded" (II Chronicles 35:23). And with regard to this verse R' Yehuda said that Rav said: With their many arrows, they made his body like a sieve.

Sanhedrin 48b:18

The curse of those who "fall by the sword" was fulfilled among Solomon's descendants in Josiah, as it is written: "And the archers shot at King Josiah" (II Chronicles 35:23), and Rav Yehuda says that Rav says: They shot him with so many arrows that they turned his whole body into a sieve.

King Solomon (16 total matches, showing 5)

Rosh Hashanah 11a:7

The baraita continues: R' Eliezer says: From where is it derived that in Tishrei the Patriarchs were born? As it is stated: "And all the men of Israel assembled themselves before King Solomon at the feast in the month of the mighty [eitanim], which is the seventh month" (I Kings 8:2), i.e., Tishrei. What is the meaning of the phrase: The month of the mighty? It is the month in which the mighty ones of the world, i.e., the Patriarchs, were born.

Yoma 52a:4

Ravina strongly objects to this opinion: What is the reason for this uncertainty? If we say it is because it is written: "And the House that King Solomon built for YHWH was sixty cubits in length, and its width was twenty cubits, and its height was thirty cubits" (I Kings 6:2), and it is written: "And the House, that is, the Sanctuary, was forty cubits long" (I Kings 6:17), and it is written: "And before the partition twenty cubits in length, and twenty cubits in width, and twenty cubits in height" (I Kings 6:20), and therefore we do not know whether the one-cubit partition was part of these twenty cubits of the Holy of Holies or part of these forty cubits of the Sanctuary, then this problem can be resolved.

Sukkah 5b:8

Rather, the dimension of the sukka is not derived from the Ark; one instead derived it from the dimensions of the eternal Temple, as it is written: "And the house which King Solomon built for YHWH, its length was sixty cubits, and its breadth twenty cubits, and its height thirty cubits" (I Kings 6:2). And it is written: "The height of the first cherub was ten cubits, and likewise was the second cherub" (I Kings 6:26). And it is taught in a baraita: Just as we find in the eternal Temple that the cherubs stand reaching one-third the height of the Temple, as each cherub was ten cubits high and the Temple was thirty cubits high, in the Tabernacle as well, the cherubs stand reaching one-third the height of the Tabernacle.

Taanit 26b:6

And similarly, it says in another verse: "Go forth, daughters of Zion, and gaze upon King Solomon, upon the crown with which his mother crowned him on the day of his wedding, and on the day of the gladness of his heart" (Song of Songs 3:11). This verse is explained as an allusion to special days: "On the day of his wedding"; this is the giving of the Torah through the second set of tablets on Yom Kippur. The name King Solomon in this context, which also means king of peace, is interpreted as a reference to God. "And on the day of the gladness of his heart"; this is the building of the Temple, may it be rebuilt speedily in our days.

Megillah 31a:14

The baraita continues: On the first Festival day of Sukkot, they read from the portion of the Festivals found in Leviticus (Leviticus 22:26–23:44), and they read as the *haftara the portion of "Behold the day of YHWH comes" (Zechariah 14), which mentions the festival of Sukkot. The Talmud comments: And nowadays, in the Diaspora, when there are two Festival days of Sukkot, on the next day, they read the same Torah portion. But what do they read as the haftara? They read the portion of "And all the men of Israel assembled themselves to King Solomon" (I Kings 8:2–21), which describes events that took place on the festival of Sukkot.

Korah (28 total matches, showing 5)

Pesachim 119a:11

With regard to this matter, R' Ḥama bar Ḥanina said: Joseph hid three treasures in Egypt. One of them was revealed to Korah, one was revealed to Antoninos ben Asveiros, king of Rome, and one is hidden for the righteous in the future.

Pesachim 119a:12

With regard to Korah's wealth, the Talmud cites the verse: "Riches kept by his owner to his hurt" (Ecclesiastes 5:12). R' Shimon ben Lakish said: This is the wealth of Korah, which caused him to grow arrogant and lead to his destruction. As it is stated: "And what He did to Dathan and Abiram, the sons of Eliab, son of Reuben; how the earth opened her mouth and swallowed them up, and their households, and their tents, and all the sustenance that was at their feet" (Deuteronomy 11:6). R' Elazar said: This is referring to a person's money that stands him upon his own two feet. R' Levi said: The keys to Korah's treasuries were a load of three hundred strong white mules, and they were all keys [aklidei] and locks made of leather.

Megillah 14a:12

R' Shmuel bar Naḥmani said another explanation of the verse "And there was a certain man from Ramathaim-zophim": A man who comes from two heights [ramot] that face [tzofot] one another. R' Ḥanin said an additional interpretation: A man who descends from people who stood at the height of [rumo] the world. The Talmud asks: And who are these people? The Talmud answers: These are the sons of Korah, as it is written: "But the sons of Korah did not die" (Numbers 26:11), and with regard to them it is taught in the name of our teacher, R' Yehuda HaNasi: A high place was set aside for them in Gehenna, as the sons of Korah repented in their hearts, and were consequently not propelled very far down in Gehenna when the earth opened to swallow Korah and his followers; and they stood on this high place and sung to YHWH. They alone stood at the height of the lower world.

Moed Katan 16a:3

§ Having discussed some of the restrictions applying to a person who was ostracized, the Talmud explains some of the basic principles relating to ostracism: Rava said: From where do we derive that a court agent is sent to summon the defendant to appear before the court before he is ostracized? As it is written: "And Moses sent to call Dathan and Abiram, the sons of Eliab" (Numbers 16:12). And from where do we derive that we summon the defendant, that he himself must appear before the court? As it is written: "And Moses said to Korah: Be you and all your congregation before YHWH, you and they, and Aaron, tomorrow" (Numbers 16:16).

Sotah 9b:3

The baraita continues: And so we found with regard to Cain, who desired to inherit the whole world alone (see Genesis 4); and Korah, who desired the priesthood (see Numbers 16); and Balaam, who desired Balak's money (see Numbers 22); and Doeg, who was jealous of David (see I Samuel 21–22); and Ahithophel, who was also jealous of David (see II Samuel 16); and Gehazi, who took Naaman's money (see II Kings 5); and Absalom, who wanted the kingdom (see II Samuel 15); and Adonijah, who also wanted the kingdom (see I Kings 1); and Uzziah, who wanted to be the High Priest (see II Chronicles 26); and Haman, who wanted to kill all the Jews (see Esther 3:13). All of these were people who placed their eyes on that which is unfit for them, and consequently what they desired was not given to them, and what they had was taken from them.

Laban (6 total matches, showing 5)

Megillah 17a:7

The Talmud raises an objection: But ultimately, Jacob was in Laban's house for only twenty years. Why, then, is he faulted for being away from his father for twenty-two years? Rather, he was punished because on his journey back from Aram-naharaim he tarried another two years before returning home to his parents, as it is taught in a baraita: Jacob left Aram-naharaim and came to Sukkot, and spent eighteen months there, as it is stated: "And Jacob journeyed to Sukkot, built himself a house, and made booths [sukkot] for his cattle" (Genesis 33:17). The Talmud understands this verse to mean that first he made booths [Sukkot], to live in during the summer, and then he built a house in the winter, and afterward he again made booths [sukkot] during the next summer, indicating that he must have been there for eighteen months. He then was in Bethel for six months, and he brought offerings, totaling two years in all. In this way, all the various calculations of years are reconciled.

Moed Katan 18b:15

Rav said in the name of R' Reuven ben Itzterobili as follows: From the Torah, and from the Prophets, and from the Writings; it implies that the decree that a specific woman is destined to be married to a specific man is from God. From where is this derived? It is from the Torah, as it is written: "Then Laban and Bethuel answered and said: The thing comes from YHWH, we cannot speak to you either bad or good" (Genesis 24:50). From the Prophets, as it is written: "But his father and his mother knew not that it was of YHWH" (Judges 14:4). From the Writings, as it is written: "House and riches are the inheritance of fathers; but a prudent woman is from YHWH" (Proverbs 19:14).

Bava Metzia 93b:3

Abaye raised an objection to Rabba from another baraita: To what extent is a paid bailee obligated to safeguard? He is obligated to the extent that Jacob said to Laban: "Thus I was: In the day the drought consumed me, and the frost by night" (Genesis 31:40). Rava said to him: There too, the baraita is speaking of city watchmen, whose responsibility extends further. Abaye said to him: Is that to say that Jacob, our forefather, whose statement is the source of this halakha, was a city watchman? Rava replied: It means that Jacob said to Laban: I safeguarded for you an extra level of safeguarding, like that of city watchmen.

Bava Batra 123a:15

Rav says that there is a different explanation of the verse: Actually, the verse means that her eyes were literally weak, and this is not a denigration of her but a praise of her. As she would hear people at the crossroads, coming from the land of Canaan, who would say: Rebecca has two sons, and her brother Laban has two daughters; the older daughter will be married to the older son, and the younger daughter will be married to the younger son.

Sanhedrin 105a:8

It was taught in a baraita: He is Beor, father of Balaam, he is Cushan-Rishathaim, he is Laban the Aramean. He was called Beor because he engaged in bestiality. He was called Cushan-Rishathaim because he performed two evil deeds [rishiyyot] to the Jewish people, one during the time of Jacob, when he pursued him intending to kill him, and one during the time when the judges judged. And what was his actual name? His name was Laban the Aramean.

Berakhot 7b:5

And R' Yoḥanan said in the name of R' Shimon ben Yoḥai: From the day God, created the world, no one thanked God, until Leah came and thanked Him, as it is stated: "And she became pregnant and gave birth to a son, and she said, 'This time I will give thanks to God,' and thus he was called Judah" (Genesis 29:35).

Berakhot 7b:6

Tangential to the mention of Leah's son, Judah, and the reason for his name, the Talmud explains the sources for other names, including Reuben. R' Elazar said: Reuben's name should be considered a prophecy by Leah, as Leah said: See [re'u] the difference between my son [beni] and the son of my father-in-law, Esau, son of Isaac. Even though Esau knowingly sold his birthright to his brother Jacob, as it is written: "And he sold his birthright to Jacob" (Genesis 25:33), nonetheless, behold what is written about him: "And Esau hated Jacob" (Genesis 27:41).

Berakhot 8b:14

Rav Adda bar Ahava said: From what verse is this derived? From the verse, "And Jacob sent and he called Rachel and Leah to the field to his flock" (Genesis 31:4); it was only there in the field that he held counsel with them.

Berakhot 16b:14

The Talmud asks: What is the reason for this exclusivity with regard to the Patriarchs? If you say that it is because we do not know whether we descend from Reuben or from Simon, so we cannot accurately say our father Reuben, for example, if so, with regard to the Matriarchs as well, we do not know whether we descend from Rachel or from Leah, and we should not call Rachel and Leah matriarchs either. Instead, the reason the sons of Jacob are not called patriarchs is not for that reason, but because until Jacob they are significant enough to be referred to as patriarchs, but beyond Jacob, they are not significant enough to be referred to as patriarchs.

Berakhot 60a:12

Is a prayer in that case ineffective? Rav Yosef raises an objection based on a baraita: It is stated: "And afterwards she bore a daughter, and called her name Dina" (Genesis 30:21). The Talmud asks: What is meant by the addition of the word: Afterwards? What does the verse seek to convey by emphasizing that after the birth of Zebulun she gave birth to Dina? Rav said: After Leah passed judgment on herself and said: Twelve tribes are destined to descend from Jacob, six came from me and four from the maidservants, that is ten, and if this fetus is male, my sister Rachel will not even be the equivalent of one the maidservants; immediately the fetus was transformed into a daughter, as it is stated: And she called her name Dina; meaning she named her after her judgment [din]. The Talmud rejects this: One does not mention miraculous acts to teach general halakha.

Bava Batra 109b:10

In connection with this, R' Yoḥanan says in the name of R' Shimon ben Yoḥai: From here it is learned that corruption is linked to one who is corrupt, as this man was linked to Manasseh and Judah despite having no familial connection to them. R' Yosei bar Ḥanina says: That concept can be seen from here, in the matter of Adonijah, the son of David: "And he was also a very handsome man; and she gave birth to him after Absalom," (I Kings 1:6) but Adonijah wasn't the son of Haggith and Absalom was the son of Maachah, so why does the verse state: "And she gave birth to him after Absalom," as if they were sons of the same mother? Rather, since Adonijah acted in a manner fit for Absalom, who also rebelled against the monarchy, the verse linked him to Absalom, referring to him as his full brother. Here too, with regard to Jonathan, since he acted as Manasseh acted, the verse linked him to Manasseh.

Sotah 42b:8

The Talmud continues its discussion of the battle of David and Goliath. “These four were born to Harafa in Gath; and they fell by the hand of David, and by the hand of his servants” (II Samuel 21:22). The Talmud asks: What are the names of the four siblings mentioned here? Rav Ḥisda said: They are Saph, and Madon, Goliath, and Ishbi in Nob (see II Samuel 21:16–20).

And R' Shimon ben Yoḥai would likewise say: Elimelech and his sons Mahlon and Chilion were prominent members of their generation and were leaders of their generation. And for what reason were they punished? They were punished because they left Eretz Yisrael to go outside of Eretz Yisrael, as it is stated concerning Naomi and Ruth: "And all the city was astir concerning them, and the women said: Is this Naomi?" (Ruth 1:19). The Talmud asks: What is the meaning of the phrase: "Is this Naomi"? How does this indicate that her husband and sons were punished for leaving Eretz Yisrael? R' Yitzḥak says that the women said: Have you seen what befell Naomi, who left Eretz Yisrael for outside of Eretz Yisrael? Not only did she not escape tribulations there, but she lost her status entirely.

Bava Batra 91b:7

The Talmud returns to its discussion of the story of Ruth. It is written: "Mahlon and Chilion" (Ruth 1:2), and it is written elsewhere: "Joash and Saraph, who had dominion in Moab" (I Chronicles 4:22). Apparently, both names refer to the same individuals who married Moabite wives. Rav and Shmuel disagreed with regard to their true names. One says: Their given names were Mahlon and Chilion, and why were they called by the names Saraph and Joash? One was called Joash [yoash] because they despaired [nitya'ashu] of the redemption of Eretz Yisrael, as they established themselves in Moab and lived there for many years. The other was called Saraph, because they were liable to receive the punishment of burning [sereifa] for their sins against God, because they left their community.

Bava Batra 91b:8

And one of them says: Their given names were Joash and Saraph, and why were they called by the names Mahlon and Chilion? One was called Mahlon [maḥlon] because they made their bodies profane [ḥullin], and the other was called Chilion [khilyon] because they were liable to receive the punishment of destruction [kelaya] for their sins against God.

Bava Batra 91b:9

The Talmud notes: It is taught in a baraita in accordance with the one who says that their given names were Mahlon and Chilion. As it is taught in a baraita: What is the meaning of that which is written: "And Jokim, and the men of Cozeba, and Joash, and Saraph, who had dominion in Moab, and Jashubi Lehem. And the matters are ancient" (I Chronicles 4:22)? "And Jokim," this refers to Joshua, who established [shehekim] and kept the oath with people of Gibeon (see Joshua, chapter 9). "And the men of Cozeba," these are the men of Gibeon, who lied [shekizevu] to Joshua by saying that they came from a distant land. "And Joash, and Saraph," these are Mahlon and Chilion. And why were they called by the names Joash and Saraph? One was called Joash because they despaired [shenitya'ashu] of the redemption; the other was called Saraph because they were liable to receive the punishment of burning [sereifa] for their sins against God.

Megillah 14b:12

Rav Eina the Elder raised an objection from a baraita to Rav Naḥman's teaching. The baraita indicates that Huldah was in fact a descendant of Rahab, and seemingly not of Joshua: Eight prophets, who were also priests, descended from Rahab the prostitute, and they are: Neriah; his son Baruch; Seraiah; Mahseiah; Jeremiah; his father, Hilkiah; Jeremiah's cousin Hanamel; and Hanamel's father, Shallum. R' Yehuda said: So too, Huldah the prophetess was a descendant of Rahab the prostitute, as it is written here with regard to Huldah: "The son of Tikvah," and it is written elsewhere in reference to Rahab's escape from the destruction of Jericho: "This cord of [tikvat] scarlet thread" (Joshua 2:18).

Megillah 15a:4

Rav Naḥman said: Malachi the prophet is in fact Mordecai, and why was he called Malachi? To indicate that he was second to the king [melekh], as Mordecai was appointed such, as is recorded at the end of the Megilla. The Talmud raises an objection from the following baraita: Baruch, the son of Neriah; Seraiah, the son of Mahseiah; Daniel; Mordecai; Bilshan; Haggai; Zechariah; and Malachi; all prophesied in the second year of the reign of Darius. The fact that the baraita mentions Mordecai and Malachi separately indicates that they were two different people. The Talmud concludes: This is indeed a conclusive refutation.

Rosh Hashanah 19b:14

The Talmud comments: That is to say that they make the two months of Adar short months, of twenty-nine days, but they do not make them full months, of thirty days. This is to the exclusion of what Rav Naḥman bar Ḥisda taught, as Rav Naḥman bar Ḥisda taught: R' Simai testified in the name of Haggai, Zechariah, and Malachi about two months of Adar in a leap year, that if the members of the court wish to make them both full, they may do so; and if they wish to make them both short, they may do so; and if they wish to make one full and one short, they may do so. And this is what they would do in the Diaspora, when they did not know which day was established as the New Moon. And in the name of our teacher, Rav, they said: The two months of Adar are always observed, one full and one short, unless it is known to you that the New Moon was fixed in its proper time, i.e., the first Adar is also short.

Yoma 9b:16

The Talmud asks: What rot infests cedar? Ulla said: It is sasmagor, a type of worm. The Talmud asks: What does sasmagor have to do with the Divine Presence during the Second Temple era? R' Abba said: Just as little remains from a cedar tree infested by this worm, similarly, all that remained from the Divine Presence during the Second Temple period was a Divine Voice, as it was taught in a baraita: After the last prophets Haggai, Zechariah, and Malachi died, the Divine Spirit of prophetic revelation departed from the Jewish people, and they were still utilizing a Divine Voice, which they heard as an echo of prophecy.

Megillah 3a:4

§ The Talmud cites another ruling of R' Yirmeya or R' Ḥiyya bar Abba. R' Yirmeya said, and some say that it was R' Ḥiyya bar Abba who said: The Aramaic translation of the Torah used in the synagogues was composed by Onkelos the convert based on the teachings of R' Eliezer and R' Yehoshua. The Aramaic translation of the Prophets was composed by Yonatan ben Uzziel based on a tradition going back to the last prophets, Haggai, Zechariah, and Malachi. The Talmud relates that when Yonatan ben Uzziel wrote his translation, Eretz Yisrael quaked over an area of four hundred parasangs [parsa] by four hundred parasangs, and a Divine Voice emerged and said: Who is this who has revealed My secrets to mankind?

Megillah 3a:11

§ The Talmud introduces another statement from the same line of tradition. The verse states: "And I, Daniel, alone saw the vision, for the men who were with me did not see the vision; but a great trembling fell upon them, so that they fled to hide themselves" (Daniel 10:7). Who were these men? The term "men" in the Bible indicates important people; who were they? R' Yirmeya said, and some say that it was R' Ḥiyya bar Abba who said: These are the prophets Haggai, Zechariah, and Malachi.

Megillah 15a:4

Rav Naḥman said: Malachi the prophet is in fact Mordecai, and why was he called Malachi? To indicate that he was second to the king [melekh], as Mordecai was appointed such, as is recorded at the end of the Megilla. Shabbat 113b:10

R' Shmuel bar Naḥmani said that he hinted to her: A son will come from you in the future whose actions will be as sharp as vinegar, and who is he? King Manasseh. “And she sat beside the harvesters.” R' Elazar said with regard to this: Beside the harvesters, and not among the harvesters. He hinted to her that the kingdom of David will be divided in the future and her children will not always be in the center of Israel.

Yoma 9b:7

With regard to bloodshed it is written: “Moreover, Manasseh shed innocent blood very much, until he had filled Jerusalem from one end to another” (II Kings 21:16).

Yoma 23a:13

The father of the boy, i.e., the young priest who was stabbed, came and found that he was still convulsing. He said: May my son’s death be an atonement for you. But my son is still convulsing and has not yet died, and as such, the knife, which is in his body, has not become ritually impure through contact with a corpse. If you remove it promptly, it will still be pure for future use. The Tosefta comments: This incident comes to teach you that the ritual purity of utensils was of more concern to them than the shedding of blood. Even the boy’s father voiced more concern over the purity of the knife than over the death of his child. And similarly, it says: “Furthermore, Manasseh spilled innocent blood very much, till he had filled Jerusalem from one end to another” (II Kings 21:16), which shows that in his day as well people paid little attention to bloodshed.

Yoma 23b:3

The Talmud answers: Come and hear an answer to the dilemma: Since the Tosefta adduces a biblical teaching from the verse, “Furthermore, Manasseh spilled innocent blood,” conclude from this that it was bloodshed that had become trivialized, and the importance of purity of utensils remained where it had been.

Megillah 16a:14

The Talmud explains that their wise remark, which earned them their distinction, is contained in their advice: “If Mordecai be of the seed of the Jews [Yehudim], then you will not prevail over him” (Esther 6:13). The word Yehudim can also refer to people from the tribe of Judah. Haman’s wise men thereby said to him: If he descends from the other tribes, you can still prevail over him, but if he descends from the tribe of either Judah, Benjamin, Ephraim, or Manasseh, you cannot prevail over him. With regard to Judah, the proof of this is as it is written: “Your hand shall be on the neck of your enemies” (Genesis 49:8), indicating that Judah will emerge victorious over his enemies. And the proof that Haman cannot prevail over the others that were mentioned is as it is written with regard to them: “Before Ephraim and Benjamin and Manasseh, stir up Your might” (Psalms 80:3).

Rav Ashi said: And according to what Rav Naḥman said, that Manoah was an ignoramus; he did not even learn to read the basic Torah stories that even children learn in school, as it is stated: "Rebecca arose, and her damsels, and they rode upon the camels, and followed the man" (Genesis 24:61); they followed him and did not walk before the man.

Eruvin 18b:5

Rav Naḥman said: From the following verse, it is known that Samson's father, Manoah, was an ignoramus, as it is stated: "And Manoah arose, and went after his wife" (Judges 13:11), which shows that he was unfamiliar with the principle that one must not walk behind a woman.

Eruvin 18b:8

Rav Ashi said: And according to what Rav Naḥman said, that Manoah was an ignoramus, he did not even read the basic Torah stories that children learn in school. As it is written: "Rebecca arose, and her damsels, and they rode upon the camels, and followed the man" (Genesis 24:61); they followed him and did not walk before the man.

Rosh Hashanah 11a:8

The Talmud asks: From where may it be inferred that the term eitan* denotes mighty? As it is written: "Strong [eitan] is Your dwelling place, and You put Your nest in a rock" (Numbers 24:21). And it says: "Hear, O mountains, YHWH's controversy, and you strong [eitanim] foundations of the earth" (Micah 6:2), which is a call to the Patriarchs. And it says: "The voice of my beloved; behold, he comes leaping upon the mountains, skipping upon the hills" (Song of Songs 2:8): "Leaping upon the mountains" means that the redemption will arrive early in the merit of the Patriarchs, who are called mountains, and "skipping upon the hills" means that it will come in the merit of the Matriarchs.

Chullin 92a:7

It is taught in a baraita: R' Eliezer says an alternate interpretation of the verse. "Vine"; this is a reference to the world. And the other Sage said: David said the following before God: Master of the Universe, am I not pious? For all of the kings of the East and the West sit in groups befitting their honored status, but I sit as a judge who issues rulings for the people. Women come with questions of ritual impurity and my hands become soiled with their blood as I labor to determine whether or not it is blood of impurity and she has menstruating woman status, and with a fetus that miscarried at a stage of development before it was clear whether or not it is considered a birth, and with placenta, which women sometimes discharge unrelated to the birth of a child (see Leviticus 15:19–30 with regard to blood, and 12:1–8 with regard to miscarriage and placenta). King David went to all this trouble in order to render a woman ritually pure and consequently permitted to her husband. If, after examination, a Sage declares the woman ritually pure, she is permitted to be with her husband, which leads to increased love and affection, and ultimately to procreation (R' Yoshiyahu Pinto). And not only do I engage in activity considered to be beneath the station of a king, but I consult my teacher, Mefivoshet, son of King Saul's son, Jonathan, with regard to everything that I do. I say to him: Mefivoshet, my teacher, did I decide properly? Did I convict properly? Did I acquit properly? Did I rule ritually pure properly? Did I rule ritually impure properly? And I was not embarrassed. Forgoing royal dignity should make me worthy to be called pious.

Berakhot 4a:11

It was taught in a Tosefta from a tannaitic tradition: His name was not Mefivoshet, but rather Ish Boshet was his name. Why was Ish Boshet referred to as Mefivoshet? Because he would embarrass [mevayesh] David in matters of *halakha. According to this approach, Mefivoshet is an abbreviation of boshet panim, embarrassment. Because David was not embarrassed to admit his errors, he merited that Kilav, who, according to tradition, was exceedingly wise, would descend from him.

Berakhot 4a:12

R' Yoḥanan said: His name was not Kilav; rather, his name was Daniel, as it appears in a different list of David's descendants. Why was he called Kilav? Because he would embarrass [makhlim] Mefivoshet, the teacher or authority figure [av] in matters of halakha.

Shabbat 56a:16

And Shmuel said: David did not accept Ziba's slanderous report without substantiation. Rather, he himself saw conspicuous matters in Mephibosheth that indicated that Ziba was right. As it is written: "And Mephibosheth, the son of Saul, came down to meet the king, and he had neither dressed his feet, nor trimmed his beard, nor washed his clothes from the day the king departed until the day he came back in peace" (II Samuel 19:25). David thought that he was mourning the fact that he had returned in peace. And it is written: "And it came to pass, when he came to Jerusalem to meet the king, and the king said to him: Why did you not go with me, Mephibosheth? And he answered: My lord, O king, my servant deceived me; for your servant said: I will saddle me a donkey, and I will ride on it, and go to the king; because lame is your servant. And he slandered your servant to my lord the king; but my lord the king is like an angel of God: Do therefore what is good in your eyes" (II Samuel 19:26–28). "And the king said to him: Why do you speak any more of your matters? I have said: You and Ziba shall divide the estate. And Mephibosheth said to the king: Let him even take all, seeing that my lord the king is come back in peace to his own house" (II Samuel 19:30–31). Mephibosheth said to David as follows: I had hoped for your return, saying: When will he come in peace, and yet you do this to me, giving Ziba half of my estate? It is not against you that I have grievances, but against He who brought you back in peace. Mephibosheth's own statement substantiates Ziba's report about him.

Shabbat 56b:2

This is what is written: "And the son of Jonathan was Meriv-Baal" (I Chronicles 8:34). The Talmud asks: And was Meriv-Baal his name? Wasn't his name Mephibosheth? However, since he entered into a quarrel [meriva] with his Master [ba'al], i.e., God, and complained about God having saved David, a Divine Voice emerged and said to him: Quarrelsome one, the son of a quarrelsome one; you are just like your father, Saul. The Talmud explains: Quarrelsome one; that which we just said that Mephibosheth complained to God about His salvation of David. The son of a quarrelsome one; as it is written: "And Saul came to a city of Amalek and quarreled in the valley" (I Samuel 15:5). And R' Mani said: Saul quarreled with God with regard to matters of the valley, saying: For the murder of even a single person, there is a commandment to break the neck of a heifer in a valley to atone for the crime (see Deuteronomy 21:1–9); why then must all these Amalekites be killed?

Shabbat 56b:3

To the matter at hand: Rav Yehuda said that Rav said: When David said to Mephibosheth: You and Ziba shall divide the estate, a Divine Voice emerged and said to him: Rehoboam and Jeroboam shall divide the kingdom.

Merab (6 total matches, showing 5)

Sanhedrin 19b:3

The mishna teaches: And no one may marry the king's widow, and R' Yehuda says that a king may marry another king's widow, as proven by King David, who was promised with regard to King Saul after his death: "And I have given you the house of your master and the wives of your master" (II Samuel 12:8). It is taught in a baraita: The Sages said to R' Yehuda: The meaning of the verse is not that David married Saul's widows, but that he married women appropriate for him from the house of the king. And who are they? Merab and Michal, the daughters of Saul.

Sanhedrin 19b:4

The Talmud relates a discussion about David's marriage to Merab and Michal from a baraita (Tosefta, Sota 11:9): R' Yosei's students asked him: How did David marry two sisters while they were both alive? R' Yosei said to them: He married Michal only after the death of Merab, which is permitted. R' Yehoshua ben Korḥa says a different explanation: His betrothal to Merab was in error and therefore void from the outset, and so Michal was permitted to him. This is as it is stated in the words of King David to Saul's son Ish-bosheth: "Deliver me my wife Michal, whom I betrothed to me for one hundred foreskins of the Philistines" (II Samuel 3:14).

Sanhedrin 19b:5

The Talmud asks: What is the biblical derivation here? How does R' Yehoshua ben Korḥa learn from this verse that King David's betrothal to Merab was in error? Rav Pappa says: In the verse, David indicates: Michal is my wife but Merab is not my wife.

Sanhedrin 19b:7

Saul went and gave Merab to Adriel, as it is written: "But it came to pass at the time when Merab, Saul's daughter, should have been given to David, that she was given to Adriel the Meholathite as a wife" (I Samuel 18:19). Saul said to David: If you want me to give you Michal, go bring me one hundred foreskins of the Philistines (see I Samuel 18:25–27). David went and brought Saul two hundred foreskins. Saul said to him: Even though you brought the foreskins, the betrothal is not valid, as you, David, have a loan and one peruta in my possession, i.e., the wealth Saul owed him for slaying Goliath as well as the item of lesser monetary value, the foreskins of the Philistines.

Sanhedrin 19b:12

The Tosefta continues: The first verse does not mean, then, that Michal married Adriel. Rather, the verse compares Merab's betrothal to Adriel to Michal's betrothal to Palti: Just as Michal's betrothal to Palti was effected in transgression, according to all opinions, since she was already married to David, so, too, Merab's betrothal to Adriel was effected in transgression, since according to halakha she was betrothed to David.

Megillah 13a:3

§ Incidental to the exposition of the word Yehudi as one who repudiates idolatry, the Talmud relates that when R' Shimon ben Pazi introduced his exposition of the book of Chronicles, he addressed the book of Chronicles and said as follows: All of your words are one, and we know how to expound them. This introduction made reference to the fact that the book of Chronicles cannot always be interpreted literally but requires exposition, as the same individual might be called by various different names, as in the following verse: "And his wife HaYehudiyya bore Jered the father of Gedor, and Heber the father of Soco, and Jekuthiel the father of Zanoah. And these are the sons of Bithiah the daughter of Pharaoh, whom Mered took" (I Chronicles 4:18).

Megillah 13a:8

The aforementioned verse stated: "And these are the sons of Bithiah the daughter of Pharaoh, whom Mered took." The Talmud asks: Was Bithiah's husband's name Mered? Wasn't his name Caleb? Rather, the verse alludes to the reason that Caleb married Bithiah. The Holy One, Blessed be He, said: Let Caleb, who rebelled [marad] against the advice of the spies, come and marry the daughter of Pharaoh, who rebelled against the idols of her father's home.

Sanhedrin 19b:15

R' Yoḥanan says: Proof for the aforementioned statement can be derived from here: "And his wife Hajehudijah gave birth to Jered the father of Gedor, and Heber the father of Soco, and Jekuthiel the father of Zanoah, and these are the sons of Bithiah, daughter of Pharaoh, whom Mered took" (I Chronicles 4:18). Mered is Caleb, and why was his name called Mered? Because he rebelled [marad] against the counsel of the spies. And according to the midrash, Jered, Heber, and Jekuthiel all refer to Moses our teacher. And did Bithiah give birth to Moses? But didn't Jochebed give birth to him? Rather, Jochebed gave birth to him and Bithiah raised him. Therefore, he was called by her name as though she had given birth to him.

Shabbat 56b:2

This is what is written: "And the son of Jonathan was Meriv-Baal" (I Chronicles 8:34). The Talmud asks: And was Meriv-Baal his name? Wasn't his name Mephibosheth? However, since he entered into a quarrel [meriva] with his Master [ba'al], i.e., God, and complained about God having saved David, a Divine Voice emerged and said to him: Quarrelsome one, the son of a quarrelsome one; you are just like your father, Saul. The Talmud explains: Quarrelsome one; that which we just said that Mephibosheth complained to God about His salvation of David. The son of a quarrelsome one; as it is written: "And Saul came to a city of Amalek and quarreled in the valley" (I Samuel 15:5). And R' Mani said: Saul quarreled with God with regard to matters of the valley, saying: For the murder of even a single person, there is a commandment to break the neck of a heifer in a valley to atone for the crime (see Deuteronomy 21:1–9); why then must all these Amalekites be killed?

Meshullam (4 total matches)

Megillah 23a:9

Ya'akov of Mina said to Rav Yehuda: Corresponding to whom were these six readers on Yom Kippur instituted? Rav Yehuda said to him: The number six corresponds to the six people who stood to Ezra's right and the six people who stood to his left, as it is stated: "And Ezra the Scribe stood upon a platform of wood, which they had made for the purpose, and beside him stood Mattithiah, and Shema, and Anaiah, and Uriah, and Hilkiah, and Maaseiah, on his right hand, and on his left hand, Pedaiah, and Mishael, and Malchiah, and Hashum, and Hashbadanah, Zechariah, Meshullam" (Nehemiah 8:4).

Megillah 23a:10

The Talmud challenges this answer: Those that stood to his left were seven and not six. The Talmud responds: Zechariah is the same as Meshullam, that is to say, they are not two separate people, but rather one person with two names. And why was he called Meshullam? Because he was perfect [mishlam] in his actions.

Kiddushin 70a:3

The mishna taught that mamzerim were among those who ascended from Babylonia. The Talmud asks: From where do we derive this? The Talmud answers: As it is written: "And Sanballat the Horonite and Tobiah the servant, the Ammonite, heard" (Nehemiah 2:19), and elsewhere it is written with regard to Tobiah the Ammonite: "For there were many in Judah sworn to him because he was the son-in-law of Shecaniah the son of Arah; and his son Jehohanan had taken the daughter of Meshullam the son of Berechiah" (Nehemiah 6:18). The Talmud proceeds to explain: This tanna holds that in the case of a gentile or a slave who engaged in sexual intercourse with a Jewish woman, the offspring is a mamzer. Since Tobiah the Ammonite, a gentile, married a Jewish woman, as did his son, there were clearly mamzerim among those who ascended.

Horayot 11b:18

The Sages taught: He is Shallum, he is Zedekiah. And why was he called Shallum? It is due to the fact that he was perfect [meshullam] is his actions. Some say: He was called Shallum because the kingdom of the house of David was concluded [sheshalema] during his days. And what was his actual name? Mattaniah was his name, as it is stated: "And the king of Babylon crowned Mattaniah his uncle in his stead, and changed his name to Zedekiah" (II Kings 24:17). Why did Nebuchadnezzar call him Zedekiah? He said to him: God will justify the judgment against you if you rebel against me; and it is written: "And he also rebelled against King Nebuchadnezzar, who had imposed upon him an oath by God" (II Chronicles 36:13).

Berakhot 12b:25

And the Rabbis, who posit that there is no biblical obligation to mention the exodus from Egypt at night, explain the word, all, differently and say: The days of your life, refers to the days in this world, all is added to include the days of the Messiah.

Berakhot 12b:26

GEMARA: The fundamental dispute between Ben Zoma and the Sages appears in the mishna, and the baraita cites its continuation. Disputing the position of the Sages that: All the days of your life, refers to both this world and the days of the Messiah, it was taught in a baraita that Ben Zoma said to the Sages: And is the exodus from Egypt mentioned in the days of the Messiah? Was it not already said that Jeremiah prophesied that in the days of the Messiah: "Behold, days are coming, says YHWH, that they will no longer say: The Lord lives Who brought up the children of Israel out of the Land of Egypt. Rather: As YHWH lives, that brought up and led the seed of the house of Israel up out of the north country and from all the countries where I had driven them" (Jeremiah 23:7–8).

Berakhot 29a:13

We learned in the mishna that R' Yehoshua says that each day one recites an abridged version of the prayer of eighteen blessings. The Talmud asks: What is the abridged version of the prayer of eighteen blessings? There are different opinions. Rav said: One recites an abridged version of each and every blessing. Shmuel said: An abridged version of the prayer of eighteen blessings refers to a blessing composed specifically to be recited in place of the thirteen middle blessings. It contains references to each of the thirteen middle blessings. The formula for that blessing is: Grant us understanding, Lord our God, to know Your ways, and sensitize our hearts so that we may revere You, and forgive us so that we may be redeemed, and keep us far from our suffering, and satisfy us with the pastures of Your land, and gather our scattered people from the four corners of the earth, and those who go astray shall be judged according to Your will, and raise Your hand against the wicked, and may the righteous rejoice in the rebuilding of Your city, and the restoration of Your Sanctuary, and in the flourishing of Your servant David, and in establishing a light for Your Messiah, son of Yishai. Before we call, may You answer. Blessed are You, Lord, Who listens to prayer."

Berakhot 34b:19

And R' Ḥiyya bar Abba said that R' Yoḥanan said: All the prophets only prophesied with regard to the change in world order in the end of days with regard to the days of the Messiah. However, with regard to the World-to-Come, which exists on a higher level, it is stated: "No eye has seen it, God, aside from You."

Berakhot 34b:20

And the Talmud notes that this statement disagrees with the opinion of Shmuel, as Shmuel said: The only difference between this world and the days of the Messiah is with regard to servitude to foreign kingdoms alone. While in the days of the Messiah, Israel will be independent and free from enslavement to foreign powers, the world order will remain otherwise unchanged, as it is stated: "For the poor shall not cease from the land" (Deuteronomy 15:11), which indicates that the ways of the world are set and unchanging.

Messiah ben David (2 total matches)

Sukkah 52a:6

The Sages taught: To Messiah ben David, who is destined to be revealed swiftly in our time, God, says: Ask of Me anything and I will give you whatever you wish, as it is stated: "I will tell of the decree; YHWH said unto me: You are My son, this day have I begotten you, ask of Me, and I will give the nations for your inheritance, and the ends of the earth for your possession" (Psalms 2:7–8). Once the Messiah ben David saw Messiah ben Yosef, who was killed, he says to God: Master of the Universe, I ask of you only life; that I will not suffer the same fate. The Holy One, Blessed be He, says to him: Life? Even before you stated this request, your father, David, already prophesied about you with regard to this matter precisely, as it is stated: "He asked life of You, You gave it to him; even length of days for ever and ever" (Psalms 21:5).

Sukkah 52b:11

§ Apropos the end of days, the Talmud cites another verse and interprets it homiletically. It is stated: "The Lord then showed me four craftsmen" (Zechariah 2:3). Who are these four craftsmen? Rav Ḥana bar Bizna said that R' Shimon Ḥasida said: They are Messiah ben David, Messiah ben Yosef, Elijah, and the righteous High Priest, who will serve in the Messianic era. Rav Sheshet raised an objection: If so, if that is the identity of the four craftsmen, then that which is written in the previous verse: "And he said to me: These are the horns that scattered Judea" (Zechariah 2:4), is difficult; these four in the first verse are coming for their enemies, and are not redeemers.

Messiah ben Yosef (4 total matches)

Sukkah 52a:2

Apropos the eulogy at the end of days, the Talmud asks: For what is the nature of this eulogy? The Talmud answers: R' Dosa and the Rabbis disagree concerning this matter. One said that this eulogy is for Messiah ben Yosef who was killed in the war of Gog from the land of Magog prior to the ultimate redemption with the coming of Messiah ben David. And one said that this eulogy is for the evil inclination that was killed.

Sukkah 52a:3

The Talmud asks: Granted, according to the one who said that the lament is for Messiah ben Yosef who was killed, this would be the meaning of that which is written in that context: "And they shall look unto Me because they have thrust him through; and they shall mourn for him, as one mourns for his only son" (Zechariah 12:10). However, according to the one who said that the eulogy is for the evil inclination that was killed, does one need to conduct a eulogy for this? On the contrary, one should conduct a celebration. Why, then, did they cry?

Sukkah 52a:6

The Sages taught: To Messiah ben David, who is destined to be revealed swiftly in our time, God, says: Ask of Me anything and I will give you whatever you wish, as it is stated: "I will tell of the decree; YHWH said unto me: You are My son, this day have I begotten you, ask of Me, and I will give the nations for your inheritance, and the ends of the earth for your possession" (Psalms 2:7–8). Once the Messiah ben David saw Messiah ben Yosef, who was killed, he says to God: Master of the Universe, I ask of you only life; that I will not suffer the same fate. The Holy One, Blessed be He, says to him: Life? Even before you stated this request, your father, David, already prophesied about you with regard to this matter precisely, as it is stated: "He asked life of You, You gave it to him; even length of days for ever and ever" (Psalms 21:5).

Sukkah 52b:11

§ Apropos the end of days, the Talmud cites another verse and interprets it homiletically. It is stated: "The Lord then showed me four craftsmen" (Zechariah 2:3). Who are these four craftsmen? Rav Ḥana bar Bizna said that R' Shimon Ḥasida said: They are Messiah ben David, Messiah ben Yosef, Elijah, and the righteous High Priest, who will serve in the Messianic era. Rav Sheshet raised an objection: If so, if that is the identity of the four craftsmen, then that which is written in the previous verse: "And he said to me: These are the horns that scattered Judea" (Zechariah 2:4), is difficult; these four in the first verse are coming for their enemies, and are not redeemers.

Methuselah (3 total matches)

The Talmud continues homiletically interpreting verses that relate to the end of days. It is stated: "And this shall be peace: When the Assyrian shall come into our land, and when he shall tread in our palaces, then shall we raise against him seven shepherds, and eight princes among men" (Micah 5:4). The Talmud asks: Who are these seven shepherds? The Talmud explains: David is in the middle; Adam, Seth, and Methuselah are to his right; Abraham, Jacob, and Moses are to his left. And who are the eight princes among men? They are Yishai, Saul, Samuel, Amos, Zephania, Zedekiah, Messiah, and Elijah.

Bava Batra 121b:6

§ After discussing the generation of those who died in the wilderness, the Talmud mentions a tradition that relates to that generation. The Sages taught: Seven people spanned in their lifetimes the whole world in its entirety, i.e., their lives have spanned all of human history. Methuselah saw Adam in his lifetime; Shem saw Methuselah; Jacob saw Shem; Amram saw Jacob; Ahijah the Shilonite saw Amram; Elijah saw Ahijah the Shilonite; and Elijah is still alive.

Sanhedrin 108b:5

Rav says: These were the days of mourning for the death of Methuselah; and this is to teach you that eulogies for the righteous prevent calamities from ensuing. Alternatively, "after seven days" means that God, altered the order of Creation for that generation, i.e., in seven days He reversed the process of Creation, so that the sun would emerge in the west and set in the east. Alternatively, it means that God, designated a substantial period for them, one hundred and twenty years, to repent, and thereafter designated a brief period for them, an additional seven days, as a final opportunity for them to repent. Alternatively, "after seven days" means that during those seven days, God gave them a foretaste of the delights of the World-to-Come, which will be actualized during the seventh millennium, so that they would know what munificence their sins prevented them from receiving.

Micah (12 total matches, showing 5)

Pesachim 87a:12

Apropos the verse from Hosea, the Talmud interprets additional verses there: “The word of YHWH that came unto Hosea, the son of Beeri, in the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judea, and in the days of Jeroboam the son of Joash, king of Israel” (Hosea 1:1). The Sages explained: Four prophets prophesied in one era and the oldest of them was Hosea, as it is stated: “When YHWH spoke at first with Hosea” (Hosea 1:2), indicating that Hosea was the first of these prophets. If not, the question arises: And was it with Hosea that YHWH spoke first of all the prophets? Weren’t there several prophets who lived and prophesied during the period from Moses until Hosea? Rather, R' Yoḥanan said: He was the first of the four prophets who prophesied during that period, and these are they: Hosea, Isaiah, Amos, and Micah.

Pesachim 117a:10

Alternatively, is it possible that Micah’s idol stood in tears, and the Jewish people were reciting *hallel before it? The reference is to the idol of Micah, which was still standing in the days of David (see Judges 17). The Talmud states that the idol was crying, as a euphemism for its laughter, to avoid shaming the Jewish people (ge’onim). The point is that the Jews would not have chanted: “They who make them shall be like them” (Psalms 115:8) at a time that they were worshipping idols. Rather, hallel must be older than that, and it dates back to the Song at the Sea.

Bava Batra 14b:8

§ The Sages taught: The order of the books of the Prophets when they are attached together is as follows: Joshua and Judges, Samuel and Kings, Jeremiah and Ezekiel, and Isaiah and the Twelve Prophets. The Talmud asks: Consider: Hosea preceded some of the other prophets whose books are included in the Bible, as it is written: “The Lord spoke first to Hosea” (Hosea 1:2). At first glance this verse is difficult: But did God speak first with Hosea, and not with any other prophet before him? Weren’t there many prophets between Moses and Hosea? And R' Yoḥanan says: He was the first of four prophets who prophesied in that period, and they were: Hosea and Isaiah, Amos and Micah. Accordingly, Hosea preceded those three prophets; and the book of Hosea as well should precede the books of those prophets.

Bava Batra 109b:7

Rava bar Rav Ḥanan said in response: No, the verse speaks of a man whose name was Levi, but his father was of the tribe of Judah. The Talmud asks: If that is so, how is that which Micah said when that man agreed to serve as his priest: “Now I know that YHWH will do me good, seeing that I have a Levite as my priest” (Judges 17:13), understood? It is understood only if he was an actual Levite, not if he was from the tribe of Judah and named Levi. Rava bar Rav Ḥanan responded: Yes, it is understood. Micah understood the fact that a man whose name is Levi happened upon him as an auspicious sign.

Sanhedrin 89b:1

the colleague of the prophet Micah, son of Imla (see II Chronicles 18:7–8), as it is written: “And a certain man of the sons of the prophets said unto his colleague by the word of YHWH: Strike me, please. And the man refused to strike him” (I Kings 20:35). And it is written: “Then he said to him: Because you have not listened to the voice of YHWH, behold, as soon as you leave me, a lion shall slay you. And as soon as he left from him, a lion found him; and slew him” (I Kings 20:36).

Micaiah (2 total matches)

Sanhedrin 39b:7

Apropos the death of Ahab, the Talmud cites another verse from that passage. The verse states: “And they washed the chariot by the pool of Samaria, and the dogs licked up his blood; and the harlots also washed themselves there, according to the word of YHWH that He spoke” (I Kings 22:38). R' Elazar says: “The harlots [hazzonot]” can be read as visions [Ḥezyonot], and the verse means: To cleanse, i.e., to fulfill, two visions, one of Micaiah and one of Elijah. This fulfills a vision of Micaiah, as it is written: “If you return at all in peace, YHWH has not spoken by me” (I Kings 22:28). Once Ahab died, Micaiah’s vision was fulfilled. This also fulfills a vision of Elijah, as it is written: “In the place where the dogs licked the blood of Naboth shall the dogs lick your blood, even yours” (I Kings 21:19).

Sanhedrin 39b:9

The verse describing the death of Ahab states: “And a certain man drew a bow offhandedly [letummo] and smote the king of Israel” (I Kings 22:34). R' Elazar says: “Letummo” should be understood as offhandedly [lefi tummo], without aiming for Ahab. Rava says: This alludes to the fact that the killing of Ahab served to make whole [letammem] two visions, one of Micaiah and one of Elijah.

Michael the great ministering angel (2 total matches)

Chullin 40a:2

GEMARA: The mishna states that if one slaughters for the sake of mountains or other natural entities the slaughter is unfit. The Talmud infers: It is unfit, yes; with regard to offerings to the dead, i.e., to idols, it is not in that category. Apparently, the status of the animal is that of an unslaughtered carcass, from which benefit is permitted, and not that of an idolatrous offering, from which benefit is forbidden. And the Talmud raises a contradiction from a baraita: With regard to one who slaughters for the sake of mountains, for the sake of hills, for the sake of rivers, for the sake of wildernesses, for the sake of the sun and moon, for the sake of stars and constellations, for the sake of Michael the great ministering angel, or even for the sake of a small worm, these are offerings to the dead, from which benefit is forbidden.

Chullin 40a:3

Abaye said: The apparent contradiction between the mishna and the baraita is not difficult. This mishna that teaches that the slaughter is not valid but benefit is permitted is referring to a case where one says that he is slaughtering the animal for the sake of the mountain itself, which is not an idol. That baraita that teaches that the animal is an offering to the dead and benefit is forbidden is referring to a case where one says that he is slaughtering the animal for the sake of the angel of the mountain. The language of the baraita is also precise, as the mountain and the other natural entities are taught together with and therefore similar to Michael, the great ministering angel. Conclude from it that the tanna is referring to slaughter for the sake of a spiritual entity, not the mountain itself.

Eruvin 96a:13

Rather, we must say that it is this *tanna who maintains that Shabbat is a time for phylacteries, as it was taught in a baraita: Michal, daughter of Kushi, King Saul, would don phylacteries, and the Sages did not protest against her behavior, as she was permitted to do so. And similarly, Jonah's wife would undertake the Festival pilgrimage and the Sages did not protest against her practice. From the fact that the Sages did not protest against Michal's donning phylacteries, it is apparent that these Sages hold that phylacteries is a positive mitzva not bound by time, i.e., it is a mitzva whose performance is mandated at all times, including nights and Shabbat. There is an accepted principle that women are obligated in all positive mitzvot not bound by time.

Megillah 15a:8

The Sages taught in a baraita: Rahab aroused impure thoughts by her name, i.e., the mere mention of her name would inspire lust for her; Yael, by her voice; Abigail, by remembering her; Michal, the daughter of Saul, by her appearance. Similarly, R' Yitzḥak said: Anyone who says Rahab, Rahab, immediately experiences a seminal emission due to the arousal of desire caused by Rahab's great beauty. Rav Naḥman said to him: I say: Rahab, Rahab, and it does not affect me. R' Yitzchak said to Rav Naḥman: When I said this, I was specifically referring to one who knows her personally and recognizes her beauty. Only for one who has met Rahab in person is the mere mention of her name capable of arousing lust.

Yevamot 79a:4

The Talmud continues with its understanding of the incident: "And the king took the two sons of Rizpah, daughter of Aiah, whom she bore unto Saul, Armoni and Mephibosheth, and the five sons of Michal, daughter of Saul, whom she bore to Adriel the son of Barzillai the Meholathite" (II Samuel 21:8). The Talmud asks: What is different about these sons that David chose them from among all the descendants of Saul? Rav Huna said: He passed all of Saul's descendants before the Ark of the Covenant. Whoever was held back by the Ark, so that he could not move on, was condemned to death; whoever was not held back by the Ark was set apart for life.

Sanhedrin 19b:3

The mishna teaches: And no one may marry the king's widow, and R' Yehuda says that a king may marry another king's widow, as proven by King David, who was promised with regard to King Saul after his death: "And I have given you the house of your master and the wives of your master" (II Samuel 12:8). It is taught in a baraita: The Sages said to R' Yehuda: The meaning of the verse is not that David married Saul's widows, but that he married women appropriate for him from the house of the king. And who are they? Merab and Michal, the daughters of Saul.

Sanhedrin 19b:4

The Talmud relates a discussion about David's marriage to Merab and Michal from a baraita (Tosefta, Sota 11:9): R' Yosei's students asked him: How did David marry two sisters while they were both alive? R' Yosei said to them: He married Michal only after the death of Merab, which is permitted. R' Yehoshua ben Korḥa says a different explanation: His betrothal to Merab was in error and therefore void from the outset, and so Michal was permitted to him. This is as it is stated in the words of King David to Saul's son Ish-bosheth: "Deliver me my wife Michal, whom I betrothed to me for one hundred foreskins of the Philistines" (II Samuel 3:14).

Berakhot 34a:13

Having mentioned Moses' prayer for Miriam, the Talmud cites what R' Ya'akov said that Rav Ḥisda said: Anyone who requests mercy on behalf of another need not mention his name, as it is stated: "Please, God, heal her, please," and he did not mention Miriam's name.

Berakhot 55b:11

The Talmud relates: Ameimar and Mar Zutra and Rav Ashi were sitting together. They said: Let each and every one of us say something that the other has not heard. One of them began and said: One who saw a dream and does not know what he saw should stand before the priests when they lift their hands during the Priestly Blessing and say the following:
Master of the Universe, I am Yours and my dreams are Yours,
I dreamed a dream and I do not know what it is.
Whether I have dreamed of myself, whether my friends have dreamed of me or whether I have dreamed of others,
if the dreams are good, strengthen them and reinforce them like the dreams of Joseph.
And if the dreams require healing,
heal them like the bitter waters of Mara by Moses our teacher, and like Miriam from her leprosy,
and like Hezekiah from his illness, and like the bitter waters of Jericho by Elisha.
And just as You transformed the curse of Balaam the wicked into a blessing, so transform all of my dreams for me for the best.
And he should complete his prayer together with the priests so the congregation responds amen both to the blessing of the priests and to his individual request. And if he is not able to recite this entire formula, he should say:
Majestic One on high, Who dwells in power,
You are peace and Your name is peace.
May it be Your will that You bestow upon us peace.

Shabbat 35a:6

Because of its similarity to R' Ḥanina's statement, the Talmud cites that which R' Ḥiyya said: One who wants to see Miriam's well, which accompanied the Jewish people throughout their sojourn in the desert, should do the following: He should climb to the top of Mount Carmel and look out, and he will see a rock that looks like a sieve in the sea, and that is Miriam's well. Rav said: A spring that is portable, i.e., that moves from place to place, is ritually pure and is regarded as an actual spring and not as drawn water. And what is a movable spring? It is Miriam's well.

Shabbat 97a:3

The Talmud asks: However, didn't R' Akiva derive this from the plural pronoun them, meaning that God was angry with both of them? The Talmud answers: God's anger in that verse was manifest in a mere rebuke, not in leprosy. A baraita was taught in accordance with the opinion of R' Akiva, who said that Aaron also became leprous, as it is written: "And Aaron turned toward Miriam, and behold, she was leprous" (Numbers 12:10), and it was taught: This teaches that he turned, i.e., he was healed, from his leprosy, as he too had been afflicted.

Shabbat 104b:5

We learned in the mishna: If one unwittingly scratches letters on his flesh on Shabbat, R' Eliezer deems him liable to bring a sin-offering and the Sages deem him exempt. It was taught in a baraita that R' Eliezer said to the Rabbis: Didn't the infamous ben Stada take magic spells out of Egypt in a scratch on his flesh? They said to him: He was a fool, and you cannot cite proof from a fool. That is not the way that most people write. Incidentally, the Talmud asks: Why did they call him ben Stada, when he was the son of Pandeira? Rav Ḥisda said: His mother's husband, who acted as his father, was named Stada, but the one who had relations with his mother and fathered him was named Pandeira. The Talmud asks: Wasn't his mother's husband Pappos ben Yehuda? Rather, his mother was named Stada and he was named ben Stada after her. The Talmud asks: But wasn't his mother Miriam, who braided women's hair? The Talmud explains: That is not a contradiction. Rather, Stada was merely a nickname, as they say in Pumbedita: This one strayed [setat da] from her husband.

And when he carves the bush, let him lower himself and cut it close to the ground, and recite as follows: The bush, the bush; not because you are higher than all trees did God, rest His Divine Presence upon you. Rather, it is because you are lower than all trees did God, rested His Divine Presence upon you. And just as the fire saw Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah and fled from before them, so too, let the fire of the fever see so-and-so, son of so-and-so, his mother, flee from before him.

Pesachim 53b:7

Come and hear: This was also taught by Theodosius of Rome: What did Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah see that led them to deliver themselves to the fiery furnace for sanctification of the name of God during the rule of Nebuchadnezzar rather than worship idols under duress?

Pesachim 117a:19

R' Elazar HaModa'i says: Deborah and Barak recited it when Sisera stood against them (see Judges 4–5). They said: Not to us, and the Divine Spirit responded and said to them: For My own sake, for My own sake, will I do it. R' Elazar ben Azarya says: Hezekiah and his company recited it when Sennacherib stood against them (see II Kings 18–19). They said: Not to us and the Divine Spirit responded: For My own sake. R' Akiva says: Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah recited it when the wicked Nebuchadnezzar stood against them (see Daniel 3). They said: Not to us, and the Divine Spirit responded: For My own sake. R' Yosei HaGelili says: Mordecai and Esther recited it when the wicked Haman stood against them. They said: Not to us, and the Divine Spirit responded: For My own sake (see the book of Esther).

Pesachim 118a:18

Ḥizkiya clarifies his previous statement: Their descent is mentioned in this hallel, as it is written: "Not to us, God, not to us," a verse that Hananiah recited. Mishael recited: "But to Your name give glory." Azariah recited: "For Your mercy and for Your truth's sake." They all recited together: "Why should the nations say: Where now is their God?"

Pesachim 118a:19

This hallel also alludes to the ascent of Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah from the fiery furnace, as it is written: "Praise YHWH, all you nations, laud Him all you peoples. For His mercy is great toward us, and the truth of YHWH endures forever, halleluya" (Psalms 117). Hananiah recited: "Praise YHWH, all you nations," for the overt miracle performed for them before the nations. Mishael recited: "Laud Him all you peoples." Azariah recited: "For His mercy is great toward us." They all recited together: "And the truth of YHWH endures forever, halleluya."

And that is what the prophet said to Israel: "My nation, remember what Balak king of Moab advised, and how Balaam, son of Beor, responded; from Shittim to Gilgal, so that you may know the righteous acts of YHWH" (Micah 6:5). What is meant by the statement: "So that you may know the righteous acts of YHWH"?

Berakhot 18a:14

R' Yonatan said to him: Do the dead know so much? Isn't it stated: "And the dead know nothing" (Ecclesiastes 9:5)? R' Ḥiyya said to him: If you read the verse, you did not read it a second time, and if you read it a second time, you did not read it a third time, and if you read it a third time, they did not explain it to you properly. The meaning of the verse: "For the living know that they will die, and the dead know nothing and have no more reward, for their memory has been forgotten" (Ecclesiastes 9:5): For the living know that they will die, these are the righteous, who even in their death are called living. An allusion to this is as it is stated: "And Benayahu, son of Yehoyada, son of a valiant man of Kabze'el, who had done mighty deeds, he smote the two altar-hearths of Moab; he went down also and slew a lion in the midst of a pit in time of snow" (II Samuel 23:20).

Berakhot 18b:1

He was referred to in the verse as son of a living man. The Talmud wonders: Is that to say, the fact that the Bible referred to him with that appellation, that all others are children of the dead? Rather, the verse should be explained as follows: The son of a living man who lives forever, who even in death is referred to as living. Man of Kabze'el who had done mighty deeds, as he accumulated and gathered many workers for the sake of the Torah. Who killed the two lion-hearted men [Ariel] of Moab, as after his death he left no one his equal, in either the First Temple or the Second Temple periods, as the Temple is called Ariel (see Isaiah 29:1), and the two Ariel refers to the two Temples.

Berakhot 28a:6

Rabban Gamliel said to him: You are forbidden to enter into the congregation. R' Yehoshua said to him: You are permitted to enter into the congregation. Rabban Gamliel said to R' Yehoshua: Wasn't it already stated: "An Ammonite and a Moabite shall not enter into the congregation of YHWH; even to the tenth generation shall none of them enter into the congregation of YHWH forever" (Deuteronomy 23:4)? How can you permit him to enter the congregation? R' Yehoshua said to Rabban Gamliel: Do Ammon and Moab reside in their place? Sennacherib already came and, through his policy of population transfer, scrambled all the nations and settled other nations in place of Ammon. Consequently, the current residents of Ammon and Moab are not ethnic Ammonites and Moabites, as it is stated in reference to Sennacherib: "I have removed the bounds of the peoples, and have robbed their treasures, and have brought down as one mighty the inhabitants" (Isaiah 10:13). And although it is conceivable that this particular convert is an ethnic Ammonite, nevertheless, there is no need for concern due to the halakhic principle: Anything that parts from a group parts from the majority, and the assumption is that he is from the majority of nations whose members are permitted to enter the congregation.

and prepared caves for themselves and they hid in them. They said: When Israel passes here we will kill them. And they did not know that the Ark of the Covenant preceded the children of Israel and would flatten mountains before them. When Et and Hev, the lepers, arrived, they saw the blood that was emerging from between the mountains, and they came and told Israel what had happened. Israel recited a song of praise, as it is stated: "And at the cascade of the brooks that goes down to the dwelling of Ar, and lies upon the border of Moab" (Numbers 21:15). This refers to the cascade of the brooks where the mountain, which had once been a valley, spread out in the direction of the mountain in Ar, in Moab.

R' Meir says: The book of Esther was said with the inspiration of the Divine Spirit, as it is stated with regard to the conspiracy of Bigtan and Teresh against Ahasuerus: "And the thing became known to Mordecai" (Esther 2:22). This too could have been known only through divine inspiration. R' Yosei ben Durmaskit says: The book of Esther was said with the inspiration of the Divine Spirit, as it is stated: "But they did not lay their hands on the plunder" (Esther 9:15). The only way that could have been stated with certainty is through divine inspiration.

Megillah 10b:21

The next section of the verse discusses what will replace the thorns, i.e., Haman: "Shall the cypress [berosh] come up"; this is Mordecai. Why is he called a cypress [berosh]? Because he was called the chief [rosh] of all the spices, as it is stated: "Take you also to yourself the chief spices, of pure myrrh [mar deror]" (Exodus 30:23), and we translate "pure myrrh," into Aramaic as mari dakhei. Mordecai was like mari dakhi, the chief [rosh] of spices, and therefore he is called berosh.

Megillah 10b:28

R' Abba bar Kahana introduced this passage with an introduction from here. The verse states with regard to God's reward to the righteous: "He gives to a man that is good in His sight wisdom, and knowledge, and joy" (Ecclesiastes 2:26). The Talmud explains that this verse is referring to the righteous Mordecai. With regard to the next part of the verse: "But to the sinner He gives the task of gathering and heaping up," this is referring to Haman. The conclusion of the verse states: "That he may give it to one who is good before God" (Ecclesiastes 2:26). This is Mordecai and Esther, as it is written: "And Esther set Mordecai over the house of Haman" (Esther 8:2).

Megillah 11a:3

R' Yoḥanan introduced this passage with an introduction from here: The verse states: "He has remembered His mercy and His faithfulness toward the house of Israel: All the ends of the earth have seen the salvation of our God" (Psalms 98:3). When did all the ends of the earth see the salvation of our God? In the days of Mordecai and Esther, for their peril and salvation became known through the letters sent throughout the empire.

Megillah 11a:8

Rava introduced this passage with an introduction from here: "When the righteous are on the increase, the people rejoice; but when the wicked man rules, the people mourn" (Proverbs 29:2). "When the righteous are on the increase, the people rejoice"; this is Mordecai and Esther, as it is written: "And the city of Shushan rejoiced and was glad" (Esther 8:15). "But when the wicked man rules, the people mourn"; this is Haman, as it is written: "But the city of Shushan was perplexed" (Esther 3:15).

Berakhot 3b:27

When King David said: At midnight I rise, the assumption is that he rose precisely at midnight. The Talmud asks: Did David know exactly when it was midnight? Even Moses our teacher did not know exactly when it was midnight. How do we know this about Moses? As it is written that he said to Pharaoh: "Thus said YHWH: About midnight, I will go out into the midst of Egypt" (Exodus 11:4). The word about indicates that it was only an approximation.

Berakhot 4a:6

Similarly with regard to Moses, since Moses knew the precise moment of midnight, why did he say: About midnight, instead of: At midnight? Moses did so because he maintained: Lest Pharaoh's astrologers err and believe midnight to be earlier. Since no disaster would have occurred, they would say: Moses is a liar. Moses spoke in accordance with the principle articulated by the Master: Accustom your tongue to say: I do not know, lest you become entangled in a web of deceit.

Berakhot 4a:7

Rav Ashi said: This question is unfounded, as Moses was standing at midnight of the thirteenth, leading into the fourteenth, when he pronounced his prophecy, and Moses told Israel that God, said that tomorrow, at the exact time like midnight tonight, I will go out into the midst of Egypt. This indicates that the passage should not be understood to mean about midnight, an approximation; but rather, like midnight, as a comparison, likening midnight tomorrow to midnight tonight.

Berakhot 5a:3

And R' Levi bar Ḥama said that R' Shimon ben Lakish said: God said to Moses, "Ascend to me on the mountain and be there, and I will give you the stone tablets and the Torah and the mitzva that I have written that you may teach them" (Exodus 24:12), meaning that God revealed to Moses not only the Written Torah, but all of Torah, as it would be transmitted through the generations.
The "tablets" are the ten commandments that were written on the tablets of the Covenant, the "Torah" is the five books of Moses.
The "mitzva" is the Mishna, which includes explanations for the mitzvot and how they are to be performed.
"That I have written" refers to the Prophets and Writings, written with divine inspiration.
"That you may teach them" refers to the Talmud, which explains the Mishna.
These explanations are the foundation for the rulings of practical halakha. This verse teaches that all aspects of Torah were given to Moses from Sinai.

Berakhot 7a:25

Lastly, Moses requested that the ways in which God conducts the world be revealed to him, and He granted it to him, as it is stated: "Show me Your ways and I will know You" (Exodus 33:13).
Moses said before God: Master of the Universe. Why is it that the righteous prosper, the righteous suffer, the wicked prosper, the wicked suffer?
God said to him: Moses, the righteous person who prospers is a righteous person, the son of a righteous person, who is rewarded for the actions of his ancestors. The righteous person who suffers is a righteous person, the son of a wicked person, who is punished for the transgressions of his ancestors. The wicked person who prospers is a wicked person, the son of a righteous person, who is rewarded for the actions of his ancestors. The wicked person who suffers is a wicked person, the son of a wicked person, who is punished for the transgressions of his ancestors.

Yevamot 63a:6

And R' Elazar said: What is the meaning of that which is written: "And in you shall all the families of the earth be blessed [nivrekhu]" (Genesis 12:3)? The Holy One, Blessed be He, said to Abraham: I have two good shoots to graft [lehavrikh] onto you: Ruth the Moabite, the ancestress of the house of David, and Naamah the Ammonite, whose marriage with Solomon led to the ensuing dynasty of the kings of Judea. "All the families of the earth" means: Even families that live in the earth, i.e., who have land of their own, are blessed only due to the Jewish people. Similarly, when the verse states: "All the nations of the earth shall be blessed in him" (Genesis 18:18), it indicates that even ships that come from Galia to Hispania are blessed only due to the Jewish people.

Bava Kamma 38b:2

To counter this, God, said to him: That which has entered your mind has not entered Mine, because I have two virtuous fledglings [feridot], i.e., girls, to extract from them: Ruth the Moabite, who will be the foremother of the dynasty of David, and Naamah the Ammonite, Solomon's wife, from whom the continuation of that dynasty will emerge. For the sake of these women, the Moabites and Ammonites must not be destroyed.

Bava Kamma 38b:7

And with regard to the daughters of Lot, R' Ḥiyya bar Abba says that R' Yehoshua ben Korḥa says: A person should always hasten to perform a mitzva, as due to the one night by which the elder daughter of Lot preceded the younger daughter, with the intention of performing a mitzva by bringing children into the world, she preceded her by four generations in having her descendants enter into the Jewish people. They are: Obed, son of Ruth the Moabite, Yishai, David, and Solomon. Whereas, the descendants of the younger daughter did not join the Jewish people until Rehoboam, Solomon's son, was born, as it is written: "And his mother's name was Naamah the Ammonite" (I Kings 14:31).

Rav continues: His reward is as it is written: "The Lord will preserve him, and keep him alive, let him be called happy in the land; and deliver not You him unto the greed of his enemies" (Psalms 41:3). He elaborates: "The Lord will preserve him" from the evil inclination; "and keep him alive" and spare him from suffering; "let him be called happy in the land" means that everyone will be honored from their association with him; "and deliver not You him unto the greed of his enemies," so that companions like those who counseled Naaman to seek a cure for his leprosy from Elisha (II Kings 5:3) will happen to associate with him, and companions like those who counseled Rehoboam with advice that resulted in the schism in his kingdom (I Kings 12:6–19) will not happen to associate with him.

And Naaman was called that because Joseph was extremely pleasing [na'im]. Ehi and Rosh received these names, as Benjamin said: Joseph is my brother [aḥi] and my leader [roshi]. Benjamin named his sons Muppim and Huppim, as Benjamin said: Joseph did not see my wedding canopy [Ḥuppa] and I did not see his wedding canopy. And Ard was named after Joseph, who descended [yarad] to the lands of the nations of the world. Some say that the name Ard means that Joseph's face was similar in its beauty to a rose [vered].

Sotah 47a:7

The Talmud specifies: What was that incident with Elisha? As it is written: "And Naaman said: Pray, take talents" (II Kings 5:23). Naaman offered Gehazi payment for the help Elisha had given him, and when the verse recounts Elisha's words to Gehazi, it is written: "And he said to him: Did not my heart go, when the man turned back from his chariot to meet you? Is it a time to take money, and to take garments, and olives, and vineyards, and sheep, and oxen, and servants, and maidservants?" (II Kings 5:26). Here Elisha criticizes Gehazi for taking the payment.

Sotah 47a:8

The Talmud clarifies the criticism: And did he take all that? But it was only money and garments that he took. R' Yitzḥak says: At that time, Elisha was engaged in the study of the topic of the eight impure creeping animals. He said to Gehazi: Wicked one, it is time for you to receive now, in this temporal world, the reward for studying the topic of the eight impure creeping animals. This is why the verse lists eight items. The Talmud adds parenthetically that Elisha also said to Gehazi: "And the leprosy of Naaman shall cleave to you and to your descendants forever" (II Kings 5:27), and that the verse later states: "Now there were four leprous men" (II Kings 7:3), about whom R' Yoḥanan says: This is referring to Gehazi and his three sons.

Gittin 57b:6

A Sage taught a baraita relating to this matter: Naaman, commander of the army of the king of Aram (see II Kings, chapter 5), was not a convert, as he did not accept all of the mitzvot, but rather he was a ger toshav, a gentile who resides in Eretz Israel and observes the seven Noahide mitzvot. Nebuzaradan, by contrast, was a convert, as explained previously.

Shabbat 149b:7

And we said: What is this spirit? R' Yoḥanan said: This is the spirit of Naboth the Jezreelite, who asked to avenge his death at the hands of Ahab. And what is the meaning of the words: Go out, which God commanded him? Rav said: It means that he was given permission to entice Ahab, but God said: Leave from within My partition. Therefore, it seems that the spirit of Naboth was told to leave God's area because it caused Ahab to be punished. The Talmud rejects this proof: But perhaps there, the reason is as it is written: "One who speaks lies shall not dwell before My eyes" (Psalms 101:7), and this is the only reason that the spirit of Naboth was removed from within God's partition.

Sanhedrin 39b:7

Apropos the death of Ahab, the Talmud cites another verse from that passage. The verse states: "And they washed the chariot by the pool of Samaria, and the dogs licked up his blood; and the harlots also washed themselves there, according to the word of YHWH that He spoke" (I Kings 22:38). R' Elazar says: "The harlots [hazzonot]" can be read as visions [Ḥezyonot], and the verse means: To cleanse, i.e., to fulfill, two visions, one of Micaiah and one of Elijah. This fulfills a vision of Micaiah, as it is written: "If you return at all in peace, YHWH has not spoken by me" (I Kings 22:28). Once Ahab died, Micaiah's vision was fulfilled. This also fulfills a vision of Elijah, as it is written: "In the place where the dogs licked the blood of Naboth shall the dogs lick your blood, even yours" (I Kings 21:19).

Sanhedrin 48b:8

§ The Sages taught in a baraita: With regard to those executed by a Jewish king for crimes that they committed against him, their property belongs to the king. As for those executed by the court for a capital transgression, their property belongs to their heirs. R' Yehuda says: Even with regard to those executed by a Jewish king, their property belongs to their heirs. The Rabbis said to R' Yehuda: But isn't it already stated: "Arise, go down to meet Ahab, king of Israel, who is in Samaria; behold he is in the vineyard of Naboth, where he is gone down there to inherit it" (I Kings 21:18)? The wording of the verse indicates that Ahab went down there by right, proving that the property of those executed by the king legally belongs to the king.

Sanhedrin 48b:9

R' Yehuda said to them: Ahab was Naboth's cousin, the son of his paternal uncle, and therefore he was fit to inherit from him. Accordingly, he took possession of the property in his capacity as an heir, and not as the king. They said to him: But Naboth had many sons. Why, then, did they not inherit from him? R' Yehuda said to them: Ahab executed Naboth and also his sons, as it is stated: "I have seen yesterday the blood of Naboth and the blood of his sons" (II Kings 9:26). The Talmud asks: And how do the Rabbis counter this claim? The Talmud answers: In their opinion, that verse is referring to the sons who would have issued from him had Naboth not been executed. Ahab was held accountable for the blood of Naboth and for the blood of his unborn children.

Sanhedrin 48b:10

The Talmud raises a difficulty: Granted, according to the one who says that the property of those executed by the king belongs to the king, that is the reason that it is written that Jezebel arranged for witnesses to falsely testify that "Naboth cursed God and the king" (I Kings 21:13). Since Naboth cursed the king, Ahab could execute him and seize his property. But according to the one who says that the property of those executed by the king belongs to their heirs, why do I need the testimony that Naboth cursed the king? It would have sufficed for the witnesses to testify that he cursed God, in which case he would have been executed by the court, and Ahab would have taken possession of the vineyard as his heir.

Naboth the Jezreelite (2 total matches)

Sanhedrin 89a:16

Rav Yehuda says: What is the meaning of the apparently unnecessary term: “Go forth”? Could YHWH not have sufficed with telling the spirit: Do so? The term means: Go forth from My proximity. Since the spirit volunteered to engage in deceit, it was no longer fit to stand in proximity to God. What is the identity of the spirit that undertook to entice Ahab? R' Yoḥanan says: It was the spirit of Naboth the Jezreelite, who was eager to take revenge upon Ahab.

Sanhedrin 102b:15

With regard to God’s search for a volunteer to entice Ahab, it is written: “And there came forth a spirit, and stood before YHWH, and said: I will entice him. And YHWH said to him: With what? And he said: I will go out, and I will be a lying spirit in the mouth of all his prophets. And He said: You shall entice him, and also prevail; go out, and do so” (I Kings 22:21–22). The Talmud asks: What spirit was that? R' Yoḥanan says: It was the spirit of Naboth the Jezreelite, who sought to take revenge against Ahab.

Nadav and Avihu (9 total matches, showing 5)

Rosh Hashanah 25a:5

R' Yehoshua then came to R' Dosa ben Horkinas, who said to him: If we come to debate and question the rulings of the court of Rabban Gamliel, we must debate and question the rulings of every court that has stood from the days of Moses until now. As it is stated: "Then Moses went up, and Aaron, Nadav and Avihu, and seventy of the Elders of Israel" (Exodus 24:9). But why were the names of these seventy Elders not specified? Rather, this comes to teach that every set of three judges that stands as a court over the Jewish people has the same status as the court of Moses. Since it is not revealed who sat on that court, apparently it is enough that they were official judges in a Jewish court.

Rosh Hashanah 25a:15

§ The mishna taught that R' Yehoshua next came to R' Dosa ben Horkinas, who proved to him that the court of Rabban Gamliel has the same legal status as the court of Moses. The Sages taught in a baraita: Why were the names of these seventy Elders who sat together with Moses on his court not specified? The reason is so that a person not say: Is so-and-so the judge in my time, like Moses and Aaron? Is so-and-so like Nadav and Avihu? Is so-and-so like Eldad and Medad? Therefore, the names of the other elders were not specified, so that there is no way of knowing the qualifications of the elders in the time of Moses to compare them to later judges.

Yoma 87a:4

They said: Fortunate are the righteous because not only do they accumulate merit for themselves, but they accumulate merit for their children and their children's children until the end of all generations; as there were several sons of Aaron who essentially deserved to be burned like Nadav and Avihu, as it is stated: "The sons of Aaron who were left" (Leviticus 10:16), implying that others were left as well although they deserved to be burned with their brothers. But the merit of their father protected them, and they and their descendants were priests for all time.

Sukkah 25b:1

R' Akiva says: They were Mishael and Elzaphan, who were engaged in carrying the bodies of Nadav and Avihu after they were burned in the Holy of Holies (see Leviticus 10:4). R' Yitzḥak says: These identifications are inaccurate, because if they were the bearers of Joseph's coffin, they could have already been purified. They were camped at Sinai sufficient time to become purified in time to sacrifice the Paschal lamb. And if they were Mishael and Elzaphan they could have already been purified, as the Tabernacle was erected on the first of Nisan, which was the eighth day of the inauguration, when the sons of Aaron were burned. More than seven days remained until the eve of Passover on the fourteenth of Nisan.

Megillah 10b:9

The Talmud answers: This verse does not contradict the principle. On the day of the dedication of the Tabernacle, a calamity also befell the people, as Nadav and Avihu died.

Nahbi (1 total match)

Sotah 34b:6

R' Yoḥanan says: We can also say an interpretation of the name: "Nahbi the son of Vophsi" (Numbers 13:14): He is called Nahbi, as he concealed [heḥbi] the statement of God, that the land is good, by delivering a distorted description of it. He is called Vophsi, as he stomped [pisse'a] on the attributes of God, i.e., he did not believe in His promise to give Eretz Yisrael to the Jewish people.

Nahor (1 total match)

Sanhedrin 69b:12

Rather, it is from here that one can deduce that in earlier generations men fathered children at the age of eight, as it is written: “And these are the generations of Terah; Terah begot Abram, Nahor, and Haran” (Genesis 11:27). And Abraham was at least one year older than Nahor, and Nahor was one year older than Haran, so it turns out that Abraham was two years older than Haran. And it is written: “And Abram and Nahor took wives for themselves; the name of Abram’s wife was Sarai and the name of Nahor’s wife was Milka, daughter of Haran, father of Milka and father of Iscah” (Genesis 11:29).

Sotah 37a:3

R' Yehuda said to R' Meir: That is not how the incident took place. Rather, this tribe said: I am not going into the sea first, and that tribe said: I am not going into the sea first. Then, in jumped the prince of Judah, Nahshon ben Amminadab, and descended into the sea first, accompanied by his entire tribe, as it is stated: "Ephraim surrounds Me with lies and the house of Israel with deceit, and Judah is yet wayward toward God [rad im El]" (Hosea 12:1), which is interpreted homiletically as: And Judah descended [rad] with God [im El].

Bava Batra 91a:13

The Talmud provides a mnemonic for the ensuing statements that Rav Ḥanan bar Rava said that Rav said: Melech; Abraham; ten years; when he died; and He alone was exalted. Rav Ḥanan bar Rava says that Rav says: With regard to Elimelech, and Boaz's father, Salmon, and So-and-so, the unnamed relative who was a closer relative to Elimelech than Boaz (Ruth 4:1), and Naomi's father, all of these are descendants of Nahshon, son of Amminadab, the head of the tribe of Judah (see Ruth 4:20–21 and Numbers 2:3). The Talmud asks: What is he teaching us by this statement? He is teaching that even in the case of one who has the merit of his ancestors to protect him, this merit does not stand for him when he leaves Eretz Yisrael to go outside of Eretz Yisrael, as Elimelech died on account of this sin.

Bava Batra 110a:2

Rava says: One who marries a woman needs to first examine her brothers so that he will know in advance what character his children will have, as it is stated: "And Aaron took Elisheva, the daughter of Amminadav, the sister of Nahshon" (Exodus 6:23). By inference from that which is stated: "The daughter of Amminadav," do I not know that she is the sister of Nahshon, as Nahshon was the son of Amminadav? What is the meaning when the verse states: "The sister of Nahshon"? From here one learns that one who marries a woman needs to examine her brothers. The reason is as the Sages taught: Most sons resemble the mother's brothers.

Sanhedrin 12a:7

The message continued: And the offspring of Nahshon, meaning the Sages of the court of the Nasi, who was descended from the prince of Judah, Nahshon ben Amminadab (see Numbers 7:12), sought to establish a pillar, i.e., they sought to add a month to the year. But that Edomite, the local Roman governor, did not allow them to intercalate the year. Nevertheless, the members of the assembly gathered, and they established a pillar, in the month in which Aaron the priest died, i.e., the Sages of Eretz Yisrael convened in the month of Av, which is before Rosh HaShana, and determined that the following year should be intercalated. Evidently, then, in exigent circumstances, intercalation may be done even before Rosh HaShana. The Talmud answers: The court may calculate the need for an extra month even before Rosh HaShana, but they may not reveal and publicize the decision until after Rosh HaShana.

Zevachim 9b:4

§ Rav says in the name of Mavog: A sin offering that one slaughtered for the sake of a sin offering of Nahshon, i.e., a sin offering similar to those brought by the princes during the dedication of the Tabernacle (see Numbers, chapter 7), not to atone for a sin but as a gift, is fit and satisfies its owner's obligation; as the verse states: "This is the law of the sin offering" (Leviticus 6:18), indicating that there is one law for all the sin offerings.

Naomi (5 total matches)

Shabbat 113b:6

The Talmud elaborates. Whereas Naomi said to Ruth: "And you shall bathe, and anoint yourself, and put on your robes, and go down to the threshing floor," but with regard to Ruth herself it is written, "And she went down to the threshing floor" (Ruth 3:6), and only afterward does it say, "And she did according to all that her mother-in-law commanded her." Ruth decided to anoint herself at the threshing floor and not on the road so that people would not meet her on the way there and suspect her of immorality. Whereas Eli said to Samuel: "Go and lie down and if He calls you, you say: Speak, Lord, for Your servant is listening" (I Samuel 3:9), but with regard to Samuel himself it is written: "And YHWH came and stood, and He called like He did the other times: Samuel, Samuel. And Samuel said: Speak, for Your servant is listening" (I Samuel 3:10), and he did not say: Speak, Lord, since he would not assume it was God speaking to him until he was sure of it.

Bava Batra 91a:8

And R' Shimon ben Yoḥai would likewise say: Elimelech and his sons Mahlon and Chilion were prominent members of their generation and were leaders of their generation. And for what reason were they punished? They were punished because they left Eretz Yisrael to go outside of Eretz Yisrael, as it is stated concerning Naomi and Ruth: "And all the city was astir concerning them, and the women said: Is this Naomi?" (Ruth 1:19). The Talmud asks: What is the meaning of the phrase: "Is this Naomi"? How does this indicate that her husband and sons were punished for leaving Eretz Yisrael? R' Yitzḥak says that the women said: Have you seen what befell Naomi, who left Eretz Yisrael for outside of Eretz Yisrael? Not only did she not escape tribulations there, but she lost her status entirely.

Bava Batra 91a:13

The Talmud provides a mnemonic for the ensuing statements that Rav Ḥanan bar Rava said that Rav said: Melech; Abraham; ten years; when he died; and He alone was exalted. Rav Ḥanan bar Rava says that Rav says: With regard to Elimelech, and Boaz's father, Salmon, and So-and-so, the unnamed relative who was a closer relative to Elimelech than Boaz (Ruth 4:1), and Naomi's father, all of these are descendants of Nahshon, son of Amminadab, the head of the tribe of Judah (see Ruth 4:20–21 and Numbers 2:3). The Talmud asks: What is he teaching us by this statement? He is teaching that even in the case of one who has the merit of his ancestors to protect him, this merit does not stand for him when he leaves Eretz Yisrael to go outside of Eretz Yisrael, as Elimelech died on account of this sin.

Sanhedrin 19b:14

The Talmud presents a mnemonic for the following discussion: Ḥanina called; Yoḥanan and his wife; Elazar and redemption; and Shmuel in my studies. R' Ḥanina says: Proof for the aforementioned statement can be derived from here: "And the neighbors gave him a name, saying: There is a son born to Naomi" (Ruth 4:17). And did Naomi give birth to the son? But didn't Ruth give birth to him? Rather, Ruth gave birth and Naomi raised him. Therefore, he was called by her name: "A son born to Naomi."

Sanhedrin 22b:4

It is taught in a baraita: A man dies only to his wife, i.e., it is primarily she who suffers the pain and sadness resulting from his death, and a woman dies only to her husband. A man dies only to his wife, as it is stated: "And Elimelech, Naomi's husband, died" (Ruth 1:3), and a woman dies only to her husband, as it is stated in Jacob's parting words to Joseph: "And as for me, when I came from Paddan, Rachel died on me" (Genesis 48:7).

Naphtali (10 total matches, showing 5)

Megillah 6a:6

The Talmud asks: Is Kitron really Tzippori? Wasn't Kitron in the tribal territory of Zebulun, as it is written: "Neither did Zebulun drive out the inhabitants of Kitron, nor the inhabitants of Nahalol" (Judges 1:30)? And the tribe of Zebulun was resentful of its portion, as it is stated: "Zebulun was a people that jeopardized their lives to the death" (Judges 5:18). What is the reason for their resentfulness? Because "Naphtali was on the high places of the field" (Judges 5:18).

Megillah 6a:11

The Talmud answers: Even so, fields and vineyards were preferable to Zebulun. The fertile land in Zebulun's territory is in a mountainous region, which makes it more difficult to cultivate. The Talmud comments: The language of the verse is also precise according to this explanation, as it is written: "And Naphtali was on the high places of the field," which indicates that Zebulun's complaint was due to the fact that Naphtali had fields. The Talmud concludes: Indeed, learn from here that this is so.

Sotah 11b:20

Rather, the midwives said to Pharaoh: This nation is compared to an animal [Ḥayya], and animals give birth without a midwife. For example, with regard to Judah it is written: "Judah is a lion's whelp" (Genesis 49:9); with regard to Dan it is written: "Dan shall be a serpent in the way" (Genesis 49:17); with regard to Naphtali it is written: "A hind let loose" (Genesis 49:21); with regard to Issachar it is written: "A large-boned donkey" (Genesis 49:14); with regard to Joseph it is written: "His first bullock" (Deuteronomy 33:17); with regard to Benjamin it is written: "A ravenous wolf" (Genesis 49:27).

Sotah 13a:9

Esau said to them: Bring the bill of sale to me, i.e., you can't prove your claims. They said to him: The bill of sale is in the land of Egypt. They said: And who will go to bring it? Naphtali will go, for he is as fast as a doe, as it is written: "Naphtali is a doe let loose, he gives goodly words" (Genesis 49:21). R' Abbahu says: Do not read it as "goodly words [imrei shafer]"; rather, read it as imrei sefer, i.e., the words of the book, as he returned to Egypt to retrieve the bill of sale.

Sotah 13a:10

The Talmud relates: Hushim, the son of Dan, was there and his ears were heavy, i.e., he was hard of hearing. He said to them: What is this that is delaying the burial? And they said to him: This one, Esau, is preventing us from burying Jacob until Naphtali comes back from the land of Egypt with the bill of sale. He said to them: And until Naphtali comes back from the land of Egypt will our father's father lie in degradation? He took a club [kulepa] and hit Esau on the head, and Esau's eyes fell out and they fell on the legs of Jacob. Jacob opened his eyes and smiled. Nashyan (1 total match)

Bava Batra 91a:15

Rav Ḥanan bar Rava continues: The mother of David was named Natzvat bat Ada'el. The mother of Samson was named Tzelelponit, and his sister was called Nashyan. The Talmud asks: What is the practical difference as to what their names were? The Talmud answers: It is important with regard to an answer for heretics who inquire into the names of these women, which are not stated in the Bible. One can reply that there is a tradition handed down concerning their names.

Nathan the prophet (5 total matches)

Bava Batra 15a:8

It is also stated in the baraita that Samuel wrote his own book. The Talmud asks: But isn't it written: "And Samuel died" (I Samuel 28:3)? The Talmud answers: Gad the seer and Nathan the prophet finished it.

Sanhedrin 20b:14

The baraita continues: And so the verse states concerning David: "And it came to pass, when King David dwelled in his house and YHWH had given him rest round about from all his enemies" (II Samuel 7:1). And it is written immediately afterward: "That the king said to Nathan the prophet: See now, I dwell in a house of cedar but the Ark of God dwells within curtains" (II Samuel 7:2), and King David then began seeking a site to build the Temple.

Sanhedrin 69b:7

The Talmud asks: And from where do we derive that in earlier generations men fathered children at this age? If we say that we know this from the following calculation: It is written: "Is this not Bathsheba, daughter of Eliam, wife of Uriah the Hittite?" (II Samuel 11:3). And it is also written: "And Eliam, son of Ahithophel the Gilonite" (II Samuel 23:34), which teaches that Bathsheba was the granddaughter of Ahithophel. And it is written with reference to the birth of Solomon: "And he sent by the hand of Nathan the prophet, and he called his name Jedidiah, for YHWH's sake" (II Samuel 12:25).

Horayot 13a:12

A High Priest precedes a prophet, as it is stated: "And let Zadok the priest and Nathan the prophet anoint him there" (I Kings 1:34); Zadok is written before Natan. And similarly, the prophet says: "Hear now, Joshua the High Priest, you and your colleagues who sit before you, for they are men that are a sign; for behold, I will bring forth My servant Zemah" (Zechariah 3:8). One might have thought that these colleagues were laymen. Therefore, the verse states: "For they are men that are a sign," and "sign" means nothing other than a prophet, as it is stated: "And he gives you a sign or a wonder" (Deuteronomy 13:2).

Menachot 53a:20

R' Ezra explained this statement: With regard to yadid in the phrase: Let yadid, this is King Solomon, as it is written after Solomon's birth: "And He sent by the hand of Nathan the prophet, and he called his name Yedidya, for YHWH's sake" (II Samuel 12:25).

Nebaioth (3 total matches)

Rosh Hashanah 17b:10

The Talmud raises an objection from a baraita: If one repents in the meantime, between Rosh HaShana and Yom Kippur, he is forgiven; if he does not repent in the meantime, then even if he later brings as offerings all the rams of Nebaioth in the world, which are of the best quality, they do not forgive him in the Heavenly court. This implies that once one's sentence has been decreed, even repentance cannot alter it. The Talmud answers: This is not difficult: Here, where repentance is effective only before the sentence on Yom Kippur, the baraita is referring to repentance of an individual; there, where forgiveness is granted even after a sentence is issued, it is referring to communal repentance.

Megillah 17a:2

And it was taught in a baraita: Jacob our father was sixty-three years old at the time he was blessed by his father, and at that same time Ishmael died. How is it known that these two events occurred at the same time? As it is written: "When Esau saw that Isaac had blessed Jacob…then Esau went to Ishmael and took for a wife Mahalath, the daughter of Ishmael, Abraham's son, the sister of Nebaioth" (Genesis 28:6–9). From the fact that it is stated: "the daughter of Ishmael," do I not know that she was the sister of Nebaioth? For what purpose then does the verse say this explicitly? This teaches that Ishmael betrothed her to Esau and in the meantime he died, and Nebaioth her brother married her off. Therefore, special mention is made of Nebaioth. Consequently, it is understood that Jacob was sixty-three years old when he received his blessing and left his father's house.

Bava Kamma 92a:7

GEMARA: The Sages taught: All these sums that in the previous mishna they said one is liable to pay for humiliating another are the compensation for his humiliation, for which there is a set amount. But for the victim's pain caused by the assailant, even if the assailant brings as offerings all the rams of Nebaioth (see Isaiah 60:7) that are in the world, which are of the best quality, his transgression is not forgiven for him in the heavenly court until he requests forgiveness from the victim, as it is stated: "Restore the wife of the man; for he is a prophet, and he shall pray for you" (Genesis 20:7).

But the heretics; and the informers; and the apostates [apikorsim]; and those who denied the Torah; and those who denied the resurrection of the dead; and those who separated from the ways of the Jewish community and refused to share the suffering; and those who cast their fear over the land of the living; and those who sinned and caused the masses to sin, for example, Jeroboam, son of Nebat, and his company; all of these people descend to Gehenna and are judged there for generations and generations, as it is stated: "And they shall go forth, and look upon the carcasses of the men that have rebelled against Me; for their worm shall not die; neither shall their fire be quenched; and they shall be an abhorrence to all flesh" (Isaiah 66:24).

In the mishna, the tanna enumerated three kings and four commoners who have no share in the World-to-Come. The Sages taught in a baraita: Jeroboam [Yorovam] is an abbreviation for one who debased the Jewish people [riba am]. Alternatively, *Yorovam is an abbreviation for one who engendered strife among the people [meriva ba'am], causing the schism between the kingdoms of Judea and Israel. Alternatively, *Yorovam is an abbreviation for one who engendered strife between the Jewish people [meriva bein ha'am] and their Heavenly Father, as he instituted the worship of the golden calves (I Kings 12:28–31). He is called son of Nebat because he is the son who looked [nibat] in an effort to assess the situation but did not see the situation accurately.

Sanhedrin 101b:6

It is taught in a baraita: Based on a homiletic interpretation of their names, these three biblical figures are deemed to be the same person. He is called Nebat, he is called Micah, and he is called Sheba, son of Bichri. Nebat, who looked [nibat] but did not see, believed that he was destined for greatness, and that was achieved only by his son. Micah, who was crushed [nitmakhmekh] in the building of the storage cities of Pithom and Raamses, was miraculously saved. And what is his actual name? His name is Sheba, son of Bichri.

Sanhedrin 101b:7

Sanhedrin 101b:8

The Talmud elaborates: Nebat saw fire that emerges from his penis. He thought that it meant that he would rule. But that is not so. It meant that it would be Jeroboam who would emerge from him and rule.

Nebuchadnezzar (51 total matches, showing 5)

Berakhot 57b:21

The Talmud goes on to discuss special blessings instituted by the Sages to be recited upon seeing extraordinary sights. Rav Hamnuna taught: One who sees the wicked Babylonia must recite five blessings. The Talmud elaborates:
One who saw the ruins of Babylonia, recites: Blessed...Who destroyed the wicked Babylonia.
One who saw the ruins of Nebuchadnezzar's house, recites: Blessed...Who destroyed the house of wicked Nebuchadnezzar.
One who saw the lion's den into which Daniel was thrown (see Daniel ch. 6) or the furnace into which Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah were thrown (see Daniel ch. 3), recites: Blessed...Who performed miracles for our ancestors in this place.
One who saw Mercury, recites: Blessed...Who has shown patience to those who violate His will.
One who saw a place from which earth is taken, as over the generations earth was taken from certain places and used as fertilizer or for construction in the surrounding areas, recites: Blessed...Who speaks and acts, decrees and fulfills.

Shabbat 149b:8

Rather, it is derived from here: "You are filled with shame instead of honor. Drink, you, and be like one who is uncircumcised, the cup of YHWH's right hand will turn to you and filthiness shall be upon your glory" (Habakkuk 2:16). The verse is expounded: "You are filled with shame instead of honor"; this is referring to Nebuchadnezzar. "Drink, you, and be like one who is uncircumcised"; this is referring to Zedekiah, who was also punished for being the cause of Nebuchadnezzar's punishment, as will be explained. The Talmud rejects this proof: One objection to this is that the entire verse is written about Nebuchadnezzar. And furthermore, with regard to Zedekiah, the righteous one, what could he have done to him? For Rav Yehuda said that Rav said about this matter: When that wicked man wanted to do this to that righteous man, his foreskin was stretched, as will be explained.

Pesachim 117a:19

R' Elazar HaModa'i says: Deborah and Barak recited it when Sisera stood against them (see Judges 4–5). They said: Not to us, and the Divine Spirit responded and said to them: For My own sake, for My own sake, will I do it. R' Elazar ben Azarya says: Hezekiah and his company recited it when Sennacherib stood against them (see II Kings 18–19). They said: Not to us and the Divine Spirit responded: For My own sake. R' Akiva says: Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah recited it when the wicked Nebuchadnezzar stood against them (see Daniel 3). They said: Not to us, and the Divine Spirit responded: For My own sake. R' Yosei HaGelili says: Mordecai and Esther recited it when the wicked Haman stood against them. They said: Not to us, and the Divine Spirit responded: For My own sake (see the book of Esther).

Yoma 20b:10

As R' Levi said: Why is a person's voice not heard during the day in the manner that it is during the night? It is due to the fact that the sound of the sphere of the sun traversing the sky generates noise like the noise generated by a carpenter sawing cedars, and that noise drowns out other sounds. And that sawdust that is visible during the day in the rays of the sun, la* is its name. This is what Nebuchadnezzar said: "And all the inhabitants of the world are considered like la" (Daniel 4:32), i.e., all inhabitants of the earth are equivalent to specks of dust.

Yoma 53b:14

GEMARA: The Talmud comments with regard to the wording of the mishna: It does not teach: After the Ark was buried, but: After it was taken. If so, we learned this mishna in accordance with the opinion of the one who said that the Ark was exiled to Babylonia and was not buried in its place, as it was taught in a baraita: R' Eliezer says: The Ark was exiled to Babylonia, as it is stated: "And at the turn of the year King Nebuchadnezzar sent and brought him to Babylonia, along with the precious vessels of the House of YHWH" (II Chronicles 36:10). These precious vessels must include the Ark.

Sanhedrin 92b:10

R' Yoḥanan says: These are the dead from the Dura Valley (see Daniel, chapter 3). And R' Yoḥanan says: These corpses filled the area from the Eshel River to Rabat, which constitutes the Dura Valley. As, at the time that Nebuchadnezzar the wicked exiled the Jewish people to Babylonia, there were among them youths who overshadowed the sun with their beauty, and the Chaldean women would see them, and desire them, and discharge the flow of a zava. These women told their husbands, and their husbands told the king. The king ordered the youths executed, and his servants executed them. And their execution did not resolve the problem, as the women were still discharging the flow of a zava. Even after death, the youths' beauty remained intact. The king ordered that their corpses be taken to the valley, and his servants trampled them so that their form would no longer be visible.

Sanhedrin 92b:11

§ The Sages taught in a baraita: At the moment that Nebuchadnezzar the wicked cast Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah into the fiery furnace, God, said to Ezekiel: Go and revive the dead in the Dura Valley. Once Ezekiel revived them, the bones came and struck Nebuchadnezzar, that wicked man, in his face. Nebuchadnezzar said: What is the nature of these? His servants said to him: The friend of these three, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah, is reviving the dead in the Dura Valley. Nebuchadnezzar began and said: "How great are His signs and how mighty are His wonders; His kingdom is an everlasting kingdom and His dominion is from generation to generation" (Daniel 3:33).

Sanhedrin 94b:19

The Talmud asks: Aren't these more than ten? The Talmud answers that in the verse: "Cry with a shrill voice, daughter of Gallim," it is the prophet who is saying it to the congregation of Israel: "Cry with a shrill voice, daughter of Gallim," daughter of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, who performed mitzvot as numerous as the waves of the sea. "Hearken, Laish"; from this king, Sennacherib, fear not; but fear Nebuchadnezzar, the wicked who is likened to a lion, as it is stated: "The lion [arye] is gone up from its thicket" (Jeremiah 4:7).

Nebuzaradan (9 total matches, showing 5)

Shabbat 26a:3

Since balsam oil was discussed, the Talmud cites the verse: “But Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard left of the poorest of the land to be vinedressers and husbandmen” (Jeremiah 52:16). The Talmud explains the verse: With regard to vinedressers, Rav Yosef taught: These poorest of the land were the balsam collectors in the south of Eretz Yisrael, in the expanse from Ein Gedi to Ramata. And the husbandmen; these are the trappers of the snail [Ḥilazon], from which the sky blue dye is produced in the north of the country, in the area between the Promontory of Tyre and Ḥaifa. Only a small number of poor people could barely eke out a living from these tasks, which involved mere gathering.

Taanit 29a:8

§ The mishna further taught that on the Ninth of Av the Temple was destroyed the first time. The Talmud explains that this is as it is written: “And in the fifth month, on the seventh day of the month, which was the nineteenth year of King Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, Nebuzaradan, captain of the guard, a servant of the King of Babylon, came to Jerusalem. And he burnt the house of YHWH” (II Kings 25:8–9). And it is also written: “And in the fifth month, on the tenth day of the month, which was the nineteenth year of King Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, Nebuzaradan, captain of the guard, who served the king of Babylon, came into Jerusalem. And he burnt the house of YHWH” (Jeremiah 52:12–13).

Gittin 57b:1

§ With regard to the Babylonian exile following the destruction of the First Temple, R' Ḥiyya bar Avin says that R' Yehoshua ben Korḥa says: An old man from among the inhabitants of Jerusalem related to me: In this valley that lies before you, Nebuzaradan, captain of the guard of the Babylonian king Nebuchadnezzar, killed 2,110,000 people. And in Jerusalem itself he killed 940,000 people on one stone, until the blood of his victims flowed and touched the blood of Zechariah to fulfill what is stated: “And blood touches blood” (Hosea 4:2).

Gittin 57b:6

A Sage taught a baraita relating to this matter: Naaman, commander of the army of the king of Aram (see II Kings, chapter 5), was not a convert, as he did not accept all of the mitzvot, but rather he was a ger toshav, a gentile who resides in Eretz Israel and observes the seven Noahide mitzvot. Nebuzaradan, by contrast, was a convert, as explained previously.

Sanhedrin 95b:14

R' Yehoshua ben Levi says: Fourteen remained, as it is stated: “Two or three…four or five,” which total fourteen. R' Yoḥanan says: Five remained: Sennacherib, and his two sons, and Nebuchadnezzar, and Nebuzaradan, the captain of the guard. The fact that Nebuzaradan was among them is learned through tradition. Nebuchadnezzar was among them, as it is written that Nebuchadnezzar said when he saw an angel with Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah: “And the appearance of the fourth is like that of an angel” (Daniel 3:25). And if he had not seen the angel that smote Sennacherib’s army, from where would he have known that the fourth person looked like an angel? Sennacherib and his two sons were among them, as it is written later in their regard: “And it came to pass as he was worshipping in the house of Nisroch his god that Adrammelech and Sarezer, his sons, smote him with the sword” (II Kings 19:37). Evidently, the three of them survived.

Nehemiah (12 total matches, showing 5)

Shabbat 123b:13

R' Ḥanina said: This mishna was taught in the days of Nehemiah, son of Hacaliah, a period when many stringent decrees were issued with regard to Shabbat prohibitions, as it is written: "In those days I saw in Judea some treading winepresses on Shabbat and bringing in heaps of grain and lading donkeys with them; as also wine, grapes, figs, and all manner of burdens which are brought into Jerusalem on the Shabbat day. I forewarned them on that day when they sold food" (Nehemiah 13:15). Since the people treated the sanctity of Shabbat with disdain, Nehemiah instituted many stringencies with regard to all the halakhot of Shabbat in order to educate the people to observe Shabbat.

Rosh Hashanah 3a:14

§ Rav Ḥisda said: They taught that the years of a king's rule are counted from the first of Nisan only with regard to the Jewish kings of Israel, but the years of the kings of the gentile nations of the world are counted from Tishrei, as it is stated: "The words of Nehemiah, son of Hachaliah. And it came to pass in the month Kislev, in the twentieth year, as I was in Shushan the capital" (Nehemiah 1:1). And it is written: "And it came to pass in the month Nisan, in the twentieth year of Artaxerxes the king, that wine was before him, and I took up the wine, and gave it to the king" (Nehemiah 2:1).

Rosh Hashanah 3b:3

The Talmud answers: It should not enter your mind to say this, as it is taught in a baraita: The words that Hanani told Nehemiah in the month of Kislev, Nehemiah told the king in the month of Nisan.

Rosh Hashanah 3b:4

The baraita explains: The words that Hanani said to Nehemiah in Kislev are as it is stated: "The words of Nehemiah, son of Hachaliah: And it came to pass in the month Kislev, in the twentieth year, as I was in Shushan the capital, that Hanani, one of my brothers, came out of Judah, he and certain men; and I asked them concerning the Jews who had escaped, who were left of the captivity, and concerning Jerusalem. And they said to me: The remnant who are left of the captivity there in the province suffer much hardship and insult; and the wall of Jerusalem is broken down, and its gates are burned with fire" (Nehemiah 1:1–3).

Rosh Hashanah 3b:5

Nehemiah told these words to the king in Nisan, as it is stated: "And it came to pass in the month Nisan, in the twentieth year of Artaxerxes the king, that wine was before him, and I took up the wine and gave it to the king. Now I had not been sad before in his presence. And the king said to me: Why is your face sad, seeing that you are not sick? This is nothing else but sorrow of the heart. Then I was very much afraid, and I said to the king: Let the king live forever: Why should not my face be sad, when the city, the place of the tombs of my ancestors, lies waste, and its gates are consumed with fire?" (Nehemiah 2:1–3).

The Talmud further objects: Wasn't there Hezekiah, who was both the leading Torah scholar of his age and also the king of his people? The Talmud answers: There was Shebnah in that generation, who was Hezekiah's equal in Torah knowledge. The Talmud asks: Wasn't he killed in the war against Sennacherib? The Talmud answers: We meant to say that there was no similar individual who reigned supreme in both Torah and high office all of his years. The Talmud asks: But wasn't there Ezra, who was the greatest Torah sage of his day and the leader of the Jewish people? The Talmud answers: There was Nehemiah ben Hacaliah who was his equal.

Megillah 14b:12

Rav Eina the Elder raised an objection from a baraita to Rav Naḥman's teaching. The baraita indicates that Huldah was in fact a descendant of Rahab, and seemingly not of Joshua: Eight prophets, who were also priests, descended from Rahab the prostitute, and they are: Neriah; his son Baruch; Seraiah; Mahseiah; Jeremiah; his father, Hilkiah; Jeremiah's cousin Hanamel; and Hanamel's father, Shallum. R' Yehuda said: So too, Huldah the prophetess was a descendant of Rahab the prostitute, as it is written here with regard to Huldah: "The son of Tikvah," and it is written elsewhere in reference to Rahab's escape from the destruction of Jericho: "This cord of [tikvat] scarlet thread" (Joshua 2:18).

Megillah 15a:4

Rav Naḥman said: Malachi the prophet is in fact Mordecai, and why was he called Malachi? To indicate that he was second to the king [melekh], as Mordecai was appointed such, as is recorded at the end of the Megilla. The Talmud raises an objection from the following baraita: Baruch, the son of Neriah; Seraiah, the son of Mahseiah; Daniel; Mordecai; Bilshan; Haggai; Zechariah; and Malachi; all prophesied in the second year of the reign of Darius. The fact that the baraita mentions Mordecai and Malachi separately indicates that they were two different people. The Talmud concludes: This is indeed a conclusive refutation.

Megillah 16b:19

Rav said, and some say that Rav Shmuel bar Marta said: Studying Torah is greater and more important than building the Temple. A proof of this is that for as long as Baruch ben Neriah was alive in Babylonia, Ezra, who was his disciple, did not leave him and go up to Eretz Yisrael to build the Temple.

Nimrod (7 total matches, showing 5)

Eruvin 53a:7

They disagreed about this verse as well: “And it came to pass in the days of Amraphel” (Genesis 14:1). Rav and Shmuel both identified Amraphel with Nimrod. However, one said: Nimrod was his name. And why was his name called Amraphel? It is a contraction of two Hebrew words: As he said [amar] the command and cast [hippil] our father Abraham into the fiery furnace, when Abraham rebelled against and challenged his proclaimed divinity. And one said: Amraphel was his name. And why was his name called Nimrod? Because he caused the entire world to rebel [himrid] against God during his reign.

Pesachim 94b:1

the disciple in corruption of Nimrod the wicked, who caused the entire world to rebel against Me during his reign by advising the generation of the dispersion to build a tower in order to fight the Hosts of Heaven, how many are the years of a person altogether? Seventy years, and if he is with strength, eighty years, as it is stated: “The days of our years are seventy years and with strength eighty years” (Psalms 90:10).

Pesachim 118a:20

And some say that the angel Gabriel recited: “And the truth of YHWH endures forever.” This Talmud elaborates: When the evil Nimrod threw our father, Abraham, into the fiery furnace, Gabriel said before God: Master of the Universe, I will descend and cool the furnace, and I will thereby save the righteous Abraham from the fiery furnace. The Holy One, Blessed be He, said to him: I am unique in my world and Abraham is still unique in his world. It is fitting for the unique to save the unique. Therefore, God Himself went down and saved him. And as God, does not withhold reward from any creature who sought to perform a good deed, He said to Gabriel: You will merit the rescue of three of his descendants under similar circumstances.

Chagigah 13a:2

The Talmud comments: Until here, you have permission to speak; from this point forward you do not have permission to speak, as it is written in the book of Ben Sira: Seek not things concealed from you, nor search those hidden from you. Reflect on that which is permitted to you; you have no business with secret matters. It is taught in a baraita: Rabban Yoḥanan ben Zakkai said: What response did the Divine Voice provide to that wicked man, Nebuchadnezzar, when he said: “I will ascend above the heights of the clouds; I will be like the Most High” (Isaiah 14:14), thereby intending to rise to heaven? A Divine Voice came and said to him: Wicked man, son of a wicked man, descendant, i.e., follower of the ways, of Nimrod the wicked, who caused the entire world to rebel against Him during the time of his reign.

Avodah Zarah 3a:8

Instead, God, says to the nations: Let the witnesses come from among you and testify that the Jewish people fulfilled the Torah in its entirety. Let Nimrod come and testify about Abraham that he did not engage in idol worship. Let Laban come and testify about Jacob that he is not suspect with regard to robbery (see Genesis 31:36–42). Let the wife of Potiphar come and testify about Joseph that he is not suspect with regard to the sin of adultery (see Genesis 39:7–12).

Noah (98 total matches, showing 5)

Eruvin 18b:14

And all of it may be said not in his presence, as it is written: "These are the generations of Noah; Noah was a righteous man, and perfect in his generations, and Noah walked with God" (Genesis 6:9). When not referring to him in his presence, God refers to Noah as a righteous and perfect man.

Pesachim 22b:2

The Talmud further challenges R' Abbahu's opinion: And yet there is the prohibition against eating a limb cut from a living animal, as it is written: "Only be steadfast in not eating the blood; for the blood is the life; and you shall not eat the life with the flesh" (Deuteronomy 12:23). And it was taught in a baraita that R' Natan says: From where is it derived that a person may not offer a cup of wine to a nazirite, who is prohibited from drinking wine, and that he may not offer a limb cut from a living animal to a descendant of Noah, who is prohibited by Noahide law from eating a limb from a living animal? The verse states: "You shall not put a stumbling block before the blind" (Leviticus 19:14). Causing another person to sin is like placing a stumbling block before a blind person; one who does so violates this prohibition. The prohibition of giving a limb from a living animal to a gentile is apparently due only to the prohibition of placing a stumbling block. However, it is permitted for one to throw it to dogs. Therefore, despite the fact that the verse says: "You shall not eat it," apparently there is no prohibition against benefiting from this prohibited item. This challenges R' Abbahu's principle.

Rosh Hashanah 11b:6

And R' Eliezer and R' Yehoshua follow their lines of reasoning, as they disagreed about this same issue in another context as well. As it is taught in a baraita: "In the six hundredth year of Noah's life, in the second month, on the seventeenth day of the month, on that day were all the fountains of the great deep broken open, and the windows of heaven were opened" (Genesis 7:11). R' Yehoshua says: That day was the seventeenth of Iyyar, the second month of the year counting from Nisan, which is the day that the constellation of Kima sets during the day and the season that the springs diminish with the increased heat. But because the people of the generation of the flood changed their actions for the worse, God, changed for them the acts of Creation, and instead of Kima setting, He caused the constellation of Kima to rise during the day and He removed two stars from Kima, and in this way He brought a flood to the world.

Nedarim 31a:5

Nedarim 31a:6

GEMARA: The Talmud asks: And is a Jew excluded from the category of the descendants of Noah? They are also descendants of Noah. The Talmud answers: Since Abraham was sanctified and designated to possess a unique role in the world, all his descendants are called by his name and are no longer termed the descendants of Noah.

R' Yosei from Caesarea taught: What is the meaning of that which is written: "He is swift upon the face of the waters; their portion is cursed in the earth; he turns not by way of the vineyards" (Job 24:18)? This teaches that Noah the righteous would rebuke the people of his generation and say to them: Repent. And if you do not, God, will bring a flood upon you and float your corpses on the water like wineskins filled with air that float on water, as it is stated: "He is swift upon the face of the waters." Moreover, a curse is taken from them to all who enter the world, as people will curse others, saying: They shall be like the generation of the flood. As it is stated: "Their portion is cursed in the earth."

Rava taught: What is the meaning of that which is written: "A contemptible torch [lapid] in the thought of him that is at ease, a thing ready for them whose foot slips" (Job 12:5)? This teaches that Noah the righteous would rebuke the people of his generation, and he said to them statements that are harsh as torches [kelapidim], and they would treat him with contempt. They said to him: Old man, why are you building this ark? Noah said to them: The Holy One, Blessed be He, is bringing a flood upon you. They said to him: A flood of what? If it is a flood of fire, we have another item and it is called alita, and it is fireproof. And if it is a flood of water that He brings, if He brings the water from the earth, we have iron plates with which we can plate the earth to prevent the water from rising. And if He brings the water from the heavens, we have an item and it is called ekev, and some say it is called ikkesh, which will absorb the water.

Apropos these statements, the Talmud cites another statement that R' Elazar said: There was a righteous person who lived between two wicked people and did not learn from their actions; there was a wicked person who lived between two righteous people and did not learn from their actions. How so? A righteous person lived between two wicked people and did not learn from their actions is Obadiah, who was a minister for Ahab and Jezebel and nevertheless remained God-fearing (see I Kings, chapter 18). A wicked person who lived between two righteous people and did not learn from their actions is Esau, who was born and raised in the house of Isaac and Rebecca and nevertheless remained wicked.

Bava Batra 116a:13

The Talmud asks: And is it so that Joab did not leave a son behind; but isn't it written: "Of the sons of Joab: Obadiah, son of Jehiel" (Ezra 8:9)? Rather, concerning King David, who left a son as great as himself, sleeping was stated with regard to his demise, but concerning Joab, who did not leave a son as great as himself, death was stated with regard to his demise.

Sanhedrin 39b:10

§ Before continuing its discussion of Ahab, the Talmud records a mnemonic for the forthcoming statements: Called; and merited; of Edom. It is written: "And Ahab called Obadiah, who was over the household; now Obadiah feared YHWH greatly" (I Kings 18:3). The Talmud asks: What is the verse saying? What is the connection between Obadiah's fear of YHWH and the call of Ahab?

Sanhedrin 39b:11

R' Yitzḥak says that Ahab said to Obadiah: It is written with regard to Jacob: "And Laban said to him: If now I have found favor in your eyes, I have observed the signs, and YHWH has blessed me for your sake" (Genesis 30:27). It is written with regard to Joseph: "The Lord blessed the Egyptian's house for Joseph's sake" (Genesis 39:5). The house of that man, i.e., my house, was not blessed. Perhaps you do not fear God? Immediately, a Divine Voice emerged and said: "Now Obadiah feared YHWH greatly," but the house of Ahab is not fit for blessing like the houses of those masters.

Sanhedrin 39b:12

R' Abba says: The praise that is stated with regard to Obadiah is greater than that which is stated with regard to Abraham. As with regard to Abraham the verse states: "For now I know that you fear God" (Genesis 22:12), and the term "greatly" is not written, and about Obadiah the term "greatly" is written.

Og (13 total matches, showing 5)

Berakhot 54a:14

The Sages taught in a baraita a list of places where one is required to recite a blessing due to miracles that were performed there: One who sees the crossings of the Red Sea, where Israel crossed; and the crossings of the Jordan; and the crossings of the streams of Arnon; the hailstones of Elgavish on the descent of Beit Ḥoron; the rock that Og, King of Bashan, sought to hurl upon Israel; and the rock upon which Moses sat when Joshua waged war against Amalek; and Lot's wife; and the wall of Jericho that was swallowed up in its place. On all of these miracles one must give thanks and offer praise before God.

Berakhot 54b:4

With regard to the rock that Og, King of Bashan, sought to throw upon Israel, there is no biblical reference, but rather a tradition was transmitted. The Talmud relates that Og said: How large is the camp of Israel? It is three parasangs. I will go and uproot a mountain three parasangs long and I will hurl it upon them and kill them. He went, uprooted a mountain three parasangs long, and brought it on his head. The Talmud explains: As long as a person is alive [Ḥai], he is feared by the animals. Once he dies, he is no longer feared.

Eruvin 30a:3

The Talmud raises a difficulty with the aforementioned baraita: Did R' Shimon ben Elazar really say this? Wasn't it taught in another baraita pertaining to the laws of ritual impurity that R' Shimon ben Elazar says: Og, king of the Bashan, or any similar giant, requires an opening as big as his full size? If a person dies in a house and it is not clear how his corpse will be removed, all of the openings in the house are considered ritually impure, as the corpse might be carried out through any one of them. If the corpse can fit through some of the openings but not through others, only the larger openings are ritually impure. R' Shimon ben Elazar says that in the case of a giant the size of Og, king of the Bashan, one opening can only prevent the others from contracting impurity if it is large enough for Og's corpse to fit through. This indicates that the law is determined by the measure of each particular person and not by some general measure.

Eruvin 30a:5

A dilemma was raised before the Sages: Do the Rabbis disagree with R' Shimon ben Elazar, or not? Come and hear a proof from that which Rabba bar bar Ḥana said that R' Yoḥanan said: Og, king of the Bashan, requires an opening of four handbreadths in order to save the other openings in the house from becoming ritually impure. This indicates that the Rabbis disagree with R' Shimon ben Elazar.

Berakhot 61b:4

And Rava said: The world was created only for the sake of the full-fledged wicked or the full-fledged righteous; others do not live complete lives in either world. Rava said: One should know of himself whether or not he is completely righteous, as if he is not completely righteous, he knows that his life will be a life of suffering. Rav said: The world was created only for the wicked Ahab ben Omri and for R' Ḥanina ben Dosa. The Talmud explains: For Ahab ben Omri, this world was created, as he has no place in the World-to-Come, and for R' Ḥanina ben Dosa, the World-to-Come was created.

Megillah 3a:10

And with regard to that verse, Rav Yosef said: Were it not for the Aramaic translation of this verse, we would not have known what it is saying, as the Bible does not mention any incident involving Hadadrimmon in the valley of Megiddon. The Aramaic translation reads as follows: On that day, the mourning in Jerusalem will be as great as the mourning for Ahab, son of Omri, who was slain by Hadadrimmon, son of Tavrimon, in Ramoth-Gilead, and like the mourning for Josiah, son of Amon, who was slain by Pharaoh the lame in the valley of Megiddon. The translation clarifies that the verse is referring to two separate incidents of mourning, and thereby clarifies the meaning of this verse.

Moed Katan 28b:18

The Aramaic translation reads as follows: At that time the mourning in Jerusalem will be as great as the mourning over Ahab, son of Omri, who was slain by Hadadrimmon, son of Tabrimmon, and like the mourning over Josiah, son of Amon, who was slain by Pharaoh the lame in the valley of Megiddon.

Gittin 88a:16

§ The Talmud cites another derivation from this verse. R' Yehoshua ben Levi says: The first destruction of Eretz Yisrael did not occur until seven dynasties and their courts committed idol worship in it, and they are these: Jeroboam, son of Nevat; and Baasa, son of Ahijah; and Ahab, son of Omri; and Jehu, son of Nimshi; and Pekah, son of Remaliah; and Menahem, son of Gadi; and Hoshea, son of Elah, as it is stated: "She who has given birth to seven languishes; her spirit droops; her sun is gone down while it was yet day, she is ashamed and confounded" (Jeremiah 15:9).

Sanhedrin 39b:3

§ The mishna teaches: Therefore, since all humanity descends from one person, each and every person is obligated to say: The world was created for me. The mishna then teaches that the court says to the witnesses: And perhaps you will say: Why would we want to be responsible for the blood of this person? But be aware, as is it not already stated: "When the wicked perish, there is song" (Proverbs 11:10)? The Talmud teaches: A separate verse relates that after the evil king Ahab was killed: "And the song went throughout the camp" (I Kings 22:36). R' Aḥa bar Ḥanina says: The fact that the verse states "the song," and not a song, indicates that it is referring to a song mentioned elsewhere. Accordingly, the verse: "When the wicked perish, there is song," alludes to this episode: When Ahab ben Omri perished, there was song.

Yevamot 34b:1

But didn't Tamar become pregnant from the first act of intercourse, despite the fact that she was a virgin at the time of her sexual act with Judah? Rav Naḥman said: Tamar broke her hymen with her finger prior to intercourse, and it is due to this that she became pregnant from the first act of intercourse, as R' Yitzḥak said: All of those women from the household of Rabbi Yehuda HaNasi who break their hymens are named Tamar by nickname. And why are they named Tamar? They are called this on account of Tamar, who broke her hymen with her finger. The Talmud wonders about the proof from Tamar itself: But weren't there Er and Onan, her previous husbands, who presumably engaged in sexual intercourse with her? The Talmud responds: Er and Onan engaged in sexual intercourse in an atypical manner, i.e., anal intercourse, and therefore she was still a virgin.

Yevamot 34b:2

The Talmud raises an objection from a baraita: After a woman gives birth, her husband penetrates inside and spills his semen outside for the entire twenty-four months during which the baby is breastfeeding, so that his wife not become pregnant, as that would terminate her milk production and the child might die. This is the statement of R' Eliezer. They said to him: These acts are nothing other than acts similar to those of Er and Onan, which are prohibited. Regardless, it can be deduced from here that Er and Onan engaged in normative sexual intercourse with Tamar, only they did not fully complete the sexual act.

Yevamot 34b:3

The Talmud answers: The Tosefta actually means that what they did was similar to the act of Er and Onan in some ways, but not similar to the act of Er and Onan in other ways. The Talmud elaborates: It was similar to the act of Er and Onan in that there was a spilling of semen, as it is written: "And it came to pass when he had intercourse with his brother's wife, that he spilled it on the ground" (Genesis 38:9). Yet it was not similar to the act of Er and Onan, as there Er and Onan engaged in sexual intercourse in an atypical manner, i.e., anal intercourse, while here the Tosefta is referring to sexual intercourse in a typical manner.

Yevamot 34b:4

The Talmud continues to clarify what took place: Granted, Onan engaged in unnatural sexual intercourse with her, as it is written with regard to his act: "That he spilled it on the ground" (Genesis 38:9). However, from where do we derive that Er engaged in unnatural sexual intercourse with her? Rav Naḥman bar Yitzḥak said: As it is written with regard to Onan: "And He slew him also" (Genesis 38:10). This indicates that he, too, died the same death for performing the same transgression as his brother. The Talmud asks: Granted, Onan engaged in anal intercourse because he did not want Tamar to give birth as "he knew that the seed would not be his" (Genesis 38:9). However, with regard to Er, what is the reason he acted in this way? The Talmud responds: He did so in order that she not become pregnant and become less beautiful as a result of her pregnancy.

Sotah 13b:8

R' Shmuel bar Naḥmani says: The episode with regard to Judah also indicates that one who initiates performance of a mitzva but does not complete it will also bury his wife and children as Judah did, as it is written: "And in process of time Shua's daughter, the wife of Judah, died" (Genesis 38:12), and it is written further: "And the sons of Judah: Er, and Onan, and Shelah, and Perez, and Zerah; but Er and Onan died in the land of Canaan" (Genesis 46:12).

Orpah (5 total matches)

Shabbat 113b:8

It was taught in a baraita: He saw a matter of modesty in her when she was collecting stalks. She picked stalks that were upright while she was standing, and stalks that had fallen she picked while sitting; due to her modesty she did not bend over to take them. It also says: "And Boaz said to Ruth: Do you hear, my daughter? Do not go to glean in another field and do not leave from here, but cling to my maidens" (Ruth 2:8). This is also surprising. And was it Boaz's habit to cling to women? R' Elazar said: Since he saw "And Orpah kissed her mother-in-law and Ruth clung to her" (Ruth 1:14), he said: It is permitted to cling to a woman like this.

Sotah 42b:7

It is written that Goliath's mother was: "Harafa" (II Samuel 21:16), and in another place it is written: "Orpah" (Ruth 1:4), and the Talmud will soon explain that this was the same woman. Rav and Shmuel engaged in a dispute concerning this matter. One of them said: Her name was Harafa, and why is she called by the name Orpah? It is because everyone came at her from behind [orfin] her, i.e., sodomized her. And one of them said: Her name was Orpah, and why is she called by the name Harafa? It is because everyone threshed her like groats [harifot], i.e., engaged in sexual intercourse with her, and so it says that this word means groats: "And the woman took and spread the covering over the well's mouth, and strewed groats [harifot] thereon" (II Samuel 17:19). And if you wish, you can say from here: "Though you should crush a fool in a mortar with a pestle among groats [harifot], yet will not his foolishness depart from him" (Proverbs 27:22).

Sotah 42b:9

It says: "And they fell into the hands of David and his servants." Why? It is because of the acts of their forebears, as it is written: "And Orpah kissed her mother-in-law, and Ruth cleaved to her" (Ruth 1:14). R' Yitzḥak says: The Holy One, Blessed be He, said: The children of the one who kissed, referring to the four giants descended from Orpah, will come and fall into the hand of the children of the one who cleaved, referring to David, who was descended from Ruth. Rava taught: As a reward for the four tears that Orpah shed in sadness over her mother-in-law, she merited four mighty warriors descended from her, as it is stated: "And they lifted up their voice and wept again" (Ruth 1:14).

Sanhedrin 95a:10

He mounted the king's mule and arose and went to the land of the Philistines. The land miraculously contracted for him and he arrived quickly. As he was progressing he saw Orpah, Ishbibenob's mother, who was spinning thread with a spindle. When she saw him, she removed her spindle and threw it at him, intending to kill him. After failing to do so, she said to Abishai: Young man, bring me my spindle. He threw the spindle and struck her at the top of her brain and killed her.

Sanhedrin 95a:15

Ishbibenob pursued them, intending to kill them. When they reached the place named Kuvi they said: The name of the place is an abbreviation for the phrase meaning: Stand and battle against him [kum beih]. When they reached a place called Bei Terei, David and Abishai said: With two [bitrei] cubs they killed the lion, meaning they expected to be successful. They said to Ishbibenob: Go find Orpah, your mother, in the grave. When they mentioned his mother's name to him and told him she died, his strength diminished, and they killed him. The Talmud notes: It is after this that it is written: "Then David's men took an oath to him saying: You shall not go with us to war anymore and you will not douse the lamp of Israel" (II Samuel 21:17).

Othniel (3 total matches)

Sotah 11b:24

The Talmud asks: But it is still difficult. Hezron could not be his father, as Caleb was the son of Kenaz, as it is written: "And Othniel, the son of Kenaz, Caleb's younger brother, took it" (Judges 1:13). This would mean that Caleb was also a son of Kenaz. Rava said: Caleb was the stepson of Kenaz, as he and Othniel shared a mother but had different fathers.

Temurah 16a:9

R' Abbahu says: Even so, Othniel, son of Kenaz, restored them through his sharp mind [pilpulo], as it is stated: "And Caleb said: To he who smites Kiriath Sefer, and takes it, to him will I give Achsah my daughter as a wife. And Othniel, son of Kenaz, the brother of Caleb, took it; and he gave him Achsah his daughter as a wife" (Joshua 15:16–17).The name "Kiriath Sefer," which literally means the village of the book, is homiletically interpreted as a reference to those parts of the Torah that were forgotten, while the phrase "took it" is referring to Othniel's acumen and learning. The baraita adds: And why is she called Achsah? The reason is that anyone who sees her became angry [ko'es] about his own wife, who was not as beautiful as Achsah.

Temurah 16a:14

A tanna taught in a baraita: The same person is known as Othniel and he is also known as Jabez. And what is his actual name? Judah, brother of Simeon, is his name. He was known as Othniel, as God answered [ana'o El] his prayer. He was also known as Jabez [yabetz] because he advised and spread [ya'atz veribetz] Torah among the Jewish people.

our Patriarch Abraham (6 total matches, showing 5)

Yevamot 71b:14

Rabba bar Yitzḥak said that Rav said: The mitzva of uncovering the corona during circumcision was not given to our Patriarch Abraham. The command given to Avraham included only the mitzva of circumcision itself, i.e., the removal of the foreskin, but not the uncovering of the corona, i.e., the folding back of the thin membrane that lies under the foreskin. As it is stated: "At that time YHWH said to Joshua: Make yourself knives of flint, and circumcise again the children of Israel a second time" (Joshua 5:2). Why was it necessary to circumcise them? Apparently, it is because before the Torah was given on Mount Sinai, some of them had been circumcised in the manner of Abraham, without uncovering the corona, and therefore they needed to be circumcised a second time in accordance with the Torah law that requires uncovering the corona.

Sotah 17a:17

Additionally, Rava says: For what reason did the Torah say: Bring dust for the sota? It is because if she merits to be proven faithful after drinking the water of the sota, a child like our Patriarch Abraham will emerge from her, as it is written with regard to Abraham that he said: "I am but dust and ashes" (Genesis 18:27). But if she does not merit to be proven faithful after drinking the water of the sota, she shall die and return to her dust, the soil from which mankind was formed.

Sotah 17a:18

And Rava further taught: As reward for that which our Patriarch Abraham said: "And I am but dust and ashes" (Genesis 18:27), his children merited two mitzvot: The ashes of the red heifer (see Numbers, chapter 19) and the dust of the sota.

Sotah 17a:21

Rava further taught: As reward for that which our Patriarch Abraham said to the king of Sodom: "That I will not take a thread nor a shoe strap nor anything that is yours" (Genesis 14:23), distancing himself from anything not rightfully his, his children merited two mitzvot: The thread of sky-blue wool worn on ritual fringes and the strap of phylacteries.

Chullin 88b:10

§ The Talmud cites aggadic accounts relating to the mitzva of covering the blood: Rava says: As reward for that which our Patriarch Abraham said: "And I am but dust [afar] and ashes" (Genesis 18:27), his children merited two mitzvot: The ashes of the red heifer (see Numbers, chapter 19) and the dust of the sota, i.e., dirt taken from the ground of the Tabernacle that is mixed into the water that examines whether or not a woman committed adultery (see Numbers 5:17).

Palti (7 total matches, showing 5)

Sanhedrin 19b:11

The Tosefta continues. It is written: "But the king took the two sons of Rizpah, daughter of Aiah, whom she bore unto Saul, Armoni and Mephibosheth, and the five sons of Michal, daughter of Saul, whom she bore to Adriel, son of Barzillai the Meholathite" (II Samuel 21:8). But did Saul give Michal to Adriel? But didn't he give her to Palti, son of Laish, as it is written: "Now Saul had given Michal his daughter, David's wife, to Palti, son of Laish" (I Samuel 25:44)?

Sanhedrin 19b:12

The Tosefta continues: The first verse does not mean, then, that Michal married Adriel. Rather, the verse compares Merab's betrothal to Adriel to Michal's betrothal to Palti: Just as Michal's betrothal to Palti was effected in transgression, according to all opinions, since she was already married to David, so, too, Merab's betrothal to Adriel was effected in transgression, since according to halakha she was betrothed to David.

Sanhedrin 19b:19

The Talmud cites a tradition with regard to Palti, son of Laish: It is written in one place "Palti" (I Samuel 25:44), and it is written in another place "Paltiel" (II Samuel 3:15). R' Yoḥanan says: Palti was his real name, and why was his name called Paltiel? To teach that God [El] saved [pelato] him from the sin, by giving him the insight that he may not touch Michal, understanding that she was still David's wife and therefore forbidden to him. What did he do? He embedded a sword in the bed between him and her, and said: Anyone who engages in this matter, i.e., sexual intercourse, should be stabbed by this sword.

Sanhedrin 19b:21

R' Yoḥanan says: Joseph's power is the humility of Boaz, as Joseph is praised for showing strength with regard to an accomplishment that was insignificant for Boaz (see Genesis, chapter 39). Likewise, Boaz's power is the humility of Palti, son of Laish, as Palti's capacity for restraint was greater still. Joseph's power is the humility of Boaz, as it is written about Boaz: "And it came to pass at midnight that the man was startled and turned himself, and behold, a woman lay at his feet" (Ruth 3:8). What is the meaning of "and turned himself [vayyilafet]"? Rav says: The meaning is that his flesh became like the heads of turnips [lefatot], his sexual organ hardening out of arousal, but even though Ruth was not married he refrained from engaging in intercourse with her; while Joseph had to exert more effort, despite the fact that Potiphar's wife was married.

Sanhedrin 20a:1

Boaz's power is the humility of Palti, son of Laish, as we said, for he conquered his desire not only for one night, as Boaz did, but for many nights

Taanit 26a:11

The mishna details the times for the wood offering of priests and the people. These were private holidays specific to certain families, on which their members would volunteer a wood offering for the altar. There were nine such days and families: On the first of Nisan, the descendants of Ara? ben Yehuda; on the twentieth of Tammuz, the descendants of David ben Yehuda; on the fifth of Av, the descendants of Parosh ben Yehuda; on the seventh of Av, the descendants of Jonadab ben Rechab; on the tenth of Av, the descendants of Sena'a ben Binyamin; on the fifteenth of Av, the descendants of Zattu ben Yehuda.

Taanit 26a:13

The mishna resumes its list. On the twentieth of Av, the descendants of Paḥat Moav ben Yehuda; on the twentieth of Elul, the descendants of Adin ben Yehuda; on the first of Tevet, the descendants of Parosh returned to bring wood for a second time; likewise on the first of Tevet, there was no non-priestly watch, as it is Hanukkah, on which hallel is recited, and it is the New Moon, on which an additional offering is sacrificed, and there was also a wood offering.

Taanit 28a:15

The mishna taught: On the first of Tevet, the descendants of Parosh returned to bring wood for a second time. The Talmud asks: Who is the author of this opinion of the mishna? It is not the opinion of R' Meir, nor that of R' Yehuda, nor that of R' Yosei. The Talmud elaborates: If it represents the opinion of R' Meir, let him teach, with regard to the twentieth of Av, that the descendants of David ben Yehuda returned for a second time. According to R' Meir, the descendants of Pahath Moab are the descendants of David, and consequently they would return for a second time on that date.

Kiddushin 70b:11

Rav Yehuda says that Shmuel says: Four hundred slaves, and some say four thousand slaves, were owned by Pashḥur ben Immer, a priest in the time of Jeremiah, and due to their greatness they were assimilated into the priesthood and became known as priests. And any priest who has the trait of insolence is only from them. Abaye said: They all sit in the rows of honor that are in the city of Neharde'a. The Talmud comments: And this statement disagrees with the statement of R' Elazar, as R' Elazar says: If you see an insolent priest, do not speculate about him that he may be of flawed lineage, since it is stated: "For your people are as those who strive with a priest" (Hosea 4:4), which indicates that priests had a reputation for being cantankerous.

Arakhin 12b:11

But isn't it taught in a baraita that the watch of Jehoiarib did not exist during the Second Temple era? As it is taught: Only four priestly watches ascended from the Babylonian exile, while the other twenty stayed in Babylonia. And these are the watches who returned: The descendants of Jedaiah, Harim, Pashḥur, and Immer. The prophets among those who returned arose and divided these four families into twenty-four watches. They achieved this as follows: They wrote the names of these new twenty-four watches on pieces of paper, mixed them up, and put them in a receptacle [kalpi] from which lots were drawn. A representative from the family of Jedaiah came and drew his portion and the lot of five other watches, for a total of six.

Arakhin 13a:1

Harim came and also drew his portion and the lot of five other watches, for a total of six. And likewise Pashḥur, and likewise Immer. The prophets among them stipulated that even if the descendants of Jehoiarib, who originally headed the priestly watches, would ascend to Eretz Yisrael, Jedaiah would not be demoted from its place as the first of the watches. Rather, the watch of Jedaiah would retain precedence, and Jehoiarib would be subordinate to it. The Talmud concludes: Rather, when the baraita equates the details pertaining to the destruction of the two Temples, it is referring to other details, i.e., that both were destroyed on the Ninth of Av and on a Sunday, but it is not equating them with regard to all the details.

Since no disaster would have occurred, they would say: Moses is a liar. Moses spoke in accordance with the principle articulated by the Master: Accustom your tongue to say: I do not know, lest you become entangled in a web of deceit.

Berakhot 8a:22

And R' Ḥiyya bar Ami said in the name of Ulla: One should always live in the place where his teacher lives; thereby he will avoid sin. For as long as Shimi ben Gera, who according to tradition was a great Torah scholar and teacher of Solomon (see Gittin 59a), was alive, Solomon did not marry Pharaoh's daughter. Immediately after the Bible relates the death of Shimi (I Kings, end of ch. 2), Solomon's marriage to Pharaoh's daughter is recorded (beginning of ch. 3).

Berakhot 55b:2

From the same source, R' Levi said: One should always anticipate fulfillment of a good dream up to twenty-two years after the dream. From where do we derive this? From Joseph, as it is written in the story of Joseph's dream: "These are the generations of Jacob. Joseph, being seventeen years old, was feeding the flock with his brethren" (Genesis 37:2); and it is written: "And Joseph was thirty years old when he stood before Pharaoh King of Egypt" (Genesis 41:46). From seventeen to thirty how many years are they? Megillah 3a:10

And with regard to that verse, Rav Yosef said: Were it not for the Aramaic translation of this verse, we would not have known what it is saying, as the Bible does not mention any incident involving Hadadrimmon in the valley of Megiddon. The Aramaic translation reads as follows: On that day, the mourning in Jerusalem will be as great as the mourning for Ahab, son of Omri, who was slain by Hadadrimmon, son of Tavrimon, in Ramoth-Gilead, and like the mourning for Josiah, son of Amon, who was slain by Pharaoh the lame in the valley of Megiddon. The translation clarifies that the verse is referring to two separate incidents of mourning, and thereby clarifies the meaning of this verse.

Moed Katan 28b:18

The Aramaic translation reads as follows: At that time the mourning in Jerusalem will be as great as the mourning over Ahab, son of Omri, who was slain by Hadadrimmon, son of Tabrimmon, and like the mourning over Josiah, son of Amon, who was slain by Pharaoh the lame in the valley of Megiddon.

Sotah 12a:12

Miriam continued: Additionally, concerning Pharaoh the wicked, it is uncertain whether his decree will be fulfilled, and it is uncertain if his decree will not be fulfilled. You are a righteous person, and as such, your decrees will certainly be fulfilled, as it is stated with regard to the righteous: "You shall also decree a thing, and it shall be established unto you" (Job 22:28). Amram accepted his daughter's words and arose and brought back, i.e., remarried, his wife, and all others who saw this followed his example and arose and brought back their wives.

Berakhot 12b:10

However this proof is rejected: Perhaps a community is different, as a community is forgiven more easily than an individual. Rather, proof that an individual ashamed of his actions is forgiven for his transgressions is cited from here, when King Saul consulted Samuel by means of a necromancer before his final war with the Philistines: "And Samuel said to Saul, why have you angered me to bring me up? And Saul said, I am very pained, and the Philistines are waging war against me, and God has removed Himself from me and answers me no more, neither by the hands of the prophets nor by dreams. And I call to you to tell me what to do" (I Samuel 28:15). Saul says that he consulted prophets and dreams, but he did not say that he consulted the Urim VeTummim.

Eruvin 45a:16

R' Dostai of the town of Biri expounded: What is the meaning of that which is written: "And they told David, saying: Behold, the Philistines are fighting against Ke'ila, and they rob the threshing floors" (i Samuel 23:1), after which David asked God how he should respond.

Eruvin 45a:17

It was taught in a baraita: Ke'ila was a town located near the border, and the Philistines came only with regard to matters of hay and straw, as it is written: "And they rob the threshing floors." And in the next verse it is written: "Therefore David inquired of YHWH, saying: Shall I go and smite these Philistines? And YHWH said to David: Go and smite the Philistines, and save Ke'ila" (i Samuel 23:2), which indicates that war may be waged in a border town on Shabbat, even with regard to monetary matters.

Eruvin 45a:19

Rather, he asked: Will he succeed or will he not succeed in his war? The Talmud comments: This is also precise in the language of the verse, as it is written in the response to David's query: "Go and smite the Philistines, and save Ke'ila." Learn from this, from the assurance that God gave David of his victory, that this was the subject of his inquiry.

Yoma 52b:11

The Talmud elaborates: But wasn't it taught in a baraita that when the Ark was buried, along with it was buried the jar of manna that was next to it, and the flask of oil used for anointing, and Aaron's staff with its almonds and blossoms, and the chest that the Philistines sent as a gift [doron] to the God of Israel after they captured the Ark and were stricken by several plagues, as it is stated: "And put the jewels of gold that you return to Him for a guilt-offering, in a coffer by its side, and send it away that it may go" (I Samuel 6:8)?

Berakhot 6b:8

The Talmud asks: From where do we derive that Abraham our father set a fixed place for his prayer? The Talmud answers: As it is written: "And Abraham rose in the morning to the place where he had stood before God" (Genesis 19:27), and the verb "standing" means nothing other than prayer, as it is stated: "And Pinehas stood and prayed" (Psalms 106:30).

Berakhot 26b:5

The Talmud comments: It was taught in a baraita in accordance with the opinion of R' Yosei, son of R' Ḥanina, and it was taught in a baraita in accordance with the opinion of R' Yehoshua ben Levi. The Talmud elaborates: It was taught in a baraita in accordance with the opinion of R' Yosei, son of R' Ḥanina: Abraham instituted the morning prayer, as it is stated when Abraham came to look out over Sodom the day after he had prayed on its behalf: "And Abraham rose early in the morning to the place where he had stood before YHWH" (Genesis 19:27), and from the context as well as the language utilized in the verse, the verb standing means nothing other than prayer, as this language is used to describe Pinehas' prayer after the plague, as it is stated: "And Pinehas stood up and prayed and the plague ended" (Psalms 106:30). Clearly, Abraham was accustomed to stand in prayer in the morning.

Berakhot 56b:20

One who sees Pinehas in a dream, it is an omen that a miracle will be performed on his behalf, just as miracles were performed for Pinehas. One who sees an elephant [pil] in a dream it is an omen that miracles [pelaot] will be performed for him. One who sees multiple elephants in a dream, miracles upon miracles will be performed for him.

Shabbat 55b:12

R' Shmuel bar Naḥmani said that R' Yonatan said: Anyone who says that the sons of Eli sinned is nothing other than mistaken, as it is written: "And the two sons of Eli, Hophni and Pinehas, were there priests of YHWH" (I Samuel 1:3).

Shabbat 55b:13

The Talmud explains: R' Yonatan holds in accordance with the opinion of Rav, as Rav said: Pinehas did not sin. And the verse juxtaposes Hophni to Pinehas; just as Pinehas did not sin, so too Hophni did not sin. The Talmud asks: How, then, do I establish the meaning of the verse: "Now Eli was very old, and heard all that his sons did to all Israel; and how they lay with the women that assembled at the door of the Tent of Meeting" (I Samuel 2:22), which indicates otherwise? The Talmud answers: Since the sons of Eli delayed sacrificing the bird-offerings of women who had given birth, a pair of doves brought as part of the purification process, and this delay caused the women not to go to their husbands in timely fashion, the verse ascribes to Hophni and Pinehas liability as if they had lain with them. They were guilty of nothing more than negligence and carelessness.

Potiphar (4 total matches)

Berakhot 63a:16

It was taught in a baraita that Rabbi Yehuda HaNasi says: Do not appoint an administrator [apitropos] within your house, as had Potiphar not appointed Joseph as administrator within his house, Joseph would not have come to that incident involving him in allegations of sexual impropriety.

Yoma 35b:11

And if a wicked man comes to judgment, the members of the court say to him: Why did you not engage in Torah? If he said: I was handsome and preoccupied with my evil inclination, as I had many temptations, they say to him: Were you any more handsome than Joseph, who did not neglect Torah despite his beauty? They said about Joseph the righteous: Each and every day, the wife of Potiphar seduced him with words. In addition, the clothes that she wore to entice him in the morning, she did not wear to entice him in the evening. The clothes that she wore to entice him in the evening, she did not wear to entice him in the morning of the next day.

Sotah 13b:12

The continuation of that verse states: "And Potiphar, an officer [seris] of Pharaoh's, the captain of the guard, an Egyptian, bought him from the hand of the Ishmaelites, who had brought him down there" (Genesis 39:1). Rav says: He purchased the handsome Joseph for himself, for the intended purpose of homosexual intercourse, but was unable to fulfill his desires, as the angel Gabriel came and castrated Potiphar [seireso]. Then Gabriel came again and further mutilated him [fero] in the same part of his body. This is alluded to in the verses that write Potiphar's name differently: Initially, it is written "Potiphar" (Genesis 39:1) and in the end it is written "Potiphera" (Genesis 41:45). The change in his name indicates that a part of himself was mutilated.

Avodah Zarah 3a:8

Instead, God, says to the nations: Let the witnesses come from among you and testify that the Jewish people fulfilled the Torah in its entirety. Let Nimrod come and testify about Abraham that he did not engage in idol worship. Let Laban come and testify about Jacob that he is not suspect with regard to robbery (see Genesis 31:36–42). Let the wife of Potiphar come and testify about Joseph that he is not suspect with regard to the sin of adultery (see Genesis 39:7–12).

Puah (1 total match)

Sotah 11b:13

The baraita continues: With regard to Puah, who is referred to in the verse, this is really a reference to Miriam. And why was she called Puah? Because she would make a comforting sound [po'a] as she would remove the child from the womb of the mother. Alternatively, the word Puah is related to one of the verbs that describe speaking, as she would speak [po'a] through divine inspiration and say: In the future, my mother will give birth to a son who will save the Jewish people.

Rabshakeh (3 total matches)

Sanhedrin 60a:13

The mishna teaches that upon hearing the curse the judges each make a tear in their garments. The Talmud asks: From where do we derive this? The Talmud answers that it is derived from that which is written: "Then came Eliakim, son of Hilkiah, who was over the household, and Shebna the scribe, and Joah, son of Asaph, the recorder, to Hezekiah with torn garments, and they told him Rabshakeh's statement" (II Kings 18:37). Apparently, since they heard the blasphemous statement of Rabshakeh they were obligated to make a tear in their garments.

Sanhedrin 60a:17

The Talmud asks: And if they made a tear when they heard the curse, what of it? Aren't they also hearing the curse now? The Talmud answers: It should not enter your mind that they are obligated to make a tear a second time, as it is written: "And it came to pass, when King Hezekiah heard the statement of Rabshakeh, that he tore his clothes" (II Kings 19:1). It can be inferred that King Hezekiah tore his clothes, but those who reported the blasphemy did not tear their clothes a second time.

Sanhedrin 60a:18

§ Rav Yehuda says that Shmuel says: One who hears a mention of God's name in a blasphemous manner from a gentile is not obligated to make a tear in his garments. And if you object and say that those who heard the blasphemy of Rabshakeh made a tear even though he was a gentile, that is not correct, as Rabshakeh was an apostate Jew.

Berakhot 8b:14

Rav Adda bar Ahava said: From what verse is this derived? From the verse, "And Jacob sent and he called Rachel and Leah to the field to his flock" (Genesis 31:4); it was only there in the field that he held counsel with them.

Berakhot 16b:14

The Talmud asks: What is the reason for this exclusivity with regard to the Patriarchs? If you say that it is because we do not know whether we descend from Reuben or from Simon, so we cannot accurately say our father Reuben, for example, if so, with regard to the Matriarchs as well, we do not know whether we descend from Rachel or from Leah, and we should not call Rachel and Leah matriarchs either. Instead, the reason the sons of Jacob are not called patriarchs is not for that reason, but because until Jacob they are significant enough to be referred to as patriarchs, but beyond Jacob, they are not significant enough to be referred to as patriarchs.

Berakhot 29a:11

The Talmud asks further: Corresponding to what were these nine blessings of the Rosh HaShana additional prayer instituted? R' Yitzḥak of Kartignin said: They correspond to the nine mentions of God's name that Hannah said in her prayer (I Samuel 2:10). The connection between Hannah's prayer and Rosh HaShana is based on what the Master said: On Rosh HaShana, Sarah, Rachel, and Hannah were remembered and the divine decree that they would conceive their sons was issued.

Eruvin 13a:19

Rav Pappa said: Perhaps that is not the case, as the two circumstances are not comparable. The first *tanna of the baraita stated his opinion that one woman's scroll may not be used for another woman only there; since it had originally been designated in the name of one woman, e.g., Rachel, it cannot then be designated in the name of another woman, e.g., Leah. However, in the case of a Torah scroll, which is written with no particular person in mind, he too may say that we may erase it to be used for another woman, and it is not disqualified because it was not written in her name.

Rosh Hashanah 10b:10

It is taught in a baraita that the tanna'im disagreed about this point: R' Eliezer says: In Tishrei the world was created; in Tishrei the Patriarchs were born; in Tishrei the Patriarchs died; on Passover Isaac was born; on Rosh HaShana Sarah, Rachel, and Hannah were remembered by God and conceived; on Rosh HaShana Joseph came out from prison;

Taanit 5b:10

R' Yitzḥak said: Anyone who says: Rahab Rahab, immediately experiences a seminal emission, due to the arousal of desire caused by Rahab's great beauty. Rav Naḥman said to him: I say Rahab and it does not affect me. R' Yitzḥak said to Rav Naḥman: When I said this I was specifically referring to a man who knew her and to one who recognized her. With regard to anyone who had met Rahab in person, the mere mention of her name would arouse his lust.

Megillah 14b:12

Rav Eina the Elder raised an objection from a baraita to Rav Naḥman's teaching. The baraita indicates that Huldah was in fact a descendant of Rahab, and seemingly not of Joshua: Eight prophets, who were also priests, descended from Rahab the prostitute, and they are: Neriah; his son Baruch; Seraiah; Mahseiah; Jeremiah; his father, Hilkiah; Jeremiah's cousin Hanamel; and Hanamel's father, Shallum. R' Yehuda said: So too, Huldah the prophetess was a descendant of Rahab the prostitute, as it is written here with regard to Huldah: "The son of Tikvah," and it is written elsewhere in reference to Rahab's escape from the destruction of Jericho: "This cord of [tikvat] scarlet thread" (Joshua 2:18).

Megillah 15a:7

To complete the discussion about the prophetesses, the Talmud cites a baraita in which the Sages taught: There were four women of extraordinary beauty in the world: Sarah, and Abigail, Rahab, and Esther. And according to the one who said that Esther was greenish in color, lacking natural beauty, only that a cord of divine grace was strung around her, remove Esther from the list and insert Vashti in her place, for she was indeed beautiful.

Megillah 15a:8

The Sages taught in a baraita: Rahab aroused impure thoughts by her name, i.e., the mere mention of her name would inspire lust for her; Yael, by her voice; Abigail, by remembering her; Michal, the daughter of Saul, by her appearance. Similarly, R' Yitzḥak said: Anyone who says Rahab, Rahab, immediately experiences a seminal emission due to the arousal of desire caused by Rahab's great beauty. Rav Naḥman said to him: I say: Rahab, Rahab, and it does not affect me. R' Yitzchak said to Rav Naḥman: When I said this, I was specifically referring to one who knows her personally and recognizes her beauty. Only for one who has met Rahab in person is the mere mention of her name capable of arousing lust.

Sotah 34a:4

And even Rahab the prostitute said to Joshua's messengers: "For we have heard how YHWH dried up the water of the Red Sea before you" (Joshua 2:10). And it is written: "And as soon as we had heard it, our hearts melted, neither did there remain any more spirit in any man, because of you" (Joshua 2:11). Evidently, the Canaanites were still terrified due to the splitting of the Red Sea, although that had taken place years earlier and in a distant location. It is understood from here how terrified they became when a similar miracle occurred close to where they lived.

Zevachim 116a:26

The Talmud offers another explanation of what Yitro heard: R' Eliezer says: He heard about the splitting of the Red Sea and came, as it is stated in a similar context with regard to the splitting of the Jordan in the days of Joshua: "And it came to pass, when all the kings of the Amorites, that were beyond the Jordan westward, and all the kings of the Canaanites, that were by the sea, heard how that YHWH had dried up the waters of the Jordan from before the children of Israel, until they were passed over, that their heart melted, neither was there spirit in them anymore, because of the children of Israel" (Joshua 5:1). And even Rahab the prostitute said to Joshua's messengers: "For we have heard how YHWH dried up the water of the Red Sea before you" (Joshua 2:10).

Zevachim 116b:1

The Talmud replies that Rahab used this phrase euphemistically, to say that their fear was so great that their male organs were not even able to become erect, as "kama" also means rise. The Talmud asks: And how did Rahab know this? The Talmud replies: As the Master said: You do not have any prince or ruler at that time who did not engage in intercourse with Rahab the prostitute.

Rav Ashi said: And according to what Rav Naḥman said, that Manoah was an ignoramus, he did not even read the basic Torah stories that children learn in school. As it is written: "Rebecca arose, and her damsels, and they rode upon the camels, and followed the man" (Genesis 24:61); they followed him and did not walk before the man.

Eruvin 53a:6

Rather, it is called Machpelah in the sense that it is doubled with the Patriarchs and Matriarchs, who are buried there in pairs. This is similar to the homiletic interpretation of the alternative name for Hebron mentioned in the Torah: "Mamre of Kiryat Ha'Arba, which is Hebron" (Genesis 35:27). R' Yitzḥak said: The city is called Kiryat Ha'Arba, the city of four, because it is the city of the four couples buried there: Adam and Eve, Abraham and Sarah, Isaac and Rebecca, and Jacob and Leah.

Pesachim 3a:14

With regard to the above baraita taught in the school of R' Yishmael, the Talmud asks: And with regard to a woman, is the term riding not written in the Torah? But isn't it written: "And Rebecca and her damsels arose and they rode upon camels" (Genesis 24:61)? The Talmud answers: There, due to fear of camels, that is standard conduct. Since a camel's back is high off the ground, a woman cannot sit on it sidesaddle; consequently, she may ride on it without being considered immodest. The Talmud cites another relevant verse. But isn't it written: "And Moses took his wife and his children and rode them upon his donkey" (Exodus 4:20)? The Talmud answers: There, despite the fact that his wife was also on the donkey, the verse employs the language of riding

Taanit 4a:5

The Talmud clarifies each of these cases in turn: With regard to Eliezer, servant of Abraham, he made a request when he prayed beside the well, as it is written: "That the maiden to whom I shall say: Please let down your pitcher that I may drink; and she shall say: Drink, and I will also give your camels to drink; that she be the one whom you have appointed for your servant Isaac" (Genesis 24:14). Eliezer entreated God unreasonably, as his request allowed for the possibility that she might even be lame or even blind, and yet he had promised to take her to Isaac. Nevertheless, God responded to him reasonably and the eminently suitable Rebecca happened to come to him.

To the matter at hand: Rav Yehuda said that Rav said: When David said to Mephibosheth: You and Ziba shall divide the estate, a Divine Voice emerged and said to him: Rehoboam and Jeroboam shall divide the kingdom.

Pesachim 87b:22

And this is expressed in the statement of R' Alexandri, who said: There are three that returned to their points of origin, and these are they: The Jewish people, the money of Egypt, and the writing on the Tablets of the Covenant. The Jewish people; that which we just said, they returned to Babylonia. The money of Egypt; as it is written: "And it came to pass in the fifth year of King Rehoboam, that Shishak, king of Egypt, came up against Jerusalem; and he took away the treasures of the house of YHWH and the treasures of the king's house; he took everything" (I Kings 14:25–26). The writing on the Tablets of the Covenant; as it is written: "And I took hold of the two tablets, and cast them out of my two hands, and broke them before your eyes" (Deuteronomy 9:17). And it was taught in the Tosefta: The tablets were broken and the letters are flying and returning to their point of origin.

Pesachim 119a:8

And this treasure remained in Eretz Yisrael until the time of Rehoboam, at which point Shishak, king of Egypt, came and took it from Rehoboam, as it is stated: "And it came to pass in the fifth year of king Rehoboam, that Shishak king of Egypt came up against Jerusalem. And he took the treasures of the house of YHWH, and the treasures of the king's house; and he took away all" (I Kings 14:25–26). Zerah, king of Kush, who ruled over Egypt, later came and took it from Shishak.

Yoma 22b:16

The Talmud continues: And even according to Rav, who said that David accepted a slanderous report, one could answer that that sin is not counted, as was he not punished for it? As Rav Yehuda said that Rav said: At the time when David said to Mephibosheth: "I say that you and Ziba should divide the field" (II Samuel 19:30), a Divine Voice came forth and said to him: Rehoboam and Jeroboam will divide the kingship. Because David believed Ziba's slanderous report and awarded him half of Mephibosheth's field, David was punished by having his kingdom divided into two. Following King Solomon's death the Jewish people split into two kingdoms, Israel to the north and Judea to the south (see I Kings 12). Therefore, David was punished for that sin too.

Megillah 31b:12

It is taught in a baraita: R' Shimon ben Elazar says: If old men say to you: Demolish, and children say to you: Build, then demolish and do not build, because the demolishing of old men is ultimately as constructive as building, despite the fact that it appears destructive, and the building of children is as destructive as demolishing. An indication of this matter is Rehoboam, son of Solomon. He ignored the advice of the Elders and did not lower himself before his people, which ultimately led to the people rebelling against him.

Reuben (44 total matches, showing 5)

Berakhot 7b:6

Tangential to the mention of Leah's son, Judah, and the reason for his name, the Talmud explains the sources for other names, including Reuben. R' Elazar said: Reuben's name should be considered a prophecy by Leah, as Leah said: See [re'u] the difference between my son [beni] and the son of my father-in-law, Esau, son of Isaac. Even though Esau knowingly sold his birthright to his brother Jacob, as it is written: "And he sold his birthright to Jacob" (Genesis 25:33), nonetheless, behold what is written about him: "And Esau hated Jacob" (Genesis 27:41).

Berakhot 7b:8

While my son, Reuben, even though Joseph took his birthright from him by force, as it is written: "And the sons of Reuben the firstborn of Israel, for he was the firstborn; but, since he defiled his father's bed, his birthright was given to the sons of Joseph, son of Israel" (I Chronicles 5:1). Nevertheless, he was not jealous of him, as it is written when Joseph's brothers sought to kill him: "And Reuben heard and he saved him from their hands, saying 'Let us not take his life'" (Genesis 37:21).

Berakhot 16b:14

The Talmud asks: What is the reason for this exclusivity with regard to the Patriarchs? If you say that it is because we do not know whether we descend from Reuben or from Simon, so we cannot accurately say our father Reuben, for example, if so, with regard to the Matriarchs as well, we do not know whether we descend from Rachel or from Leah, and we should not call Rachel and Leah matriarchs either. Instead, the reason the sons of Jacob are not called patriarchs is not for that reason, but because until Jacob they are significant enough to be referred to as patriarchs, but beyond Jacob, they are not significant enough to be referred to as patriarchs.

Shabbat 55b:6

Having mentioned the sins of some of the significant ancestors of the Jewish people, the Talmud now addresses several additional ancestors. R' Shmuel bar Naḥmani said that R' Yonatan said: Anyone who says that Reuben sinned with Bilhah is nothing other than mistaken, as it is stated: "And it came to pass, when Israel dwelt in that land, that Reuben went and lay with Bilhah his father's concubine; and Israel heard of it. Now the sons of Jacob were twelve" (Genesis 35:22). The fact that the Torah stated the number of Jacob's sons at that point in the narrative teaches that, even after the incident involving Bilhah, all of the brothers were equal in righteousness. Apparently, Reuben did not sin. How then do I establish the meaning of the verse: "And he lay with Bilhah his father's concubine"? The plain understanding of the verse indicates sin. This verse teaches that Reuben rearranged his father's bed in protest of Jacob's placement of his bed in the tent of Bilhah and not in the tent of his mother Leah after the death of Rachel. And the verse ascribes to him liability for his action as if he had actually lain with Bilhah.

Shabbat 55b:11

The Talmud prefaces the following statements of R' Shmuel bar Naḥmani with a mnemonic: Reuben, the sons of Eli, the sons of Samuel, David, Solomon, and Josiah.

Ruth (20 total matches, showing 5)

Berakhot 7b:9

Continuing on the topic of names, the Talmud asks: What is the meaning of the name Ruth? R' Yoḥanan said: That she had the privilege that David, who inundated God, with songs and praises, would descend from her. The name Ruth [Rut] is etymologically similar in Hebrew to the word inundate [riva].

Shabbat 113b:5

The Talmud continues to discuss Shabbat. Naomi advised Ruth: "And you shall bathe, and anoint yourself, and put on your robes, and go down to the threshing floor. Do not make yourself known to the man until he has finished eating and drinking" (Ruth 3:3). R' Elazar said: These robes are Shabbat garments that Naomi told her to wear in honor of the occasion. Apropos the book of Ruth, the Talmud cites additional statements of R' Elazar with regard to Ruth: "Give to the wise one and he will become wiser; let the righteous one know and he will learn more" (Proverbs 9:9). R' Elazar said: This refers to Ruth the Moabite and Samuel of Rama, who received advice and added to it with their wisdom.

Shabbat 113b:6

The Talmud elaborates. Whereas Naomi said to Ruth: "And you shall bathe, and anoint yourself, and put on your robes, and go down to the threshing floor," but with regard to Ruth herself it is written, "And she went down to the threshing floor" (Ruth 3:6), and only afterward does it say, "And she did according to all that her mother-in-law commanded her." Ruth decided to anoint herself at the threshing floor and not on the road so that people would not meet her on the way there and suspect her of immorality. Whereas Eli said to Samuel: "Go and lie down and if He calls you, you say: Speak, Lord, for Your servant is listening" (I Samuel 3:9), but with regard to Samuel himself it is written: "And YHWH came and stood, and He called like He did the other times: Samuel, Samuel. And Samuel said: Speak, for Your servant is listening" (I Samuel 3:10), and he did not say: Speak, Lord, since he would not assume it was God speaking to him until he was sure of it.

Shabbat 113b:8

It was taught in a baraita: He saw a matter of modesty in her when she was collecting stalks. She picked stalks that were upright while she was standing, and stalks that had fallen she picked while sitting; due to her modesty she did not bend over to take them. It also says: "And Boaz said to Ruth: Do you hear, my daughter? Do not go to glean in another field and do not leave from here, but cling to my maidens" (Ruth 2:8). This is also surprising. And was it Boaz's habit to cling to women? R' Elazar said: Since he saw "And Orpah kissed her mother-in-law and Ruth clung to her" (Ruth 1:14), he said: It is permitted to cling to a woman like this.

Megillah 7a:9

The Talmud raises an objection from a baraita. R' Meir says: The book of Ecclesiastes does not render the hands ritually impure, as it was not accorded the sanctity of sacred scrolls; however, there is a dispute with regard to whether or not the Song of Songs renders the hands impure. R' Yosei says: The Song of Songs renders the hands ritually impure, but there is a dispute with regard to the book of Ecclesiastes. R' Shimon says: The ruling with regard to Ecclesiastes is among the leniencies of Beit Shammai and among the stringencies of Beit Hillel, as according to Beit Hillel it renders the hands impure and according to Beit Shammai it does not. However, everyone agrees that the books of Ruth, and the Song of Songs, and Esther render the hands ritually impure, contrary to the opinion of Shmuel. The Talmud answers: It was Shmuel who stated his opinion in accordance with the opinion of R' Yehoshua cited earlier that the book of Esther was not accorded the sanctity of sacred scrolls.

Shabbat 113b:5

The Talmud continues to discuss Shabbat. Naomi advised Ruth: “And you shall bathe, and anoint yourself, and put on your robes, and go down to the threshing floor. Do not make yourself known to the man until he has finished eating and drinking” (Ruth 3:3). R' Elazar said: These robes are Shabbat garments that Naomi told her to wear in honor of the occasion. Apropos the book of Ruth, the Talmud cites additional statements of R' Elazar with regard to Ruth: “Give to the wise one and he will become wiser; let the righteous one know and he will learn more” (Proverbs 9:9). R' Elazar said: This refers to Ruth the Moabite and Samuel of Rama, who received advice and added to it with their wisdom.

Yevamot 63a:6

And R' Elazar said: What is the meaning of that which is written: “And in you shall all the families of the earth be blessed [nivrekhu]” (Genesis 12:3)? The Holy One, Blessed be He, said to Abraham: I have two good shoots to graft [lehavrikh] onto you: Ruth the Moabite, the ancestress of the house of David, and Naamah the Ammonite, whose marriage with Solomon led to the ensuing dynasty of the kings of Judea. “All the families of the earth” means: Even families that live in the earth, i.e., who have land of their own, are blessed only due to the Jewish people. Similarly, when the verse states: “All the nations of the earth shall be blessed in him” (Genesis 18:18), it indicates that even ships that come from Galia to Hispania are blessed only due to the Jewish people.

Yevamot 76b:14

The Talmud continues with its explanation: For what reason did Saul say to Abner that he should inquire about David? As it is written: “And Saul clad David with his apparel [maddav]” (I Samuel 17:38), which indicates that the clothes were of David’s size [kemiddato]. And it is written with regard to Saul: “From his shoulders and upward he was higher than any of the people” (I Samuel 9:2). Upon seeing that his clothes fit David, Saul began to fear that it might be David who was destined for the throne, and he therefore inquired into his background. At that point, Doeg the Edomite said to Saul: Before you inquire as to whether or not he is fit for kingship, inquire as to whether or not he is even fit to enter into the congregation. What is the reason for such doubts? It is that he descends from Ruth the Moabite, and Moabites are permanently barred from entering the congregation.

Yevamot 77a:5

With regard to the same issue, Rava taught: What is the meaning of that which is written: “You have loosened my bands” (Psalms 116:16)? David said before God: Master of the Universe, You have loosened the two bands that were on me, on account of which I and my entire family might have been disqualified, i.e., Ruth the Moabite woman and Na’ama the Ammonite woman. Owing to the allowance granted to Moabite and Ammonite women, we are permitted to enter the congregation.

Bava Kamma 38b:2

To counter this, God, said to him: That which has entered your mind has not entered Mine, because I have two virtuous fledglings [feridot], i.e., girls, to extract from them: Ruth the Moabite, who will be the foremother of the dynasty of David, and Naamah the Ammonite, Solomon’s wife, from whom the continuation of that dynasty will emerge. For the sake of these women, the Moabites and Ammonites must not be destroyed.

Bava Batra 91a:13

The Talmud provides a mnemonic for the ensuing statements that Rav Ḥanan bar Rava said that Rav said: Melech; Abraham; ten years; when he died; and He alone was exalted. Rav Ḥanan bar Rava says that Rav says: With regard to Elimelech, and Boaz's father, Salmon, and So-and-so, the unnamed relative who was a closer relative to Elimelech than Boaz (Ruth 4:1), and Naomi's father, all of these are descendants of Nahshon, son of Amminadab, the head of the tribe of Judah (see Ruth 4:20–21 and Numbers 2:3). The Talmud asks: What is he teaching us by this statement? He is teaching that even in the case of one who has the merit of his ancestors to protect him, this merit does not stand for him when he leaves Eretz Yisrael to go outside of Eretz Yisrael, as Elimelech died on account of this sin.

Berakhot 12b:22

In response, the Talmud cites a baraita where these elements were derived from allusions in the verse, "You shall stray neither after your hearts nor after your eyes, after which you would lust" (Numbers 15:39). As it was taught: "After your hearts" refers to following opinions of heresy that may arise in one's heart. The Talmud offers a proof, as it is stated: "The fool said in his heart: 'There is no God'; they have been corrupt, they have acted abominably; there is none who does good" (Psalms 14:1). The phrase: "After your eyes," in this verse refers to following thoughts of transgressions of licentiousness, that a person might see and desire, as it is stated: "And Samson said to his father, 'That one take for me, for she is upright in my eyes'" (Judges 14:3). The passage: "You shall stray after" refers to promiscuity, which in the parlance of the prophets is a metaphor for idol worship, as it is stated: "The children of Israel again went astray after the Be'alim" (Judges 8:33).

Rosh Hashanah 25a:16

And similarly it says: "And Samuel said to the people: It is YHWH Who made Moses and Aaron" (I Samuel 12:6). And it says further: "And YHWH sent Jerubaal and Bedan and Jephthah and Samuel" (I Samuel 12:11). The Talmud explains: Jerubaal, this is Gideon. And why is he called Jerubaal? The reason is that he waged a quarrel against Baal. Bedan, this is Samson. And why is he called Bedan? As he came from the tribe of Dan. Jephthah, in accordance with its regular meaning, i.e., this is referring to Jephthah himself and is not a nickname.

Nedarim 19b:5

Rav Huna further asked him: If one said: If there are one hundred kor in this heap, I am hereby a nazirite like Samson (Judges, chapters 13–16), i.e., he would be like Samson, whose permanent naziriteship could not be dissolved and who had no remedy at all, even by bringing offerings, and therefore could never shave, what is the halakha? Uncertainty is definitely not more stringent than certainty in this case.

Nedarim 19b:6

Rava said to him: The concept of a nazirite like Samson is not taught. It was not mentioned at all by the Sages, as the naziriteship of Samson could not have been created through a vow. It was a one-time, divine order that cannot be emulated. Rav Huna said to him: But didn't Rav Adda bar Ahava say that the concept of a nazirite like Samson is taught in a baraita, which shows that it takes effect? Rava said to him: If this baraita is taught, it is taught, and I cannot take issue with it. Apparently, R' Yehuda acknowledges that in this case even uncertain naziriteship takes effect.

Nazir 4a:10

MISHNA: If one said: I am hereby like Samson, like the son of Manoah, like the husband of Delilah, like the one who tore off the doors of Gaza, like the one whose eyes were gouged out by the Philistines, he is a nazirite like Samson, whose halakhot are explained in the next mishna (see Judges, chapters 13–16).

Berakhot 10b:21

Abaye, and some say R' Yitzḥak, said: A great man who seeks to enjoy the contributions of those who seek to honor him may enjoy those gifts, as Elisha enjoyed gifts given him by the woman from Shunem, among others. And one who does not seek to enjoy these gifts should not enjoy them, as was the practice of the prophet Samuel from Rama, who would not accept gifts from anyone at all. From where do we know that this was Samuel's custom? As it is stated: "And he returned to Rama, for there was his house, and there he judged Israel, and he built an altar to YHWH" (I Samuel 7:17). And similarly, R' Yoḥanan said: Every place where Samuel went, his house was with him, so he would have everything that he needed and not be forced to benefit from public contributions. One may opt to conduct himself in accordance with either of these paths.

Berakhot 12b:10

However this proof is rejected: Perhaps a community is different, as a community is forgiven more easily than an individual. Rather, proof that an individual ashamed of his actions is forgiven for his transgressions is cited from here, when King Saul consulted Samuel by means of a necromancer before his final war with the Philistines: "And Samuel said to Saul, why have you angered me to bring me up? And Saul said, I am very pained, and the Philistines are waging war against me, and God has removed Himself from me and answers me no more, neither by the hands of the prophets nor by dreams. And I call to you to tell me what to do" (I Samuel 28:15). Saul says that he consulted prophets and dreams, but he did not say that he consulted the Urim VeTummim.

Berakhot 12b:12

The Talmud concludes: And from where is it derived that Saul was pardoned by God in the heavens for his transgressions? As it is stated: "And Samuel said to Saul: Tomorrow you and your sons will be with me" (I Samuel 28:19). And R' Yoḥanan said: With me does not only mean that they will die, but also means, in a statement that contains an aspect of consolation, that they will be in my company among the righteous in heaven, as Saul was pardoned for his transgressions.

Berakhot 31b:17

The Talmud asks: What is the meaning of "an offspring of men"? Rav said: Hannah prayed for a man among men, a son who would be outstanding and exceptional. And Shmuel said: This expression means an offspring who will anoint two men to royalty. And who were they? Saul and David. And R' Yoḥanan said: Hannah prayed that she would bear an offspring who would be the equivalent of two of the world's greatest men. And who were they? Moses and Aaron. As it is stated: "Moses and Aaron among His priests, and Samuel among those who call His name" (Psalms 99:6). In this verse, Hannah's son, Samuel, is equated to Moses and Aaron. And the Rabbis say: "An offspring of men": Hannah prayed for an offspring who would be inconspicuous among men, that he would not stand out in any way.

Berakhot 31b:20

Additionally, Hannah's emphasis in speaking to Eli, "for this youth I prayed" (I Samuel 1:27), indicates that she came to protect him from danger. As R' Elazar said: Samuel was one who taught halakha in the presence of his teacher. Hannah wanted to pray that he not be punished by death at the hand of Heaven for his transgression, as it is stated: "And they slaughtered the cow and they brought the youth to Eli" (I Samuel 1:25). This verse is puzzling. Because they slaughtered the cow, therefore, they brought the youth to Eli? What does one have to do with the next?

Abaye, and some say R' Yitzḥak, said: A great man who seeks to enjoy the contributions of those who seek to honor him may enjoy those gifts, as Elisha enjoyed gifts given him by the woman from Shunem, among others. And one who does not seek to enjoy these gifts should not enjoy them, as was the practice of the prophet Samuel from Rama, who would not accept gifts from anyone at all. From where do we know that this was Samuel's custom? As it is stated: "And he returned to Rama, for there was his house, and there he judged Israel, and he built an altar to YHWH" (I Samuel 7:17). And similarly, R' Yoḥanan said: Every place where Samuel went, his house was with him, so he would have everything that he needed and not be forced to benefit from public contributions. One may opt to conduct himself in accordance with either of these paths.

The Talmud refutes this proof by asking: What is David's dilemma? If you say that he had a halakhic question and was in doubt whether it was permitted or prohibited to fight the Philistines on Shabbat, it is possible to respond: But the court of Samuel from Rama was then in existence, and rather than inquire by way of the Urim VeTummim he should have inquired of the Great Sanhedrin.

Yevamot 77a:1

Doeg raised before them all those objections from the others who are disqualified from entering into the congregation, and they were silent, not knowing how to respond. Doeg then wanted to proclaim that David was disqualified from entering into the congregation. He was immediately answered. Here it says: "Now Amasa was the son of a man, whose name was Jithra the Israelite, that went into Abigal the daughter of Nahash" (II Samuel 17:25), and yet elsewhere it is written that Amasa's father was named "Jether the Ishmaelite" (I Chronicles 2:17). Rava said: This teaches that he girded his sword like Ishmael, i.e., like an Arab, and said: Whoever does not accept this *halakha and act accordingly shall be stabbed with the sword. This is the tradition that I received from the court of Samuel from Rama: An Ammonite man is prohibited from entering into the congregation, but not an Ammonite woman; a Moabite man is prohibited from entering into the congregation, but not a Moabite woman.

Zevachim 118b:20

And a tanna taught: When Eli the priest died, Shiloh was destroyed and the Jews arrived at Nov, where they erected the Tabernacle. At that time, Samuel began to lead the people. When Samuel from Rama died, Nov was destroyed by Saul (see I Samuel 22:19) and they arrived at Gibeon, where the Tabernacle remained (see I Chronicles 16:39).

Moed Katan 28a:8

The Talmud discusses the significance of death at different ages: If one dies when he is fifty years old, this is death through karet, the divine punishment of excision, meted out for the most serious transgressions. If he dies when he is fifty-two years old, this is the death of Samuel from Ramah. If he dies at the age of sixty, this is death at the hand of Heaven.

Moed Katan 28a:10

One who dies at the age of seventy has reached old age. One who dies at the age of eighty dies in strength, as it is written: "The days of our years are seventy, or if by reason of strength, eighty years" (Psalms 90:10). Rabba said: Not only is death at the age of fifty a sign of karet, but even death from fifty to sixty years of age is death by karet. And the reason that all of these years were not counted in connection with karet is due to the honor of Samuel from Ramah, who died at the age of fifty-two.

Shabbat 113b:5

The Talmud continues to discuss Shabbat. Naomi advised Ruth: "And you shall bathe, and anoint yourself, and put on your robes, and go down to the threshing floor. Do not make yourself known to the man until he has finished eating and drinking" (Ruth 3:3). R' Elazar said: These robes are Shabbat garments that Naomi told her to wear in honor of the occasion. Apropos the book of Ruth, the Talmud cites additional statements of R' Elazar with regard to Ruth: "Give to the wise one and he will become wiser; let the righteous one know and he will learn more" (Proverbs 9:9). R' Elazar said: This refers to Ruth the Moabite and Samuel of Rama, who received advice and added to it with their wisdom.

Taanit 5b:3

And Rav Naḥman said to R' Yitzḥak: What is the meaning of that which is written: "And it came to pass when Samuel was old" (I Samuel 8:1)? And did Samuel really grow so old? But he was only fifty-two years old when he died, as the Master said in a baraita that deals with the Divine punishment of karet: One who dies at the age of fifty-two years is not considered to have suffered the premature death of karet, as this is the age of the death of Samuel of Rama. This shows that Samuel died at the relatively young age of fifty-two.

Taanit 5b:6

Therefore, God, said: I will spring old age upon him and everyone will think that Shmuel is elderly. This is the meaning of that which is written: "And Saul dwelled in Gibeah under the tamarisk tree in Rama" (I Samuel 22:6). What does Gibeah have to do with Rama; these are two separate places. Rather, the verse comes to tell you: Who caused Saul to dwell in Gibeah for two and a half years? The prayer of Samuel of Rama.

Taanit 24a:10

The Talmud returns to the topic of fasting for rain. R' Yehuda Nesia decreed a fast and prayed for mercy, but rain did not come. He said, lamenting: How great is the difference between the prophet Samuel of Rama, for whom rain fell even when he prayed for it in summer, and myself, Yehuda ben Gamliel. Woe to the generation that is stuck with this leadership; woe to him in whose days this has occurred. He grew upset, and rain came.

Taanit 27a:8

The Talmud raises an objection against this opinion from a baraita. Moses instituted for the Jews eight priestly watches, four from Elazar and four from Itamar. And David and Samuel came and established them as twenty-four, as it is stated: "Whom David and Samuel the seer ordained in their set office" (I Chronicles 9:22). This baraita indicates that David and Samuel together established the twenty-four watches. The Talmud explains: This is what the baraita is saying: Through their ordination by David and Samuel of Rama the priestly watches incrementally increased in number until they established them as twenty-four.

Yoma 38b:13

Apropos the righteous, R' Ḥiyya bar Abba said that R' Yoḥanan said: No righteous person departs from this world until another comparable righteous person is created, as it is stated: "And the sun rises and the sun sets" (Ecclesiastes 1:5); before the sun sets the new sun has already risen. Before the sun of Eli was extinguished, the sun of Samuel of Ramah had already shone (see I Samuel, chapter 3), and so on throughout the generations. And R' Ḥiyya bar Abba said that R' Yoḥanan said: The Holy One, Blessed be He, saw that righteous people were few, so He arose and planted some of them in each and every generation to ensure the presence of at least one righteous person in each generation. As it is stated: "For the pillars of the earth are YHWH's, and He has set the world upon them" (I Samuel 2:8). Since the world rests upon the righteous, each generation requires the presence of a righteous person to provide that support.

Nazir 5a:14

Having mentioned in 4b the verse “and it came to pass at the end of forty years, that Absalom said unto the king” (II Samuel 15:7), the Talmud asks: With regard to these forty years, what is their purpose in this discussion, i.e., to what time period do they refer? The Talmud answers: R' Nehorai says in the name of R' Yehoshua: It is referring to the end of forty years, since the Jewish people requested for themselves a king in the days of Samuel (see I Samuel, chapter 8). It was taught: That year when they requested for themselves a king was the tenth year of the leadership of Samuel the Ramathite.

Kiddushin 72b:2

The Talmud comments: As the Master said: While R' Akiva was dying, Rabbi Yehuda HaNasi was born; while Rabbi Yehuda HaNasi was dying, Rav Yehuda was born; while Rav Yehuda was dying, Rava was born; while Rava was dying, Rav Ashi was born. This teaches you that a righteous person does not leave the world before an equally righteous person is created, as it is stated: “The sun also rises and the sun also sets” (Ecclesiastes 1:5). The same applies to earlier generations: Before Eli’s sun had gone out, Samuel the Ramathite’s sun was already rising, as it is stated: “And the lamp of God was not yet gone out, and Samuel was lying in the Temple of YHWH” (I Samuel 3:3), which teaches that Samuel was already prophesying in the days of Eli.

Makkot 23b:12

The Talmud cites a somewhat similar statement. R' Elazar says: In three places the Divine Spirit appeared before all to affirm that the action taken was appropriate: In the court of Shem, in the court of Samuel the Ramathite, and in the court of Solomon. The Talmud elaborates: This occurred in the court of Shem, as it is written in the context of the episode of Judah and Tamar: “And Judah acknowledged them and said: She is more righteous than I [mimmenni]” (Genesis 38:26). How did Judah know that Tamar’s assertion that she was bearing his child was correct? Perhaps, just as he went to her and hired her as a prostitute, another person went to her and hired her as well, and he is not the father. Rather, a Divine Voice emerged and said: It is from Me [mimmenni] that these secrets emerged. God affirmed that her assertion was correct and that it was His divine plan that Judah would father a child from Tamar.

Shabbat 56a:2

However, how then do I establish the meaning of the verse: “And they sought after unjust gain,” indicating that they were sinners? It means that they did not conduct themselves in accordance with the actions of their father. As Samuel the righteous would travel to all places where the people of Israel were located and sit in judgment in their towns, as it is stated: “And he went from year to year in circuit from Beth-El, and Gilgal, and Mitzpa, and judged Israel in all those places” (I Samuel 7:16). And, however, they did not do so and travel from place to place. Rather, they sat in their own cities in order to enhance the fees collected by their attendants and scribes. Therefore, the verse ascribes to them liability as if they sinned by seeking ill-gotten gains and bribes.

Chagigah 4b:8

The Talmud similarly relates: When R' Elazar reached this verse, he cried: “And his brethren could not answer him, for they were affrighted at his presence” (Genesis 45:3). He said, in explanation of his emotional reaction: If the rebuke of a man of flesh and blood was such that the brothers were unable to respond, when it comes to the rebuke of God, all the more so. When R' Elazar reached this verse, he cried: “And Samuel said to Saul: Why have you disquieted me, to bring me up” (I Samuel 28:15). He said: If Samuel the righteous was afraid of judgment when he was raised by necromancy, as he thought he was being summoned for a Divine judgment, all the more so that we should be afraid.

The Talmud continues its discussion of the battle of David and Goliath. “These four were born to Harafa in Gath; and they fell by the hand of David, and by the hand of his servants” (II Samuel 21:22). The Talmud asks: What are the names of the four siblings mentioned here? Rav Ḥisda said: They are Saph, and Madon, Goliath, and Ishbi in Nob (see II Samuel 21:16–20).

Similarly, what is the meaning of changing Sarai's name to Sarah? The same concept applies to Sarai as to Abram: Sarai is Sarah."

Berakhot 13a:7

The Talmud explains: Initially she was a princess only to her nation: My princess [Sarai], but ultimately she became Sarah, a general term indicating that she was princess for the entire world.

Berakhot 13a:9

The Talmud asks: But if we consider these obligatory statements, then from here we must infer that one who calls Sarah Sarai also transgresses a positive or negative mitzva.

Berakhot 13a:10

The Talmud answers: There in the case of Sarah, it is not a general mitzva, rather God, said to Abraham alone: "And God said to Abraham, your wife Sarai, you shall not call her name Sarai; rather, Sarah is her name" (Genesis 17:15). In contrast, this is stated regarding Abraham in general terms: "Your name shall no longer be called Abram."

Berakhot 29a:11

The Talmud asks further: Corresponding to what were these nine blessings of the Rosh HaShana additional prayer instituted? R' Yitzḥak of Kartignin said: They correspond to the nine mentions of God's name that Hannah said in her prayer (I Samuel 2:10). The connection between Hannah's prayer and Rosh HaShana is based on what the Master said: On Rosh HaShana, Sarah, Rachel, and Hannah were remembered and the divine decree that they would conceive their sons was issued.

Bava Batra 91b:7

The Talmud returns to its discussion of the story of Ruth. It is written: "Mahlon and Chilion" (Ruth 1:2), and it is written elsewhere: "Joash and Saraph, who had dominion in Moab" (I Chronicles 4:22). Apparently, both names refer to the same individuals who married Moabite wives. Rav and Shmuel disagreed with regard to their true names. One says: Their given names were Mahlon and Chilion, and why were they called by the names Saraph and Joash? One was called Joash [yoash] because they despaired [nitya'ashu] of the redemption of Eretz Yisrael, as they established themselves in Moab and lived there for many years. The other was called Saraph, because they were liable to receive the punishment of burning [sereifa] for their sins against God, because they left their community.

Bava Batra 91b:8

And one of them says: Their given names were Joash and Saraph, and why were they called by the names Mahlon and Chilion? One was called Mahlon [maḥlon] because they made their bodies profane [Ḥullin], and the other was called Chilion [khilyon] because they were liable to receive the punishment of destruction [kelaya] for their sins against God.

Bava Batra 91b:9

The Talmud notes: It is taught in a baraita in accordance with the one who says that their given names were Mahlon and Chilion. As it is taught in a baraita: What is the meaning of that which is written: "And Jokim, and the men of Cozeba, and Joash, and Saraph, who had dominion in Moab, and Jashubi Lehem. And the matters are ancient" (I Chronicles 4:22)? "And Jokim," this refers to Joshua, who established [shehekim] and kept the oath with people of Gibeon (see Joshua, chapter 9). "And the men of Cozeba," these are the men of Gibeon, who lied [shekizevu] to Joshua by saying that they came from a distant land. "And Joash, and Saraph," these are Mahlon and Chilion. And why were they called by the names Joash and Saraph? One was called Joash because they despaired [shenitya'ashu] of the redemption; the other was called Saraph because they were liable to receive the punishment of burning [sereifa] for their sins against God.

Saul (107 total matches, showing 5)

Berakhot 10a:8

In explaining passages from Psalms, the Talmud relates another instance of a response to the question of a heretic: A certain heretic said to R' Abbahu, it is written: "A Psalm of David, when he fled from his son, Absalom" (Psalms 3:1), and similarly it is said: "To the chief musician, al tashḥet, a mikhtam of David when fleeing from Saul into the cave" (Psalms 57:1). Which event was first? Since the event with Saul was first, it would have been appropriate to write it first.

Berakhot 12b:10

However this proof is rejected: Perhaps a community is different, as a community is forgiven more easily than an individual. Rather, proof that an individual ashamed of his actions is forgiven for his transgressions is cited from here, when King Saul consulted Samuel by means of a necromancer before his final war with the Philistines: "And Samuel said to Saul, why have you angered me to bring me up? And Saul said, I am very pained, and the Philistines are waging war against me, and God has removed Himself from me and answers me no more, neither by the hands of the prophets nor by dreams. And I call to you to tell me what to do" (I Samuel 28:15). Saul says that he consulted prophets and dreams, but he did not say that he consulted the Urim VeTummim.

Berakhot 12b:12

The Talmud concludes: And from where is it derived that Saul was pardoned by God in the heavens for his transgressions? As it is stated: "And Samuel said to Saul: Tomorrow you and your sons will be with me" (I Samuel 28:19). And R' Yoḥanan said: With me does not only mean that they will die, but also means, in a statement that contains an aspect of consolation, that they will be in my company among the righteous in heaven, as Saul was pardoned for his transgressions.

Berakhot 12b:13

And the Rabbis say that proof that Saul was pardoned is derived from here, from what the Gibeonites said to David: "Let seven men of his sons be given to us and we will hang them up unto YHWH in the Giva of Saul, the chosen of YHWH" (II Samuel 21:6). Certainly the Gibeonites, who were furious at Saul, would not refer to him as the chosen of YHWH. Therefore, this phrase must be understood as having been spoken by a Divine Voice that emerged and said the chosen of YHWH, because Saul had been pardoned for his transgressions and included among the completely righteous.
The Talmud returns to the primary focus of the chapter, the recitation of Shema.

Berakhot 17b:1

"There is no breach"; that our faction of Sages should not be like the faction of David, from which Ahitophel emerged, who caused a breach in the kingdom of David.
"And no going forth"; that our faction should not be like the faction of Saul, from which Doeg the Edomite emerged, who set forth on an evil path.
"And no outcry"; that our faction should not be like the faction of Elisha, from which Geihazi emerged.
"In our open places"; that we should not have a child or student who overcooks his food in public, i.e., who sins in public and causes others to sin, as in the well-known case of Jesus the Nazarene.

seed of Aaron (10 total matches, showing 5)

Yevamot 74a:19

§ It is taught in the mishna that all those who are ritually impure with any type of ritual impurity may not eat teruma. The Talmud asks: From where are these matters derived? R' Yoḥanan said in the name of R' Yishmael: The verse states: "Any man from the seed of Aaron who is a leper or a *zav shall not eat of the holy things until he be pure" (Leviticus 22:4). Now, what matter is the same for all the seed of Aaron, both sons and daughters? You must say it is teruma. The Talmud raises a difficulty: But say that perhaps the verse is referring to the breast and thigh of a peace-offering, which also may be eaten by all the seed of Aaron, both male and female? The Talmud answers: The breast and thigh are not permitted to males and females in equal manner, as they are not permitted to the daughter of a priest who returns to the home of her father. If the daughter of a priest marries a non-priest, it is prohibited for her to partake of teruma or sacrificial food. If she is widowed or divorced and has no living descendants by her non-priest husband, it is once again permitted for her to eat teruma, but she may not partake of the breast and thigh of the offerings.

Yevamot 74b:1

Yevamot 74b:2

The Talmud asks: If so, the same may be said about teruma* as well, as it is not permitted to a Ḥalala, a woman who is disqualified from marrying a priest, even though she is the daughter of a priest. The Talmud answers: A Ḥalala is not considered the seed of Aaron.

Bekhorot 3b:7

The reason for the latter halakha is that it is with regard to a person that it is written: "Any man from the offspring of Aaron" (Leviticus 22:4), which indicates that we require a man who is equal to the seed of Aaron, i.e., he has an ordinary appearance like other priests; but with regard to an animal, if both eyes are big or both eyes are small, it is also not a blemish.

Bekhorot 40b:2

The Talmud challenges: But it is with regard to the blemishes of a person that we learned in a mishna (44a): If his upper lip protrudes beyond the lower lip or his lower lip protrudes beyond the upper lip, that is a blemish. And it is only with regard to a person that it is written: "Whatever man of the seed of Aaron" (Leviticus 22:4), which teaches that in order to be fit for the Temple service a priest must be a man who is equal to the seed of Aaron, i.e., he has an ordinary appearance like other priests. But this requirement is not stated with regard to an animal, and therefore an animal should not be considered blemished if its lower lip protrudes beyond the upper lip.

Segub (4 total matches)

Yevamot 62b:7

Rather, the proof is from here: "And afterward Hezron went in to the daughter of Machir, the father of Gilead...and she bore him Segub" (I Chronicles 2:21), and it is written: "Out of Machir came down governors" (Judges 5:14), and it is written: "Judah is my governor" (Psalms 60:9). Consequently, the governors, who were from the tribe of Judah, were also called the sons of Machir, who was from the tribe of Manasseh. This must be because they were the children of Machir's daughter and Hezron, indicating that grandchildren are considered like children.

Sanhedrin 113a:8

It is taught in a baraita that this includes a prohibition not to build Jericho even after changing its name to the name of another city, and not to build another city after giving it the name of Jericho, as it is written: "Hiel the Bethelite built Jericho; with Abiram, his firstborn, he laid its foundation, and with his young son Segub set up its gates" (I Kings 16:34).

Sanhedrin 113a:9

It is taught in a baraita: From the death of Abiram, his firstborn, the wicked, it was not incumbent upon him to learn not to build Jericho, as Abiram's death could be attributed to chance. But with the death of Segub his young son, it was incumbent upon him to learn that it was due to Joshua's curse that they died.

Sanhedrin 113a:10

The Talmud asks: What did Abiram and Segub do that they are characterized as wicked, and what is the baraita saying? The Talmud answers that this is what the baraita is saying: From the death of Abiram, his firstborn, that wicked man Hiel should have learned about the cause of the death of Segub his young son. By inference from that which is stated: "With Abiram, his firstborn," do I not know that Segub was his young son? Rather, what is the meaning when the verse states: "His young son Segub"? It teaches that he gradually buried all his sons from Abiram through Segub, and he should have suspected that Joshua's curse caused the deaths.

Sennacherib (25 total matches, showing 5)

Berakhot 28a:6

Rabban Gamliel said to him: You are forbidden to enter into the congregation. R' Yehoshua said to him: You are permitted to enter into the congregation. Rabban Gamliel said to R' Yehoshua: Wasn't it already stated: "An Ammonite and a Moabite shall not enter into the congregation of YHWH; even to the tenth generation shall none of them enter into the congregation of YHWH forever" (Deuteronomy 23:4)? How can you permit him to enter the congregation? R' Yehoshua said to Rabban Gamliel: Do Ammon and Moab reside in their place? Sennacherib already came and, through his policy of population transfer, scrambled all the nations and settled other nations in place of Ammon. Consequently, the current residents of Ammon and Moab are not ethnic Ammonites and Moabites, as it is stated in reference to Sennacherib: "I have removed the bounds of the peoples, and have robbed their treasures, and have brought down as one mighty the inhabitants" (Isaiah 10:13). And although it is conceivable that this particular convert is an ethnic Ammonite, nevertheless, there is no need for concern due to the halakhic principle: Anything that parts from a group parts from the majority, and the assumption is that he is from the majority of nations whose members are permitted to enter the congregation.

Pesachim 117a:19

R' Elazar HaModa'i says: Deborah and Barak recited it when Sisera stood against them (see Judges 4–5). They said: Not to us, and the Divine Spirit responded and said to them: For My own sake, for My own sake, will I do it. R' Elazar ben Azarya says: Hezekiah and his company recited it when Sennacherib stood against them (see II Kings 18–19). They said: Not to us and the Divine Spirit responded: For My own sake. R' Akiva says: Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah recited it when the wicked Nebuchadnezzar stood against them (see Daniel 3). They said: Not to us, and the Divine Spirit responded: For My own sake. R' Yosei HaGelili says: Mordecai and Esther recited it when the wicked Haman stood against them. They said: Not to us, and the Divine Spirit responded: For My own sake (see the book of Esther).

Pesachim 119a:10

Sennacherib came and took it from Ahaz. Hezekiah came and took it from Sennacherib, and it remained in Jerusalem until the reign of Zedekiah. The Chaldeans came and took it from Zedekiah. The Persians came and took it from the Chaldeans. The Greeks came and took it from the Persians. The Romans came and took it from the Greeks, and this treasure of silver and gold still remains in Rome.

Yoma 54a:6

The Talmud explains its objection: But Sennacherib, king of Assyria, had already come, and through his policy of forced population transfer he had scrambled all the nations of the lands, as it is stated in reference to Sennacherib: "And I have removed the bounds of the peoples, and have robbed their treasures" (Isaiah 10:13). This indicates that the children of Simeon were also exiled, despite the fact that the verse states: "There to this day." The Talmud concludes: Indeed, this is a conclusive refutation of Ulla's statement.

Megillah 11b:3

The Talmud asks further: But there was Sennacherib, who ruled over the entire world, as it is written: "Who are they among all the gods of these countries, that have delivered their country out of my hand that YHWH should deliver Jerusalem out of my hand?" (Isaiah 36:20). The Talmud answers: There is Jerusalem that he did not conquer, as indicated in the verse.

Sanhedrin 95b:5

§ Apropos Sennacherib, Rav Yehuda says that Rav says: Sennacherib the wicked came upon them with forty-five thousand men, sons of kings, sitting in carriages of gold, and with them were consorts and prostitutes, and with eighty thousand warriors each wearing a coat of mail, and with sixty thousand sword-bearers running before him, and the rest were cavalry. And likewise, when the four kings came upon Abraham to wage war in the land of Canaan (see Genesis, chapter 14), they brought forces of that magnitude. And likewise, forces of that magnitude are destined to come with Gog and Magog in the ultimate war.

Seraiah (3 total matches)

Megillah 14b:12

Rav Eina the Elder raised an objection from a baraita to Rav Naḥman's teaching. The baraita indicates that Huldah was in fact a descendant of Rahab, and seemingly not of Joshua: Eight prophets, who were also priests, descended from Rahab the prostitute, and they are: Neriah; his son Baruch; Seraiah; Mahseiah; Jeremiah; his father, Hilkiah; Jeremiah's cousin Hanamel; and Hanamel's father, Shallum. R' Yehuda said: So too, Huldah the prophetess was a descendant of Rahab the prostitute, as it is written here with regard to Huldah: "The son of Tikvah," and it is written elsewhere in reference to Rahab's escape from the destruction of Jericho: "This cord of [tikvat] scarlet thread" (Joshua 2:18).

Megillah 15a:4

Rav Naḥman said: Malachi the prophet is in fact Mordecai, and why was he called Malachi? To indicate that he was second to the king [melekh], as Mordecai was appointed such, as is recorded at the end of the Megilla. The Talmud raises an objection from the following baraita: Baruch, the son of Neriah; Seraiah, the son of Mahseiah; Daniel; Mordecai; Bilshan; Haggai; Zechariah; and Malachi; all prophesied in the second year of the reign of Darius. The fact that the baraita mentions Mordecai and Malachi separately indicates that they were two different people. The Talmud concludes: This is indeed a conclusive refutation.

Megillah 16b:18

Rav Yosef said: Studying Torah is greater than saving lives, as initially, when listing the Jewish leaders who came to Eretz Yisrael, Mordecai was mentioned after four other people, but at the end he was listed after five. This is taken to indicate that his involvement in governmental affairs instead of in Torah study lowered his stature one notch. The Talmud proves this: At first it is written: "Who came with Zerubbabel, Jeshua, Nehemiah, Seraiah, Reelaiah, Mordecai, Bilshan" (Ezra 2:2); but in the end in a later list it is written: "Who came with Zerubbabel, Jeshua, Nehemiah, Azariah, Raamiah, Nahmani, Mordecai, Bilshan" (Nehemiah 7:7).

Sukkah 52b:13

The Talmud continues homiletically interpreting verses that relate to the end of days. It is stated: "And this shall be peace: When the Assyrian shall come into our land, and when he shall tread in our palaces, then shall we raise against him seven shepherds, and eight princes among men" (Micah 5:4). The Talmud asks: Who are these seven shepherds? The Talmud explains: David is in the middle; Adam, Seth, and Methuselah are to his right; Abraham, Jacob, and Moses are to his left. And who are the eight princes among men? They are Yishai, Saul, Samuel, Amos, Zephania, Zedekiah, Messiah, and Elijah.

Sethur the son of Michael (1 total match)

Sotah 34b:5

The Torah states with regard to the spies: “And these were their names: Of the tribe of Reuben, Shammua the son of Zaccur” (Numbers 13:4). R' Yitzḥak says: This statement that follows is a tradition of ours that was passed down to us from our ancestors: The spies were named after their actions, but we have obtained the interpretation of only one name, the name of “Sethur the son of Michael” (Numbers 13:13). He is called Sethur, as he hid [satar] the actions of God. In other words, he ignored the miracles that God performed for the Jewish people in Egypt and in the wilderness. He is called Michael, as he made Him, God, appear weak [makh] by saying that there was not enough food in the land for everyone.

These were the judgments that they rendered: In a case of one who strikes the wife of another and causes her to miscarry, they would say to the woman's husband: Give the woman to the one who struck her, so that she will be impregnated for you again. In a case of one who severed the ear of another's donkey, they would say to the owner of the donkey: Give the donkey to the one who caused the damage, until the ear grows back. In a case of one who wounds another, they would say to the injured party: Give the one who wounded you a fee, as he let your blood.

Shallum (7 total matches, showing 5)

Megillah 14b:12

Rav Eina the Elder raised an objection from a baraita to Rav Naḥman's teaching. The baraita indicates that Huldah was in fact a descendant of Rahab, and seemingly not of Joshua: Eight prophets, who were also priests, descended from Rahab the prostitute, and they are: Neriah; his son Baruch; Seraiah; Mahseiah; Jeremiah; his father, Hilkiah; Jeremiah's cousin Hanamel; and Hanamel's father, Shallum. Horayot 11b:15

The baraita teaches: And they anointed Jehoahaz due to Jehoiakim, who was two years older than he was. The Talmud asks: And was Jehoiakim older than Jehoahaz? But isn't it written: "And the sons of Josiah: The firstborn Johanan, the second Jehoiakim, the third Zedekiah, the fourth Shallum" (I Chronicles 3:15), and R' Yoḥanan says: He is Shallum, he is Zedekiah; these are two names for one person. Likewise, he is Johanan, he is Jehoahaz, who is mentioned in the book of Kings. Since Jehoahaz was the eldest, why was it necessary to anoint him? The Talmud answers: Actually, Jehoiakim was older than Jehoahaz. And what is the meaning of the term "firstborn" written with regard to Jehoahaz? It means that his status was like that of a firstborn in terms of ascent to the kingship.

Horayot 11b:17

The Master said: He is Shallum, he is Zedekiah; he is Johanan, he is Jehoahaz. The Talmud asks: But doesn't the verse enumerate them individually, as it is written: "The third Zedekiah, the fourth Shallum," indicating that they are two people? The Talmud answers: What is the meaning of third? It means the third among the sons. And what is the meaning of fourth? It means the fourth to ascend to the kingship. How so? Initially, Jehoahaz reigned, and ultimately, after him, Jehoiakim, and ultimately, after him, Jeconiah, son of Jehoiakim, and ultimately, after him, Zedekiah, who was fourth to the kingship.

Horayot 11b:18

The Sages taught: He is Shallum, he is Zedekiah. And why was he called Shallum? It is due to the fact that he was perfect [meshullam] is his actions. Some say: He was called Shallum because the kingdom of the house of David was concluded [sheshalema] during his days. And what was his actual name? Mattaniah was his name, as it is stated: "And the king of Babylon crowned Mattaniah his uncle in his stead, and changed his name to Zedekiah" (II Kings 24:17). Why did Nebuchadnezzar call him Zedekiah? He said to him: God will justify the judgment against you if you rebel against me; and it is written: "And he also rebelled against King Nebuchadnezzar, who had imposed upon him an oath by God" (II Chronicles 36:13).

Keritot 5b:11

It was further stated in the baraita: And Jehoahaz, son of Josiah, was anointed due to the competition from Jehoiakim, his brother, who was two years older than him. The Talmud asks: And was Jehoiakim in fact older than Jehoahaz? But isn't it written: "And the sons of Josiah: The firstborn Johanan, the second Jehoiakim, the third Zedekiah, the fourth Shallum" (I Chronicles 3:15); and R' Yoḥanan says: The one who is called Johanan in that verse is also called Jehoahaz, and the one who is called Zedekiah is the same as the one called Shallum. If so, Jehoahaz is the eldest son, not Jehoiakim. Why, then, was it necessary to anoint Jehoahaz?

Shaphan (3 total matches)

Yoma 76b:12

Apropos the verses from Daniel, the Talmud asks: What did the angel mean when he said to Daniel: “And I have come due to your words” (Daniel 10:12)? From this, it seems that the angel was able to come only because of Daniel. The Talmud answers: This is as it is written: “And there stood before them seventy men of the Elders of the house of Israel, and Jaazaniah, son of Shaphan, standing in the midst of them, each man with his censer in his hand, and a thick cloud of incense went up” (Ezekiel 8:11). Ezekiel saw the Elders of the house of Israel worshipping foreign gods. “And the form of a hand was put forth, and I was taken by a lock of my head; and a spirit lifted me up between the earth and the heaven, and brought me in the visions of God to Jerusalem, to the door of the gate of the inner court that faces northward where

Sukkah 38b:6

It was also stated that R' Shimon ben Pazi said that R' Yehoshua ben Levi said in the name of Bar Kappara: From where is it derived that the halakhic status of one who hears a passage recited is equivalent to that of one who recites it? It is as it is written: “All the words of the book which the king of Judea has read” (II Kings 22:16). And did King Josiah read them? Didn’t Shaphan read them, as it is written: “And Shaphan read it before the king” (II Kings 22:10)? Rather, from here it is derived that the halakhic status of one who hears a passage recited is equivalent to that of one who recites it, and it is as though Josiah read the words himself.

Sukkah 38b:7

The Talmud asks: And perhaps after Shaphan read them Josiah read them again? Rav Aḥa bar Ya’akov said: It should not enter your mind to say so, as it is written: “Because your heart was tender and you humbled yourself before YHWH when you heard what I spoke in this place” (II Kings 22:19). The Talmud infers: “When you heard” is written in the verse, and not: When you read. In other words, immediately upon hearing Shaphan read the text, King Josiah sent for Huldah the prophetess, which shows that he humbled his heart. Clearly, the halakhic status of one who hears a passage recited is equivalent to that of one who recites it.

Shecaniah ben Jehiel (2 total matches)

Sanhedrin 11a:5

And from where did R' Meir learn that characteristic? From Shmuel HaKatan, in the incident outlined above. And from where did Shmuel HaKatan learn it? From Shecaniah ben Jehiel, as it is written: "And Shecaniah, the son of Jehiel, one of the sons of Elam, answered and said to Ezra: We have broken faith with our God, and have married foreign women of the peoples of the land; yet now there is hope for Israel concerning this" (Ezra 10:2). And although he confessed, Shecaniah is not listed among those who took foreign wives (Ezra 10:18–44). Evidently, he confessed only to spare the others from public embarrassment.

Sanhedrin 11a:6

The Talmud continues: And from where did Shecaniah ben Jehiel learn it? From an incident involving Joshua, as it is written: "And YHWH said to Joshua: Get yourself up; why do you fall upon your face? Israel has sinned" (Joshua 7:10–11). Joshua said before Him: Master of the Universe, who sinned? God said to him: And am I your informer? Rather, cast lots to determine who is guilty. In this way, God did not directly disclose the identity of the sinner to Joshua. And if you wish, say instead that Shecaniah ben Jehiel learned this from an incident involving Moses, as it is written: "And YHWH said to Moses: How long do you refuse to keep My mitzvot and My laws?" (Exodus 16:28). Although only a small number of people attempted to collect the manna on Shabbat, God spoke as though the entire nation were guilty, so as not to directly expose the guilty.

It is related further that Rabbi Yehuda HaNasi arranged for his son to marry a daughter of the household of R' Ḥiyya. When he came to write the marriage contract, the girl died. Rabbi Yehuda HaNasi said: Is there, Heaven forbid, some disqualification in these families, as it appears that God prevented this match from taking place? They sat and looked into the families' ancestry and found that Rabbi Yehuda HaNasi was descended from Shefatya ben Avital, the wife of David, whereas R' Ḥiyya was descended from Shimi, David's brother.

Shem (25 total matches, showing 5) only shem, part of the word, the letters shin and mem, from Shimon. Them refers to one who performed the primary categories of labor. Of them refers to one who performed subcategories of prohibited labors. One that is them refers to one transgression with multiple punishments, as in a case where his action was intentional with regard to Shabbat in that he was aware that it was Shabbat, and his action was unwitting with regard to the prohibited labors in that he was unaware that the labors were prohibited. In that case, he is liable for each primary category of labor. Them that are one refers to several transgressions with one punishment, as in a case where his action was unwitting with regard to Shabbat in that he was unaware that it was Shabbat, and his action was intentional with regard to the prohibited labors in that he was aware that the labors were prohibited. In that case, he is liable to bring only one sin-offering. Apparently, R' Yosei has a source for the division of Shabbat labors. Why doesn't Shmuel derive the halakha from that source? The Talmud answers: Shmuel did not derive one that is them and them that are one from the verse.

Shabbat 97b:11

Concerning throwing an object on Shabbat from one domain to another and within a single domain, the Talmud raises several issues with regard to intention when throwing. It is obvious that one who intended to throw an object eight cubits in a public domain and actually threw it only four cubits is liable because that case is similar to a case where one wrote the word shem, the first two letters of the name Shimon. In the case of writing shem, the individual performed the prohibited labor of writing a two-letter word, even though he did not complete the word that he originally intended to write. The question is as follows: What is the halakha if one intended to throw an object four cubits and threw it eight? Do we say he did indeed carry the object, or perhaps we say that ultimately the object did not land where he wanted it to land? But is that not precisely what Ravina said to Rav Ashi, as mentioned above? And Rav Ashi said in response that it is referring to a case where one says: Any place that it wants to come to rest, let it come to rest. In such a scenario one is liable, because he expressed the fact that he is contented with any labor that will be performed with the object.

Shabbat 97b:12

Furthermore, the first case, which seems obvious, also requires clarification. And that which you said, that this is similar to a case where one wrote the word shem, the first two letters of the name Shimon, is it in fact similar? There, as long as the letters of shem, shin and mem, are not written, the name Shimon cannot be written. Here, where one intended to throw the object eight cubits and he threw it only four, is it true that as long as it was not thrown four cubits it cannot be thrown eight? An object can be thrown eight cubits without first landing after four cubits. The question remains unresolved.

Shabbat 103a:8

MISHNA: One who writes two letters on Shabbat, whether he did so with his right hand or his left, whether they were the same letter or two different letters, whether he did so using two different types of ink, in any language, he is liable. R' Yosei said: One is deemed liable for writing two letters only due to marking, as they would write symbols on adjacent beams of the Tabernacle to know which beam was another beam's counterpart. R' Yehuda said: We found that one is liable for writing even if he did not complete what he was writing, so that he wrote a small name that constituted part of a longer name, e.g., Shem [shin mem] from the name Shimon or from Shmuel; Noa? [nun Ḥet] from Naḥor; Dan [dalet nun] from Daniel; Gad [gimmel dalet] from Gaddiel. In all of these cases, the first two letters of the longer name constitute the shorter name.

therefore, the verse states "one," which means one complete labor. How can the two phrases be reconciled? Rather it must be explained that one is liable only if he writes a small name that constitutes part of a longer name, e.g., Shem from the name Shimon or from Shmuel, Noa? from Naḥor, Dan from Daniel, Gad from Gaddiel. R' Yehuda says: One is liable even if he wrote only two letters that are one type of letter, e.g., shesh [shin shin], tet [tav tav], rar [reish reish], gag [gimmel gimmel], Ḥa? [Ḥet Ḥet].

Shem the Great (2 total matches)

Sanhedrin 108b:19

Rav Ḥana bar Bizna says: Eliezer, servant of Abraham, said to Shem the Great, son of Noah: It is written: "After their kinds, they emerged from the ark," indicating that the different types of animals were not intermingled while in the ark. Where were you and what did you do to care for them while they were in the ark? Shem said to him: We experienced great suffering in the ark caring for the animals. Where there was a creature that one typically feeds during the day, we fed it during the day, and where there was a creature that one typically feeds at night, we fed it at night. With regard to that chameleon, my father did not know what it eats. One day, my father was sitting and peeling a pomegranate. A worm fell from it and the chameleon ate it. From that point forward my father would knead bran with water, and when it became overrun with worms, the chameleon would eat it.

Sanhedrin 108b:21

§ Rav Ḥana bar Leva'ei says that Shem the Great said to Eliezer, servant of Abraham: When the four great kings of the east and the west came upon you to wage war with Abraham, what did you do? Eliezer said to him: The Holy One, Blessed be He, brought Abraham and placed him to His right, and we would throw dust and it became swords, and we threw straw and it became arrows, as it is stated: "A Psalm of David. The Lord says to my master: Sit to My right, until I make your enemies your footstool" (Psalms 110:1), and it is written: "Who has raised up one from the east at whose steps victory attends? He gives nations before him, and makes him rule over kings; his sword makes them as the dust, his bow as driven straw" (Isaiah 41:2).

Sheshai (3 total matches)

Yoma 10a:6

The Talmud continues to discuss the interpretation of names in the Bible. The Torah says: "And there were Ahiman, Sheshai, and Talmai, the children of Anak" (Numbers 13:22). It was taught: Ahiman was so called because he was the greatest and most skillful [meyuman] of his brothers. Ahiman is a contraction of brother [a?] and right [yamin], which is the skilled hand. Sheshai was so called because he renders the ground like pits [sheḥitot] with his strides. Talmai was so called because he renders the ground filled with furrows [telamim] with his strides. Alternatively: Ahiman built the city of Anat; Sheshai built the town Alush; Talmai built the city of Talbush. The children of Anak is referring to the fact that it appears that the sun is a necklace [shema'anikin] around their necks because of their height.

Sotah 34b:9

The verse continues to state about Hebron: "And Ahiman, Sheshai, and Talmai, the children of Anak, were there" (Numbers 13:22). Ahiman was called by this name because he was the most skilled [meyumman] among his brothers. Sheshai was called by his name because he would turn the land that he treaded upon into ditches [sheḥatot] due to his large dimensions. Talmai was called this because he would turn the land that he treaded upon into furrows upon furrows [telamim] due to his weight.

Sotah 34b:10

Alternatively, their names signify another matter: Ahiman is the one who built the city of Anat. Sheshai built the city of Alush. Talmai built the city of Talbush. The verse describes them as "the children of Anak" because they were so tall and large that it appeared as if they were wearing [ma'anikin] the sun as a necklace due to their height.

Shevilnai (2 total matches)

Sanhedrin 82b:9

Rav Sheshet says: Cozbi was not her given name; rather, Shevilnai, daughter of Zur, was her real name. And why was she called Cozbi? Because through her actions, she distorted [shekizzeva] the instructions of her father. He told her to submit only to the greatest of the children of Israel, and she submitted to the leader of a tribe. Alternatively: She was called Cozbi because she said to her father: Slaughter [kos] this people through me [bi], as I will seduce them to engage in licentiousness.

Sanhedrin 82b:10

Her name was Shevilnai; and this is as people say in reference to a famous prostitute: Between reeds and willows, what does Shevilnai seek? Clearly, she seeks licentiousness. There is another adage: Among the peels of the reeds, what does Shevilnai seek? Clearly, she seeks licentiousness. She prostituted her mother. Apparently, Shevilnai became a name popularly used to connote a prostitute. Since everyone refers to her as prostitute, daughter of prostitute, she has implicated her mother with her licentiousness.

Shimei (3 total matches)

Megillah 12b:17

The Talmud answers: A Sage taught the following baraita: All of them are names by which Mordecai was called. He was called “the son of Jair” because he was the son who enlightened [heir] the eyes of all of the Jewish people with his prayers; “the son of Shimei” because he was the son whom God heard [shama] his prayers; “the son of Kish” because he knocked [hikish] on the gates of mercy and they were opened to him.

Megillah 12b:19

Rabba bar bar Ḥana said that R' Yehoshua ben Levi said an alternative explanation: Mordecai’s father was from the tribe of Benjamin, and his mother was from the tribe of Judah. Therefore, he was both a Yemini, a Benjamite, and a Yehudi, from the tribe of Judah. And the Rabbis say that the dual lineage is due to a dispute: The families competed with each other over which tribe could take credit for Mordecai. The family of Judah would say: I caused the birth of Mordecai, as only because David did not kill Shimei, the son of Gera, when he cursed him (see II Samuel 16) was it possible for Mordecai to be born later from his descendants. And the family of Benjamin said in response: In the end he came from me, as he in fact was from Benjamin’s tribe.

Megillah 13a:1

the responsibility of Judah, as David did not kill Shimei, although he was liable to the death penalty. The grave consequences of this failure included that Mordecai was born from him, and it was he against whom Haman was jealous, leading Haman to issue a decree against all of the Jewish people. And how a Benjamite has repaid me is referring to the fact that Saul, who was from the tribe of Benjamin, did not kill the Amalekite king Agag immediately, from whom Haman was later born, and he caused suffering to the Jewish people.

Shimi ben Gera (3 total matches)

Berakhot 8a:22

And R' Ḥiyya bar Ami said in the name of Ulla: One should always live in the place where his teacher lives; thereby he will avoid sin. For as long as Shimi ben Gera, who according to tradition was a great Torah scholar and teacher of Solomon (see Gittin 59a), was alive, Solomon did not marry Pharaoh's daughter. Immediately after the Bible relates the death of Shimi (I Kings, end of ch. 2), Solomon's marriage to Pharaoh's daughter is recorded (beginning of ch. 3).

Gittin 59a:7

The Talmud objects: But didn't Ira the Jairite pass away in David's lifetime? The Talmud answers: In order to qualify for this designation, we require that he be the leading figure in both Torah and high office for all the years that he is the leader of the Jewish people. The Talmud asks: Wasn't there Solomon, who was unparalleled in both domains? The Talmud answers: During his day there was Shimi ben Gera, who was Solomon's master in Torah knowledge. The Talmud objects: But didn't Solomon kill him at the beginning of his reign (see I Kings, chapter 2)? The Talmud answers: We meant to say that from the days of Moses to the days of R' Yehuda HaNasi there was no other single individual who reigned supreme in Torah and greatness all of his years.

Sanhedrin 36a:11

The Talmud asks: But wasn't there Solomon, who was unparalleled in both domains? The Talmud answers: During his day there was Shimi ben Gera, who was Solomon's master in Torah knowledge. Megillah 16a:1

that Shimshai, the king's scribe who hated the Jews (see Ezra 4:17), was erasing the description of Mordecai's saving the king, and the angel Gavriel was writing it again. Therefore, it was indeed being written in the present. R' Asi said: R' Sheila, a man of the village of Timarta, taught: If something written down below in this world that is for the benefit of the Jewish people cannot be erased, is it not all the more so the case that something written up above in Heaven cannot be erased?

And why was she called Shiphrah? Because she would prepare [mishapperet] the newborn. Alternatively, she is referred to as Shiphrah because the Jewish people increased and multiplied [shepparu verabbu] in her days, due to her assistance.

Shobach (2 total matches)

Sotah 42a:11

The priest explains why the soldiers need not be terrified. "For YHWH your God is He that goes with you, to fight for you against your enemies, to save you" (Deuteronomy 20:4). Remember that they come to war championed by flesh and blood, and you are coming championed by the Omnipresent. The Philistines came championed by Goliath. What was his end? In the end, he fell by the sword, and they fell with him (see I Samuel, chapter 17). The Ammonites came championed by Shobach. What was his end? In the end, he fell by the sword, and they fell with him (see II Samuel, chapter 10). But as for you, you are not so, reliant upon the strength of mortals: "For YHWH your God is He that goes with you, to fight for you against your enemies, to save you"; this verse is referring to the camp of the Ark of the Covenant that accompanies them out to war.

Sotah 42b:11

§ According to the mishna, the priest would say: The Ammonites came championed by Shobach (see II Samuel, chapter 10). In one account, his name is written: "Shobach" (II Samuel 10:18), and in another place it is written: "Shophach" (I Chronicles 19:18). Rav and Shmuel engaged in a dispute concerning this matter. One of them said: His name was Shophach, and why is he called by the name Shobach? It is because he was built like a dovecote [shovakh], as he was exceptionally tall. And one of them said: His name was Shobach, and why is he called by the name Shophach? It is because anyone who would see him would become terrified and his courage would be spilled [nishpakh] before him like water from a jug.

Sihon (9 total matches, showing 5)

Rosh Hashanah 2b:13

The Talmud rejects this argument: It should not enter your mind to say this, as it is written that Moses delivered his oration "after he had slain Sihon" (Deuteronomy 1:4), and when Aaron died Sihon was still alive, as it is written:

Rosh Hashanah 3a:3

The Talmud raises an objection against this proof: Is it comparable? There, the verse is speaking of Canaan, king of Arad, whereas here, the verse is speaking of Sihon. What proof, then, can be brought from the one with regard to the other? The Talmud explains: A Sage taught in a baraita: All three names are referring to the same person: He is Sihon, and he is Arad, and he is also Canaan. He was called Sihon because he was similar in his wildness to a foal [seyya?] in the desert; and he was called Canaan after his kingdom, as he ruled over the Canaanite people; and what was his real name? Arad was his name. Some say an alternative explanation: He was called Arad because he was similar to a wild ass [arod] in the desert; and he was called Canaan after his kingdom; and what was his real name? Sihon was his name.

Rosh Hashanah 3a:12

And it is written: "After he had slain Sihon, the king of the Amorites, who dwelt in Heshbon" (Deuteronomy 1:4). And it says: "And when the Canaanite, the king of Arad, who dwelt in the South, heard" (Numbers 33:40). And it says: "And all the congregation saw that Aaron was dead, and they wept for Aaron thirty days" (Numbers 20:29). And it says: "And it came to pass in the first month in the second year, on the first day of the month, that the Tabernacle was established" (Exodus 40:17).

Gittin 38a:3

The Talmud challenges: But I could say that this halakha, that a gentile can acquire a gentile as a slave for the rights to his labor, applies only to acquisition via money. However, via an act of possession, by taking him captive, he does not acquire him. Rav Pappa says in response: The land of Ammon and Moab became purified through the conquest of Sihon. After the conquest of Sihon, the land that had belonged to Ammon and Moab was considered the property of Sihon, and it was permitted for the Jewish people to conquer it although they had not been permitted to conquer the land of Ammon and Moab. In the same manner, a gentile can acquire a slave by taking possession of him as a captive.

Bava Batra 78b:14

"Let it be built and established" means that if you make this calculation, you will be built in this world and you will be established in the World-to-Come. The phrase "city [ir] of Sihon" means that if a person fashions himself like this young donkey [ayir] that follows after pleasant talk [siḥa], i.e., if one is easily tempted to listen to his inclination, what is written after it? "For a fire is gone out of Heshbon…it has devoured," i.e., a fire will go out from those who calculate the effect of their deeds in the world, and will consume those who do not calculate and examine their ways but instead do as they please.

Simeon (10 total matches, showing 5)

Yoma 54a:5

Ulla said to him: Here, with regard to the Ark, it is written: "And they are there"; whereas there, in the verse that deals with the Jebusites, it is not written. And anywhere that "there" is written with the phrase "to this day" it means forever. The Talmud raises an objection from the following verse: "And some of them, even of the sons of Simeon, five hundred men, went to Mount Seir having for their captains Pelatiah and Neariah and Rephaiah and Uzziel, the sons of Ishi. And they smote the remnant of the Amalekites who escaped, and dwelt there to this day" (I Chronicles 4:42–43).

Ketubot 72b:5

§ The mishna stated: Abba Shaul says: Also a woman who curses her husband's parents in his presence violates the precepts of Jewish women. Rav Yehuda said that Shmuel said: Even when she curses his parents in the presence of his children and not in his presence she is considered one who violates Jewish custom. And your mnemonic is "Ephraim and Manasseh will be to me like Reuben and Simeon" (Genesis 48:5), which teaches that grandchildren have the status of children. Cursing one's husband's parents in front of his children is tantamount to doing so in front of the husband himself. Rabba said: An example is that she said in the presence of her husband's son: May a lion devour your grandfather.

Sotah 36b:3

But rather, if their names were not written in the order of their births, then how do I establish the meaning of the phrase: "According to their birth" (Exodus 28:10)? It means that their names were written according to the names that their father, Jacob, called them, and not according to the names that Moses called them. On the stones it said Reuben, and not Reubenites; Simeon, and not Simeonites; Dan, and not Danites; Gad, and not Gadites. This baraita contradicts Rav Kahana's opinion, as according to all of the opinions in the baraita, the division of the names on the ephod is not identical to the division of the tribes on Mount Gerizim and Mount Ebal. The Talmud confirms: The refutation of the opinion of Rav Kahana is in fact a conclusive refutation.

Bava Batra 123a:10

Rav Pappa said to Abaye: Why not say that the term "one portion" is referring to a mere palm tree or some other relatively small extra gift, instead of a full, equal share? Abaye said to him: For you, i.e., to answer your question, the verse states: "Ephraim and Manasseh, even as Reuben and Simeon, shall be mine" (Genesis 48:5). Evidently, Joseph's children together received portions equal to that of Reuben and Simeon together, i.e., two full portions.

Bava Batra 123b:4

Rav Yosef raises an objection: Another verse indicates that the descendants of Simeon also have the ability to defeat the descendants of Esau: "And some of them, even of the sons of Simeon, five hundred men, went to Mount Seir, having for their captains Pelatiah, and Ne'ariah, and Rephaiah, and Uzziel, the sons of Ishi. And they struck the remnant of the Amalekites that escaped, and dwelled there until this day" (I Chronicles 4:42–43). Rabba bar Sheila said in response: Ishi came from the children of Manasseh, as it is written: And the sons of Manasseh: Hepher and Ishi.

Berakhot 58a:16

R' Sheila said: Since a miracle was performed on my behalf with this verse that I cited, I will interpret it homiletically: Yours, O Lord, is the greatness; that is the act of creation, and so it says: "Who does great things past finding out" (Job 9:10);
And the power; that is the exodus from Egypt, as it is stated: "And Israel saw the great work which YHWH did to the Egyptians" (Exodus 14:31);
And the glory; that is the sun and the moon that stood still for Joshua, as it is stated: "And the sun stood still, and the moon stayed, until the nation had avenged themselves of their enemies" (Joshua 10:13);
And the triumph; that is the downfall of Rome, and so it says describing the downfall of Edom, whom the Sages identified as the forefather of Rome: "Their lifeblood is dashed against My garments and I have stained all My raiment" (Isaiah 63:3);
And the majesty; this is the war of the valleys of Arnon, as it is stated: "Wherefore it is said in the book of the Wars of YHWH: Vahev in Sufa, and the valleys of Arnon" (Numbers 21:14);
For all that is in the heaven and in the earth is Yours; this is the war of Sisera, as it is stated: "They fought from heaven, the stars in their courses fought against Sisera" (Judges 5:20).
Yours is the kingdom, O Lord; this is the war of Amalek, and so it says: "And he said: The hand upon the throne of YHWH: YHWH will have war with Amalek from generation to generation" (Exodus 17:16), as then God will sit on His throne.
And you are exalted; this is the war of Gog and Magog, and so it says: "I am against you, O Gog, the chief prince of Meshekh and Tubal" (Ezekiel 38:3); and:
As head above all; Rav Ḥanan bar Rava said that R' Yoḥanan said: All leadership and authority, even the most insignificant, the one responsible for distributing water, is appointed by heaven.

Pesachim 117a:19

R' Elazar HaModa'i says: Deborah and Barak recited it when Sisera stood against them (see Judges 4–5). They said: Not to us, and the Divine Spirit responded and said to them: For My own sake, for My own sake, will I do it. R' Elazar ben Azarya says: Hezekiah and his company recited it when Sennacherib stood against them (see II Kings 18–19). They said: Not to us and the Divine Spirit responded: For My own sake. R' Akiva says: Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah recited it when the wicked Nebuchadnezzar stood against them (see Daniel 3). They said: Not to us, and the Divine Spirit responded: For My own sake. R' Yosei HaGelili says: Mordecai and Esther recited it when the wicked Haman stood against them. They said: Not to us, and the Divine Spirit responded: For My own sake (see the book of Esther).

Pesachim 118b:5

The Talmud asks: What is this one and a half times their number? How was God's promise fulfilled? The Talmud answers: While, with regard to Pharaoh, it is written: "Six hundred chosen chariots" (Exodus 14:7), whereas, with regard to Sisera, it is written: "Nine hundred iron chariots" (Judges 4:13).

Pesachim 118b:6

The Talmud relates: When Sisera came to fight Israel, he came upon them with iron spears, whereupon God, removed the stars from their orbits to fight against Sisera's army, as it is written: "They fought from heaven, the stars in their courses fought against Sisera" (Judges 5:20). Since the stars fell on them, these iron spears heated up and they went to cool them and wash themselves in the Kishon River.

Rosh Hashanah 33b:10

Abaye said: In this matter, the tanna'im certainly disagree. Although the first baraita can be reconciled with the mishna, this second baraita clearly reflects a dispute. As it is written: "It is a day of sounding [terua] the shofar to you" (Numbers 29:1), and we translate this verse in Aramaic as: It is a day of yevava to you. And to define a yevava, the Talmud quotes a verse that is written about the mother of Sisera: "Through the window she looked forth and wailed [vateyabev], the mother of Sisera" (Judges 5:28). One Sage, the tanna of the baraita, holds that this means moanings, broken sighs, as in the blasts called shevarim. And one Sage, the tanna of the mishna, holds that it means whimpers, as in the short blasts called teruot.

Solomon (165 total matches, showing 5)

Berakhot 4a:13

In his book of wisdom, Solomon said about this wise son: “My son, if your heart is wise, my heart will be glad, even mine” (Proverbs 23:15), as David enjoyed witnessing his son Kilav develop into a Torah luminary to the extent that Kilav was able to respond to Mefivoshet. And Solomon says about Kilav: “Be wise, my son, and make my heart glad, that I may respond to those who taunt me” (Proverbs 27:11).

Berakhot 8a:22

And R' Ḥiyya bar Ami said in the name of Ulla: One should always live in the place where his teacher lives; thereby he will avoid sin. For as long as Shimi ben Gera, who according to tradition was a great Torah scholar and teacher of Solomon (see Gittin 59a), was alive, Solomon did not marry Pharaoh’s daughter. Immediately after the Bible relates the death of Shimi (I Kings, end of ch. 2), Solomon’s marriage to Pharaoh’s daughter is recorded (beginning of ch. 3).

Berakhot 10a:12

R' Yoḥanan said explanations of other verses in the name of R' Shimon ben Yoḥai: What is the meaning of that which is written: “She opens her mouth with wisdom, and the teaching of loving-kindness is on her tongue” (Proverbs 31:26)? The Sages explain that this chapter discusses the wisdom of Torah and those who engage in its study, so with reference to whom did Solomon say this verse? He said this verse about none other than his father, David, who was the clearest example of one who opens his mouth in wisdom, and who resided in five worlds or stages of life and his soul said a song of praise corresponding to each of them. Five times David said: “Bless YHWH, O my soul,” each corresponding to a different stage of life.

Berakhot 17a:6

When R' Yoḥanan would conclude study of the book of Job, he said the following:
A person will ultimately die and an animal will ultimately be slaughtered, and all are destined for death.
Therefore, death itself is not a cause for great anguish.
Rather, happy is he who grew up in Torah, whose labor is in Torah,
who gives pleasure to his Creator,
who grew up with a good name and who took leave of the world with a good name.
Such a person lived his life fully, and about him, Solomon said:
“A good name is better than fine oil, and the day of death than the day of one’s birth” (Ecclesiastes 7:1); one who was faultless in life reaches the day of his death on a higher level than he was at the outset.

Berakhot 29a:12

The Talmud continues: Corresponding to what were these twenty-four blessings of the Amida prayer of the fast days instituted? R' Ḥelbo said: They correspond to the twenty-four “songs” that Solomon said when he brought the ark into the Holy of Holies during the dedication of the Temple, as there are twenty-four expressions of song, prayer, and supplication there (I Kings 8). The Talmud asks: If so, then let us say these twenty-four blessing every day. The Talmud answers: When did Solomon say them? On a day of supplication for mercy. We, too, say them on a day of supplication for mercy.

Berakhot 10a:30

Hezekiah said to Isaiah: Now give me your daughter as my wife; perhaps my merit and your merit will cause virtuous children to emerge from me.
Isaiah said to him: The decree has already been decreed against you and this judgment cannot be changed.
Hezekiah said to him: Son of Amoz, cease your prophecy and leave. As long as the prophet spoke as God's emissary, Hezekiah was obligated to listen to him. He was not, however, obligated to accept Isaiah's personal opinion that there was no possibility for mercy and healing.

Pesachim 87b:9

R' Yoḥanan said: Woe to authority, which shortens the life and buries its holders. This is evident from the fact that you don't have any prophet who did not outlast four kings in his lifetime, as the kings' positions of authority caused them to die young. A prophet outliving four kings is demonstrated in the opening verses of Hosea, and similarly, as it is stated with regard to Isaiah: "The vision of Isaiah, the son of Amoz, which he saw concerning Judea and Jerusalem in the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judea" (Isaiah 1:1).

Megillah 10b:15

Rather, because she covered her face in the house of her father-in-law and he was not familiar with her appearance, Judah didn't recognize Tamar, thought she was a harlot, and sought to have sexual relations with her. Ultimately, she merited that kings and prophets emerged from her. Kings emerged from her through David, who was a descendant of Tamar's son, Peretz. However, there is no explicit mention that she was the forebear of prophets. This is derived from that which R' Levi said: This matter is a tradition that we received from our ancestors. Amoz, father of Isaiah, and Amaziah, king of Judea, were brothers, and it is written: "The vision of Isaiah the son of Amoz" (Isaiah 1:1). Amoz was a member of the Davidic dynasty, and his son, the prophet Isaiah, was also a descendant of Tamar.

Sotah 10b:3

R' Elazar says: The verse means that Tamar covered her face in the home of her father-in-law, Judah. Therefore, he did not recognize her when her face was uncovered. As R' Shmuel bar Naḥmani says that R' Yonatan says: Any daughter-in-law who is modest in the house of her father-in-law merits that kings and prophets emerge from her. From where do we derive this? From Tamar. Prophets emerged from her, as it is written: "The vision of Isaiah, the son of Amoz" (Isaiah 1:1). Kings emerged from her, as seen from David. And R' Levi says: This matter is a tradition that we received from our ancestors: Amoz, father of Isaiah, and Amaziah, king of Judea, were brothers. This indicates that Isaiah was also from the house of David and therefore a descendant of Tamar.

Shabbat 89a:3

And R' Yehoshua ben Levi said: When Moses descended from standing before God, with the Torah, Satan came and said before Him: Master of the Universe, where is the Torah?
He said to him: I have given it to the earth. He went to the earth, and said to it: Where is the Torah? It said to him: I do not know, as only: "God understands its way, and He knows its place" (Job 28:23).
He went to the sea and asked: Where is the Torah? And the sea said to him: "It is not with me."
He went to the depths and asked: Where is the Torah? And the depths said to him: "It is not within me." And from where is it derived that the sea and the depths answered him this way? As it is stated: "The depth said: It is not within me, and the sea said: It is not with me" (Job 28:14). "Destruction and death said: We heard a rumor of it with our ears" (Job 28:22).
Satan returned and said before God: Master of the Universe, I searched for the Torah throughout all the earth and did not find it. He said to him: Go to Moses, son of Amram.

Nedarim 39b:13

Apropos the conflict between Moses and Korah, the Talmud cites an additional verse that Rava interpreted homiletically, and some say that it was R' Yitzḥak who said: What is the meaning of that which is written: "The sun and moon stood still in their habitation [zevula], at the light of Your arrows as they go, at the shining of Your glittering spear" (Habakkuk 3:11)? What do the sun and moon seek in zevul, which is the fourth heaven; aren't they fixed in rakia, the second heaven? Rather, this teaches that the sun and moon ascended from rakia to zevul and said before Him: Master of the Universe! If You do justice for the son of Amram, i.e., Moses, in his dispute with Korah, we will continue to illuminate the world, and if not, we will not illuminate the world.

Caleb said to himself: If I speak they will also say something about me and stop me from speaking. He began to speak and said to them: And is this the only thing that the son of Amram, Moses, has done to us? They thought that he wanted to relate something to the discredit of Moses, and they were silent.

Sanhedrin 82a:12

He seized her by her forelock and brought her before Moses. Zimri said to Moses: Son of Amram, is this woman forbidden or permitted? And if you say that she is forbidden, as for the daughter of Yitro to whom you are married, who permitted her to you? The *halakha with regard to the proper course of action when encountering a Jewish man engaging in intercourse with a gentile woman eluded Moses. All of the members of the Sanhedrin bawled in their weeping, and that is the meaning of that which is written: "And they are crying at the entrance of the Tent of Meeting" (Numbers 25:6). And it is written thereafter: "And Pinehas, son of Elazar, son of Aaron the priest, saw and arose from the midst of the congregation and took a spear in his hand" (Numbers 25:7).

Sanhedrin 110a:15

Rava says: What is the meaning of that which is written: "The sun and moon stand still in their habitation [zevula], at the light of Your arrows as they go" (Habakkuk 3:11)? This teaches that the sun and moon ascended to zevul, one of the seven firmaments, in which the upper Temple stands. They said before God: Master of the Universe, if You perform justice for Moses, the son of Amram, and prove his righteousness, we will emerge and illuminate the world. And if not, we will not emerge. They did not emerge until God fired arrows at them and said to them: You did not protest with regard to My honor, as people would see the sun and the moon each day and worship them, but you protested for the honor of flesh and blood? And today, the sun and the moon do not emerge until they are struck, as in deference to God they hesitate to emerge.

What did Zimri do? He arose and gathered twenty-four thousand people from the children of Israel, and went to Cozbi, daughter of Zur, princess of Midian, and said to her: Submit to me and engage in intercourse with me. She said to him: I am the daughter of a king, and this is what my father commanded me: Submit only to the greatest of them. Zimri said to her: He, too, referring to himself, is the head of a tribe; moreover, he is greater than Moses, as he is the second of the womb, as he descends from Simeon, the second son of Jacob, and Moses is the third of the womb, as he descends from Levi, the third son of Jacob.

Sanhedrin 82b:11

R' Yoḥanan says: Zimri has five names: Zimri; and son of Salu; and Saul; and son of the Canaanite woman; and Shelumiel, son of Zuri Shaddai. He was called Zimri because of the fact that he became like an addled [hamuzeret] egg as a result of engaging in multiple acts of intercourse. He was called son of Salu because of the fact that he evoked [shehisli] the sins of his family. He was called Saul [Shaul] because of the fact that he lent [shehishil] himself to sinful matters. He was called son of the Canaanite woman because of the fact that he performed an act of Canaan, as the Canaanites are renowned for their licentiousness. And what is his given name? R' Elazar said: "And under his honor" means in place of his actual honor. That is to say, their bodies were burned. Since, in R' Elazar's opinion, the word under means in the place of, the verse accordingly means that in the place of his honor, i.e., the body, there remain ashes.
R' Shmuel bar Naḥmani said: Under his honor means beneath his flesh, similar to the burning of the sons of Aaron. Just as there, i.e., the burning of Aaron's sons, the soul burned while the body remained intact, so too here, i.e., the burning of Assyrian soldiers, the soul burned while the body remained intact.

Eruvin 63a:15

The Talmud asks: Is the disciple not liable to receive the death penalty if he issues his ruling not in the teacher's presence? But wasn't it taught otherwise in a baraita: R' Eliezer says: The sons of Aaron died only because they issued a halakhic ruling before Moses, their teacher? What did they expound in support of their conclusion that they must bring fire inside as opposed to waiting for fire to come down from the heavens? It is stated in the Torah: "And the sons of Aaron the priest shall put fire on the altar, and lay the wood in order on the fire" (Leviticus 1:7), which led them to say: Although fire descends from Heaven, it is nonetheless a mitzva to bring ordinary fire. Although they derived this from the verses, they were punished for ruling in the presence of their teacher.

Pesachim 64b:19

The Talmud asks: From where do we derive that their blood requires sprinkling upon the altar on a side that has a base? R' Elazar said: This is derived by way of a verbal analogy between the word sprinkling used here and the word sprinkling used with regard to a burnt-offering. Here, it is written: "You shall sprinkle their blood upon the altar;" there, it is written with regard to a burnt-offering: "And he shall slaughter it on the side of the altar northward before YHWH; and the sons of Aaron, the priests, shall sprinkle its blood round about upon the altar" (Leviticus 1:11). Just as the blood of a burnt-offering must be sprinkled on the altar in a place where there is a base, so too, the blood of a Paschal lamb must be sprinkled in a place where there is a base.

Pesachim 65b:2

It was taught in a baraita that R' Yehuda said to the Rabbis: According to your statement that there is no need to fill a cup of blood from the floor, why did they plug the drains of the Temple courtyard on Passover eve and not let the blood flow immediately into the drainage pipes? They said to him: It is praiseworthy of the sons of Aaron, the priests, to walk in blood up to their ankles, thereby demonstrating their love for the Temple rite.

Pesachim 75a:14

The Talmud suggests: If so, all the more so fire itself fulfills the requirement of burning. Let us surround her with bundles of branches and burn her with them. The Talmud responds: It comes from a verbal analogy between the word "burning" stated here and the word "burning" stated and in the context of the death of the sons of Aaron: Just as below, with regard to the sons of Aaron, the verse states that they were burned with fire (see Leviticus 10:2), and it was a burning of the soul and the body remained, as even their clothes were not burned, so too, here, with regard to the daughter of a priest, it means the burning of the soul and the body remains.

Pesachim 57a:9

Apropos the critique of several prominent priests, the Talmud relates that the Sages taught: The people in the Temple courtyard all cried four cries, as they were in agreement over various issues (Pardes Rimonim). The first cry was: Leave here, sons of Eli, who defiled God's Sanctuary (see I Samuel 2:22). Subsequently the priesthood was transferred to the house of Zadok. And an additional cry: Leave here, Yissakhar of Kfar Barkai, who honors himself and desecrates the items consecrated to Heaven. Due to his delicate nature and his disrespect for the Temple service, he would wrap his hands in silk [shirai] and perform the service. This would invalidate the service because the silk was an interposition between his hands and the Temple vessels. Furthermore, his conduct demeaned the Temple service, as he demonstrated that he was unwilling to dirty his hands for it.

Yoma 9a:6

§ Apropos the sins of the High Priests in the Second Temple, the Talmud cites that R' Yoḥanan ben Torta said: Due to what reason was the Tabernacle in Shiloh destroyed in the time of the prophet Samuel? It was destroyed due to the fact that there were two matters that existed in the Tabernacle: Forbidden sexual relations and degradation of consecrated items. There were forbidden sexual relations, as it is written: "Now Eli was very old and he heard what his sons were doing to all of Israel, how they lay with the women who did service at the opening of the Tent of Meeting" (I Samuel 2:22). And although R' Shmuel bar Naḥmani said that R' Yoḥanan said: Anyone who says that the sons of Eli sinned by engaging in forbidden sexual relations is nothing other than mistaken, even according to the alternative interpretation of the verse that it was due to the fact that the sons of Samuel sinned is nothing other than mistaken, as it is stated: "And it came to pass, when Samuel was old that he made his sons judges over Israel...And his sons walked not in his ways but sought after unjust gain, and took bribes, and perverted justice" (I Samuel 8:1–3). By inference: In his ways they did not walk, however, they did not sin either. They were not the equals of their father, but they were not sinners.

The Talmud answers: These are the sons of Korah, as it is written: "But the sons of Korah did not die" (Numbers 26:11), and with regard to them it is taught in the name of our teacher, R' Yehuda HaNasi: A high place was set aside for them in Gehenna, as the sons of Korah repented in their hearts, and were consequently not propelled very far down in Gehenna when the earth opened to swallow Korah and his followers; and they stood on this high place and sung to YHWH. Shabbat 56a:1

Talmai (3 total matches)

Yoma 10a:6

The Talmud continues to discuss the interpretation of names in the Bible. The Torah says: "And there were Ahiman, Sheshai, and Talmai, the children of Anak" (Numbers 13:22). It was taught: Ahiman was so called because he was the greatest and most skillful [meyuman] of his brothers. Ahiman is a contraction of brother [a?] and right [yamin], which is the skilled hand. Sheshai was so called because he renders the ground like pits [sheḥitot] with his strides. Talmai was so called because he renders the ground filled with furrows [telamim] with his strides. Alternatively: Ahiman built the city of Anat; Sheshai built the town Alush; Talmai built the city of Talbush. The children of Anak is referring to the fact that it appears that the sun is a necklace [shema'anikin] around their necks because of their height.

Sotah 34b:9

The verse continues to state about Hebron: "And Ahiman, Sheshai, and Talmai, the children of Anak, were there" (Numbers 13:22). Ahiman was called by this name because he was the most skilled [meyumman] among his brothers. Sheshai was called by his name because he would turn the land that he treaded upon into ditches [sheḥatot] due to his large dimensions. Talmai was called this because he would turn the land that he treaded upon into furrows upon furrows [telamim] due to his weight.

Sotah 34b:10

Alternatively, their names signify another matter: Ahiman is the one who built the city of Anat. Sheshai built the city of Alush. Talmai built the city of Talbush. The verse describes them as "the children of Anak" because they were so tall and large that it appeared as if they were wearing [ma'anikin] the sun as a necklace due to their height.

Berakhot 43b:8

And Rav Zutra bar Toviya said that Rav said; and some say Rav Ḥana bar Bizna said that R' Shimon Ḥasida said; and some say R' Yoḥanan said in the name of R' Shimon ben Yoḥai: It is preferable, from an ethical perspective, for one to throw himself into a fiery furnace rather than humiliate another in public. From where do we derive this? From Tamar, the daughter-in-law of Judah, when she was taken out to be burned, as it is stated: "As she was brought forth, she sent to her father-in-law, saying I am pregnant by the man to whom these belong, and she said examine these, to whom does this seal, cord and staff belong?" (Genesis 38:25). Despite her dire situation, she did not reveal that she was pregnant with Judah's child; rather, she left the decision to him, to avoid humiliating him in public.

Yoma 22b:12

The Talmud asks: But were these his only two sins? There is also the incident of Bathsheba, in which he took another man's wife as his own. The Talmud answers: There, in that case, punishment was exacted from him separately, so the matter is no longer listed among his sins, as it is written with regard to this incident: "And he shall restore the lamb fourfold" (II Samuel 12:6). The lamb was a metaphor for Bathsheba, and ultimately David was indeed given a fourfold punishment for taking Bathsheba: The first child born to Bathsheba and David died (see II Samuel 12:13–23); David's son Amnon was killed; Tamar, his daughter, was raped by Amnon (see II Samuel 13); and his son Avshalom rebelled against him and was ultimately killed (see II Samuel 15–18).

Megillah 10b:14

The Talmud responds: It is in accordance with that which R' Shmuel bar Naḥmani said that R' Yonatan said: Any bride who is modest in the house of her father-in-law merits that kings and prophets will emerge from her. From where do we derive this? From Tamar, as it is written: "When Judah saw her, he thought her to be a prostitute; for she had covered her face" (Genesis 38:15). Can it be that because Tamar covered her face he thought her to be a prostitute? On the contrary, a harlot tends to uncover her face.

The first report of the incident of the Golden Calf, i.e., the Torah's account of the incident itself (Exodus 32:1–20), is read and translated, but the second narrative, i.e., Aaron's report to Moses of what had taken place (Exodus 32:21–24) is read but not translated. The verses constituting the Priestly Benediction (Numbers 6:24–26) and the incident of David and Amnon (II Samuel, chapter 13) are read, but not translated.

Megillah 25b:3

The Tosefta continues: The incident of Tamar, beginning with a tav, and Judah is read and translated. The Talmud comments: This is obvious. The Talmud answers: Lest you say that one should be concerned for the honor of Judah, therefore the Tosefta teaches us that there is no such concern. On the contrary, the story is to his credit, as he confessed to his sin.

And that which R' Meir said, i.e., that the divine inspiration of the book of Esther is clear from the fact that Mordecai exposed the conspiracy against Ahasuerus, perhaps this can be explained and refuted in accordance with the opinion of R' Ḥiyya bar Abba, who said: Bigtan and Teresh were both members of the Tarsi people and conversed in their own language. Mordecai, who was a member of the Sanhedrin and therefore fluent in many languages, understood what they were saying.

Megillah 13b:8

The Megilla continues: “In those days, while Mordecai sat in the king’s gate, two of the king’s chamberlains, Bigthan and Teresh, of those that guarded the doors, became angry, and sought to lay hands on the king Ahasuerus” (Esther 2:21). R' Ḥiyya bar Abba said that R' Yoḥanan said: The Holy One, Blessed be He, caused a master to become angry with his servants in order to fulfill the will of a righteous man. And who is this? It is Joseph, as it is stated in the chief butler’s account of how Pharaoh had become angry with him and with the chief baker and sent them to jail: “And there was with us there a young man, a Hebrew” (Genesis 41:12).

Megillah 13b:10

The Talmud explains how the matter became known to him. R' Yoḥanan said: Bigthan and Teresh were two Tarsians, and they would talk with one another in the Tarsian language. The verse indicates that these are the waters that the astrologers of Pharaoh saw and on account of which they erred. And this is what Moses said: "The people, among whom I am, are six hundred thousand men on foot [ragli]; and yet You have said: I will give them flesh, that they may eat a whole month" (Numbers 11:21). Moses said to the Jewish people: On account of me, which is an alternative meaning of the word ragli, all of you were saved, as the decree to throw all males into the river was canceled on my account.

the daughter of Pharaoh (6 total matches, showing 5)

Megillah 13a:3

§ Incidental to the exposition of the word Yehudi as one who repudiates idolatry, the Talmud relates that when R' Shimon ben Pazi introduced his exposition of the book of Chronicles, he addressed the book of Chronicles and said as follows: All of your words are one, and we know how to expound them. This introduction made reference to the fact that the book of Chronicles cannot always be interpreted literally but requires exposition, as the same individual might be called by various different names, as in the following verse: "And his wife HaYehudiyya bore Jered the father of Gedor, and Heber the father of Soco, and Jekuthiel the father of Zanoah. And these are the sons of Bithiah the daughter of Pharaoh, whom Mered took" (I Chronicles 4:18).

Megillah 13a:4

Why is she, who we are told at the end of the verse was Pharaoh's daughter Bithiah, referred to as Yehudiyya? Because she repudiated idol worship, as it is written: "And the daughter of Pharaoh came down to wash herself in the river" (Exodus 2:5), and R' Yoḥanan said: She went down to wash and purify herself from the idols of her father's house.

Megillah 13a:8

The aforementioned verse stated: "And these are the sons of Bithiah the daughter of Pharaoh, whom Mered took." The Talmud asks: Was Bithiah's husband's name Mered? Wasn't his name Caleb? Rather, the verse alludes to the reason that Caleb married Bithiah. The Holy One, Blessed be He, said: Let Caleb, who rebelled [marad] against the advice of the spies, come and marry the daughter of Pharaoh, who rebelled against the idols of her father's home.

Yevamot 76a:16

Rav Yosef raised an objection from the verse that states: "And Solomon married the daughter of Pharaoh, king of Egypt" (I Kings 3:1), which indicates that there can, in fact, be valid marriage even with gentiles. The Talmud answers: Before Solomon took Pharaoh's daughter as his wife, he converted her. The Talmud asks: But isn't it so that they did not accept converts, neither in the days of David nor in the days of Solomon? The Talmud answers: But isn't the reason that they did not accept converts during those periods only due to concern that the converts were not acting for the sake of Heaven but in fact desired the power of the table of kings, David and Solomon?

Sotah 12b:2

The verse states: "And the daughter of Pharaoh came down to bathe [lirḥotz] in the river" (Exodus 2:5). R' Yoḥanan says in the name of R' Shimon ben Yoḥai: This teaches that she came down to the river to cleanse herself from the impurity of her father's idols, as she was immersing herself as part of the conversion process. And similarly it states: "When YHWH shall have washed [raḥatz] away the filth of the daughters of Zion, and shall have purged the blood of Jerusalem from the midst thereof, by the spirit of judgment, and by the spirit of destruction" (Isaiah 4:4). This washing clearly refers to the purging of spiritual sins, rather than bathing for the sake of cleanliness.

the generation of the dispersion (9 total matches, showing 5)

Taanit 27b:4

The Talmud explains this verse. Abraham said: Master of the Universe, perhaps the Jews will sin before You. Will You treat them as You did the generation of the flood and the generation of the dispersion, and destroy them? God said to him: No. Abraham said before God: Master of the Universe, tell me, with what shall I inherit it? How can my descendants ensure that You will maintain the world? God said to Abraham: "Take for Me a three-year-old heifer, and a three-year-old goat, and a three-year-old ram, and a turtledove, and a young pigeon" (Genesis 15:9). God was alluding to the offerings, in whose merit the Jewish people, and through them the entire world, will be spared divine punishment.

Chagigah 12a:9

The Talmud answers: This should be understood in accordance with R' Elazar, as R' Elazar said: The light that God, created on the first day was not that of the sun but a different kind of light, through which man could observe from one end of the world to the other. But when God, looked upon the generation of the Flood and the generation of the Dispersion and saw that their ways were corrupt and that they might misuse this light for evil, He arose and concealed it from them, as it is stated: "And from the wicked their light is withheld" (Job 38:15).

Bava Metzia 44a:12

But with regard to the latter case, the Sages said: He Who exacted payment from the people of the generation of the flood, and from the generation of the dispersion, i.e., that of the Tower of Babel, will in the future exact payment from whoever does not stand by his statement. Just as the people of those generations were not punished by an earthly court but were subjected to divine punishment, so too, although no earthly court can compel the person who reneged to complete the transaction, punishment will be exacted at the hand of Heaven for any damage that he caused.

Bava Metzia 48a:1

R' Shimon says: Even though the Sages said that when one party takes possession of a garment, the other party acquires a gold dinar, but when one party takes possession of a gold dinar, the other party does not acquire a garment, in any case, that is what the halakha would be. But the Sages said with regard to one who reneges on a transaction where one party pulled the gold dinar into his possession: He Who exacted payment from the people of the generation of the flood, and from the people of the generation of the dispersion, and from the inhabitants of Sodom and Gomorrah, and from the Egyptians in the Red Sea, will in the future exact payment from whoever does not stand by his statement.

Bava Metzia 49a:7

The Talmud raises an objection. R' Shimon says: Even though the Sages said that when one party takes possession of a garment, the other party acquires a gold dinar, but when one party takes possession of a gold dinar, the other party does not acquire a garment, in any case, that is what the halakha would be. But the Sages said with regard to one who reneges on a transaction where one party pulled the gold dinar into his possession: He Who exacted payment from the people of the generation of the flood, and from the people of the generation of the dispersion, and from the inhabitants of Sodom and Gomorrah, and from the Egyptians in the Red Sea, will in the future exact payment from whoever does not stand by his statement. And one who negotiates, where the negotiation culminates with a statement in which he commits himself to acquire the item, did not acquire the item without a formal act of acquisition. But with regard to one who reneges on his commitment, the Sages are displeased with him. Apparently, one who reneges is considered to have acted in bad faith.

the generation of the flood (21 total matches, showing 5)

Taanit 27b:4

The Talmud explains this verse. Abraham said: Master of the Universe, perhaps the Jews will sin before You. Will You treat them as You did the generation of the flood and the generation of the dispersion, and destroy them? God said to him: No. Abraham said before God: Master of the Universe, tell me, with what shall I inherit it? How can my descendants ensure that You will maintain the world? God said to Abraham: "Take for Me a three-year-old heifer, and a three-year-old goat, and a three-year-old ram, and a turtledove, and a young pigeon" (Genesis 15:9). God was alluding to the offerings, in whose merit the Jewish people, and through them the entire world, will be spared divine punishment.

Chagigah 12a:9

The Talmud answers: This should be understood in accordance with R' Elazar, as R' Elazar said: The light that God, created on the first day was not that of the sun but a different kind of light, through which man could observe from one end of the world to the other. But when God, looked upon the generation of the Flood and the generation of the Dispersion and saw that their ways were corrupt and that they might misuse this light for evil, He arose and concealed it from them, as it is stated: "And from the wicked their light is withheld" (Job 38:15).

Gittin 60a:13

The Talmud comments: The question of whether or not writing a scroll for a child is permitted is subject to a dispute between tanna'im, as it is taught in the following baraita: One may not write a scroll containing only one portion of the Torah for the purpose of enabling a child to study, but if the writer's intention is to complete the scroll, it is permitted. R' Yehuda says: In the book of Genesis he may write a scroll from the beginning until the generation of the flood. In *Torat Kohanim, the book of Leviticus, he may write a scroll from the beginning until "And it came to pass on the eighth day" (Leviticus 9:1).

Kiddushin 13a:12

They then sat and said additional statements in the name of R' Asi. One statement concerned that which Rav Yehuda says that Shmuel says: Anyone who does not know the nature of bills of divorce and betrothals should have no dealings in them, as his ignorance might lead people to commit serious sins. In this context, R' Asi says that R' Yoḥanan says: And those who deal with these issues without proper knowledge are worse for the world than the generation of the flood, as it is stated: "Swearing and lying, and killing, and stealing, and committing adultery. They break all bounds, and blood touches blood" (Hosea 4:2).

Kiddushin 13a:14

And it is written in the next verse: "Therefore the land mourns and everyone who dwells there languishes, with the beasts of the field and the fowls of heaven, and the fishes of the sea are also taken away" (Hosea 4:3). This indicates that those who cause illegitimate children to be born lead to such a great tragedy that even the fish of the sea will die, whereas in the generation of the flood the decree was not imposed upon the fish in the sea, as it is stated: "Whatever was on dry land died" (Genesis 7:22). The explicit mention of dry land indicates that the fish in the sea did not die. But here, in the punishment described in the verses in Hosea, even the fish in the sea died.

the Matriarchs (2 total matches)

Rosh Hashanah 11a:8

The Talmud asks: From where may it be inferred that the term eitan denotes mighty? As it is written: "Strong [eitan] is Your dwelling place, and You put Your nest in a rock" (Numbers 24:21). And it says: "Hear, O mountains, YHWH's controversy, and you strong [eitanim] foundations of the earth" (Micah 6:2), which is a call to the Patriarchs. And it says: "The voice of my beloved; behold, he comes leaping upon the mountains, skipping upon the hills" (Song of Songs 2:8): "Leaping upon the mountains" means that the redemption will arrive early in the merit of the Patriarchs, who are called mountains, and "skipping upon the hills" means that it will come in the merit of the Matriarchs.

Chullin 92a:7

It is taught in a baraita: R' Eliezer says an alternate interpretation of the verse. "Vine"; this is a reference to the world. "Three branches"; this is a reference to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. "And as it was budding, its blossoms shot forth"; these are the matriarchs. "And its clusters brought forth ripe grapes"; these are the twelve tribes, i.e., the twelve sons of Jacob.

the Patriarchs (12 total matches, showing 5)

Berakhot 26b:4

The dispute between the Rabbis and R' Yehuda with regard to the times beyond which the different prayers may not be recited is rooted in a profound disagreement, also manifest in a later amoraic dispute. It was stated: R' Yosei, son of R' Ḥanina, said: The practice of praying three times daily is ancient, albeit not in its present form; prayers were instituted by the Patriarchs. However, R' Yehoshua ben Levi said that the prayers were instituted based on the daily offerings sacrificed in the Holy Temple, and the prayers parallel the offerings, in terms of both time and characteristics.

Berakhot 26b:14

In any case, it is clear that according to this baraita the halakhot of prayer are based on the Temple offerings. The Talmud suggests: Let us say that this is a conclusive refutation of the opinion of R' Yosei, son of R' Ḥanina, who held that the forefathers instituted the prayers. R' Yosei, son of R' Ḥanina, could have said to you: Actually, I will say to you that the Patriarchs instituted the prayers and the Sages based the times and characteristics of prayer on the Temple offerings, even though they do not stem from the same source. As, if you do not say so, that even R' Yosei, son of R' Ḥanina, would agree that the laws of offerings and those of prayers are related, then, according to R' Yosei, son of R' Ḥanina, who instituted the additional prayer? It is not one of the prayers instituted by the forefathers. Rather, even according to R' Yosei, son of R' Ḥanina, the prayers were instituted by the Patriarchs and the Sages based them on the laws of the offerings.

Shabbat 55a:11

The Talmud asks further: And what is different about the letter tav*, that it was inscribed on the foreheads of the righteous? Rav said: Tav is the first letter of the word tiḥye, you shall live, indicating that the righteous shall live. Tav is also the first letter of the word tamut*, you shall die, indicating that the wicked shall die. And Shmuel said: The letter tav is the first letter of the word tama, ceased, indicating that the merit of the Patriarchs has ceased and will not help the wicked. R' Yoḥanan said: The letter tav is the first letter of the word taḥon, will have mercy, indicating that due to the merit of the Patriarchs God will have mercy on the righteous.

Shabbat 55a:13

With regard to the statement that the merit of the Patriarchs has ceased, the Talmud asks: From when did the merit of the Patriarchs cease? Rav said: From the days of the prophet Hosea, son of Beeri, as it is stated: "And now I will uncover her lewdness in the sight of her lovers, and none shall deliver her out of My hand" (Hosea 2:12). Israel will no longer be saved by the merit of the Patriarchs.

Rosh Hashanah 10b:10

It is taught in a baraita that the tanna'im disagreed about this point: R' Eliezer says: In Tishrei the world was created; in Tishrei the Patriarchs were born; in Tishrei the Patriarchs died; on Passover Isaac was born; on Rosh HaShana Sarah, Rachel, and Hannah were remembered by God and conceived; on Rosh HaShana Joseph came out from prison;

the prophet Habakkuk (1 total match)

Taanit 23a:4

§ The mishna taught: An incident occurred in which the people sent a message to Ḥoni HaMe’aggel. This event is related in greater detail in the following baraita. The Sages taught: Once, most of the month of Adar had passed but rain had still not fallen. They sent this message to Ḥoni HaMe’aggel: Pray, and rain will fall. He prayed, but no rain fell. He drew a circle in the dust and stood inside it, in the manner that the prophet Habakkuk did, as it is stated: “And I will stand upon my watch and set myself upon the tower, and I will look out to see what He will say to me, and what I shall answer when I am reproved” (Habakkuk 2:1). This verse is taken to mean that Habakkuk fashioned a kind of prison for himself where he sat.

the righteous Esther (1 total match)

Megillah 10b:23

The next section of the verse states: “Shall the myrtle [hadas] come up”; this is the righteous Esther, who was called Hadassah in the Megilla, as it is stated: “And he had brought up Hadassah; that is, Esther” (Esther 2:7). The concluding section of the verse states: “And it shall be to YHWH for a name”; this is the reading of the Megilla. “For an everlasting sign that shall not be cut off”; these are the days of Purim.

the righteous Mordecai (1 total match)

Megillah 10b:28

R' Abba bar Kahana introduced this passage with an introduction from here. The verse states with regard to God's reward to the righteous: "He gives to a man that is good in His sight wisdom, and knowledge, and joy" (Ecclesiastes 2:26). The Talmud explains that this verse is referring to the righteous Mordecai. With regard to the next part of the verse: "But to the sinner He gives the task of gathering and heaping up," this is referring to Haman. The conclusion of the verse states: "That he may give it to one who is good before God" (Ecclesiastes 2:26). This is Mordecai and Esther, as it is written: "And Esther set Mordecai over the house of Haman" (Esther 8:2).

the son of Manoah (3 total matches)

Nazir 4a:10

MISHNA: If one said: I am hereby like Samson, like the son of Manoah, like the husband of Delilah, like the one who tore off the doors of Gaza, like the one whose eyes were gouged out by the Philistines, he is a nazirite like Samson, whose halakhot are explained in the next mishna (see Judges, chapters 13–16).

Nazir 4a:11

GEMARA: The Talmud asks: Why do I need the tanna to teach all these cases? It should be enough to state only the halakha where one says: Like Samson. The Talmud answers: These specifications are necessary because if one said only: I am hereby like Samson, I would say he was referring to another Samson, and this is not a nazirite vow. The tanna therefore teaches us that he adds: Like the son of Manoah, which shows he is referring to the biblical Samson.

Nazir 4a:12

And if the tanna had taught that he said he would be: Like the son of Manoah, I would say there is some person who is called that name, Samson, son of Manoah, and this is not a reference to the biblical Samson and is not an acceptance of naziriteship. The tanna therefore teaches us that he adds: Like the husband of Delilah, or: Like the one who tore off the doors of Gaza, or: Like the one whose eyes were gouged out by the Philistines. It is therefore clear that he is referring to the biblical figure and that his statement is a vow of naziriteship.

the spies (19 total matches, showing 5)

Megillah 13a:8

The aforementioned verse stated: "And these are the sons of Bithiah the daughter of Pharaoh, whom Mered took." The Talmud asks: Was Bithiah's husband's name Mered? Wasn't his name Caleb? Rather, the verse alludes to the reason that Caleb married Bithiah. The Holy One, Blessed be He, said: Let Caleb, who rebelled [marad] against the advice of the spies, come and marry the daughter of Pharaoh, who rebelled against the idols of her father's home.

Sotah 11b:23

The Talmud discusses the family of Caleb: In Chronicles it says: "And Caleb, the son of Hezron, begot children of Azubah his wife, and of Jerioth, and these were her sons: Jesher, and Shobab, and Ardon" (I Chronicles 2:18). The Talmud asks: Was Caleb actually the son of Hezron? Wasn't he the son of Jephunneh, as the verse states in Numbers 13:6? The Talmud answers: He was the son of Hezron, but he is called "son of Jephunneh" as an appellation indicating that he was a son who turned away [sheppana] from the counsel of the spies.

Sotah 34b:7

It is also stated with regard to the spies: "And they went up into the south, and he came to Hebron" (Numbers 13:22). Why is the phrase "and he came" written in the singular form? The verse should have said: And they came. Rava says: This teaches that Caleb separated himself from the counsel of the other spies and went and prostrated himself on the graves of the forefathers in Hebron. He said to them: My forefathers, pray for mercy for me so that I will be saved from the counsel of the spies.

Sotah 34b:8

The Talmud explains: Joshua did not go to the graves of the forefathers because Moses had already prayed for mercy for him, as it is stated: "And Moses called Hoshea son of Nun Joshua [Yehoshua]" (Numbers 13:16), meaning: God will save you [Ya yoshiakha] from the counsel of the spies. And this is the meaning of that which is written: "But My servant Caleb, because he had another spirit with him, and has followed Me fully, him will I bring into the land where into he went" (Numbers 14:24), which implies that Caleb changed his mind over time. Joshua, however, was opposed to the intentions of the other spies from the outset.

Sotah 35a:7

The verses continue: "But the men that went up with him said: We are not able to go up against the people; as they are stronger than us" (Numbers 13:31). R' Ḥanina bar Pappa says: The spies said a serious statement at that moment. When they said: "They are stronger," do not read the phrase as: Stronger than us [mimmennu], but rather read it as: Stronger than Him [mimmennu], meaning that even the Homeowner, God, is unable to remove His belongings from there, as it were. The spies were speaking heresy and claiming that the Canaanites were stronger than God Himself.

the wicked Balak (1 total match)

Nazir 23b:10

§ The Talmud returns to analyze in greater detail the above matter itself. Rav Yehuda said that Rav said: A person should always occupy himself with Torah and mitzvot even not for their own sake, as through these acts performed not for their own sake, good deeds for their own sake come about. The proof for this is that in reward for the forty-two offerings that the wicked Balak sacrificed (see Numbers, chapter 23), although he did not do so for the sake of Heaven but to facilitate the cursing of the Jewish people, nevertheless he merited that Ruth descended from him. Not only was he the forebear of a righteous convert, but also of King David. And this is as R' Yosei, son of R' Ḥanina, said: Ruth was the daughter of the son of Eglon, king of Moab, who descended from Balak, king of Moab.

the wicked Esau (3 total matches)

Megillah 6a:19

And R' Yitzḥak also said: What is the meaning of that which is written: "Grant not, O Lord, the desires of the wicked; further not his evil device, so that they not exalt themselves. Selah" (Psalms 140:9)? Jacob said before God: Master of the Universe, grant not to the wicked Esau the desires of his heart, as he wishes to destroy us. Further not his evil device [zemamo]; do not remove the muzzle [zamam] that constrains him and prevents him from breaking out and gathering further strength. This is a reference to

Megillah 28a:16

R' Elazar said: One who gazes at the likeness of an evil man, his eyes become dim, as it is stated: "And it came to pass, that when Isaac was old, and his eyes were dim so that he could not see" (Genesis 27:1). This happened because he gazed at the wicked Esau.

Avodah Zarah 25b:8

Furthermore, if the gentile asks him where he is going, the Jew should extend the journey when relating his destination to him, i.e., he should claim that he is traveling to a place beyond his actual destination, in the manner that Jacob our father did to the wicked Esau. As it is written that Jacob said to Esau: "Let my lord pass over before his servant and I will journey on gently, according to the pace of the cattle that are before me and according to the pace of the children, until I come unto my lord unto Seir" (Genesis 33:14).

the wicked Haman (2 total matches)

Pesachim 117a:19

R' Elazar HaModa'i says: Deborah and Barak recited it when Sisera stood against them (see Judges 4–5). They said: Not to us, and the Divine Spirit responded and said to them: For My own sake, for My own sake, will I do it. R' Elazar ben Azarya says: Hezekiah and his company recited it when Sennacherib stood against them (see II Kings 18–19). They said: Not to us and the Divine Spirit responded: For My own sake. R' Akiva says: Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah recited it when the wicked Nebuchadnezzar stood against them (see Daniel 3). They said: Not to us, and the Divine Spirit responded: For My own sake. R' Yosei HaGelili says: Mordecai and Esther recited it when the wicked Haman stood against them. They said: Not to us, and the Divine Spirit responded: For My own sake (see the book of Esther).

Megillah 10b:20

"Instead of the thorn"; this means instead of the wicked Haman. He is referred to as a thorn because he turned himself into an object of idol worship, as he decreed that all must prostrate themselves before him. The Talmud cites proof that the term thorn is used in connection with idol worship, as it is written: "And upon all thorns, and upon all brambles" (Isaiah 7:19), which is understood to be a reference to idol worship.

the wicked Nebuchadnezzar (6 total matches, showing 5)

Pesachim 117a:19

R' Elazar HaModa'i says: Deborah and Barak recited it when Sisera stood against them (see Judges 4–5). They said: Not to us, and the Divine Spirit responded and said to them: For My own sake, for My own sake, will I do it. R' Elazar ben Azarya says: Hezekiah and his company recited it when Sennacherib stood against them (see II Kings 18–19). They said: Not to us and the Divine Spirit responded: For My own sake. R' Akiva says: Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah recited it when the wicked Nebuchadnezzar stood against them (see Daniel 3). They said: Not to us, and the Divine Spirit responded: For My own sake. R' Yosei HaGelili says: Mordecai and Esther recited it when the wicked Haman stood against them. They said: Not to us, and the Divine Spirit responded: For My own sake (see the book of Esther).

Megillah 10b:22

The verse continues: "And instead of the nettle [sirpad]," this means instead of the wicked Vashti. Why is she called a nettle [sirpad]? Because she was the daughter of the son of the wicked Nebuchadnezzar, who burned the ceiling [saraf refidat] of the House of God, as it is written: "Its top [refidato] of gold" (Song of Songs 3:10).

Megillah 11a:2

R' Ḥanina bar Pappa introduced this passage with an introduction from here: The verse states: "You have caused men to ride over our heads; we went through fire and through water; but You brought us out into abundance" (Psalms 66:12). "Through fire"; this was in the days of the wicked Nebuchadnezzar, who cast the righteous into the furnace. "And through water"; this was in the days of Pharaoh, who decreed that all newborn males be cast into the water. "But You brought us out into abundance"; this was in the days of Haman, where abundant feasts played a pivotal role in their peril and salvation.

Megillah 11a:4

Reish Lakish introduced this passage with an introduction from here: "As a roaring lion, and a ravenous bear, so is a wicked ruler over a poor people" (Proverbs 28:15). "A roaring lion"; this is the wicked Nebuchadnezzar, as it is written about him: "The lion has come up from his thicket" (Jeremiah 4:7). "A hungry bear"; this is Ahasuerus, as it is written about him: "And behold, another beast, a second one, like a bear" (Daniel 7:5). And Rav Yosef taught that these who are referred to as a bear in the verse are the Persians. They are compared to a bear, as they eat and drink in large quantities like a bear; and they are coated with flesh like a bear; and they grow their hair long like a bear; and they never rest like a bear, whose manner it is to move about from place to place.

Megillah 11a:15

The Talmud continues with its explanation of the book of Esther, beginning with a discussion of the name Ahasuerus. Rav said: The name should be viewed as a contraction: The brother of the head [aḥiv shel rosh] and of the same character as the head [ben gilo shel rosh]. Rav explains: The brother of the head, i.e., the brother of the wicked Nebuchadnezzar, who is called "head," as it is stated: "You are the head of gold" (Daniel 2:38). Of the same character as the head, for he, Nebuchadnezzar, killed the Jews, and he, Ahasuerus, sought to kill them. He destroyed the Temple, and he sought to destroy the foundations for the Temple laid by Zerubbabel, as it is stated: "And in the reign of Ahasuerus, in the beginning of his reign, they wrote to him an accusation against the inhabitants of Judah and Jerusalem" (Ezra 4:6), and he ordered that the construction of the Temple cease.

the wicked Vashti (2 total matches)

Megillah 10b:22

The verse continues: "And instead of the nettle [sirpad]," this means instead of the wicked Vashti. Why is she called a nettle [sirpad]? Because she was the daughter of the son of the wicked Nebuchadnezzar, who burned the ceiling [saraf refidat] of the House of God, as it is written: "Its top [refidato] of gold" (Song of Songs 3:10).

Megillah 12b:4

The Talmud comments: Vashti was punished in this humiliating way for it is with the measure that a man measures to others that he himself is measured. In other words, God punishes individuals in line with their transgressions, measure for measure. This teaches that the wicked Vashti would take the daughters of Israel, and strip them naked, and make them work on Shabbat. Therefore, it was decreed that she be brought before the king naked, on Shabbat. This is as it is written: "After these things, when the wrath of King Ahasuerus was appeased, he remembered Vashti, and what she had done, and what was decreed against her" (Esther 2:1). That is to say, just as she had done with the young Jewish women, so it was decreed upon her.

Tzelelponit (1 total match)

Bava Batra 91a:15

Rav Ḥanan bar Rava continues: The mother of David was named Natzvat bat Ada'el. The mother of Samson was named Tzelelponit, and his sister was called Nashyan. The Talmud asks: What is the practical difference as to what their names were? The Talmud answers: It is important with regard to an answer for heretics who inquire into the names of these women, which are not stated in the Bible. One can reply that there is a tradition handed down concerning their names.

Uriah the Hittite (8 total matches, showing 5)

Shabbat 56a:7

That which is written: "Uriah the Hittite you have smitten with the sword," means that you could have judged him before the Sanhedrin as one guilty of treason against the throne, and you did not judge him in that manner. Instead, you had him executed in a manner that deviated from the generally accepted principles of judgment. With regard to that which is written: "And his wife you have taken to be your wife"; it means that you have rights of marriage with her, as by law Bathsheba was already divorced from Uriah.

Shabbat 56a:10

With regard to that which is written: "And him you have slain with the sword of the children of Ammon," it means: Just as you are not punished for soldiers killed by the sword of the children of Ammon in the course of the war, so too you are not punished for the death of Uriah the Hittite.

Shabbat 56a:12

Rav said: When you analyze the matter of David, no sin that he committed is found in his lifetime, except for that involving Uriah. As it is written: "Because David did that which was right in the eyes of YHWH, and turned not aside from any thing that He commanded him all the days of his life, save only in the matter of Uriah the Hittite" (I Kings 15:5).

Moed Katan 16b:28

A Divine Voice issued forth and said by way of explanation as to why the promise was not entirely fulfilled: "Because David did that which was right in the eyes of YHWH, and turned not aside from anything that He commanded him all the days of his life, save only the matter of Uriah the Hittite" (I Kings 15:5). Had David not committed this sin, then all of the promises mentioned in the Torah would have been fulfilled in their entirety through him.

Kiddushin 43a:12

And the other opinion, i.e., the first tanna, who holds that the one who appoints the killer is exempt, explains the verse as follows: Behold this killing is for you like the sword of Ammon. Just as you are not punished for those killed by the sword of Ammon in the course of the war, so too you are not punished for the death of Uriah the Hittite, not even according to the laws of Heaven. What is the reason for this? Uriah was a rebel against the monarchy and was consequently liable to the death penalty, as he said to King David: "And my lord Joab, and the servants of my lord, are encamped in the open field" (II Samuel 11:11). By referring to Joab as his lord in front of the king, he indicated that he answered to Joab rather than to the king, which is tantamount to rebellion.

Pesachim 87a:12

Apropos the verse from Hosea, the Talmud interprets additional verses there: “The word of YHWH that came unto Hosea, the son of Beeri, in the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judea, and in the days of Jeroboam the son of Joash, king of Israel” (Hosea 1:1). The Sages explained: Four prophets prophesied in one era and the oldest of them was Hosea, as it is stated: “When YHWH spoke at first with Hosea” (Hosea 1:2), indicating that Hosea was the first of these prophets. If not, the question arises: And was it with Hosea that YHWH spoke first of all the prophets? Weren’t there several prophets who lived and prophesied during the period from Moses until Hosea? Rather, R' Yoḥanan said: He was the first of the four prophets who prophesied during that period, and these are they: Hosea, Isaiah, Amos, and Micah.

Pesachim 87b:11

The Talmud asks: From where do we derive that he was counted together with the righteous kings of Judea? As it is written: “The word of YHWH that came to Hosea, son of Beeri, in the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judea, and in the days of Jeroboam, the son of Joash, king of Israel” (Hosea 1:1).

Sukkah 45b:4

And Ḥizkiya said that R' Yirmeya said in the name of R' Shimon ben Yoḥai: I am able to absolve the entire world from judgment for sins committed from the day I was created until now. The merit that he accrued through his righteousness and the suffering that he endured atone for the sins of the entire world. And were the merit accrued by Eliezer, my son, calculated along with my own, we would absolve the world from judgment for sins committed from the day that the world was created until now. And were the merit accrued by the righteous king, Jotham ben Uzziah, calculated with our own, we would absolve the world from judgment for sins committed from the day that the world was created until its end. The righteousness of these three serves as a counterbalance to all the evil deeds committed throughout the generations, and it validates the ongoing existence of the world.

Moed Katan 7b:7

And R' Ḥiyya said: I deliberated this matter before Rabbi Yehuda HaNasi and said: Have you not taught us, our teacher, that King Jotham was only born to Uzziah, the king of Judah, during the days of his confirmed leprosy? This would indicate that a confirmed leper is permitted to engage in conjugal relations. R' Yehuda HaNasi said to him: I too said this; I am also of the opinion that a confirmed leper is permitted to engage in conjugal relations, in contrast to the opinion of R' Yosei, son of R' Yehuda.

Sotah 9b:3

The baraita continues: And so we found with regard to Cain, who desired to inherit the whole world alone (see Genesis 4); and Korah, who desired the priesthood (see Numbers 16); and Balaam, who desired Balak’s money (see Numbers 22); and Doeg, who was jealous of David (see I Samuel 21–22); and Ahithophel, who was also jealous of David (see II Samuel 16); and Gehazi, who took Naaman’s money (see II Kings 5); and Absalom, who wanted the kingdom (see II Samuel 15); and Adonijah, who also wanted the kingdom (see I Kings 1); and Uzziah, who wanted to be the High Priest (see II Chronicles 26); and Haman, who wanted to kill all the Jews (see Esther 3:13). All of these were people who placed their eyes on that which is unfit for them, and consequently what they desired was not given to them, and what they had was taken from them.

Megillah 10b:18

§ The Talmud cites prologues utilized by various Sages to introduce study of the Megilla: R' Yonatan introduced this passage, the book of Esther, with an introduction from here: "For I will rise up against them, says YHWH of hosts, and cut off from Babylonia name, and remnant, and offspring [nin], and posterity, says YHWH" (Isaiah 14:22). This verse may be interpreted homiletically: "Name," this is the writing of ancient Babylonia that will disappear from the world. "Remnant," this is the language of ancient Babylonia. "Offspring," this is their kingdom. And "posterity," this is Vashti, who according to tradition was Nebuchadnezzar's granddaughter, and the book of Esther relates how she too was removed from the throne.

Megillah 10b:22

The verse continues: "And instead of the nettle [sirpad]," this means instead of the wicked Vashti. Why is she called a nettle [sirpad]? Because she was the daughter of the son of the wicked Nebuchadnezzar, who burned the ceiling [saraf refidat] of the House of God, as it is written: "Its top [refidato] of gold" (Song of Songs 3:10).

Megillah 10b:29

Rabba bar Oferan introduced this passage with an introduction from here: "And I will set my throne in Elam, and destroy from there the king and the princes, says YHWH" (Jeremiah 49:38). "The king" who was destroyed; this is referring to Vashti. "And the princes"; this is referring to Haman and his ten sons.

Megillah 11b:12

Ahasuerus said: He, Belshazzar, erred. I too will calculate, but I will not err, thinking he understood the source of Belshazzar's mistake. Is it written: "Seventy years for the kingdom of Babylonia"? It is written: "Seventy years for Babylonia." What is meant by "for Babylonia"? These words are referring to the seventy years for the exile of Babylonia. How many years are still lacking from the seventy years? Eight years. He calculated, and inserted in their stead one year of Belshazzar, and five years of Darius and Cyrus, and two years of his own, bringing the total to seventy. Once he saw that seventy years had been completed, and the Jewish people were still not redeemed, he said: Now for sure they will not be redeemed. Therefore, I will take out the vessels of the Temple and use them. What happened to him? As a punishment for what he did, the Satan came and danced among them, and brought confusion to his celebration until he killed Vashti.

Megillah 12a:19

The verse states: "Also Vashti the queen made a feast for the women, in the royal house, which belonged to King Ahasuerus" (Esther 1:9). The Talmud questions why she held the feast in the royal house, a place of men, rather than in the women's house, where it should have been. Rava said in response: The two of them had sinful intentions. Ahasuerus wished to fornicate with the women, and Vashti wished to fornicate with the men. This explains the folk saying that people say: He with pumpkins and his wife

And it was due to this matter that the eye of wicked Balaam went blind. He said: Should God, who is pure and holy, and whose ministers are pure and holy, peek at this matter? Immediately his eye was blinded as a divine punishment, as it is written: "The saying of the man whose eye is shut" (Numbers 24:3).

Megillah 15a:8

The Sages taught in a baraita: Rahab aroused impure thoughts by her name, i.e., the mere mention of her name would inspire lust for her; Yael, by her voice; Abigail, by remembering her; Michal, the daughter of Saul, by her appearance. Similarly, R' Yitzḥak said: Anyone who says Rahab, Rahab, immediately experiences a seminal emission due to the arousal of desire caused by Rahab's great beauty. Rav Naḥman said to him: I say: Rahab, Rahab, and it does not affect me. R' Yitzchak said to Rav Naḥman: When I said this, I was specifically referring to one who knows her personally and recognizes her beauty. Only for one who has met Rahab in person is the mere mention of her name capable of arousing lust.

Nazir 23b:6

Rather, one must emend the above statement and say as follows: A transgression for the sake of Heaven is equivalent to a mitzva not for its own sake. The proof is as it is written: "Blessed above women shall Yael be, the wife of Hever the Kenite, above women in the tent she shall be blessed" (Judges 5:24), and it is taught: Who are these "women in the tent?" They are Sarah, Rebecca, Rachel, and Leah. Yael's forbidden intercourse with Sisera for the sake of Heaven is compared to the sexual intercourse in which the Matriarchs engaged.

Horayot 10b:15

§ And Ulla says: Tamar engaged in licentiousness with Judah (see Genesis, chapter 38), and Zimri engaged in licentiousness with Cozbi (see Numbers 25:6–9). Tamar engaged in licentiousness, and kings and prophets emerged from her. Zimri engaged in licentiousness, and tens of thousands from the Jewish people fell. Rav Naḥman bar Yitzḥak says: A transgression performed for the sake of Heaven is greater than a mitzva performed not for its own sake, as it is stated: "Blessed above women shall be Yael, the wife of Heber the Kenite, above women in the tent shall she be blessed" (Judges 5:24). Who are these "women in the tent"? They are Sarah, Rebecca, Rachel, and Leah, and Yael is more blessed than they are. Apparently, a mitzva performed not for its own sake is a negative phenomenon.

Berakhot 10a:26

With regard to redemption and prayer, the Talmud tells the story of Hezekiah's illness, his prayer to God, and subsequent recuperation. Rav Hamnuna said: What is the meaning of that which is written praising God: "Who is like the wise man, and who knows the interpretation [pesher] of the matter" (Ecclesiastes 8:1)? This verse means: Who is like God, Who knows how to effect compromise [peshara] between two righteous individuals, between Hezekiah, the king of Judea, and Isaiah the prophet. They disagreed over which of them should visit the other. Hezekiah said: Let Isaiah come to me, as that is what we find with regard to Elijah the prophet, who went to Ahab, the king of Israel, as it is stated: "And Elijah went to appear to Ahab" (I Kings 18:2). This proves that it is the prophet who must seek out the king. And Isaiah said: Let Hezekiah come to me, as that is what we find with regard to Yehoram ben Ahab, king of Israel, who went to Elisha the prophet, as it is stated: "So the king of Israel, Jehosaphat and the king of Edom went down to him" (II Kings 3:12).

Berakhot 29a:13

We learned in the mishna that R' Yehoshua says that each day one recites an abridged version of the prayer of eighteen blessings. The Talmud asks: What is the abridged version of the prayer of eighteen blessings? There are different opinions. Rav said: One recites an abridged version of each and every blessing. Shmuel said: An abridged version of the prayer of eighteen blessings refers to a blessing composed specifically to be recited in place of the thirteen middle blessings. It contains references to each of the thirteen middle blessings. The formula for that blessing is: Grant us understanding, Lord our God, to know Your ways, and sensitize our hearts so that we may revere You, and forgive us so that we may be redeemed, and keep us far from our suffering, and satisfy us with the pastures of Your land, and gather our scattered people from the four corners of the earth, and those who go astray shall be judged according to Your will, and raise Your hand against the wicked, and may the righteous rejoice in the rebuilding of Your city, and the restoration of Your Sanctuary, and in the flourishing of Your servant David, and in establishing a light for Your Messiah, son of Yishai. Before we call, may You answer. Blessed are You, Lord, Who listens to prayer."

Berakhot 58a:7

On the topic of multitudes, the Talmud cites another verse: "And the man in the days of Saul was old, and came among men" (I Samuel 17:12). Rava, and some say Rav Zevid, and some say Rav Oshaya, said: This refers to Yishai, father of David, who always went out with multitudes, and entered with multitudes, and taught Torah with multitudes. Ulla said: We hold there is no multitude in Babylonia. The Sage taught: A multitude is no fewer than six hundred thousand people.

Shabbat 55b:3

The Talmud raises an objection from what was taught in the following baraita: Four people died due to Adam's sin with the serpent, in the wake of which death was decreed upon all of mankind, although they themselves were free of sin. And they are: Benjamin, son of Jacob; Amram, father of Moses; Yishai, father of David; and Kilab, son of David. And all of them were learned through tradition, except for Yishai, father of David, with regard to whom there is an explicit verse interpreted homiletically, as it is written: "And Absalom placed Amasa in charge of the army in place of Joab, and Amasa was the son of a man named Ithra the Israelite, who had taken to himself Abigail the daughter of Nahash, sister of Zeruiah, the mother of Joab" (II Samuel 17:25).

Shabbat 55b:4

The Talmud asks: And was Abigail the daughter of Nahash? Wasn't she the daughter of Yishai, as it is written: "And Yishai begot his firstborn Eliab, and Abinadab the second, and Shimea the third, Nethanel the fourth, Raddai the fifth, Ozem the sixth, David the seventh: and their sisters were Zeruiah and Abigail. And the sons of Zeruiah: Abishai, and Joab, and Asahel, three. And Abigail bore Amasa; and the father of Amasa was Jether the Ishmaelite" (I Chronicles 2:13–17)? Apparently, Abigail was the daughter of Yishai. Rather, the verse states that Abigail was the daughter of Nahash in order to teach us that she was the daughter of one who died on account of Adam's sin with the serpent [naḥash], though he himself was free of sin.

Pesachim 117a:8

It was taught in a baraita that R' Meir would say: All the praises stated in the book of Psalms were recited by David, as it is stated: "The prayers of David, son of Yishai, are ended [kalu]" (Psalms 72:20). Do not read kalu; rather, read kol elu*, all of these, which indicates that the entire book of Psalms consists of the prayers of King David.

Sotah 11a:12

R' Ḥiyya bar Abba says that R' Simai says: Three noteworthy people were consulted by Pharaoh in that counsel where Pharaoh questioned what should be done with the Jewish people. They were Balaam, and Job, and Yitro.

Sotah 11a:13

R' Ḥiyya bar Abba teaches what occurred to each of them: Balaam, who advised Pharaoh to kill all sons born to the Jewish people, was punished by being killed in the war with Midian (see Numbers 31:8). Job, who was silent and neither advised nor protested, was punished by suffering, as detailed in the eponymous book in the Bible. Yitro, who ran away as a sign of protest, merited that some of his children's children sat in the Sanhedrin in the Chamber of Hewn Stone, as it is stated: "And the families of scribes who dwelt at Jabez, Tirathites, Shimeathites, and Sucathites, these were the Kenites who descended from Hammath, the father of the house of Rechab" (I Chronicles 2:55). And it is written: "The children of the Kenite, Moses' father-in-law" (Judges 1:16). This teaches that the Kenites, descendants of Yitro, the father-in-law of Moses, dwelt at Jabez [Yabetz], referring to the place where the Jewish people go for advice [eitza], i.e., the Chamber of Hewn Stone.

Sotah 43a:2

A tanna taught: It was not for nothing that specifically Pinehas went to war with Midian; rather, it was to exact the rightful judgment of his mother's father, Joseph, as it is stated: "And the Midianites sold him into Egypt to Potiphar, an officer of Pharaoh's" (Genesis 37:36). The Talmud asks: Is this to say that Pinehas came, on his mother's side, from the family of Joseph? But it is written: "And Elazar, Aaron's son, took himself a wife from the daughters of Putiel; and she bore him Pinehas" (Exodus 6:25). What, is it not that Pinehas came from the family of Yitro, who was also called Putiel because he fattened [pittem] calves for idol worship? They answer: No; he was descended from Joseph, who mocked [pitpet] his desire by resisting the advances of Potiphar's wife.

Sotah 43a:3

The Talmud asks: But is it not the case that, according to an oral tradition, the tribes were denigrating Pinehas after he killed Zimri, saying: Did you see this son of Puti, the son whose mother's father fattened cows for idol worship? Should this man kill a prince of Israel? Evidently, his grandfather Puti was Yitro, not Joseph. The Talmud answers: Rather, Pinehas was descended from both Joseph and Yitro. If his mother's father descended from Joseph, his mother's mother descended from Yitro. And if his mother's mother descended from Joseph, his mother's father descended from Yitro. The Talmud confirms this resolution: The language is also precise, as it is written: Elazar took a wife "from the daughters of Putiel," which implies that she came from two daughters of men named Putiel. The Talmud concludes: You may learn from the verse that this is so.

Bava Batra 109b:11

§ In connection with the story of Jonathan, son of Manasseh, the Talmud cites a related statement. R' Elazar says: A person should always cleave to good people, meaning one should marry a woman from a good family, as this is beneficial for the offspring of that marriage. As in the case of Moses, who married a daughter of Yitro, who was a priest of idolatry, Jonathan, who was also a priest of idolatry, descended from him, while in the case of Aaron, who married the daughter of Amminadab, who was of distinguished lineage in the tribe of Judah, Pinehas descended from him.

Berakhot 3b:31

Rav Yosef said: Upon what verse is this aggada based? As it is written: "And after Ahitophel was Benayahu son of Yehoyada and Evyatar, and the general of the king's army, Yoav" (I Chronicles 27:34).

Berakhot 4a:2

And so it says regarding Benayahu ben Yehoyada's position as head of the Sanhedrin: "And Benayahu ben Yehoyada was over the Kereti and over the Peleti" (II Samuel 20:23). And why was the Sanhedrin called Kereti UPeleti? It was called Kereti because they were decisive [koretim] in their pronouncements. It was called Peleti because their pronouncements and wisdom were wondrous [mufla'im]. The head of the Kereti UPeleti was the head of the Sanhedrin. According to the order of the verse, upon being instructed by King David to go to war, the Sages first consulted with Ahitophel, then with the Sanhedrin, then they would ask the Urim VeTummim, and only thereafter was the general of the king's army, Yoav, given the command to ready the military for battle.

Sanhedrin 16b:1

It is: And after Ahithophel was Benaiah, son of Jehoiada; and Ebiathar; and the general of the king's army, Yoav (see I Chronicles 27:34). The individuals named in this verse correspond to the roles in the aggada as follows: Ahithophel is the advisor whose counsel they sought first with regard to going to war, and so it says: "Now the advice of Ahithophel, which he counseled in those days, was like that of a man who inquires of the word of God; so was the counsel of Ahithophel both with David and with Absalom" (II Samuel 16:23). And Benaiah, son of Jehoiada corresponds to the Sanhedrin, since he was the head of the Sanhedrin, and Ebiathar corresponds to the Urim VeTummim, as Ebiathar, son of Ahimelech the priest would oversee inquiries directed to the Urim VeTummim (see I Samuel 23:9).

Sanhedrin 16b:2

And so it says with regard to the position of Benaiah, son of Jehoiada, as head of the Sanhedrin: "And Benaiah, son of Jehoiada, was over the Kereti and over the Peleti" (II Samuel 20:23). And why was the Sanhedrin called Kereti and Peleti? It was called Kereti because they were decisive [shekoretin] in their pronouncements. It was called Peleti because their actions and wisdom were wondrous [shemufla'in], as Peleti and mufla'in share the same root. According to the order of the verse, upon being instructed by King David to go to war, the Sages first consulted with Ahithophel, then with the Sanhedrin, and then they would ask the Urim VeTummim; and only thereafter was the general of the king's army, Yoav, given the command to ready the army for battle.

Yoma 73b:9

The Talmud raises an objection from a baraita: Any priest who does not speak with Divine Spirit and upon whom the Divine Presence does not rest is not consulted to inquire of the Urim VeTummim. As Zadok inquired of the Urim VeTummim and it was effective for him, and he received an answer; but Ebiathar inquired and it was not effective for him, and he did not receive an answer. As it is stated: "But Ebiathar went up until all the people had finished" (II Samuel 15:24), which is taken to mean that he was removed from the High Priesthood since the Divine Spirit had departed from him.

Yevamot 86b:1

The first tithe is given to a priest. The Talmud is puzzled: To a priest and not to a Levite? But the Torah expressly states that the first tithe is for Levites. The Talmud answers: Say he means it can be given also to a priest. The Talmud clarifies: What is the reason for R' Akiva's opinion? As it is written: "You shall speak to the Levites, and you shall say to them" (Numbers 18:26). Clearly, the verse speaks of Levites, not priests. And the other tanna, R' Eliezer, maintains in accordance with the opinion of R' Yehoshua ben Levi, as R' Yehoshua ben Levi said: In twenty-four places in the Bible the priests are called Levites. And this is one of those verses: "And the priests the Levites, the sons of Zadok" (Ezekiel 44:15).

Bava Kamma 92b:8

Rava said to Rabba bar Mari: From where is this matter derived whereby people say: Sixty discomforts come to the teeth [lekhakha] of one who hears the sound of another eating and does not eat? Rabba bar Mari said to him that the source is as it is written with regard to what Nathan the prophet said concerning the coronation banquet of Adonijah, to which he was not invited: "For he is gone down this day, and has slain oxen and fatlings and sheep in abundance, and has called all the king's sons...But me, even me your servant, and Zadok the priest, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, and your servant Solomon he has not called" (I Kings 1:25–26).

Horayot 13a:12

A High Priest precedes a prophet, as it is stated: "And let Zadok the priest and Nathan the prophet anoint him there" (I Kings 1:34); Zadok is written before Natan. And similarly, the prophet says: "Hear now, Joshua the High Priest, you and your colleagues who sit before you, for they are men that are a sign; for behold, I will bring forth My servant Zemah" (Zechariah 3:8). One might have thought that these colleagues were laymen. Therefore, the verse states: "For they are men that are a sign," and "sign" means nothing other than a prophet, as it is stated: "And he gives you a sign or a wonder" (Deuteronomy 13:2).

Chullin 24b:7

The Talmud asks: But what proof can be cited from this verse with regard to priests; isn't that verse written with regard to Levites? The Talmud answers: It is understood in accordance with the statement of R' Yehoshua ben Levi, as R' Yehoshua ben Levi says: In twenty-four places in the Bible the priests are called Levites. And this is one of those verses: "And the priests the Levites, the sons of Zadok" (Ezekiel 44:15). The verse in Ezra is another one of the verses.

The Talmud relates a similar incident: A certain man would regularly walk and say: The bushes on the seashore are cypresses (ge'onim), i.e., items located by the sea are more beautiful than those found in other places. They examined his lineage and found that he descends from the tribe of Zebulun, as it is written: "Zebulun shall dwell by the seashore" (Genesis 49:13). That explains his love of all things close to the sea.

Megillah 6a:6

The Talmud asks: Is Kitron really Tzippori? Wasn't Kitron in the tribal territory of Zebulun, as it is written: "Neither did Zebulun drive out the inhabitants of Kitron, nor the inhabitants of Nahalol" (Judges 1:30)? And the tribe of Zebulun was resentful of its portion, as it is stated: "Zebulun was a people that jeopardized their lives to the death" (Judges 5:18). What is the reason for their resentfulness? Because "Naphtali was on the high places of the field" (Judges 5:18).

Megillah 6a:7

The verse should be interpreted as follows: Zebulun said before God: Master of the Universe! To my brothers, the tribes whose territory is adjacent to mine, You gave fields and vineyards, whereas to me You gave mountains and hills; to my brothers You gave lands, whereas to me You gave seas and rivers. God said back to him: Nevertheless, all will need you due to the Ḥilazon, the small sea creature residing in your territory that is the source of the dye used in the ritual fringes [tzitzit]. As it is stated in Moses' blessing to Zebulun: "They shall call the people to the mountain: There they shall sacrifice offerings of righteousness; for they shall suck of the abundance of the seas, and of the hidden treasures of the sand" (Deuteronomy 33:19).

Bava Batra 122a:5

And Elazar would ascertain the assignments of land with the Divine Spirit and say, in accordance with the notification of the Urim VeTummim: The name of the tribe Zebulun now emerges from the receptacle in the lottery, and the region whose boundary is Akko emerges with it from the other receptacle. After stating this, he would mix the lots in the receptacle of the tribes and the lot of Zebulun would emerge in his hand. He would then mix the lots in the receptacle of the boundaries, and the boundary of Akko would emerge in his hand.

Sanhedrin 12a:13

R' Yehuda says: The court may intercalate the year due to ritual impurity. R' Yehuda said: There was an incident involving Hezekiah, king of Judea, who intercalated the year due to ritual impurity (II Chronicles 30:2). And after doing so, he requested compassion for himself, as it is written: "For a multitude of the people, even many of Ephraim and Manasseh, Issachar and Zebulun, had not cleansed themselves,

Eruvin 21a:13

Rav Ḥisda said: Mari bar Mar interpreted homiletically: What is the meaning of that which is written: "I have seen a limit to every purpose; but Your commandment is exceedingly broad" (Psalms 119:96)? This idea with regard to the breadth of the Torah was stated by David, but he did not explain it; it was stated by Job, but he too did not explain it; it was stated by Ezekiel, but he also did not explain it, until Zechariah, son of Berechiah, son of Iddo, came and explained it.

Eruvin 21a:17

But nonetheless, Ezekiel did not explain the extent of the Torah, until Zechariah, son of Berechiah, son of Iddo, came and explained it, as it is written: "And he said to me: What do you see? And I said: I see a flying [afa] scroll; the length of it is twenty cubits, and the breadth of it is ten cubits" (Zechariah 5:2). Since the scroll was flying, the implication is that it had two equal sides, so that when you open it, it is twenty by twenty cubits. And it is written: "And it was written inside and outside," i.e., on both sides. And when you peel them apart and separate the two sides, how much is it? Its entire area amounts to forty by twenty cubits, or eight hundred of God's cubits.

Rosh Hashanah 19b:14

The Talmud comments: That is to say that they make the two months of Adar short months, of twenty-nine days, but they do not make them full months, of thirty days. This is to the exclusion of what Rav Naḥman bar Ḥisda taught, as Rav Naḥman bar Ḥisda taught: R' Simai testified in the name of Haggai, Zechariah, and Malachi about two months of Adar in a leap year, that if the members of the court wish to make them both full, they may do so; and if they wish to make them both short, they may do so; and if they wish to make one full and one short, they may do so. And this is what they would do in the Diaspora, when they did not know which day was established as the New Moon. And in the name of our teacher, Rav, they said: The two months of Adar are always observed, one full and one short, unless it is known to you that the New Moon was fixed in its proper time, i.e., the first Adar is also short.

Yoma 9b:16

The Talmud asks: What rot infests cedar? Ulla said: It is sasmagor, a type of worm. The Talmud asks: What does sasmagor have to do with the Divine Presence during the Second Temple era? R' Abba said: Just as little remains from a cedar tree infested by this worm, similarly, all that remained from the Divine Presence during the Second Temple period was a Divine Voice, as it was taught in a baraita: After the last prophets Haggai, Zechariah, and Malachi died, the Divine Spirit of prophetic revelation departed from the Jewish people, and they were still utilizing a Divine Voice, which they heard as an echo of prophecy.

Yoma 39b:6

And the doors of the Sanctuary opened by themselves as a sign that they would soon be opened by enemies, until Rabban Yoḥanan ben Zakkai scolded them. He said to the Sanctuary: Sanctuary, Sanctuary, why do you frighten yourself with these signs? I know about you that you will ultimately be destroyed, and Zechariah, son of Ido, has already prophesied concerning you: "Open your doors, O Lebanon, that the fire may devour your cedars" (Zechariah 11:1), Lebanon being an appellation for the Temple.

Shabbat 149b:8

Rather, it is derived from here: "You are filled with shame instead of honor. Drink, you, and be like one who is uncircumcised, the cup of YHWH's right hand will turn to you and filthiness shall be upon your glory" (Habakkuk 2:16). The verse is expounded: "You are filled with shame instead of honor"; this is referring to Nebuchadnezzar. "Drink, you, and be like one who is uncircumcised"; this is referring to Zedekiah, who was also punished for being the cause of Nebuchadnezzar's punishment, as will be explained. The Talmud rejects this proof: One objection to this is that the entire verse is written about Nebuchadnezzar. And furthermore, with regard to Zedekiah, the righteous one, what could he have done to him? For Rav Yehuda said that Rav said about this matter: When that wicked man wanted to do this to that righteous man, his foreskin was stretched, as will be explained.

Eruvin 61b:4

Come and hear another difficulty from the following baraita: If one established his Shabbat residence through his physical presence in a city, even if it is as large as Antioch, or in a cave, even if it is particularly large, like the Cave of Zedekiah, king of Judah, he may walk through all of it and another two thousand cubits beyond it. The baraita teaches the case of a city that is similar to that of a cave: Just as a cave is presumably desolate, i.e., uninhabited, so too the city must be one that is desolate. And only in the case where he established his Shabbat residence through his physical presence would yes, this halakha apply; but if he merely placed his eiruv there, no, he may not measure his two thousand cubits from the edge of the city.

Eruvin 61b:7

The Talmud asks: Doesn't the baraita teach that this halakha applies even to a cave like the Cave of Zedekiah, which was uninhabited? The Talmud answers: The baraita is referring to a cave that is like the Cave of Zedekiah in one respect and not like the Cave of Zedekiah in other respects. It is like the Cave of Zedekiah in that the cave is as large as that one. And it is not exactly like the Cave of Zedekiah, as there, with regard to Zedekiah's cave, it was desolate, and here the baraita is referring to a cave that is inhabited.

Pesachim 119a:10

Sennacherib came and took it from Ahaz. Hezekiah came and took it from Sennacherib, and it remained in Jerusalem until the reign of Zedekiah. The Chaldeans came and took it from Zedekiah. The Persians came and took it from the Chaldeans. The Greeks came and took it from the Persians. The Romans came and took it from the Greeks, and this treasure of silver and gold still remains in Rome.

Sukkah 52b:13

The Talmud continues homiletically interpreting verses that relate to the end of days. It is stated: "And this shall be peace: When the Assyrian shall come into our land, and when he shall tread in our palaces, then shall we raise against him seven shepherds, and eight princes among men" (Micah 5:4). The Talmud asks: Who are these seven shepherds? The Talmud explains: David is in the middle; Adam, Seth, and Methuselah are to his right; Abraham, Jacob, and Moses are to his left. And who are the eight princes among men? They are Yishai, Saul, Samuel, Amos, Zephania, Zedekiah, Messiah, and Elijah.

Kiddushin 76b:15

The Talmud asks: But isn't there Zelek the Ammonite, one of David's warriors (II Samuel 23:37); what, is it not indicated that he was a convert who came from Ammon? The Talmud rejects this: No, his name indicates only that he dwelled in Ammon, but he was born a Jew. The Talmud asks: But isn't there Uriah the Hittite (II Samuel 23:39); what, is it not indicated that he came from Heth? The Talmud rejects this: No, his name indicates only that he dwelled in Heth.

Zelophehad (17 total matches, showing 5)

Shabbat 96b:19

On the topic of the wood gatherer, the Talmud cites that which the Sages taught in a baraita: The wood gatherer mentioned in the Torah was Zelophehad, and it says: "And the children of Israel were in the desert and they found a man gathering wood on the day of Shabbat" (Numbers 15:32), and below, in the appeal of the daughters of Zelophehad, it is stated: "Our father died in the desert and he was not among the company of them that gathered themselves together against YHWH in the company of Korah, but he died in his own sin, and he had no sons" (Numbers 27:3). Just as below the man in the desert is Zelophehad, so too, here, in the case of the wood gatherer, the unnamed man in the desert is Zelophehad; this is the statement of R' Akiva.

Taanit 30b:10

What did they expound, in support of their conclusion that this halakha was no longer in effect? The verse states: "This is the matter that YHWH has commanded concerning the daughters of Zelophehad, saying: Let them marry whom they think best; only into the family of the tribe of their father shall they marry" (Numbers 36:5). They derived from the verse that this matter shall be practiced only in this generation, when Eretz Yisrael was divided among the tribes, but afterward members of different tribes were permitted to marry. On the day this barrier separating the tribes was removed, the Sages established a permanent day of rejoicing.

Bava Batra 110b:4

The Talmud raises a difficulty: But perhaps it was the daughters of Zelophehad who said this, i.e., that they were entitled to an inheritance only because their father had no son. They thought that this was the halakha based on the custom at that time, but after God spoke to Moses, the Torah was given and a halakha was initiated that a daughter's right to inherit is equal to that of the son. The Talmud accepts this difficulty and states: Rather, it is clear that the source for this halakha is as we answered initially, i.e., as Abaya derived from the verse of: "If a man dies, and has no son, then you shall pass his inheritance to his daughter" (Numbers 27:8).

Bava Batra 116b:4

MISHNA: Zelophehad's daughters took three portions of land in the inheritance of Eretz Yisrael: Their father's portion that he received because he was among those who left Egypt; and his portion that he received with his brothers in the property of Hepher, their father; and an additional portion that he received from Hepher because he was a firstborn, and a firstborn takes two portions of inheritance from his father.

Bava Batra 117b:4

Megillah 15a:3

It was taught in a baraita: With regard to anyone whose actions and the actions of his ancestors are obscured and not explained, and the verse mentioned one of them favorably, for example, the way in which Zephaniah the prophet is introduced: "The word of YHWH which came to Zephaniah the son of Cushi, the son of Gedaliah" (Zephaniah 1:1), it is known that not only was he a righteous man, he was also the son of a righteous man. And conversely, whenever the verse mentioned one of them unfavorably, for example, in the verse that introduces Ishmael as the one who killed Gedaliah, which states: "And it came to pass in the seventh month that Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, the son of Elishama" (Jeremiah 41:1), it is known that not only was he a wicked man, he was also the son of a wicked man.

The following verse states: “And Haman recounted to Zeresh his wife and to all his friends everything that had befallen him. Then his wise men and Zeresh his wife said to him: If Mordecai, before whom you have begun to fall, be of the seed of the Jews, then you will not prevail over him, but you shall fall before him” (Esther 6:13). The Talmud comments: At the beginning of the verse it calls them “his friends,” and in the continuation of the verse it calls them “his wise men.” R' Yoḥanan said: Whoever says something wise, even if he is from the nations of the world, is called a wise man.

In the continuation of that passage in Chronicles, where the verse refers to the grandson of Jeconiah, Zerubbabel [Zerubavel], the Talmud interprets that his name teaches that he was sown [nizra], i.e., conceived, in Babylonia [Bavel]. And what was his true name? Nehemiah, son of Hachaliah, was his true name.

Rav Yosef said: Studying Torah is greater than saving lives, as initially, when listing the Jewish leaders who came to Eretz Yisrael, Mordecai was mentioned after four other people, but at the end he was listed after five. This is taken to indicate that his involvement in governmental affairs instead of in Torah study lowered his stature one notch. The Talmud proves this: At first it is written: "Who came with Zerubbabel, Jeshua, Nehemiah, Seraiah, Reelaiah, Mordecai, Bilshan" (Ezra 2:2); but in the end in a later list it is written: "Who came with Zerubbabel, Jeshua, Nehemiah, Azariah, Raamiah, Nahmani, Mordecai, Bilshan" (Nehemiah 7:7).

Zeruiah (13 total matches, showing 5)

Shabbat 55b:3

The Talmud raises an objection from what was taught in the following baraita: Four people died due to Adam's sin with the serpent, in the wake of which death was decreed upon all of mankind, although they themselves were free of sin. And they are: Benjamin, son of Jacob; Amram, father of Moses; Yishai, father of David; and Kilab, son of David. And all of them were learned through tradition, except for Yishai, father of David, with regard to whom there is an explicit verse interpreted homiletically, as it is written: "And Absalom placed Amasa in charge of the army in place of Joab, and Amasa was the son of a man named Ithra the Israelite, who had taken to himself Abigail the daughter of Nahash, sister of Zeruiah, the mother of Joab" (II Samuel 17:25).

Shabbat 55b:4

The Talmud asks: And was Abigail the daughter of Nahash? Wasn't she the daughter of Yishai, as it is written: "And Yishai begot his firstborn Eliab, and Abinadab the second, and Shimea the third, Nethanel the fourth, Raddai the fifth, Ozem the sixth, David the seventh: and their sisters were Zeruiah and Abigail. And the sons of Zeruiah: Abishai, and Joab, and Asahel, three. And Abigail bore Amasa; and the father of Amasa was Jether the Ishmaelite" (I Chronicles 2:13–17)? Apparently, Abigail was the daughter of Yishai. Rather, the verse states that Abigail was the daughter of Nahash in order to teach us that she was the daughter of one who died on account of Adam's sin with the serpent [naḥash], though he himself was free of sin.

Taanit 28a:13

§ The mishna taught: On the twentieth of Av, the wood offering was brought by the descendants of Pahath Moab ben Yehuda. A tanna taught: The descendants of Pahath Moab ben Yehuda are the descendants of David ben Yehuda. He is called Moab because Ruth the Moabite was the grandmother of David's father, Yishai. This is the statement of R' Meir. R' Yosei says: These are the descendants of Joab, son of Zeruiah, whose mother was the daughter of Yishai and therefore also descended from Ruth.

Taanit 28a:14

The mishna further taught: On the twentieth of Elul, the descendants of Adin ben Yehuda brought their wood offering. The Sages taught: The descendants of Adin ben Yehuda are the descendants of David ben Yehuda, who was called Adin. This is the statement of R' Yehuda. R' Yosei says: These are the descendants of Joab, son of Zeruiah.

Taanit 28a:16

The Talmud continues: If it represents the opinion of R' Yehuda, let him teach that the descendants of David ben Yehuda returned for a second time on a different date, the twentieth of Elul, as he contends that the descendants of Adin ben Yehuda are the descendants of David. And if the mishna represents the opinion of R' Yosei, let him teach that the descendants of Joab, son of Zeruiah, returned for a second time, as he maintains that the descendants of Pahath Moab and the descendants of Adin ben Yehuda are both the descendants of Joab.

Ziba (6 total matches, showing 5)

Shabbat 56a:14

The Talmud now examines the matter itself with regard to Rav's statement cited in the course of the previous discussion. Rav said: David accepted a slanderous report, as it is written with regard to David's search for a surviving son of Jonathan: "And the king said to him, to Ziba, Saul's slave: Where is he? And Ziba said to the king: Behold, he is in the house of Machir, the son of Ammiel, in Lo-Devar [belo devar]" (II Samuel 9:4). Ziba indicated to David that Jonathan's son was inconsequential, lacking any matter [lo devar] of Torah. And it is written: "Then King David sent, and fetched him out of the house of Machir, the son of Ammiel, from Lo-Devar [milo devar]" (II Samuel 9:5). That verse can be read that after sending for him, David found him filled with matters [melo devar] of Torah.

Shabbat 56a:15

Now, after David saw that Ziba was a liar, when Ziba once again slandered Jonathan's son, Mephibosheth, why did David accept his report? As it is written that when David fled from Absalom, he met Ziba: "And the king said: And where is your master's son? And Ziba said to the king: Behold, he is staying in Jerusalem, as he said: Today shall the house of Israel restore to me the kingdom of my father" (II Samuel 16:3). And from where do we derive that David accepted Ziba's slanderous report? As it is written: "Then said the king to Ziba: Behold, all that belongs to Mephibosheth is yours. And Ziba said: I humbly beseech you that I may find favor in your sight, my lord, O king" (II Samuel 16:4).

Shabbat 56b:1

your servant. And he slandered your servant to my lord the king; but my lord the king is like an angel of God: Do therefore what is good in your eyes" (II Samuel 19:26–28). "And the king said to him: Why do you speak any more of your matters? I have said: You and Ziba shall divide the estate. And Mephibosheth said to the king: Let him even take all, seeing that my lord the king is come back in peace to his own house" (II Samuel 19:30–31). Mephibosheth said to David as follows: I had hoped for your return, saying: When will he come in peace, and yet you do this to me, giving Ziba half of my estate? It is not against you that I have grievances, but against He who brought you back in peace. Mephibosheth's own statement substantiates Ziba's report about him.

Shabbat 56b:3

To the matter at hand: Rav Yehuda said that Rav said: When David said to Mephibosheth: You and Ziba shall divide the estate, a Divine Voice emerged and said to him: Rehoboam and Jeroboam shall divide the kingdom.

Yoma 22b:16

The Talmud continues: And even according to Rav, who said that David accepted a slanderous report, one could answer that that sin is not counted, as was he not punished for it? As Rav Yehuda said that Rav said: At the time when David said to Mephibosheth: "I say that you and Ziba should divide the field" (II Samuel 19:30), a Divine Voice came forth and said to him: Rehoboam and Jeroboam will divide the kingship. Because David believed Ziba's slanderous report and awarded him half of Mephibosheth's field, David was punished by having his kingdom divided into two. Following King Solomon's death the Jewish people split into two kingdoms, Israel to the north and Judea to the south (see I Kings 12). Therefore, David was punished for that sin too.

Zibeon (2 total matches)

Pesachim 54a:15

The interpreters of Torah symbolism [Ḥamurot] would say: Anah was the product of an incestuous relationship, and as a result he was spiritually unfit to produce offspring. Therefore, he brought an example of unfitness, i.e., an animal physically unfit to produce offspring, into the world, as it is stated: "These are the sons of Seir the Horite, the inhabitants of the land: Lotan, and Shoval, and Zibeon, and Anah" (Genesis 36:20). And it is also stated: "And these are the sons of Zibeon: Aiah and Anah" (Genesis 36:24). One verse describes both Anah and Zibeon as sons of Seir, meaning that they are brothers, while the other verse describes Anah as Zibeon's son. Rather, this teaches that Zibeon cohabited with his mother, the wife of Seir, and fathered Anah from her. He is called Seir's son although in fact he was the offspring of Seir's son and Seir's wife.

Bava Batra 115b:4

Rabban Yoḥanan ben Zakkai recited this verse about him: "These are the sons of Seir the Horite, the inhabitants of the land: Lotan and Shobal and Zibeon and Anah" (Genesis 36:20), and it is written: "And these are the children of Zibeon: Aiah and Anah" (Genesis 36:24). The first verse portrays Zibeon and Anah as brothers, while the second states that they are father and son. Rather, this teaches that Zibeon engaged in sexual intercourse with his mother and begot Anah, so that he was both Anah's father and his brother. From the fact that the first verse equates Zibeon and Anah by referring to both of them as Seir's sons despite Anah being a grandson of Seir, it is clear that grandchildren are equal to children, contrary to the Sadducees' assertion.

Zimri (11 total matches, showing 5)

Nazir 23b:3

§ In relation to the preceding discussion with regard to the daughters of Lot, who acted in a wanton manner for the sake of a mitzva, the Talmud cites that which Ulla said: Tamar engaged in licentious sexual intercourse with her father-in-law, Judah (see Genesis, chapter 38), and Zimri ben Salu also engaged in licentious sexual intercourse with a Midianite woman (see Numbers, chapter 25).

Nazir 23b:4

Yet despite the similarity between their actions, Tamar engaged in licentious sexual intercourse for the sake of a mitzva, to have children, and therefore she merited that kings of the House of David descended from her. King David's lineage traces back to Tamar's son Peretz (see Ruth 4:18–22). And she also merited to be the ancestor of prophets, e.g., Isaiah, who was related to the royal family. Conversely, with regard to Zimri, who engaged in licentious sexual intercourse for the purpose of a transgression, several multitudes of Israel fell due to him; twenty-four thousand in a plague (see Numbers 25:9). This shows that a great deal depends on one's intentions.

Sotah 22b:6

Rav Naḥman bar Yitzḥak said: That which is hidden is hidden, and that which is revealed is revealed, but in Heaven everything is known, and the great court in Heaven will exact payment from those who wear the cloak of the righteous but are in fact unworthy. The Talmud relates: King Yannai said to his wife before he died: Do not be afraid of the Pharisees [perushin], and neither should you fear from those who are not Pharisees, i.e., the Sadducees; rather, beware of the hypocrites who appear like Pharisees, as their actions are like the act of the wicked Zimri and they request a reward like that of the righteous Pinehas (see Numbers, chapter 25).

Sanhedrin 44b:8

§ The mishna teaches: From where is it derived that Achan's confession achieved atonement for him? The Sages taught likewise in a baraita: From where is it derived that Achan's confession achieved atonement for him? As it is stated: "And Joshua said: Why have you brought trouble on us? The Lord shall trouble you this day" (Joshua 7:25). Joshua said to Achan: On this day of your judgment you are troubled, but you will not be troubled in the World-to-Come. And elsewhere it is written: "And the sons of Zerah were Zimri and Ethan and Heman and Calcol and Dara, five of them in all" (I Chronicles 2:6). What do the words "five of them in all" serve to teach? All five sons are destined to receive a share in the World-to-Come. According to the Sages, Zimri is Achan, son of Zerah, as will be explained. Since Achan has a share in the World-to-Come, his confession must have achieved atonement for him.

Sanhedrin 44b:9

In one place, among the five sons of Zerah, it is written: "Zimri," without any mention of Achan (I Chronicles 2:6), and in another place it is written: "And Joshua took Achan, son of Zerah" (Joshua 7:24). Rav and Shmuel both say that Zimri and Achan are one and the same, but they disagree about his real name. One of them says: His real name was Achan. Why then was he called Zimri? He was called Zimri because he acted like Zimri, i.e., just as Zimri engaged in sexual intercourse with a Midianite woman, Achan engaged in intercourse with a betrothed young woman. And the other one says: His real name was Zimri. Why then was he called Achan? He was called Achan because he acted like a snake [she'iken] and caused the punishment of the sins of the Jewish people.

Zipporah is her name. Rather, just as a Cushite is distinguished by his dark skin, so too, Zipporah was distinguished by her actions. The Talmud continues: Similarly, you can explain the verse: "Now when Ebed-Melech the Cushite heard" (Jeremiah 38:7). Is his name Cushite? Zedekiah is his name. Rather, just as a Cushite is distinguished by his dark skin, so too, Zedekiah was distinguished by his righteous actions.

Nedarim 32a:3

R' Yehuda bar Bizna taught: At the time that Moses our teacher was negligent about the circumcision, the destructive angels named Af, meaning anger, and Ḥeima, meaning wrath, came and swallowed him, and only his legs were left outside. Immediately, "Zipporah took a flint, and cut off the foreskin of her son" (Exodus 4:25), and immediately "He let him alone" (Exodus 4:26).

Avodah Zarah 27a:14

The Talmud raises a difficulty against this explanation: And is there anyone who says that a woman may not perform circumcision? But isn't it written: "Then Zipporah took [vattikka?] a flint and cut off the foreskin of her son" (Exodus 4:25). This verse explicitly states that a circumcision was performed by a woman. The Talmud answers that one should read into the verse: And she caused to be taken [vattakka?], i.e., she did not take a flint herself. But isn't it written: And she cut off [vattikhrot]? Read into the verse: And she caused to be cut off [vattakhret], as she told another person to take a flint and cut off her son's foreskin, and he did so. The Talmud provides an alternative explanation: And if you wish, say instead: She came and began the act, and Moses came and completed the circumcision.

Bava Batra 15b:2

The Talmud raises an objection from another baraita against the notion that Job was a Jew: Seven prophets prophesied to the nations of the world, and they are: Balaam and his father Beor, and Job, Eliphaz the Temanite, and Bildad the Shuhite, and Zophar the Naamathite, and Elihu ben Barachel the Buzite, which indicates that Job was not Jewish. He said to him: And according to your reasoning that Job could not have been Jewish because he prophesied to the nations of the world, was Elihu ben Barachel not a Jew? Is it not written: "Of the family of Ram" (Job 32:2), meaning Abraham?

Bava Batra 16b:4

The verse states: "And Job's three friends heard of all this evil that was come upon him, they came every one from his own place, Eliphaz the Temanite, and Bildad the Shuhite, and Zophar the Naamathite; for they had made an appointment together to come to mourn with him and to comfort him" (Job 2:11). What does "they had made an appointment together" mean? Rav Yehuda says that Rav says: This phrase teaches that they all entered through one gate at the same time. And a Sage taught in a baraita: There were three hundred parasangs between each and every one of them, i.e., each one lived three hundred parasangs away from the other.

Avodah Zarah 3a:9

Let Nebuchadnezzar come and testify about Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah that they did not prostrate themselves before a graven image. Let Darius come and testify about Daniel that he did not neglect his prayer (see Daniel 6). Let Bildad the Shuhite, and Zophar the Naamathite, and Eliphaz the Temanite, and Elihu, son of Barachel, the Buzite, friends of Job (see Job 2:11 and 32:2) come and testify about the Jewish people that they fulfilled the Torah in its entirety. As it is stated: "All the nations are gathered together…let them bring their witnesses, that they may be justified" (Isaiah 43:9), i.e., the gathered gentiles will submit testimony on behalf of the Jewish people and demonstrate the Jews' righteousness.
